JUST AN OLD BOOK

A news flash brings the information that the British Government has recently bought from the Russian Soviet Government an old parchment book for a quarter of a million dollars. It seems to be talking rather flippantly when we say that a high price was paid for this old book because one is rather inclined to think of an old book as a useless piece of junk. Well, this particular old book was once so regarded and had already reached the scrap pile ready to have the match applied, when it would have been forever lost to the world. It happened that, just at the right time, this dilapidated piece of old literature caught the eye of an expert and from that moment it became the most valuable book in the world, the object of greatest concern and esteem. The story back of all this goes back to the middle of last century when Prof. Tischendorf, a noted German scholar, on an expedition of research, happened to find himself a guest in the Greek monastery of St. Catherine, on the side of Mt. Sinai, in Arabia. A house cleaning was in progress and picking up a few leaves about to be consigned to the flames he noted that the writing upon them was ancient Greek. Upon closer examination he realized that he had in his hands leaves from what was probably the oldest copy of the New Testament. What followed makes a rather lengthy story that led to St. Petersburg and now to London and the British Museum, from which there is no likelihood that the book will be removed and, at which place it will be on exhibition for the benefit of the public.

Some years ago when the Csar was still in power in Russia the value of this manuscript was placed at three million dollars, not that it was for sale at that time, but because it was deemed wise to set a material value upon it. No doubt under other conditions it would never have been offered for sale at any price, but to the Soviets, who have no regard for the God of the New Testament, this old manuscript, dating to about the middle of the fourth century, represents only something that might be turned into cash when there happened to be a need of cash. With the ruthless destruction of so many things to which religious sentiments have been attached it is surprising that the Russian authorities did not show their spite by burning it instead of turning it into money. To the Christian world generally it is a matter of satisfaction that this precious volume will now be carefully preserved and protected to take its place besides the Rosetta Stons and made available to serious students of the Bible.

It may be asked, why should there be so much attention given to the preservation of an ancient copy of the New Testament when any one who might wish to do so could have easy access to a Bible of his own printed in his own language? The answer is that in such ancient copies of the sacred books we have the surest garantee that our Bible has come down to us unaltered. So, here upon comparing a Bible of the fourth century with one of our own times, we discover that there have been no changes made in the text during the passing ages and that corruption has not spoiled the sense of what holy men of old spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.

Until the invention of printing the Bible and other books were copied and recopied by hand. This always involved possible the entering into the text of intentional and unintentional corruptions. Other ancient books have come down to us with many errors in them. The Bible is singularly free of corruptions as a comparison of ancient copies with modern ones will show. The reason for the purity of the text of our Bible is that the Holy Spirit has directed and protected the Word in such a way that it has come to us in its purity.

NOT ALL VETERANS GLORY IN WAR

It has been the position of a few Christians in every age since the Gospel has been preached that love for enemies is a sign of Christian consistency and that war is crime against God and humanity. This position, on the part of the few, has been responsible for much suffering and persecution. It has taken a World War to make the doctrine of peace appeal to large masses of thoughtful people and, because it is getting the serious attention of so many, those who have committed themselves to militarism are all the more vigorous in their endeavors to discredit anything that has in it the suggestion of a possible world that does not resort to arms in order to settle its differences. In a recent issue of the Christian Century the following notice deserves the widest possible publicity: Stripping the so-called "victory medals" from their coats and tossing them into a "tin derby" as they filed past, three hundred Canadian veterans at Stamford, Ontario, dramatized their conviction that the war in which they had earned these decorations had not brought victory, and that no war can. Wounds and debts remain, but the anticipated fruits of valor and of victory have not materialized. The chairman of the medal committee of this post of veterans—all that are left of a regiment—put it this way: "They (the medals' stand for a victory in a way that was to end war. Th whole world is preparing for a war right now Victory is an empty phrase. We, the victors have as many cripples as the enemy. Ou debts are as high, debts our grandchildren wil be paying.—The victory medal is empty. W have all lost." To carry this message one meda will be sent to each of the twenty-one combatant countries, as a contribution toward th war debts, with this letter: "The victory emblems we surrender, one to each nation, ar to be melted down with all the other reward of armed conflict." Such medals are of bronz the intrinsic value of the medal will not constitute more than a modest "token payment" toward the debts, but the voluntary surrende of them is a token of deep disillusion with war a complete devaluation of its glories, and renunciation of it as a means of attaining security or peace or any other good thing. The mer who make this declaration learned in the har school of experience. Elderly patriots beyon the draft age will find some difficulty i answering their arguments by an appeal to th old catch-phrases.

OVER-CHURCHED COMMUNITIES

An observing friend calls our attention t a community of about four hundred people i which there are four churches on opposit corners of the street, each with a seating capacity of more than four hundred. In othe words, it is observed that more than four time as many people as there are in the community may be accommodated at one time in these churches. This, it is implied, is a wicked wast of men and means in doing the Lord's work Why should there be four struggling parishe with four struggling pastors when one church and one pastor could handle the situation better and more effectively? Why should there not be one magnificent church building with its splendid organ, its well trained and well conducted choir and a well planned plant prepared to do excellent institutional work?

Of course duplication is a waste when it is really a duplication and the numerous abandoned churches scattered throughout the country are an indictment upon the poor judgment and lack of forethought of those responsible for their erection, or, it may be, for their abandonment.

It must be borne in mind, in this connection, however, that a church in a village or town draws upon a wider territory than its immediate vicinity. It may seem big for the little town and yet just be able to fill the needs of the surrounding territory. The usefulness of a church is not to be estimated by its seating capacity and, to put that limitation upon it, keeps out of the picture the important historical background and the particular principles that the church represents. These principles are matters of conscience that those holding to them feel duty bound to proclaim.

No matter how large or how well equipped a church may happen to be and, no matter how large may be the number of its attendants, if it is a church without a sense of its responsibilities for upholding the outstanding Christian principles, its usefulness in the cause of Christ is limited. We do note that a loyalty to the Bible and the fundamentals of the Gospel are likely to be found in the small congregations that are continually facing competition with those churches that measure success by the numbers to whom they appeal and the elaborate equipment upon which they depend to keep things moving. THIRD QUARTER'S REPORT OF THE LEPER HOME

Champa, C. P., India

I assume that the other workers of Champa will give a report of the activities of the various departments of the work that was in their charge, hence I confine myself to the work among lepers only.

We do not call this Leper Home an Asylum, because it smacks too much of a lunatic institution. Of couse, in its narrower sense this is an asylum, a place of refuge, but the entire institution is devoid of much of what is found in a so-called asylum. We endeavor to teach our people that come to us from the four corners of the District that they shall not only consider this a place of refuge, but THEIR home. We are happy to report that many of the inmates have caught the spirit and if a casual visitor would visit the Home during these pleasant days, he would notice that the inmates vie with one another to make their wards attractive. We are most pleased to note this.

The entire Home has 43 buildings excluding the church, which accommodates, if necessary, 800 to 1000 people. We have 510 inmates of whom 283 are Christians. It is remarkable that from the very beginning we have always had more leper women than men. I cannot account for this in any way. Of these 510 inmates we find quite a bunch of young people, all of whom have a good chance of becoming symptom-free. Indeed, we never send a young leper away, though we do send older ones away when there is no room in the Home. Young people should have the first opportunity to regain health and mix with the healthy population of the country. But, otherwise worthy older applicants we have been compelled to refuse admittance, because of the lack of room. We have had as many as 18 people waiting for admission. They have been here, in some cases, for weeks and when they realized that there was no hope they reluctantly left for other parts, or committed suicide. Two of those that were waiting put their necks on the rails before the oncoming train. It is tragic, but we cannot possibly accommodate all the patients that come to us.

That lepers are compelled to work for a part of the day is well known. This is conducive to health and an eventual cure. This year and especially during this last quarter, all able bodied lepers were working at the road leading from the bungalow to the Leper Home. It was a wonderful sight to see about 250 men and women work for two solid hours in widening the road. We gave them a 15 minute rest and during this period, they would frequently pass the time in singing.

That we lay much stress on medical work I hardly need to point out. This ought to be as efficient as possible, though ours, without the European doctor, is not very efficient. We have an Indian doctor and he does all that he can, but that does not say much. Add to the lack of training, also the fact that many of our Indians were born on a holiday and then further remember that I fear the majority of such who work among lepers do not have the sympathy for these unfortunates that they ought to have and you will know why the work is not efficient. But, lest I be too harsh let me add that if I were doing medical work like I am compelled to do here among 510 needy lepers, I would be put in jail. We have no hospital for real needy cases, say operated cases, no isolation wards for such who should be segregated, not a single nurse, and the merest makeshift for equipment in the dispensary. Of course, I do not believe that it is necessary to have everything up to date, like the Hospitals in America, the conditions of this country and the way that we are compelled to take care of patients forbid this, but never-the-less, we ought to have better medical facilities.

During the quarter we had two major operations, and 47 minor. 3924 injections of Hydnocreol were given and we had 7110 dressings. The hospital staff consists of one Indian doctor with two compounders (on the order of druggists with many more duties than druggists, however) and one helper. All of these are non-lepers. Then we have about four leper dressers and two lepers that do injection work.

The religious part of the work has received a great share of our attention. Meetings were held as usual, the Sunday morning service, the Sunday School in the afternoon and the prayer meeting and Bible study class during the week. Mrs. Isaac has been helping us in teaching singing to the lepers. During the quarter, the total contributions by the church for home and benevolent purposes have been Rs. 119.10. Of this Rs. 73.5.0 were church dues; and Rs. 46.5.0 were free will Sunday offerings. Money given by the church is expended for various purposes, such as the purchasing of Bibles and Hymnbooks which are given to lepers that can or are taught to read. A certain amount goes for school work. Then the church pays for its minor repairs and the sexton. Every year a donation of Rs. 25.00.0 is given to the British and Foreign Bible Society and to the North India Tract and Book Society. We are very proud of our liberal givers.

As a whole, we cannot complain of great difficulties, but we are concerned about the fact that not more accept the Lord Jesus Christ and for this, I wish that the churches would help us pray. Will you pray definitely that the Lord may give no peace of heart and mind to our non-Christian inmates?

With cordial Greetings, we are,

Yours for India, P. A. Penner.

JANJGIR BIBLE SCHOOL GOSPEL TEAM AT WORK

This year a Gospel Team was organized in the Bible School and we are happy that the Lord uses this team to His own glory. Joseph Asna who graduated from the Lenard Theological Seminary helped us with the organization of the Team since he himself had been a member of such a Team in the Seminary. He often insisted that our students were not ready for this kind of work because they were not fully consecrated to the Lord. Still they started the work planning to have their first series of meetings in the Champa Leper Home. About a week before this series of meetings was to be held in Champa it happened, as we say, that the Jubbulpore Gospel Team came to Pendra Road for a series of meetings. We sent all of our Bible School men to Pendra Road to watch that Team at work. At Pendra our boys were touched by the Holy Spirit through the testimonies of that Team. From what our boys say now they came home with their consciences biting hard because of hidden sins in their own lives. The next week-end they went to Champa to start their Gospel Team work in the Leper Home. At the Naila Ry. station while they were waiting for the train to arrive the leader, Mr. Asna, made another strong appeal to them that if their hearts were not right they should not go or else confess and make right. Upon that a lot of sins were confessed among themselves. When they arrived at Champa they wrote a lot of letters begging for forgiveness for various kinds of sins and sent them back to Janjgir by a special coolie.

Early the next morning I went to Champa by cycle to attend the meetings. I arrived just before the first meeting was to start. The church was filled with people. First one student called me aside and confessed that he had cheated in the last examination and begged to be forgiven. Then two other students called me out of the audience just before the meeting was to start and confessed that during the last year's tour they had overcharged me for a cart and had had a chicken fry on the money they had taken. Others confessed stealing fruit from our garden. One of them confessed stealing our boy's tools and books and made right by returning the stolen things. They had a real clean-up of hearts which brought into their hearts a great joy and deep peace from the Lord as they afterwards testified. The boys were very happy and did really good witnessing, confessing their sins publicly and telling of the peace of heart they now had in Christ Jesus. The Champa meetings were pretty good but not as those held later because that was the first attempt at this kind of work by our Team.

The next week-end the Team went to Birra for a series of meetings. This time under the leadership of Joel Asna. I could not go along myself but Rev. Thiessen wrote me about the meetings later. He said that during his stay in Birra he had never seen their church so touched and moved as the people had been by the testimonies and confessions of the Gospel Team boys.

Last week-end the Team was in Korba for a series of meetings. We feel happy for what the Lord did there. Ten young people made public that they consecrated themselves fully to Christ. One of the leaders of the church made a public confession that we believe will contribute greatly to the unity of the church. Another Baboo who has for some time done much to hinder the church seems to have turned. The Korba missionaries are quite hopeful now that the church will become a greater power for Christ in that community. For all these blessings we praise God, and request that this Gospel Team be remembered in prayer by those who love the Lord Jesus and seek His Kingdom.

Yours for the Kingdom of Christ in India,

W. F. Unruh.

THE SOWER WENT FORTH TO SOW
Matt. 13:3-8.

By F. J. Isaac

Our camp was on the edge of the village Darrabhanta. One evening we were visiting homes in the village. In one courtyard this song was sung: "God loved a world of sinners lost." All were interested and some were moved. There was a spirit of joy distinctly manifest. As the song ended the married son of the family said: "We should accept this Jesus," and he heartily joined in, when the chorus was repeated.

The next day I had to go to Champa and this man accompanied me a little distance. As we walked along he said: "Whatever happens, even if it costs my life, I shall become a Christian." I encouraged him—thus we neared the place where he would leave me. I suggested that we pray together. As I began to pray I noticed that he repeated my words after me: so I continued to give him a chance to repeat and ordered my words as though he were praying. When we had finished I said: "You can pray to Jesus whatever is in your heart at any time anywhere." Then and there he began to pray spontaneously. He poured out his heart asking Christ to forgive his sins which were great and many, and to accept him as he came to him. Then we parted, and I went on my way, rejoicing that another son had been born into the Kingdom.

I returned in a few days, but during the next two weeks, which we spent in that village, I found it difficult to do follow-up work with this man. He could not be found when sought. Only once or twice did I meet him accidentally but then he always seemed happy and sincere. I gave him a Testament to read, which he promised to do. Others in the village told me that this man was not dependable; that he would be all enthusiasm one day and have completely forgotten the next. But I am still believing that something happened in his heart that day.

In that same village there were a number of other people who intimated their desire to follow Jesus, but the cares of this world and the fear of men held them back. The Gospel was fully and repeatedly presented to all in that village during those weeks, but I am afraid that much of the seed was as that which fell by the wayside. There still remains that which fell on good ground: for I believe there was some good ground. Perhaps it will prove to be some that we did not recognize.

"HOW CAN WE KEEP FAITH IN OUR CHRISTIAN LIFE?"

The theme itself sets forth that we already have the true Christian faith. By faith all things become possible to us; yet the power is not in the Faith, but in the GOD upon whom faith relies. Yes, Faith in the God of Our Salvation. When we come to a bridge we have faith enough that it will bear us across, even thought the posts are under water and completely out of sight. So the child of God must trust God to carry us through the hard paths, the rough way, if we only rest in HIM.

Faith joins the believer to Christ and makes him partaker of ALL that Christ has.

In these days when it seems men are discouraged, troubled, even doubting God's goodness, losing faith in their fellow men and GOD. When they are shipwrecked the only hope is as Wesley once said, do you see yonder cow looking over that stone wall? Why does she do it? Do you know? No, replied his friend. I will tell you, said Wesley. Because she cannot look through it. So it is with all our troubles, Faith enables us to look over and above every trouble to God, who is our help.

If we look into the world today we may give up hope, our faith in the President that things may soon improve is slowly slipping. But listen friends:—"Fear ye not," says God's Word, "stand still and see the salvation of the Lord."

How can we keep Faith in our Christian life? If we want to keep faith we must use it. Faith and works. You may say if a person really trusts in God, ought he not to trust God to do everything that is needed? Or ought he to do some things for himself? The story is told of two girls who got a late start for school one morning. Let us kneel right down and ask God not to let us be late. But the other one said, no, I think I will run just as hard as I can, and pray God while I'm running to help me get there on time. It is not difficult to decide which had the right idea about prayer and faith in God. We must Pray, but folks, let us not forget to run.

What are the things that hinder us from keeping the faith? Ah! My dear friends first of all we have neglected the reading of the word of God, the life spring of our Faith, we have neglected to breakfast our souls on God's inspiring book. The fountain of Living Water has not quenched our thirst, the Bread of Life has not satisfied our hunger, because our diet has been husks, and not the nursing soulfeed of God's eternal book of life. Parents! Have you strengthened the faith of your children in God? . . . In the Bible? . . . In the Christian Church? Have you instructed them in the eternal truths of God? . . . How do you expect them to keep the faith in the Christian life if you have failed in this important part of your Holy and Christian duty. You have robbed so to say the Faith of your children through your own neglect.

Satan is going about like a roaring Lion seeking whom he may devour. He is undermining the faith of the Christians wherever he finds it possible. Our schools are also responsible for so many of our dear Christian youngfolks losing the Faith of our Fathers.

Parents, Christian workers, Sunday-school teachers and the Christians as a whole are not doing their full DUTY towards the YOUNG CONVERTS, the young Christians, strengthening their faith making the path easier for them to follow, inspiring them to the more nobler and higher things of life that a true Christian may have in JESUS. If they are losing their FAITH are we helping them back to the right way? Are we encouraging them to better living by our own example as Christians who confess to have kept the faith for five, ten or more years.

How can we keep FAITH in our Christian life? The poet in the song says STEAL AWAY WITH JESUS, yes, alone with Jesus. He loved me, . . . from everlasting! Feed on this glorious truth, O Christian, and recollect that your being drawn to Christ is the effect of this eternal love, and is, at the same time the proof of it . . . the proof that you were upon God's heart long before he "Spread the flowing seas abroad,

And built the lofty skies."

Paul says, I have kept the Faith, I have finished my course, henceforth is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.

May God grant that we as children of God may be steadfast in the Christian FAITH, faithful unto the end.

And hear the blessed words, well done thou good and faithful SERVANT.

Arthur F. Ortmann.

CORRESPONDENCE

Reedley, Calif., Dec. 11, 1933:—In order to keep my resolution made last January, as correspondent of the Mennonite, that I would write four reports during the year for our church paper, I see that I must hasten to write my fourth contribution as the year is rapidly drawing to a close.

THE MENNONITE AND THE CHRISTIAN EVANGEL

A religious journal published jointly by the General Conference Mennonite Church of North America and the Central Conference of Mennonites. Devoted to the interests of these Mennonite denominations and the cause of Christ in general. Published on the first and third Tuesday of every month by the Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.

Foreign........$2.00

Acceptance for mailing at special rate of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act October 3, 1917, authorized January 22, 1919.

All business communications and remittances are to be sent to the MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Ind.

Communications and contributions for the columns of this paper from General Conference sources should be addressed to Rev. S. M. Grubb, D.D., 2956 N. 12th St., Philadelphia, Pa.
Communications and contributions from Central Conference sources should be addressed to Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, A.M., Danvers, Illinois.

I might write about secular conditions first for I am very much in doubt whether to the true Christian there is any distinction between secular and sacred. First then I might tell you that in spite of all governmental efforts the depression with us is not over. When a brother recently said the inflation would certainly help us by increasing the price of our products. Another replied, "Not until next fall, because for this year our crops are sold and between now and next fall we will have to pay higher prices for everything we buy." Another evidence of the depression is that the house of my old neighbor, McKeel, who died almost 10 years ago has been sold by the county and is being wrecked. The other day I drove with a friend 10 miles northeast of Reedley, and we saw more than a dozen farms that had been abandoned, and the people are carrying away parts of the barns and houses for kindling. Perhaps the government farm loans will stop this disintegrating process, otherwise this fruitful valley would gradually return to its original desert condition. This is a dark picture, but in the opening prayer at our annual congregational meeting last Sunday, it was said, "We thank thee, oh God, that Thau hast supplied to our members all the material things necessary to life and happiness and added thereto many spiritual blessings." At that meeting our pastor read a symposium of what he called "A forward program for the First Mennonite Church" which had the following three divisions:—

1—Sources of strength—eight points.
2—Evidences of weakness—eight points.
3—Objectives for which to strive—nine points.

It was very enlightening, and it was decided by a unanimous vote that we strive in 1934 for the attainment of the nine objectives.

During this year we lost by death and withdrawals ten members, and by baptism and letter gained thirty-three members. At present we have a membership of 477, but of these about 120 are non-resident members.

We have a Men's Chorus of 24 members and a Ladies Choir of 23 members who alternate in adding much to our regular services by special music, and together they are now preparing to render a Christmas Cantata. Our Men's Chorus has given six programs in churches of neighboring towns, and as they give these programs entirely free of charge, paying their own transportation they get so many invitations that they might sing in a different church each Sunday, but they are so loyal to their own church that they accept only a limited number of these invitations in order to do their duty to our own church, and we appreciate that. Beside the congregation and the Sunday School we have nine other organizations in our church, all working for the upbuilding of God's Kingdom and each of these gave a brief but encouraging report. The most discouraging was the financial report of the trustees which showed a deficit of $700.00 for the year, but it was encouraging to see by the reports that the church and all the auxiliary organizations had given more than twice this amount for mission and benevolent purposes.

Everybody at present is busy preparing for Christmas, but that our spiritual blessings will not end with the Christmas season and the close of the year, we may know from the fact that Bro. W. W. Miller, formerly from Pulaski, Iowa, has promised to be with us during the Week of Prayer and conduct meetings each day.

I am not in a position to know how well the readers of the Mennonite have been satisfied with me as a correspondent, but to our congregation, at least, my work must have been satisfactory for I was unanimously elected to serve another year.

H. J. Krehbiel.

HOW WE GOT OUR NEW TESTAMENT

Rev. Frank R. Mitchell

(Paper read at Oscoda County Rally of Four County Council of Religious Education, Dec. 5, 1933.)

The New Testament is a record of great experiences: the experiences of men with God and of God with men. It might well be called a written introduction to Jesus Christ the Son of God as the Saviour of the world. It is a fragmentary group of writings that makes no claim to completeness. Looking back to its origins the New Testament could be called an afterthought. For years there seemed no need for written records. The spoken word of eye witnesses was more potent than any written word. As long as the groups were not scattered by persecution into the midst of pagan environment a written story of the gospel of Jesus was unthought of. And beside all this, was not their Lord to return soon?

The vigorous little groups of Christians scattered all over the Roman Empire were held together by a consciousness of the Spirit of Jesus. They met together the first day of the week in commemoration of the resurrection of their Lord, and rehearsed their glad experiences of the past week with God. They encouraged one another to withstand trial and overcome temptation. They partook of the sacred communion of their Lord, which was a powerful aid to them in their victory over persecution and death. It became to them a means of fellowship with the sufferings of their Lord.

Frequently there were prominent Lord's days when some visiting apostle or disciple who had seen and heard Jesus would come to worship with them and to tell them the cherished and priceless words and deeds of Jesus. These words and deeds would then be rehearsed over and over again for the spiritual benefit and profit of the followers of "The Way" as the early Christians were called. Sometimes these visitors, who were on their way to some distant church, were bearers of inspirational and instructive letters from some apostle. These letters would then be read to the churches on the way and this would bind them in fellowship to both the absent writer and to the distant church. Sometimes the church from which the letter was written was in need. Appeals would be made in these letters to a distant sister church for aid and thus the churches on the way were also given the opportunity to help the needy church. In the writing known as the Book of Acts, Luke gives us a record of many of the activities of these scattered Christian churches.

An outstanding leader and apostle spoken of in this writing was the great missionary Paul. In his travels over the Roman Empire he established and developed many young churches. He had a large correspondence. They were letters, as of a father to his children, full of exhortation and advice, comfort and criticism. And in and through them all ran the Spirit of Jesus and the interpretation of His will. While many of these letters of the great apostle are lost a few of them are still extant, because, after the death of this great man they were incorporated in the New Testament and now occupy nearly a third of its volume.

Other similar letters and writings were written and sent to the churches to meet some urgent need. Due to the youth of these Christian churches with their pagan backgrounds there was much unsound and erroneous teaching threatening the welfare of the Christians. Much space was therefore given to warnings and instructions concerning these false teachings and their teachers. Some of these letters were intended to be chain letters and were exchanged among the churches. Copies of these letters were kept in the archives of the various churches to be referred to many times. A few of these carry the names of Peter and James and John and Jude respectively. One anonymous writing was given the general heading To the Hebrews. It was probably written by a careful student and friend of Paul's; a Jew, who knew well the symbolism and service of the Old Testament temple worship, and who could show its value in enriching the Christian faith and religion. It was not written by Paul.

The writing called The Revelation was written and sent out at a time of terrific persecution. It was the revelation of the presence of their living Lord, who stood with them in the fiery furnace. Because of this severe persecution it was necessary to speak in the cryptic language of symbols, images, and visions which to outsiders meant nothing, but to the early Christians, almost pressed out of measure by their tribulations, was most significant and comforting.

The group of writings, such as the letters of Paul, the letters carrying the names Peter, James, John and Jude respectively, the anonymous writing To the Hebrews and the Revelation of Jesus, which also carries the name of a John were written between fifty and seventy A. D.

Towards the latter end of this period those who had seen and known Jesus were becoming fewer and fewer. Many died through the persecutions. The new faith had been growing rapidly, and also, because of the persecutions the little groups were scattered widely over the then known world. The Christian faith was thrown into a huge melting pot of heathenism which, had it not been a living organism could not have survived. It would certainly have been choked to death by the manifold ideas and teachings that were far removed from the spirit and teachings of Jesus.

A new problem sprang up, therefore, it became necessary to put the experiences that had been fluid during the previous generation into a more rigid, usable form. The white hot mettle needed a mold. The words and deeds of Jesus needed to be crystalized and put into a form more accessible to all, lest they be lost. Luke tells us that many writings were written about Jesus, which made it all the more imperative that careful records be written. So it was that the Gospels that have come down to us were written. First Mark, then Matthew, then Luke and last of all and late the record of John.

Each of these writings was written from the viewpoint of its author, and to meet a definite need. They did not agree. It was not necessary that they should. There was, however, remarkable unity among the first three and they give the impression that they were the records of eye witnesses to the ministry of Jesus. No attempt is made to give an accurate chronological record of the whole life of Jesus. Those words and those deeds of Jesus that helped each one to paint his own portrait of the Saviour were selected and used. The first three of these writings were written between sixty and eighty A. D. Some fifteen or twenty years later the spiritual Gospel of John was written. It is another portrait of Jesus drawn to meet the needs of the time. It had the advantage of perspective in correcting certain details about the other pictures that needed correction, and fills in some of the lines that were necessary, but missing in the other portraits. Many precious private conversations of Jesus with His disciples are given to us in John that are lacking in the other records.

All of these writings became much used in the growing churches. Later on, it became desirable to make a collection of these writings as far as possible. A large council of all the Christian churches was called. These writings were carefully sifted and a selection of the very best of them were gathered together and they were called the New Testament. While none of the originals of these writings have come down to us yet the New Testament has become the guide and comfort and inspiration of the Christian faith. Very early it became venerated and authoritative to the Church. However, the Spirit of Jesus is greater than a collection of writings. During the centuries that followed down to the present time the living Christ has used various methods to show both the Church and the world that the written records were only meant to introduce Him and that He was really to be found "beyond the sacred page" in living close fellowship, rather than by a mere looking back to a historic Jesus. He is alive forever more and He invites mankind everywhere to enjoy fresh and greater experiences with Him. It is best summed up in His own precious words: Ye search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me. John 5:39.

BABYLON OR JERUSALEM—WHICH?

by

Dr. Wilbert W. White

President, The Biblical Seminary in New York.

Babylon represents tyranny, lawlessness and death.

Jerusalem represents liberty, justice and life.

In the light of history, what is the answer to the question: Babylon or Jerusalem—Which? In the light of the existing situation what will be our answer to this question in action? Shall we treat symptoms or shall we eliminate causes? Shall we lazily lament and drift to destruction or, shall we faithfully use proved means to end?

The Basic Question

Shall government of the people, for the people and by the people perish from the earth?

Of course our answer is: God forbid.

But what about means to end? What should be done to prevent it? What are we going to do about it?

Herbert Hoover spoke truly when he said that we are suffering from "subsidence of the foundations." Is not the rule of the people tending to misrule? What must we say even of our own country? Is Democracy at present at its best safe or unsafe? Do we not hear America seriously asking: Does no one care for my soul? Is not eternal vigilance the price of liberty? Are we doing our part? "The state is the individual writ large." What is being done for the individual to make the state safe? Are we using basic, tested means to end?

What can be done? What means to end are available? Here is the answer of a student of history:—Elisha Mulford says that a people's morals as well as its politics will correspond to its theology and will be but the counterpart of that. By theology, Mr. Mulford means the religious life of the people.

What has the religious life of a people got to do with it? Let Professor Thomas Huxley, the great scientist, answer. In 1870, speaking before the London School Board in advocacy of the use of the Bible for and by the children, Professor Huxley said: "By what other means can children be so humanized? I have been seriously perplexed to know by what means the religious feeling, which is the essential basis of conduct is to be kept up without the use of the Bible."

This is a very important statement. Note:

1. Serious perplexity about the drift in the Anglo-Saxon world from the use of means to end. That was sixty-three years ago. Think of what has occurred since and what we are today (paganized) and where we are heading (toward chaos and ruin).

2. The essential basis of conduct is recognized to be the religious feeling in mankind. Right! Tremendously true!

3. This great scientific scholar, certainly without bias in favor of the Bible, is seriously perplexed to know by what means this religious feeling in mankind is to be kept up without the use of the Bible.

So are we perplexed. We are fully persuaded that there is no other way to prevent the government of the people, for the people and by the people from perishing from the earth than this, that the book which Lincoln's great General Grant called the sheet anchor of our liberty, be restored to the people. This is the great basic recovery act which is needed. This is the means to end which we must use.

Principal Peter Forsyth asks:

> "Now who will rise
> To purge our eyes,
> Kindle the Spirit's breath;
> And think well bourne
> Neglect or scorn
> To give our sons a faith?
> For pieties
> And dubieties
> To give them back a faith?
> Who gives them for a flickering wraith,
> A central, funded, founded faith?"

This same Peter Forsyth elsewhere says: "To restore to the people an intelligent and affectionate use of the Bible is a service to Protestantism far more needed than violent and ill-formed denunciations of error which are so easy and so cheap." To which we may add the arresting question and answer of that veteran Christian statesman, Dr. John Clifford: "The shadow of the priest is upon the land. Why? Because the voice of the prophet is so seldom heard."

What Abraham Lincoln Believed

I began by using Abraham Lincoln's great closing sentence of his greatest speech. Is there still need of emphasis of the use of the Bible with the people as means to end that the government of the people, by the people and for the people may not perish from the earth? Hear our martyr President as he looks up from the page in the midst of a season of profitable reading of the Bible, and speaks to a doubting friend: "Joshua Speed, read this book for what on reason you can accept and take the rest on faith, and you will live and die a better man."

Is it not better men we need? And better women? And better children? Out of this material is our civilization created. Let me repeat the declaration, "The state is the individual writ large."

A New Crusade.

How about a crusade to make the people of the United States a Bible reading people? Great results would follow if Lincoln's example should be followed both in the habit of reading the Bible himself and of recommending others to read it also.

(1) Daniel Webster in the disturbed and threatening thirties, forties and fifties said: "If we abide by our principles taught in the Bible, our country will go on prospering and to prosper; but if we and our posterity neglect its instructions and authority, no man can tell how sudden a catastrophe may overwhelm us and bury all our glory in profound obscurity."

(2) Lincoln in the war stricken sixties earnestly recommends thoughtful and obedient contact with the Scriptures.

(3) Huxley in the disquieted seventies seriously perplexed about the non-use of the Bible as a means of keeping up the religious feeling in mankind which is the essential basis of conduct!

(4) Dr. William R. Harper, then a professor in Yale University and afterwards with John D. Rockefeller, founder of Chicago University, in the "uneasy eighties" wrote: "The Bible is not known as it ought to be known. It is not used as it ought to be used. A reform is needed in this direction. Let it be inaugurated."

What heed is being given to the solemn warning of Webster? What heed to Lincoln of the solicitous sixties, to Huxley of the disquieted seventies, and to Harper of the "Uneasy eighties" in respect to efficient, basic means to end to preserve the state which is the individual writ large? What worth while has been doing through the exciting nineties, the hurrying, exploring tens, the world-destroying teens, and the money-mad twenties? Has not the time come for response to the call to arm the people with the sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God to the end that the government of the people, for the people and by the people shall not perish from the earth?

To this end, for which for more than forty years I have been contributing my best endeavor, I set anew my hand and seal this 26th day of November, 1933.

Where is the man or the woman, "come to the Kingdom for such a time as this," who will make possible a nation of Bible readers that America may again become a God-fearing people?

CORRESPONDENCE

The Pleasant View Mennonite Church, Aurora, Nebr.—The Ladies' Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Aaron Oswald for an all-day meeting, Thursday, December 7.

Mrs. Elmer Freyenberg and children of Noble, Iowa, and Edwin Freyenberg of Wayland, Iowa, who for the past two weeks have been visiting the Oswald and J. B. Krabiel families, returned to their homes, Wednesday, December 13.

A surprise was planned by Irene and Goldie Zehr for their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Zehr, Wednesday evening, Dec. 13, the occasion being their 25th wedding anniversary. They were the recipients of some lovely gifts. A delicious lunch was served.

We are now planning and preparing our Christmas program which is to be given Sunday evening, Dec. 24.

A miscellaneous shower was given Miss Eleanor Kraus and Ralph Springer at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Springer, Friday evening, Dec. 15. They received a great number of lovely gifts. There were sixty-two guests present. A delicious lunch of ice cream, cake and coffee was served.

The C. E. programs have been made very interesting. The young people have been volunteering to lead, having arranged their own subjects and programs.

The Bethel College Octette of Newton, Kansas is making a tour, singing at the different Mennonite churches. They plan to be at our church Thursday evening, Dec. 28.

Calvary Church Notes—Earl Guth was home over the Thanksgiving week-end. He is attending Bible School.

Miss Haeins of Peoria gave a very interesting lecture on "Rescue Mission Work" on December 3.

An anniversary service was held at the Calvary Mennonite church December 10, for Rev. Ben Esch, in honor of his 22 years in the ministry. The entire congregation and the South Washington congregation joined in a basket dinner at noon. The afternoon program was in honor of Mr. Esch. A number of gifts were presented to Mr. Esch, including a purse from the Sunday School. There was a very large attendance. The entire program was a surprise to Mr. Esch.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Streid of Metamora celebrated their crystal wedding anniversary December 12 with a buffet supper. A program was given after supper in their honor. A number of friends and relatives were present.

The Kum-Joy-Nus Sunday School class were entertained with a Christmas party by Edith Kinsinger on December 13.

The Christmas program is planned for Dec. 24.

East White Oak Mennonite—On Nov. 5th Rev. Zehr and family spent the week-end in Chicago at the 62nd Street Mission where Rev. Zehr held communion for the people at that place. He gave a very encouraging report of the work at that place, and our prayers are that God will continue to bless that work in the future as He has in the past.

In the absence of our pastor the Rev. J. H. King filled the pulpit here.

Nov. 6th to 26th our pastor held a series of evangelistic meetings at the Christian church of Hudson. A wonderful spirit of cooperation was shown among the other churches of the town. The result of the meetings was that a large number of souls was won for the Lord.

On Thanksgiving night a special service was held at the church. Those taking part in the services was the Rev. Bebout of the Christian Church of Hudson, the Rev. Shubert of the M. E. Church of Hudson and our two boys from Moody's, Harold McClure and Wendell Johnson. A wonderful spirit was manifested and all received a great blessing.

On Dec. 3 we held our annual Missionary Day with the regular morning services, in the afternoon the children gave a program, followed by an address by the Rev. A. H. Leaman of Chicago. In the evening at 7:30 a praise and testimony service was held with a large number taking part in the testimony service. This service was followed by an address by Miss Irene Duncan from Hudson who gave us a wonderful talk on the need of consecration.

Our young people are planning on giving a Christmas program on Christmas Eve.

Rev. Augsburger delivered the message on December 10.

Eighth Street Mennonite—Three of our young people, Richard Blosser, Eleanor Landis, and Barbara Zook attended the Indiana State Young People's Conference of Christian Education at Winchester, Ind., on October 20, 21 and 22.

On Sunday, Oct. 29 Rev. and Mrs. G. T. Soldner and family had as their guests, Rev. Soldner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Soldner, his sister, Nora, and his brothers, Tilman and Wildas and families.

Nora Kershberger, the primary superintendent of our Sunday school, underwent an appendectomy November 3. She is recovering nicely and expects to assume her duties the first of the year.

On November 17 the Ladies' Missionary Society was held at the home of Sarah Kurtz. The December meeting of the society was held at the home of Mrs. S. E. Hooley.

The Soalteba Choir gave their Thanksgiving program at the church Sunday evening, November 26. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music. It was repeated on Sunday evening, December the 3d at the Topeka Mennonite church.

December 3 Rev. A. W. Geigley of Iron Springs, Penn., filled the pulpit.

On December 10 the combined choirs of the city rendered Handel's oratorio, "The Messiah" at the Goshen High School auditorium. It was estimated that 1200 heard the rendition. Mrs. A. L. Sprunger, our choir director, very capably sang the leading soprano solo.

Mr. and Mrs. Delton Schrock are the parents of a daughter, Leota Esther, born December 3.

Rev. Jacob Peltz, of Chicago, a Christian Jew and for several years secretary of the Hebrew-Christian Alliance spoke at the church on the evening of the 11th.

The regular quarterly meeting of the congregation was held December 12. Preceding the meeting an oyster stew was served by the men of the congregation.

The Crusaders' Class held their Christmas party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Byers Thursday evening, Dec. 14.

Preparations are being made for our White Gift Service to be given on Christmas Eve in the church.

THE NEW LEAF

He came to my desk with quivering lip,
The lesson was done.
"Have you a new leaf for me, dear teacher?
I have spoiled this one!"
I took his leaf, all soiled and blotted,
And gave him a new one, all unspotted,
Then into his tired heart I smiled:
"Do better now, my child."

I went to the throne, with trembling heart,
The year was done.
"Have you a new year for me, dear Master?
I have spoiled this one."
He took my year, all soiled and blotted,
And gave me a new one, all unspotted,
Then into my tired heart He smiled;
"Do better now, my child!"

YOUR OPPORTUNITY

By Emma Thomas Scoville

O youth! the doors will open wide
To various tasks that you can do.
Heed well the opportunity
To choose a work that keeps you true;
And then determined, do your best,
For labor earns an honest rest.

O youth! strike out into the field
While hand is firm and eye is keen.
Keep faith and love within your heart,
And mind and body pure and clean;
Be on your guard each day through life
To meet and conquer every strife.

O youth! quick colored moments fly;
Each breath's a tick from clock of time;
If cruel stones should bruise your feet
As recklessly the hill you climb,
Reach out and take the Master's hand;
Your stumblings He will understand.
—The Baptist.

INTRODUCING OURSELVES

Happy New Year to All of Our Readers!

With this issue we are beginning a new day in Mennonitism. May it be only an indicator of greater things of a similar nature which will come to pass. We are entering a new era, a new day is ahead. The church needs to sense the change which is being brought about. Her leaders and workers must have the prophetic spirit and not be kickers and stragglers. May this union project of the Christian Evangel and the Mennonite point the way to other union projects, especially within our own Mennonite household.

It will not seem strange to the young people of the Central Conference and of the General Conference to subscribe, read and submit material to the same denominational paper, for they have already had many points of contact. Many of the young people of the respective groups have already rubbed shoulders in College, in Conferences, Retreats, etc. They are not strangers to each other. Sometimes they have not known wherein they are different, and the difference has been only in minor details.

The joint Publication Board has been very kind in designating six pages in each issue for copy which will be of interest and help to Young People. The Central Conference will be represented by two editors, namely a specialist in Junior work and in Intermediate work, while the General Conference will be represented by the Editor-in-chief of this department who will try to bring some help to the Senior Department. The editor of the Junior section is Mrs. Chas. Andersohn; of the Intermediate division, Mrs. Roy Yoder; and of the Senior group, Rev. A. R. Keiser. Each one of these is willing to serve you in any way you may desire.

PLANS FOR THE Y. P. DEPARTMENT

First of all, this part of our Publication is to be yours. If you do not like as it will appear from time to time, you may make constructive suggestions, and send such articles which you think should appear. We three editors do not by any means expect to write material to fill these six pages, we will expect you to help and thus serve your Christ and the Church.

In each issue there will appear suggestive outlines on the Christian Endeavor topics for the Juniors, Intermediates and Seniors. These will be written by the respective editors. There will be write-ups for two topics in each issue. From time to time there may be articles giving suggestions for better Christian Endeavor Services.

We welcome articles reporting on the activities of C. E. Societies and especially all Conference activities, for this is the official publication organ of the Central and General Conferences. All activities dealing with Y. P. organizations should be reported to one of the Young People editors. Mrs. Yoder is planning to bring a short mission study course which will be of interest to everybody. Plans have been made for us to bring a serial story which will hold the interest of every one. In addition to other features we request frank articles dealing with problems of vital interest to youth. We are asking each contributor to sign his article. This section is to be an Open Forum for constructive discussion. If you have found a book which has been quite helpful to you, send the Y. P. Department a brief review of it. If a member in your C. E. Society has written an exceptionally good paper see to it that it is sent on to us. Good devotional and missionary articles will always find a welcome. Let us all strive with God's help to make this next year count mightily for Christ and the Church.

Have We the Best Foundations for Life?

Matthew 7:24-29.

Two men went into a pioneer country. They engaged in the same business. The one man was in a hurry to get started and took no time to build a foundation. The other man dug deep until he struck a rock foundation. He was planning for the future. By utilizing sound and Christian principles his business grew rapidly so that he found it necessary soon to add another story, and from time to time found it necessary to enlarge his building, and he was able to do so because he had built his foundation for the future. In time the man who was so eager to get started found himself so far surpassed by his competitor that he was compelled to sell his business to him.

In the Scripture portion Jesus is showing the great importance of building a life on a firm foundation. Sand is cheaper and much more easily handled than is building block and stone but it very unstable as a foundation. There are various ways in which a man needs a strong foundation. His heredity should give him a sound body with a good mind and a well balanced temperament. He should strive to guard and protect his health, for he owes it to his family, community and himself to keep strong. And then education is part of every man's foundation. In an age like the present no life is complete without getting as much training as possible. But true education must consist not only of information but must also contain good morals and high ideals. And this leads us to the one thing above all which matters in a foundation, namely religion, which is the true character builder, "For other foundation can no man lay but that which is laid which is Jesus Christ our Lord." The secret of a successful life is a strong, vital, sustaining religious faith. It will help us to face adverse circumstances, keep us sweet and mellowed in our dispositions and give us joy in life here as well as a fervent hope for eternity.

Questions

1. Why did Jesus have so much to say about foundations?
2. In what ways is health a foundation for a successful life?
3. Explain the value of high ideals and a life purpose.
4. What are some vital foundation principles of an abundant life?
5. Tell about the foundation for life as it exists in a noble personality you know. What are the factors which have made him or her great?
6. In what ways can Jesus Christ be our cornerstone?

Understanding Ourselves.—Romans 7:12-25.

> "Search me, O God and know my heart;
> Try me and know my thoughts;
> And see if there be any wicked way in me,
> And lead me in the way everlasting.
> Create in me a clean heart O God,
> And renew a right spirit within me."

It has been said; "Tell me what you think when you have nothing special to think about and I will tell you what kind of a man you are." Or "Tell me what you do and where you spend your time when you are not engaged in any special duty and I will tell you the nature of your character."

Do you really know yourself? The business man takes account of his stock at stated times of the year. Do you? What kind of an individual are you? Are you selfish? Are you sociable? Are you jealous? Are there some habits which are overmastering you and showing the signs of your enslavement? Are you becoming a veritable child of God or are you backsliding into a life of drifting and sinning? We suggest to you the following questions for your self-examination:

1. Am I happy and satisfied with life? If not, why not?
2. Do I feel that I am getting a "square deal" or that I am somewhat neglected and mistreated?
3. Do young people like me? Do I crave the companionship of the opposite sex that I do not have?
4. Am I easily offended? Am I inclined to take myself too seriously? When I make a mistake or fail in some undertaking, do I try to place the blame on someone else?
5. Do I crave attention and praise?
6. Am I easily influenced? Do I do things that are against my principles? If so, why?
7. Is my religion real and vital to me in everyday life?

In our Scripture portion, we find some truths which are difficult to explain yet with Paul we know they are true. There is within each one of us a battle which is being waged, the spirit against the flesh, our better nature against our lower nature, our idealism against our selfishness. There is within each of us a little of the Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde. Dr. Jekyl was the respected professional man who went out through the front door, but during the dark hours of the night the same man went slouching out the back door and became some of the backwash of society. For a long time he continued thus until the time came when he was no longer able to come back as the Doctor and was doomed to remain the Mr. Hyde of the gutter. Who of us has not felt many times like saying with Paul, "O wretched man that I am" and yet Christ has also said, "Ye are My friends."

Questions

1. Who am I?
2. What am I, and whither am I going?
3. Are we entirely subjects of heredity and environment?
4. How may we gain the mastery in the struggle within?
5. Should we welcome the criticism of others?
6. What are some ways in which we can improve ourselves?
7. In what ways can Jesus Christ help mold our lives?

> "I have to live with myself, and so
> I want to be fit for myself to know.
> I want to be able as the days go by
> Always to look myself straight in the eye.
> I don't want to stand out with the setting sun,
> And hate myself for the things I've done."

LEARNING TO PRAY

(Consecration Meeting)

Matthew 6:5-13.

"Prayer is as important as breathing, and we never say that we have no time to breathe." —Sadhu Sundar Singh.

PRE-PRAYER Service

Has our society during this past year, been as reverent, as spiritual, as interesting, has much of a soul winning zeal been manifested, as our Master would have had it be? Let us start the year out with pre-prayer before every C. E. service. For a period of 5 to 10 minutes before beginning the discussion meet as leader, president, officers and Committee Chairman and as many others as will, in a room or in a corner of the C. E. Room for silent or audible prayers asking definitely for the needs of your group in discussion and praise. God says, "Prove me now herewith." You cannot lead anyone any closer to Christ than you yourself have come.

Program

Piano prelude.

Sentence prayers by all followed by singing in unison "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

Roll Call, each answering with their favorite Scripture Verse.

Announcements for coming week.

Discussion of Topic.

1. Is it hard to really pray? Why or why not?
2. What are the qualities of the Publican's prayer? What are the differences in the Pharisee's prayer?
3. What value is there in audible prayer?
4. Why should we pray in secret?
5. What is the secret of Prayer? Mark 11:20-26.
6. Analyze the first sentence of the prayer Jesus taught His disciples.
7. Discuss the second sentence of the prayer, Jesus taught His disciples.
8. Explain verses 11 and 12. What place do requests have in this model prayer?
9. Why and how is Faith the foundation of prayer?
10. What methods help us to pray?

Prayer for Missionary work in all parts of the world.

Prayer for the encouragement of all missionaries.

Prayer for the Doctor and all medical work.

Pray for the Natives that they may never have the desire to turn back to their heathen customs, and idols.

Offering—Worship God through giving of the substance with which He has blessed us.

PRECIOUS SEED

Prayer is a FORCE. Jas. 5:16. Radio may be an example. Prayer is sending out thought vibrations to God. Are yours weak or strong?

Prayer is an open door to God. It is open and no one can shut it but we, ourselves. Every time we turn our desires to God we enter the open door.

Pray for what you will, but always see if you cannot help to answer your own prayers. We ask for an increase in membership. God cannot work only as we give ourselves to the answering of this request.

Climbing the Ladder of Prayer

5. Ask for that thing and thank Him for granting it to you, believing He has already done it according to His will.

4. Form a picture, if possible, in your mind of the thing for which you ask.

3. Meditate upon His greatness, His Love, His ability to do all you ask, and His desire for the fellowship of mankind.

2. Thank Him audibly for His goodness to you. Specify the blessings.

1. Realize in your mind that God is present. You don't need to feel this; just Believe it.

Rewards

Remember that all prayers are answered. When we do not get what we ask for it is because God says "NO" for the present. Praise God for all answers!

MAKING RIGHT CHOICES DAY BY DAY

John 8:29

"To everyone there openeth
A way, and ways, and a way,
And the high soul climbs the high way,
And the low soul groups the low.
And in between on the misty flats,
The rest drift to and fro.
But to everyone there openeth

A high way and a low.
And everyone decideth
Which way his soul shall go."
—Stella M. Rudy.

PRE-PRAYER

THIS is the ONLY pathway to POWER.

Pray as a group, for the needs of your society and for C. E. as a Training School for Young People everywhere. There is STRENGTH in UNION.

Text Nougats

v. 29. Jesus chose to do the things He believed were God's will. We see this in the temptations where He made definite choices. Because of the fact that Jesus The Only Begotten Son of God was tempted, He can be such a guide to me when I am tempted.

v. 29. To know whether this or that is just the right thing to do, ask the question, "What would the Master say?" Then look into God's word to find the answer. I Cor. 10:31, "Whatsoever ye do, do all to the Glory of God." Matt. 16:13, "No man can serve two masters." So if what we desire to do is not for the Honor and Glory of God and for the extension of the Kingdom of God then we are certain that Satan would be our Master.

v. 29. The Father has not left us alone to fight these temptations and battles. We can know His will. He reveals it always in His Word, and He reveals it to our will through prayer and communion with Him. Through trusting Him, He assures us and verifies His Word.

v. 29. If a certain thing or case is doubtful, then to be safe, "Don't do it." DOUBT is a danger sign,—STOP.

Remember, you can really KNOW HIS WILL concerning you. John 7:17, "If any man willeth to do His will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself."

Questions for Discussion

1. What is the most vital decision you have made or which you must make?
2. What standard have we by which to judge right and wrong?
3. Analyze various choices which we all must make daily.
4. How do you go about deciding upon your life's work?
5. What usually happens when we are called upon to make immediate decisions?
6. Discuss "Choosing spiritual things." Luke 10:38-42.
7. Which really costs the most, right or wrong choices? Mark 8:36.
8. What choices do you find in the parable of the good Samaritan? Luke 10.

For Open Discussion

Many choices are thrust upon us in a hurry. We have no time to think them over. For instance, we are insulted and wrongly accused. Shall we strike back or shall we take the blame after proper defence, and let the accuser tell by your attitude and future life, the truth of the matter? What would Christ do?

Tom works in a grocery store. He is told to "play up" an inferior article in order to sell it. Should he be honest, refuse, lose his job; or obey his orders?

Advertise Your Meeting.

Draw a station, a union depot with tracks averting the station from all sides. Across the tracks at the upper half of the paper, write, "TRAINS TO ALL DESTINATIONS." Place the date, leader, time, and a hearty welcome to all visitors and new comers, on either side of the depot. At bottom of poster print in large letters, CHOOSE YE THIS DAY!

Better Endeavor

C. E. is "Christ Exalted." It is business for the King! Why not conduct our affairs for the Master as effectively as we do our business transactions? Our C. E. business meetings have been sadly neglected, inserting perhaps one every quarter or perhaps every six months, then we wonder why committees do not work, why souls are not blessed and saved, why the interest lags. Today we have put secondary things first; "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you," was Jesus' answer to the question of His day. Business meetings should be planned for a given date or day of each month and should be kept as sacred an appointment as our Worship service. Here workable plans can be discussed for the betterment of the society. Here the committees have a chance to give their reports and to receive new ideas for the coming month. Usually a society of inactive committees is a dead group, meeting only to have some place to go, instead of working with REAL JOY.

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

January 7, 1934.

Topic.—A Song Study. Eph. 5:19, 20. "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations."

Consecration Meeting.

Singing is often mentioned in the Bible and it seems quite fitting that we should begin the year by studying a song. The song chosen for our subject today is an introduction to the study we are to follow in the weeks to come. We are to spend several weeks speaking of the story as it is being told in other lands.

There was a time when people were not willing to believe that Christ had died for folks in Africa, India, China and all places but now we know that they need Him just as we do and He is just as ready to save them.

Let us look at our song for a minute.

"We've a story to tell to the nations,
That shall turn their hearts to the right;
A story of truth and sweetness,
A story of peace and light."

What is this story that we have to tell? Just the old, old story of Jesus, how He came to save people from their sin, how He by his Spirit will help them live for Him and of the glad day when they shall be like Him if they have accepted Him.

Notice the song makes it very clear that this story is not for a few, but for all nations and it is our work to tell it. Each of us has a part in this work. No doubt there are many of you boys and girls who hope some day to go far away as missionaries. Remember it isn't necessary to wait until you can go, but right now you can begin telling the story to folks near you. The rest of this first stanza tells what a beautiful story we have to tell. It truly does bring peace and light to all who believe it.

Plans for the Meeting.

If this song does not appear in your Hymnal, prepare copies of it to be distributed among the boys and girls. All four stanzas with the chorus should be both sung and studied. We dare not enter into the study of the entire song here but you will find almost every line worthy of consideration. Use the Daily readings in connection with your study.

Questions

1. Tell some things the Bible says about singing.
2. What is the story we have to tell?
3. To whom are we to tell it?
4. How may we Juniors help get this story to other nations now?
5. Why should we be eager to do our part in telling it?

Daily Readings.

Turning hearts to the right—I Thess. 1:9.
A story of mercy—John 3:16.
A story that conquers evil—Titus 2:11, 12.
A story of peace—Luke 2:10-14.
A story of love—I John 4:16.
A story of truth.—John 14:6.

Topic—Telling "the Story" in Japan. Acts 4:12, 13.

Although Japan was long closed to missionaries, Francis Xavier, a Catholic missionary had gone there as early as 1549 to tell folks about Jesus.

Of early Protestant Missions in Japan, Fisher in his History of the Christian Church has this to say. "The Japanese, while to some extent adhering to their ancient Shintoism, like so many Oriental peoples, became followers of Buddha. From the year 1854, the date of the Perry expedition, they have eagerly sought after the material civilization, science, and thought of the West. The Presbyterians of America were the first among the Protestants to carry to them the religion of the Western nations. In 1877, they joined with the Scotch United Presbyterian and the American Reformed Churches, in "the Union Church of Christ." The year previous, the government showed its inclination towards Christian Institutions by making Sunday an official holiday."

Questions

1. What do you know of the early history of Japan?
2. Tell something of the position of Japan in the world today.
3. In what ways are the people of Japan

THE S. S. LESSONS

January 7

Birth and Infancy of Jesus. Matthew 2:1-12

Golden Text—Thou shalt call his name Jesus for it is he that shall save his people from their sins. Matt. 1:21.

The birth and infancy of Jesus are recorded by two of the four Gospel writers, Matthew and Luke. Matthew's Gospel from which our lesson is taken is written to present Jesus of Nazareth as the Promised Messiah of the Jews.

Therefore he is interested in presenting the genealogy of Jesus frim Joseph's ancestry. All through Matthew's gospel we will discover that he goes to the Old Testament to show how that Jesus fulfilled the prophecies. So he begins with Jesus' life as a child, born of a virgin, which he interprets as the fulfillment of the prophecies of such men as Isaiah.

The significance of Jesus' childhood is twofold, first what it teaches in relation to Jesus and second what it means in relation to childhood. In relation to Jesus it emphasizes the fact of incarnation. The Word became flesh and dwelt among men. It means God's greatest revelation through incarnation for the purpose of redemption. Thou shalt call His name "Jesus" which is the Greek form of the Hebrew word "Joshua" which means a Savior. God revealed Himself in the form of man so that man might know God and receive eternal life. This is life eternal that they may know Thee, the only true God and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.

Truth must always be incarnated before it can be made available for mankind. So we are living epistles known and read of all men. There is a gospel according to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John but the most read gospel is the one according to you.

In the second place Jesus' birth and infancy are important because of the emphasis it places on childhood. In the day before Jesus childhood was considered a necessary evil. If the child was a female the only reason was that it might become the mother of a soldier or philosopher. If the child was deformed it was left by the Greeks and Romans to die on the mountain side or devoured by wild beasts. It was an economic waste to attempt to preserve its life. The general idea was even among the Hebrews that the adult was valuable not the child. This is illustrated in the attitude of the disciples when mothers brought children to Jesus. They felt Jesus did not have time to give to children. But Jesus said "Of such is the kingdom." Jesus always emphasized the sacredness of personality even in a child. All the privileges and opportunities of childhood today are directly a result of Jesus' influence and teachings.

Baptism and Temptation of Jesus

Golden Text—It behoved him in all things to be made like unto his brethren. Heb. 2:17.

Considerable time has elapsed between last Sunday's lesson and the one we are now to consider. Jesus normally grew and developed from childhood to boyhood and on to maturity. These silent years broken only once when at the age of twelve He went as a son of the low to Jerusalem to the Passover, were very significant in His preparation for the ministry. He was fitting Himself physically, mentally and spiritually for His life's work. He was industrious, mentally alert and spiritually sensitive throughout these years of preparation. When He came to the river Jordan to hear the preaching of John the Baptist, He came as a man mature in His life.

The preaching of John the Baptist seemed to Him a challenge to dedicate His life to the mission to which He felt He was called. He asked to be baptized as an outward symbol of His inward dedication to God and His redemptive purpose for mankind. While He was being baptized, there came to Him a full consciousness of the task before Him which was embodied in the term Kingdom of God.

Immediately after His dedication there came to Him the same experience that comes to one who has fully and definitely consecrated life. He was tempted to substitute easier methods for a way of life that would mean the cross. The first temptation that came to Him was to use His unique power He had to alleviate suffering, feed the hungry with bread and become a great benefactor of society. But He realized that beneath the very serious need for economic satisfaction and security lay the more vital need of man, fellowship with God. Without the latter, the former must always be a temporary solution.

Another temptation came to Him to accept the popular ideas of His day in relation to the coming of the Messiah, that is that He would place the emphasis in His ministry on spectacular things, such as performing miracles and thus become a popular hero rather than to endure the share of the cross, and finally the temptation to be an authority, a ruler rather than a servant. His people were expecting Him to subdue the nations round about. He turned however from all these suggestions and took the way of love in a world of greed, hate and rivalry. His life became a great adventure. Was it possible for a man to live his life ruled by love and succeed? The world said it would fail. The Cross was their answer. Jesus said, "I have overcome the world." The Cross to Him was a throne. The world is still wondering whether love works.

May this Sunday school lesson help the church to more effectively demonstrate that love is the only permanent solution of our problems.

BROTHERHOOD TOPIC FOR JANUARY

Topic—The Brotherhood in the Church.

Aim—Every Brotherhood member, the pastor's assistant.

Scripture Reading—Romans 12:9-21; II Peter 1: 1-9.

Hymns—

"O brother man, fold to thy heart thy Brother."
"Let the Lower Lights Be Burning."
"O Master Let Me Walk with Thee."
"Am I a Soldier of the Cross?"
"We Would See Jesus."
"A Charge to Keep I Have."
"I Would Be True."

Last but not least "Courage Brother." This is the hymn that was adopted as the Brotherhood Hymn at the Saturday Evening Brotherhood meeting at the last Conference. It is number 299 in the Mennonite Hymnal.

Lay Speakers—Not to exceed ten minutes.

1. "The Place of the Brotherhood in the Church Program." The speaker should emphasize the importance of the Brotherhood in the social life of the church. The men should get together frequently to become better acquainted.

2. "How we can best assist our Pastor." Every brotherhood member should willingly respond to every reasonable request of the Pastor. The speaker should stress the importance of the members to (1) Attend every service possible, (2) Endeavor to get others interested. Then there should be an address by the Pastor on what he expects or has a right to expect from the Brotherhood as an organization as well as the member.

The Local Chapter of which the writer is a member by virtue of his office as pastor is responsible for a week of services every autumn. These services are not held to make money but are in the nature of a Bible Course or a series of Bible Lectures, for the spiritual growth of the Church. As a general rule there is an evangelistic appeal.

For three successive years the members of the consistory with the aid of the members of the Brotherhood, canvass all church members, presenting the budget for the ensuing year, explaining to the members the importance of contributing to the church treasury. It also serves as a visit by the lay members of the church, and is usually greatly appreciated by those visited.

Every meeting of the Brotherhood should be conducted in such a fashion that visitors might be impressed with the importance of the organization. If the meeting is not important, there is no occasion for the organization. The meeting should be well planned.

Last but most important. May the Lord always be magnified. This is a religious organization.

DEATH

Egli—Andrew Egli, son of the Rev. John and Magdalena Egli, was born at Zurich, Ontario, Canada, Dec. 2, 1856, went to Glory Dec. 16, 1933. Age 77 years and 14 days. He came with his parents to the United States in 1868 locating in central Illinois. His boyhood days were spent in Tazewell, and McClean counties. January, 1890 he went to make his home with his brother Chris Egli and family in whose home he remained until his death.

In 1916 they moved to the vicinity of Kouts, Ind., where he lived when the end of his life came.

Early in life he became a member of the Mennonite church to which faith he remained faithful all his life, he being one of the charter members of the First Mennonite church of Kouts, Ind.

He leaves to miss him by his passing on, four brothers and three sisters. Chris Egli of Kouts; John and Ben Egli of Manson, Ia.; Jacob, of Hopedale, Ill.; Mrs. Anna Nafziger, Breckenridge, Mich.; Mrs. Lena Sawatzki, of Kouts and Mrs. Mary Eichelberger of Pekin, Ill.

One brother Rev. Joseph Egli and two sisters Mrs. Katie Reinhardt and Mrs. Fanny Eichelberger preceded him to eternity, also an infant sister. He also leaves some 76 nephews and nieces besides many other relatives and friends. A large crowd attended funeral services which were held at the church at 1:30 Monday, Dec. 18, with Rev. Lee Lantz of Middlebury, Ind. officiating. Burial in Mennonite cemetery west of Kouts.

JOTTINGS

Bluffton College Choral Society gave its 24th rendition of Handel's Messiah in the local high school building.

The cantata, "The Holy Night" was the Christmas offering of the Ebenezer Mennonite church, near Bluffton, O. The chorus of more than 50 voices was directed by Miss Mable Amstutz. The accompanist was Miss Mable Lugibill.

The Herald of Truth, the organ of the (Old) Mennonites appeared in 1864 and has continued publication to the present time under various editors and is now the Gospel Herald, appearing weekly from the press of the Mennonite Publishing House of Scottdale, Pa.

Mrs. R. A. Goerz of Newton, Kansas, met with the Missionary society of the Zion, Moundridge, Kansas church, at one of its recent meetings and gave an address on the subject: "What the Missionaries Still Find to Be Thankful for."

The English organ of the General Conference, The Mennonite, made its first appearance in 1885 as a venture of the Eastern District Conference. It was taken over and published by the Board of Publications of the General Conference in 1902 and continued publications to date when it combined with the Christian Evangel. The first issue of the Christian Evangel appeared July, 1910 as the organ of the Central Conference and continued publication to date as a monthly until combined with The Mennonite.

The recent celebration of the 250th anniversary of the landing of the first group of Mennonites in America again called attention that, in this locality, there has been a regularly established Mennonite congregation since that time although this group remained small because most of the later comers were farmers and located on lands rather than in town. The present meeting house, built in 1770, has been placed in excellent repair and bids fair to continue as a comfortable place of worship.

In 1748 there appeared from the Cloister Press at Ephrata, Pa., a volume of gigantic proportions and tremendous import, the Martyr's Mirror. It was the largest literary undertaking in Colonial America, the first American book to be reprinted on continental Europe and a great source book of Mennonite history. Since that time there have been a number of issues of this book in both the German and English languages. The 1748 edition was a German translation of the earlier Dutch edition of 1660, a work which in turn had drawn largely from other martyr literature. Copies of the Ephrata Edition are treasured as precious family heirlooms in those families fortunate enough to own copies. They have become exceedingly rare and are much sought after by collectors. There is a splendid copy in possession of the Congressional Library in Washington. Van Bracht, the compiler of the work, brought together material from every source available to him at the time he wrote the book. Every one who desires a knowledge of the Mennonite church in the times of persecution should become familiar with the book and, if possible, own a copy of it. The late editions in both German and English are available.

Bluffton College Glee Club made a three weeks' tour through four eastern states during the holiday vacation. While on tour the Club gave several concerts over the radio from Cleveland, Allentown and Philadelphia. Prof. Russell A. Lantz directed.

Handel's "Messiah" was rendered by the chorus of the Pandora, O., church as a Christmas feature under the direction of Roy V. Hilty. Those having the feature vocal roles were, Mrs. Roy V. Hilty, Miss Hilda Amstutz, M. B. Milkesell and Leroy Wolfe. The organist was Miss Margaret Amstutz.

Build around a nucleus of the Men's Chorus and the Ladies' Chorus of the Berne, Ind. church, a choir of over 100 voices presented a splendid program as a part of the Christmas exercises of that community. The choir was under the direction of M. E. Stauffer and did the choruses from Handel's "Messiah" in a creditable manner.

An elaborate Christmas exercise was presented in the Berne, Ind., church. The Men's Chorus sang "Silent Night" back of a curtain while candle bearers marched to the stage with candles burning while grade B pupils were singing "The Light of the World Is Jesus." Following the Scripture Reading German songs were rendered by six German classes. Special talks and special selections completed the program.

The young people of the Second Mennonite church, Philadelphia, Pa., again agree that the best "kick" they have gotten out of Christmas was the joy it gave them to collect and distribute the provisions that they had the privilege of bringing to the poor families in the community. Another Christmas delight was the part they had in carol singing on Christmas Eve. This year the singers went on the road at midnight and brought their messages of cheer from house to house until six o'clock next morning. Several shut-ins were specially pleased by the visit given them.

The China Famine Relief with headquarters in New York is making great efforts to have the American people realize the dire need on the part of China that has suffered one of the worst floods in history and is now in the midst of famine. Millions in China have died from starvation. Other millions have died from the flood and its after effects. Many millions will die from the same causes—but many can be saved. In the past, with the help of generous Americans, millions have been saved, the pains and sufferings have been eased and countless Chinese children have been made happy and healthy.

The earliest Mennonite conference, of which there is record in America, was held in 1727. The result of that meeting was the approval of the Confession of Faith adopted by the Mennonites of Holland in 1632. The list of names appended to the document practically included all of the ministers in America at the time. The pamphlet appearing in the name of this gathering was printed by the celebrated colonial printer Bradford. Copies of this print are rare and are eagerly sought after by collectors. An excellent copy of this issue is in the Schwenkfelder Historical Library at Pennsburg, Pa., which is rich in material of Mennonite interest.

Young people in the Immanuel Mennonite church, Los Angeles, Calif., met with the pastor, Rev. D. D. Eitzen, recently to arrange for a personal worker's class. Regular meetings followed every Wednesday evening. The Sunday School of this congregation was active in collecting food stuffs for baskets to be distributed among needy families on Christmas. The subject of the pastor's Christmas sermon was: "Is There Room for the Babe of Bethlehem Today?" Several Sundays ago the morning service partook of the nature of an Infant Consecration Service. At that time Rev. Eitzen preached on the subject: "Parenthood—An Office of Trust."

The first Mennonite periodical to appear regularly in America was the Religioeser Botschafter edited by John Oberholtzer and printed at Milford Square, Pa. This paper continued from August, 1852 until Dec., 1855. It was succeeded in 1856 by Das Christliche Volksblatt edited by Oberholtzer and financed by Der Mennonitische Druck Verein. The Friedensbote, which succeeded the Volksblatt, appeared in 1867 until it was combined with the Zur Heimath (published by the newly settled Russian Mennonites) and appeared as the Bundesbote, whose first issue appeared in 1882. The Bundesbote continues as the official paper of the General Conference under the editorship of Rev. C. E. Krehbiel of Newton, Kansas.

It is interesting to note that some of the things associated with the first Mennonites who came to America still survive. The first house erected in Germantown, in 1683, by Thomas Connerts has been considerably altered since then, nevertheless, the present house, standing on the original site, has incorporated into its structure a part of the wall of the first building. It was in this house that the famous protest against slavery was drawn up and signed. The first minister of the Germantown church, William Rittenhouse, erected a stone house which is preserved and occupied to this day. A bronze marker on its walls states that in this building David Rittenhouse, the grandson of William, was born. David Rittenhouse was the celebrated scientist, mathematician and politician of the Revolutionary days and was also the first mint master of the United States. The Keyser house, so named because it was erected by another of Germantown's first ministers, is still occupied by some of the descendants of Dirk Keyser, the Dutch silk merchant who was one of the earliest of the ministers in the Germantown church. The building is regarded as a sample of the best type of colonial houses in Pennsylvania. About 30 miles north of Philadelphia there remains, and is still in use, the log cabin built by Hans Nyce, another of Germantown's earliest Mennonite ministers.

EDITORIAL

OUR NEW CHURCH PAPER

As joint editor of our paper it brings a great deal of joy and satisfaction to receive encouragement as we received last week in a letter sent to our office. This letter expressed a deep interest in this project of cooperation of our two groups of Mennonites. We appreciate these messages and we also appreciate and welcome any constructive criticism that comes to help improve our paper. Just a few suggestions to those who used to be contributors and readers of the Christian Evangel. Questions have been raised in relation to church correspondence, contributions and as to our section of the paper. We do not believe that there should be too distinct divisions in our paper as it relates to the two conferences but in order to answer a question it might be stated that each one of the editors has eight pages for which he is responsible. We welcome any contribution in writing which any of our readers wish to make. If you have a message on your heart, send it along because you will have an audience of over two thousand people to get your message.

So many of our former Christian Evangel readers have always enjoyed the Church Correspondence and some have been raising the question in relation to our new paper as to whether church correspondence is welcome. We should like to say that from the standpoint of our churches that we welcome church correspondence and would recommend to our churches that they continue to select their correspondent. W

OLD BIBLES

On the book stall in one of the sections of a large city there were a number of old volumes such as text books no longer in use, Government publications that represented hardly anything but the extravagances of a Congress more ready to keep the Government print shop busy than serve a useful purpose, cheap novels and books of poems that would not interest the average reader, even though he sometimes enjoyed good poetry, and several old Bibles. The one we picked up had in it the stamp of the County Commissioner. Not a page seemed to have been read but the cover was worn out. It was one of the numerous Bibles that had been used by election officers in taking the oath. As we turned the pages our eyes fell upon the passage which says: "Swear not at all" What a farce! To disregard the plain command of Scripture and use the Book as an emblem of the swearer's calling upon God to witness that he was telling the truth and pretend that a pious act had been done! It is all the more of a farce when an affirmation would have just as well served all lawful purposes.

In the corner of our book shelf we rediscovered a copy of the Bible that once belonged to an aquaintance who was a dope fiend and died under the effects of the poison. It was a gift from him and had in it its marked passages. We remember him as a diligent Bible reader yet one who sought to break the chains of a terrible habit without God's help, having tried several kinds of cures that brought him misery but no relief. His wail had constantly been, "I have tried but nothing helps." Something would have helped had he placed himself into the hands of God instead of into the hands of specialists who took his money but gave him nothing. Just to read the Bible as though it were in itself something but doing nothing that it teaches one must be done means nothing to the one who is "without God in the world." Poor fellow! His sinning was something akin to sinning in the light of better knowledge.

Another of the Bibles on that shelf is a Catholic version that once belonged to a priest. It was given to the Protestant doctor, who treated it as a keepsake. Through the doctor it came into our possession together with the story that goes with it. This priest had been loved by all who had the good fortune of knowing him. He was noted for his cheery disposition and for not complaining though his physical condition often kept him in continued pain. The physician was perhaps the only person who knew something of the added misery that he carried with him to the grave. Around his waist there was a ring of callous caused by the belt of thorns he wore all the time. Whatever one many think of self-imposed penance we find in the owner a consistent adherence to what he believed and taught even in matters of which the world knew nothing.

The ancient leather bound companion of the Bible just mentioned in the German language and what makes it all the more interesting to a book collector is that it is a copy of the first issue of the Bible in America printed in a European language by Sauer of Germantown. Its thumb worn leaves indicate a long and constant use by its original owner. The good paper, printing and excellent binding speak eloquently of the thoroughness of the publisher. The book must have been costly in those days when there was little money so the purchaser by securing a copy was willing to place himself at considerable expense in order to have it as the chief treasure of the household. In our day when Bibles may be purchased in the ten cent stores we can hardly appreciate what sacrifices were required by our fathers in order to be owners of Bibles.

Not on the shelf, but in the place where we keep the things we treasure highly, is our mother's Bible. A dainty morocco covered volume presented to her by father. Though in continuous use it was like mother to keep everything neat and carefully. The only stains on the much read pages are tear stains. This Bible is an emblem of Mother's devotion and her close relation to her Lord. We treasure it. We also know others to whom Mother's Bible is precious because it symbolized the preciousness of her Saviour to her. G.

IVORY HOUSES

In I Kings 22:39, reference is made to the "Ivory House" built by King Ahab. And Amos in denouncing the extravagances of Israel, also mentions ivory beds, while from an earlier period we learn that Solomon imported "gold, silver, ivory, apes and peacocks." No doubt that in those times ivory was an important item of commerce, especially to the nations who were prosperous enough to demand such luxuries. One might naturally expect to find such ordinary things as stone implements or foundation stones on the site of a city long ago disappeared, but an abundance of costly ivory under the ruins of such a city is just marvelous, yet, this is just what has happened on the site of the ancient city of Samaria, which scholars are in the midst of uncovering. The story of excavated places mentioned in Scripture is always fascinating, but here comes a superthrill when they uncover ivory from Ahab's Ivory Palace. There has just been displayed at Harvard University 20 ivory fragments of ivory, a portion of the find by Prof. Lake in his excavations on the site of Samaria. These fragments evidently were ornaments in the walls, throne, furnishings etc. They give evidence of highly developed artistic taste and some of them are ornamented with gold, lapis lazuli, and colored glass. Of course when ivory houses were spoken of in Scripture the sense is that ivory entered largely into its furnishings and ornaments. Being a more or less durable material ivory survived the fire and the corrosion of the ages.

Time and again ancient ruins have yielded proof after proof of the Scripture narrative confirming it in detail much to the consternation of those who would make most of it merely unsafe tradition and the rest of it imagination.

Samaria has another and perhaps a more important contribution toward the confirmation of the Bible narrative in the shape of a version of the Pentateuch in the ancient dialect which is older than other versions and its most valued manuscript is still in possession of the few remaining Samaritans living in the vicinity. G.

TECHNIQUE VERSUS CHARACTER

It was said by an observer, years ago, that his idea of a liberal education was a boy sitting on one end of a log and Mark Hopkins on the other. The figure was a homely but effective one and those who have it before them see it, stripped of external things, and getting to the core of things in regard to modern education. As with most other things, there is a tendency to overrate things, even in religious education. A fine equipment and an elaborate organization are not, by all means, all that goes toward efficient education in the Christian world. That which must be considered essential, above all else in education, is the character and devotion of the educators. Of course this implies a command of the information relative to proper instruction in the Christian life, but, endowments, magnificent plants and money to carry on the work are not so important as specialists would have us believe. Sunday Schools are regarded to be the most useful implements of the church in the training of the youths. Sunday School experts, too often lay so much emphasis upon the need of elaborate equipment and thorough organization that they forget, or ignore, the possibility of groups, without the assistance of such things, accomplishing anything. We have in mind of a group of Sunday School teachers and officers whose work lay in a small two room building. They attended a series of lectures given by experts under the auspices of the state convention. These experts told them that if there were not the accepted organization of the modern schools available and if the school did not have at its disposal teachers who benefitted by special training, they might as well go home and shut up their schools and leave the work to those who were better fitted for it and had at their disposal everything that modern schools might use. Those few people, mostly of them having served long and faithfully, went home greatly discouraged. Having been told that others had what they had not of the things that were absolutely essential they wondered what would be the best thing for them to do.

The trouble with ideas such as those stated above, is that they should have had the opportunity of having been shown what they, with their limited advantages might be doing. We note that the great majority of Sunday Schools in the land are one room schools. We note, too, that from these schools come many of the best and most efficient Christian workers. Poverty in external equipment may mean difficulties, but, it surely does not mean impossibility.

We recall our early boyhood in a little country village. The three churches of the community were some distance from the village and in the village there was maintained a Union Sunday School which the children of all three denominations attended. There were two teachers in the school who practically taught every boy and girl of that community. They were just plain country housekeepers with no unusual qualities except that they were persons of the sweetest disposition and possessed of a sincere devotion to the service of the Lord. Perhaps, as experts in instructing beginners, they would not have graded high in the estimate of an expert, but, upon all of these beginners, they stamped the imprint of their devotion and faith that had much to do with the development of the characters of those who began their Christian careers in this little country Sunday School. It was the character of these two women and not the regementation of their methods that made them the most valuable asset to that school and community. Technique may be valuable where it is possible, but, it is the least of requirements unless the character of those who use it is the supreme qualification. One cannot make Christians by just having separate Sunday School buildings with separate classes housed in separate rooms and instructed by those who only have teacher's training credentials where there is not that underlying character that inspires faith in Jesus Christ, consecration to his service and a life that reflects Him in all its ways. CORRESPONDENCE

Buhler, Kans., Dec. 17, 1933. To The Mennonite:—Hebron Church, Buhler, Kans. As correspondent of the named church, I shall try to contribute a short report of the happenings of our congregation during the past year. First of all we want to thank the Lord for guidance and all the rich blessings we were permitted to enjoy.

We feel especially grateful for our leader, the Rev. P. E. Franz, who has served us so faithfully in many a way.

As much as known there has not been much sickness among the various members. A few new members were added unto the church membership.

In April we lost one very active member, when Mr. J. J. Buhler was taken from our midst, to his heavenly home. We miss him very much. The vacancy he left, cannot so easily be replaced.

During the month of May we celebrated our annual "Children's Day." This affair is always greatly enjoyed by all.

During the summer months everybody seemed to pursue his daily work without much noticeable disturbance. Only the oil wells, near the church, became quite noisy at times. Sometimes it was almost impossible to have our meetings an account of the disturbance they caused.

Several of our members attended the Gen. Conf. at Bluffton, Ohio. All of them gave us a very satisfactory report of the procedures and outcome as a whole.

The members of the Sewing Society have also been very active. The articles completed were sold on our Annual Mission Sale, on the 25th of November. Many visitors and friends from far and near arrived to make this sale a success. A bountiful dinner was served to all at noon. The two auctioneers had to work hard in order to get favorable prices for the articles. The Lord was good unto us and there were enough willing buyers present, so that the nice sum of $356.00 was obtained. We felt grateful that this was possible in a time like the present.

On the 19th of November we observed "The Holy Communion."

As Sunday School workers we too realize our problems and needs more and more. In order to meet these needs, we have again organized the S. S. Teachers Training Class. We meet every week with Rev. Franz as our competent leader. The attendance is unusually good. The benefits gained from this class are certainly worthwhile.

A few weeks ago, Dr. J. E. Hartzler conducted a series of lectures in Buhler. Consequently the Thanksgiving services, were held in a union meeting in the Buhler High School auditorium. All these meetings were greatly attended. Dr. Hartzler's lectures were all very inspiring to the listeners and we hope and pray that the future will bear fruit abundantly according to the good seed sown at this time.

Wishing all the readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Bluffton, Ohio, December 21, 1933. Dear Readers:—Last night I was present at the Mennonite Gospel Chapel prayer meeting, which meets every Wednesday in the home of Rev. John Esau, the pastor of that Mission work in Lima. I believe 12 were present. We had a blessed time in the Lord. Plans were made to distribute about 25 Christmas baskets to the poor and needy in that part of the city. The churches in and around Bluffton and Pandora are furnishing these baskets.

Rev. and Mrs. Esau, Mrs. Ruel Bixel the Sunday School Supt., with the help of Miss Diller and Miss Sprunger, are practicing a Christmas program with the Sunday School children. There are 19 on the program. This program will be rendered on Friday evening, Dec. 22; 7:30 P.M. I am sure it will be good. The time the program of the Summer Bible School was rendered, the children did well.

This work is not even a year old—was started in January 1933 by the Gospel teams of the Ebenezer Church, the young people of the St. Johns Mennonite and others helping. Even the Berne young people came to Lima to render service. They have also contributed very liberally in finances for this work.

This Chapel is a Seventh Day Adventist church that is being rented for the Sundays and other services. It is located in a good residential district. Have found many people that do not go to church.

On Sunday the 10th of December a dedicatorial service was held. Hymn books had been purchased upon faith—which were dedicated to the Lord's service. The cost, $25.00, has now been paid. The Lord wonderfully answered the prayers of His workers. People sent in money—and we rejoice in Him.

Rev. Kreider of the First Mennonite church brought the message in the afternoon. He spoke on Isa. 6:8; "Here am I"—It was a message of consecration and encouragement to serve with all that we are and have. We realized how little we often let Him have of us for service. The St. Johns Young People furnished the music that also called us out for more definite service. In the evening Rev. P. A. Kliewer brought a message on "Hold fast—sound words; That good thing committed—keep committing it again to faithful witnesses." Also gave a short outline of how our people in the past have been doing this—encouraging to do the same in the future. After the message, 24 gathered around the Lord's Table and commemorated the Lord's death. About 42 were present in the afternoon and also in the evening. We have had some blessed times in that little Mission or Gospel Chapel, and are looking forward that the Lord will bless that work—and that many souls may be won for the Lord, using Rev. Esau and the other workers, who have been so faithful in that work. Also our Mennonite members in Lima have been faithful supporters of that work. God will bless them and use them also in the future.

Just felt that I should write this to have you share with us in the joy that we have in the service here for the Church—asking for your prayers in behalf of it.

Yours in His service,

P. A. Kliewer.

P. S. The first prayermeeting I believe 18 were present. Also at the first Ladies Missionary Society meeting 11 were present.

Butterfield, Minn. December 31, 1933, To the readers. We are again at the close of another year and ready to step into the New Year. May our Lord bless every one of us the coming year. He has provided for us so plentiful during this year, we give him thanks, and all honor and glory. We shall write a report from our congregation during the last three months. In the 8th of October, Rev. J. J. Balzer from Mt. Lake gave a brief report from the conference, "he being our deligate" which was greatly appreciated by all.

The 15th of October, Rev. D. J. Dick from Mt. Lake, was in charge of the morning services, speaking over Christ's second coming which was very interesting, he especially emphasized that Christ's coming was near at hand, and to be ready to meet our Saviour when He appears. On November 5th the annual meeting of the C. E. Society was held when Mrs. H. M. Fast was re-elected as president, during the last year we received a number of new members which brings the membership up to 54, in all. November 27, our annual church meeting took place in the church. Mrs. R. E. Cosey was reelected as S. S. Superintendent and I was again elected as Secretary and Correspondent, so I will try another year to do my part even though in great weakness. On Thanksgiving morning, Rev. L. H. Linscheid reminded us of being thankful for all the blessings we received during the year, the next day he took sick and developed pneumonia and was taken to the Mt. Lake hospital where he stayed nearly two weeks, we are glad to state at this writing that he is improving and hope he will soon be on duty again. We have always had services during his illness. Rev. J. J. Balzer, Rev. P. J. Friesen and Rev. Bartel have been bringing us the gospel messages. Mrs. J. P. Linscheid and son Eldor visited with relatives in Kansas a few days during the latter part of November. Our ladies aid society held their annual meeting in December, when Mrs. R. E. Cosey was elected as president for three years.

On Christmas evening our Sunday School rendered a program which was well attended. On Christmas morning Rev. J. Bartel delivered the sermon of our Saviour which is always interesting. The 31st of December the Women's Community Chorus gave the cantata, "The Hope of the World" in our church. Two weeks previous we gave this in the Northern Lutheran church. Now wishing you God's richest blessings through the New Year.

Mrs. Gust Miller, Corr.

Wadsworth, Ohio. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander has recently visited the congregation here (Wadsworth) and brought to us a fine spirit and enthusiasm. While he is visiting the churches of the various conferences in the interest of the Young Peoples work and that of the Publication Board he is doing infinitely more than presenting a case of needed finances. Brother Neuenschwander came here on a Wednesday and remained till Sunday afternoon. On Wednesday evening he preached a forceful sermon on the subject, "Ye are the Light of the World." On Thursday evening his sermon was, "Philip, a Great Layman." Friday evening was Young People's night and Bro. Neuenschwander's theme was, "Stirring the Flame." The Sunday morning sermon was on, "The Church, a Power in the World." To hear this series of messages, or if time does not allow a part of them, will do every congregation a great deal of good. The messages carry the kind of inspiration and enthusiasm that every congregation occasionally needs. He realizes that he has a greater mission and opportunity than merely going around to see how much money he can raise for the two causes he represents, and he represents them well.

This is the sort of plan our conference has long needed. While we are too small a denomination to employ a list of secretaries we do need brethren of the right sort to visit the churches and present to them the activities of the General Conference. Our people need to be reminded that there is such a thing as denominational mindedness and consciousness and that as long as we are members and churches of a conference we have a responsibility and should be loyal to it. Some one has said that the Mennonite church is like a well fed cow and anybody can come into it and milk whenever and however they please. The statement meant to imply that we were not loyal to ourselves and that we have so attended to other causes and institutions at the neglect of our own. Bro. Neuenschwander has a pride and heart interest in his denomination and radiates this spirit wherever he goes. For this reason every congregation should anticipate his coming and keep him as long as they can.

Wilmer S. Shelly.

Pratum, Oregon. Dear readers of the Mennonite.—"O sing unto the Lord a new song for He hath done marvelous things." A splendid thought to remember the past year by. God truly has done marvelous things. Has kept His loving protecting hand over our group of believers, has taken none of our members home to Himself during this past year. Even though the storm of hard trials were some of our experiences, yet with new hope and strengthened faith we can say that these trials were only stepping stones and that we received a blessing from them.

We with our finite minds can not always understand the leading of our Precious Saviour. What this New Year has in store for us, we do not know, but one thing we do know and that is that God will not forsake His own, if we but will trust Him, and take Him at His Word. This promise and many similar ones, are given to us in His Precious Word. Our dear pastor expounded to us one of these wonderful passages for a New Year thought. His theme was "Free from Care and Anxiety." Matt. 6:25-34 and Phil. 4:5-7. We were much blessed by this appropriate message.

We are having one of the most beautiful winters out here in the west. The daily paper stated that on January 4 it was only one degree cooler than last June. Some of the early flowers are in bloom, far ahead of their season. The fall grain looks wonderful, as we did not have any cold weather to check its growth. The first Sunday in January seemed like a lovely spring day with the warm sunshine.

On Christmas Eve we had a splendid program given by the children. Our church was filled to the last space and many were turned away. There were about four hundred persons there, the largest crowd we ever had on such an occasion. The Sunday School choir sang the lovely Christmas songs. Rev. J. M. Franz gave the closing remarks. His theme was the evergreen tree, a type of the Lord Jesus—ever liveth.

On Christmas Day our Pastor gave us a fine message in the German language and the church choir sang two familar German Christmas songs. A good number came to enjoy their message also some came from our neighboring church.

On New Year's Eve we had our C. E. and praise service combined. Our pastor had charge of this meeting. Many beautiful thoughts were expressed. A large group came to listen to this program. A double quartet sang a fine New Year's song in the German language.

On December 29, the "King's Messengers" Quartet from Biola, Los Angeles, gave us a fine program, in song, music and testimony.

Our Annual business meeting was held in the evening of January second. Had a fine meeting. Our group sent more money for the cause of missions than the previous year. May those who have received it also use it as it was intended for—for the purpose of spreading the dear Word of God and winning souls. New workers were also elected for this coming year. 'Tis true we can't all do great work for our precious Saviour but we can all do our part, which is assigned to us. In building a mansion the building cannot exist of doors and windows only, there even has to be a door sill for others to walk over—so it is also in God's work. May God help us to be true in the small and insignificant tasks as well as in the larger ones.

This past year our busy pastor had charge of four funerals. One was held at our church. Also delivered three messages at three silver wedding anniversaries, also one at a Golden Wedding anniversary besides the many sermons he delivered at different places, besides his own work here with his flock. Let us remember to keep the Golden Rule of the Bible, Matt. 7:12, and we shall be a greater blessing this year to others than what we have been before.

Lydia Stauffer.

First Mennonite Church, Mt. Lake, Minn. Dec. 24, 1933. Dear Editor and Readers.—The end of another year is almost here and as we look back we must say that great and merciful is the Lord and that he has showered many blessings upon us during the past year.

Early in the year, Jan. 29, 1933, this congregation was privileged to celebrate the 40th anniversary of its minister, Rev. D. D. Harder. It was exactly 40 years ago that he was ordained into the ministry and served the same congregation throughout that time. Several neighboring ministers were invited to speak. Rev. Harder, Elder I. J. Dick and several members of the congregation spoke also and Miss Anna Bargen rendered a very suitable reading. The choir furnished music. The church was filled with people and the entire occasion became very impressive and no doubt, the congregation, and especially Rev. Harder will remember the festival for many, many years.

Good Friday, Easter, and Pentecost were also especially observed by the church as well as Harvest Festival, prayer meetings, and the Lord's Supper. In the spring of the year the regular catechism class was held, which several young people joined and three were baptised and taken into the church on the day of Pentecost. Several other people were added to the church by letter on the same day.

The Sunday School and Young People's organizations, as well as the Sewing Societies have been very active during the year. We have been privileged to have church services every Sunday morning and often evenings and at times during the week. So far as opportunities to hear the gospel are concerned we have had them, may God grant that we have made the best of them.

During the fall months a new heating system was installed in the church and so far we have found it very satisfactory.

Nov. 21, 1933, the annual business meeting of the congregation was held in the church. One new member was elected to the Board of Religious Council, one to the church board. The church secretary, S. S. Superintendent, choir director, pianists, etc., were also elected and the general business of the church taken care of.

Tomorrow we shall celebrate again the coming of the King, let us hope that he may come into every heart and abide therein unto the end of time.

Wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Joyous New Year, I am,

H. M. Harder, Sec.

MISSIONARY SERMON

Romans 10:12-18

By J. D. Graber

I greet you in the name of Jesus Christ, our Lord and Master, and I trust you will hold up your servant in prayer that God may speak through him in this hour.

The passage from which I have been asked to preach this afternoon is found in Romans 10:12-18. As I studied this passage of Scripture and tried to find in it some line of thought that would be appropriate for a missionary sermon, I was led to feel that the Apostle had in mind in this passage three distinct ideas, namely: the missionary vision, the missionary message, and the missionary method—Vision, Message, and Method.

In the outline of the book of Romans we find that the Apostle in this tenth chapter, along with the ninth and the eleventh, is discussing the problem of Israel, and he recognizes the fact that God has rejected Israel. At this particular point in the argument he is trying to show that God did not reject Israel arbitrarily, but that he rejected Israel because they rejected Him. The writer to the Romans is seeking to wean people away from the prevalent Jewish idea of that day that God had chosen the Jewish people to the exclusion of all other people, because the Gospel message has ever been, "Whosoever believeth on the Lord Jesus Christ shall be saved."

This was a difficult conception for the Jews of that day for they still felt that the fact that God had chosen them meant that He had rejected everyone else. The Apostle teaches in the opening verses of the passage before us that there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon Him. He is ever insistent on the fact that salvation in Christ is for all people regardless of any other considerations. He is appealing to the Christians of his day to get away from any provincial ideas of the Gospel; he is seeking to instil into the very fibre of their Christian hearts a world-wide vision, a vision that sweeps straight across the barriers of race, nationality, creed, and continent. This same vision I crave for the Church of our own day. We meet many people in the Church who seem to have a very inadequate sense of Geography. It is surprising to discover what strange ideas some of our own people have as to the location of India or its distance from our own country. Are we able to take the wings of our imagination and think right around this world of ours? Can we see that little peninsula on the southern tip of Asia called India with its 353,000,000 people, with its millions of gods, its castes, outcastes, superstition, false religion, degradation, ignorance, sin, and suffering? Can we think on down into the dark continent of Africa, with an area larger than that of our own North America, with its millions who have not the Gospel? Do we know that Mohammedanism is rapidly spreading down through that continent? Can we go on into the South Sea Islands teeming with a population of unevangelized people? into Japan with its Shintoism, China with her Confucianism, back into North East India where Buddhism is the prevailing religion, and on North into Tibet, that mystery land, sealed to all outside influences, including the Gospel of Christ? Have we a vision of the atheism of Russia, the size and extent of the great Mohammedan world, and of the blighting and just as heathenish materialism of our own country and Europe? I say, can we think right around the world and picture in our consecrated imagination these seething millions, these men and women, precious in the sight of God, who have not the blessings of the Gospel of Jesus Christ? I believe a good-sized globe would be a splendid decoration for our mantles or tables so that we might become familiar with the geography of this world in which we live and thus become better able to think and pray right around the world.

There is a striking picture in the tenth chapter of Revelation where the messenger of God is pictured as coming down out of heaven, clothed with a cloud, standing with one foot in the sea and one foot on the land. He holds a book in one hand and the other hand he lifts up to heaven. This is a tremendous conception and is certainly symbolical of the world encompassing purposes of God. The messenger commands John to eat the book which he holds in his hand. This is not a bank book; it is plainly symbolical of the Word of God which must ever be the Book in the hands of a messenger of God. Strange results are pictured as following the eating of the volume. "It will be sweet to thy mouth but bitter to thy belly," said the angel to John, and when he ate it he found it to be so.

What is the basis of this world-wide vision? It is not education, travel, commerce, reading newspapers, or even missionary reports, but it is here symbolized as being the Word of God. If your vision is small or if you lack true missionary vision I want to recommend to you a careful reading of the Bible. If you eat it, as the angel commanded John to do, it will have the same results; it will be sweet to the mouth but bitter to the belly. What does this mean? Missionary enthusiasm and the spirit of these wonderful missionary meetings are precious and we find them to be truly like sitting in heavenly places with Christ Jesus; it is sweet to our mouths. But, friends, the carrying out of the missionary teachings of the Gospel as we find them in God's Word is always bitter to the flesh. It means self-renunciation; it may mean leaving home, a laying down of many things that are precious, and a denial of much that is pleasing to the natural man; it will be, perhaps, a bitter medicine, but I trust we may all be willing to swallow the prescription, even though it may bitter to the flesh.

The idea, again, of a world-wide Gospel is not new to the New Testament. The Old Testament is filled with passages that carry the universal message. God had chosen the children of Israel for a very special purpose and for a special work. The Jews selfishly appropriated these blessings to themselves, decided that God loved them more than He loved other people, and that He had no concern for the Gentile nations round about them. But thank God for the prophets, those men who were filled with the Spirit of God and who spoke the heaven-sent messages, saying in unmistakable language and figure that the purposes of God are ever world-wide. This is one of the strongest proofs of the inspiration of the Scriptures that we have. It is not a thing that grew naturally out of the life and thought of the Jewish people. They simply could not appreciate the fact that the purposes of God were universal. Even though they said, "Our God is the true God," yet they felt sure that He is our God and not your God. So it is a mark of the special inspiration of God that He broke through this wall of human prejudice and gave the vision to His prophets, right from Genesis on through to Revelation, that His mercy and having grace extend to all people everywhere and in all times.

I wish we might ever have the vision that Christ had as He sat on the rim of Jacob's well in Samaria leading a non-Jew, and a woman, into the Kingdom of God. While she was on her way to the city to call her fellow townsmen Jesus challenged His disciples to lift up their eyes and behold the world as a field ready for harvest.

I wish we might get the vision the Apostle Paul had. Nothing inspires me more than to follow him as he planned his missionary work. He had a passion and a vision of world-evangelization that has never been equalled since. He was warned that if he should insist on going to Jerusalem he would be persecuted and probably put to death. But he said, "None of these things move me, neither count I my life dear." He was not content with merely working around the fringes of Judaism; he was determined to plant the banner and push the attack right into the entrenched heart of Judaism in Jerusalem itself. Then he said, "I must preach the Gospel in Rome also." He saw that Rome was the capital of the world; that from Rome culture and enlightenment flowed to all the then known world. "If I can get into that disseminating center of influence," he thought, "I shall use the Roman government itself to carry the Gospel to the four winds of the earth." After that he said, "I must go to Spain also." Not only did he have a vision that the Gospel was meant for all the world, but actually had a vision of the whole world being won and brought into the Kingdom! And not only that, but this vision and conviction drove him out single-handed to accomplish this impossible task. He was not a great organizer, but fired on by his vision and conviction, in the power and under the direction of the Spirit of God, he set out to evangelize and Christianize the whole world!

A retired missionary from Arabia received a Christmas card from a young man who is laboring for the Gospel in that land. The Mohammedan religion puts up a very stubborn resistance to the Gospel and converts in Mohammedan countries have been very few. The Christmas card bore the picture of a Mohammedan Mosque with the Muzzein calling out the prayers. Under the picture the young man had written, "I believe as you believe, and pray as you pray that the time is coming when there will ring out from every minaret of every Mosque in Arabia the words, "Peace on earth good will to men.'" The retired missionary, after reading these words exclaimed, "Young man, great is thy faith!" But that is what is required: a great faith. Any missionary on the face of the earth that is going to do effective work must be fired on by a vision and a faith of a world transformed by the glorious message of the Gospel.

Yes, there are prophecies that speak of the growth of evil and of a great falling away. When Isaiah was sent forth he asked, "How long?" and he was told, "Till the land be wasted without inhabitant." We are not afraid to face facts. We know the world is evil. We know that the Prince of the power of the air is a mighty and tyrannical ruler. We are not at all sure whether the Gospel will be victorious in the world in this age. How far short the Apostle Paul fell of conquering the world for Christ, but nevertheless his vision was his dynamic. Even though we may spend all our lives preaching the Gospel in India or Arabia and if there should be not even a single convert that fact has nothing to do with whether we should preach it there or not. God deliver us from missionary statistics and that kind of spiritual account-keeping! Whatever we believe, friends, regarding the evil that is in the world and as to whether the people will hear and accept our Gospel or not, that dare not become an excuse for doing nothing, or for recalling our workers and saying that there is no use preaching the gospel there. We must be filled with a vision that the Gospel is for all people and with the vision glorious of a world whose kingdoms have become the kingdoms of our Lord and Christ and these visions must ever be the dynamic that drives us out conquering and to conquer.

A MISSIONARY LETTER TO MR. AND MRS. ROY YODER FROM REV. AND MRS. RUSSELL SCHNELL

November 3, 1933.

Dear Roy and Betty:

My how time does fly, we have to stop and think that a year ago today we said Good-bye to our loved ones and turned our faces toward the Congo land. And as we think back we certainly realize that the past year has brought us many experiences both new and old.

We were very glad to receive a letter from you folks after such a long wait; and hope you will write to us again soon because we certainly do enjoy your letters.

We have enjoyed our work very much thus far here at Charlesville and have become very much attached to the natives in working with them. I still have charge of the women's school work; and lately have also taken over the women's evangelistic work in the villages. One afternoon of the week 12 Christian women who know how to read and write quite well come to the church and I teach them a Bible lesson which they teach the next day in return to 12 different villages to the women and children of the villages. They also make a plea to the people to turn to God and leave the affairs of Satan.

Russell has charge of the boys' work and is now playing a little game of ball with them. The native children do not care to play much and sometimes you have to almost urge them to play any type of a game. They tell me Russell is still a child because he plays ball.

Russell also has charge of the Mission printing and sometimes settles some of the native palävers (problems) which come up between the natives.

School is in full swing here and we will soon have a month vacation of it. As we just have it three months then a month of vacation then three more of school and so on throughout the year.

The other affair of the mission are about as same as usual all except we sometimes feel the religious spirit waning and feel that Satan tries to get the best of the work by tempting the native Christians. So we do ask you to continue to remember us in your prayers. "Prayer Changes Things."

I am glad to hear that you folks are taking advantage of more education because when we try to deal with some of the problems we certainly do feel unprepared at times. I will wait to tell you things more in detail till I know that your time in joining us in the work is at hand. Hoping that you may come out soon as we are both looking forward to the time when we will work together, we are—Yours in the Master's Service,

Helen and Russell.

Y. P. NOTES (December 1933)

It is always both encouraging and interesting to us to read the accounts and activities of other Young People's groups in "The Mennonite," whether they appear in our department or as correspondence from the various churches. We have found our publication of real help to us in our work and problems, planning to make its material a part of our regular program.

Our annual business meeting this week has brought a rather busy year to a close. The following officers were elected to serve for the coming year: President, Mabel Ebert; Vice-Pres., Wilmer Smith; Secretary, Ruth Kirby; Treasurer, Betty Schwenk.

Looking back over the latter part of the year, we feel that we have been much encouraged in meeting and mingling with the young people of our sister Churches, in the various Rallies and Special Meetings arranged by the Executive Committee of our Y. P. Union, during the past year.

Beside our regular programs in which only members took part, the following workers and friends helped make the meetings more inspiring as they took part; Rev. Fred Whittermore, returned Missionary from Africa, spoke on "Entire Consecration;" Rev. W. S. Gottshall, on the work of our Home Mission Board; special music for this program was furnished by a Hawaiian guitar orchestra from our town, our newly elected secretary being a member of the organization; Gerald Ford, a student of Wheaton College, an inspiring talk and music on his "Musical Saw;" Mrs. P. J. Boehr, spoke on the subject "Problems of "Chinese Young People." Rev. P. R. Schroeder, who conducted Evangelistic Meetings, at our Church, also spoke during the Young People's Service, which was given over entirely to him. Most of the Young People attended the above series of meetings throughout the entire twelve evenings and we greatly appreciated as well as benefitted by these stirring messages.

Mr. Glenn Davis, formerly of our town, and a student of the Philadelphia School of the Bible, spoke to us one evening as did members of the Allem Trio, three brothers, preparing for Christian service, and members of the local Evangelical Church. The trio also provided excellent vocal and string music. At the invitation of the Saucon C. E. Society we visited and conducted part of the program there on November 12th.

During the past year we have also had charge of several special services in our church, conducted the Easter Dawn Service" one program at a Philadelphia Rescue Mission and will have charge of our Annual "Watch Night" prayer service on December 31st. Just now, we are anxiously awaiting the visit of the Bluffton College Glee Club, who are expected in the East during the Christmas vacation. Our society joins with the Sunday School in the Annual White Gift Service. John E. Fretz.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

January 28

The Place of Youth in the Church—II Tim. 2:20-22; I Tim. 4:1.

This is the beginning of Christian Endeavor week. It is fitting to discuss the idealism and worth of our young people in the work of the church. Some public speakers and others find their chief pastime in denouncing youth. Others find a dynamic of religion in destructive criticism, and youth becomes for them a ready target. But all of this is nothing new. In Constantinople on an Assyrian tablet dated about 2800 B. C. one may read the following:

"Our earth is degenerate in these latter days; there are signs that the world is speedily coming to an end; bribery and corruption are common; children no longer obey their parents; every man wants to write a book and the end of the world is evidently approaching."

The leader who prepares this program should plan to make this a consecration service. With the proper atmosphere and the kind of a challenge Jesus gave His disciples when He said "Follow Me" young people will gladly respond. Young people may be different from some older people but in many cases the balance is in their favor. Their faith may not yet be mellowed for that comes by experience, but often it is deeper. When young people have failings and misgivings the blame must often be placed on the shoulders of their elders who set that kind of an example.

On the other hand youth is often irresponsible, liberty-loving, and of a spendthrift nature. They must learn early that they will have a large share in building a great house as Paul says to young Timothy. There are great tasks which remain to be accomplished and if the leaders of tomorrow will fail God, those tasks will remain undone until more loyal and consecrated men will be born. Waste not your lives, live not foolishly, for you are planning today and determining what you will be at age forty.

What can young people do? They can do anything that needs to be done. Some of the greatest achievements have been wrought by young men and women. Martin Luther wrote the manifesto which brought on the Reformation at the age of twenty-nine. Poe was doing his best work at twenty-five, Keats, Shelley and Byron were dead at twenty-five, thirty and thirty-six respectively, but what an imprint they left on the world. Newton formulated the law of gravitation at twenty-four and Michaelangelo did his statue of David at twenty-six. This list could be indefinitely extended but it would not be complete without the name of the Man of Galilee who finished his earthly career at the age of thirty-two, and has altered all of life as a result.

Young people should take every opportunity to serve wherever they can, especially so in the work of the church. What greater opportunity can anyone desire than being a teacher of a class of boys or girls. And then to express one's self in Christian Endeavor is a training in itself aside from its spiritual value which is derived from witnessing for Christ and the worth-while life. May we give our all for Him who did so much for us.

Getting Along with Others.—Romans 12:3, 9-10.

If you cannot get along with others, it may be their fault for there are some people whom we simply cannot understand. But it is the wiser and more charitable move to look at self and try to discover as to whether the fault does not lie with us. The difficulty may not be great, it may be of such a nature that it can easily be corrected if it is properly diagnosed and the proper treatment be administered. When we consider that our span of life is so brief and that any good we can ever do to our fellows must be done here, we should consider this matter of life quite seriously. Jesus when speaking about the high worth of children says: "It were better if such a one were drowned in the depths of the sea rather than that one of these little ones be offended."

We all like to be appreciated, all of us delight in our good points and yet our weaknesses are so manifold. Let us try to enumerate some reasons why some people we may know are not liked. First, we notice what Paul had to say in one of our Scripture verses when he speaks of "thinking of himself more highly than he ought to think. This is the proud man, the fellow or the girl who rates himself too highly. Then there is the loud type, the person who is always talking in loud tones, he has the attitude that he knows it all. In the third place we thing of that insincere group. We never know where they stand. They may seem to be our friends and yet we know that behind our backs they deride us. We might add many others but suffice it to add a fourth class, namely those who find delight in the coarse, shady aspects of life, always trampling under foot those ideals and standards dear to us.

Wherein is the cure? How shall we treat the above classes? How can we be assured that others will have a high regard for us? Paul gives an answer which goes a long way toward a solution when he says: "Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil, cling to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love." The truly great souls are always lovable, approachable humble souls. Our Master laid down a strong foundation stone for life when He taught: "Whosoever would be great, let him be your servant." Love covers a multitude of sins. We may not agree with a neighbor or a co-worker but if we discover that he is sincere. that he means well and is doing the best he can, we will love him even if his opinions are poles removed from ours. Jesus never compelled any one to agree with Him, but He was ever a great shining Personality drawing men unto Himself. Little wonder that Zaccheus was overjoyed, converted and transformed when Jesus became his guest that night.

Questions

1. How essential is it that individuals get along well with other people in our modern day?
2. Is it possible to get along with everybody? To what extent should we try to do so?
3. What are some causes for individuals not getting along with others?
4. Where should we lay the greater blame for some of the disharmonies of life—in existing systems or in un-Christian souls? Where must we look for the cure?
5. In what practical ways can Christ help us to get along better in relations to men and society?

Prayer

Oh God, give us a humbler spirit, greater sympathy and a deeper love. Amen.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

"Workers Together"

Dear Boys and Girls:—

Will you think with me for a little while of this New Year and just what it may mean to each of us? I have been trying to imagine how many boys and girls this will reach, where you live and what you are doing. I should love to meet all of you but since that is not possible we are going to take a little time and space this month just to get acquainted.

Many of you live on farms, others in towns and cities and I am quite sure that some of our Junior family is across the ocean. We seem a scattered family, yet I have thought of a little motto that I am sure we can make our own, "Workers Together." That motto reminds me of Nehemiah. You remember he went to Jerusalem to see about rebuilding the wall that had been broken down. He had many men to help build. They could not all work in the same place but as each kept to his own place and did the work assigned him, the wall was finally finished.

God has a work He wants us to do. Many of us may never meet here but like the men on the wall, we can be faithful wherever we are. Your own Junior society needs you and Christ wants you to be the very best Junior you can, working for Him just because you love Him. Let us right now determine to make this a worth-while year and, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength" we can.

Later on we hope to have more to say about different lines of Junior work. This month and next we are to study about children outside our own family. Find out all you can about those who live in other lands and how happy they are when they know Jesus, too.

I shall be very glad to have letters from you boys and girls or your superintendents telling of your work or making suggestions for our corner.

Your Friend,
Mrs. Andersohn.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

The Bible in the Society

The Endeavorer, whether Junior, Intermediate or young person should never lose sight of the fact that the Bible is the text-book of the society. Although Christian Endeavor is the service arm of the church, service is empty unless based on the Word of God and carried on because of love for Christ.

Many reasons for giving so large a place to the Bible are found in the Book itself. First, it is the inspired word of God, II Tim. 3:16, II Peter 1:21. That fact alone proves the Bible to be different from and greater than all other books. It is God's word to man. It is like a fire and like a hammer, Jer. 23:29. In Psalm 119:105 it is called a lamp and a light. The Bible shows the way when we do not quite know where to go or what to do. It is spoken of as a sword in Eph. 6:17. Then Peter in I Peter 2:2 calls the Bible milk, that which makes folks grow. In order to be a worth-while Christian, one's mind and soul must be fed with the Word of God. We need to read it carefully remembering and obeying its teachings.

Men have used many words to describe the Bible. Among other things they have spoken of it as a love-letter from God, a compass, a guide.

Since the Bible is such a great Book, we should spend much time studying it. Beginning in the Junior Society, we promise when we sign the pledge to read it every day. This means not just a hurried verse but taking time to study. Then we have Bible work in the meeting such as reading verses in keeping with the topic, Bible verse contests, questions and answers, etc. Bible memory work is an important part of the Junior program and can be made most interesting. Names of Books of the Bible, verses and even whole chapters should be memorized. Scripture learned while Juniors will remain and be a great help through life. Happy is the boy or girl who can say with David, "Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee."

Topic.—Telling the "Story" in Korea. Acts 8:5-8.

Today we think about a very small yet interesting country. Korea with its near islands is only a little larger than the State of Minnesota yet it has eight times as many people. It has 4,950 miles of railways carrying 20,000,000 passengers a year. Some customs of Korea would seem strange to us in America. For instance on wash-day the women gather along the streams and wash their clothes on the rocks. Later they club them to get the wrinkles out instead of ironing them as we do. One more strange custom. In the past, when anyone died, the family felt the sooth-sayer was the only one who could decide where the grave should be. Often he would suggest the best place in the field, so Korea was dotted with graves. The Japanese have changed that and now people must bury in grave-yards or pay a tax on the graves. During the past year word has come of a great revival in Korea. Many people have been saved and a large number are preparing to be ministers or missionaries.

Plans for the Meeting

Encourage the Juniors to get all the information they can concerning Korea. Space forbids giving more here. It is an interesting country both from a natural and spiritual standpoint. The use of maps, note-books and pencils in these missionary meetings will be a great help.

Questions

1. Where is Korea?
2. Tell what you can of its size and population.
3. What do you know of Korean customs?
4. When was missionary work in Korea begun?
5. What is being done for Christ there now?

Topic.—Telling the "Story" in China.
Acts 16:9, 10.

One's first thought on hearing the word "China" is of its millions of people so crowded that one wonders how they live. Then we think of the house-boats, the only homes many boys and girls know. And very closely connected with the thought of China is that of robbers, bandits, war. For China has suffered much. Not only have the Chinese suffered but lives of missionaries are often in danger and many have died as martyrs. Although we hear much of danger, there is the brighter side. Many Chinese welcome the missionaries and are eager to learn from them. The story is told of special meetings that were held during a busy season. Folks might well have stayed away but they left their work and walked miles from many villages to hear of Jesus and His love. Missionaries are busy in villages, in the country and even on the boats.

Plans for the Meeting

In our missionary discussions, conditions in each country should be studied from a natural as well as spiritual side. The boys and girls of other nations should be made to live before our Juniors. This will require much study on the part of the superintendent but it is the only way we can hope to interest the Juniors in Missions. Let them see clearly the change that takes place when Christ enters the lives of these people.

Questions.

1. How large is China?
2. What do you think the most interesting custom of China?
3. Tell of life on the house-boats.
4. Tell of the religions of China.
5. What has been done by missionaries in China?

TRUSTING MY OLDER FRIENDS

I Peter 5:1-5.

"Friendship with Jesus,
Fellowship divine,
Oh, what Blessed sweet communion,
Jesus is a friend of mine!"

Pre-prayer

Where Jesus meets your souls in prayer.
Thank God for Christian Friends for Christian fellowship in service.
for the opportunities to be real friends.
Ask God for His Presence in your meeting to give us a greater heart of love to be a friend to those who need us.
to lift our eyes to the field of human service we can give.
to make us willing to be willing.

Songs

"I Have a Friend," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Just When I Need Him Most," "Jesus Is All the World to Me," "He's a Wonderful Saviour," "He Leadeth Me," "No Friend Like Jesus," "Into My Heart."

Scripture verses dealing with the lessons which can be given to new members, visitors, or timid members, to read before the discussion of the topic. This will aid very much to make them to know that you are interested in them.

1. Ruth 1:8, 16, 17, 18.
2. John 15:13, 14, 15.
3. James 2:23.
4. Proverbs 18:24.
5. Proverbs 1:7-9.
6. I Samuel 9:1-10.
7. John 14:1-3.
8. I Kings 12:1-11.

Text Jewels. I Peter 5:1-5.

v. 2. Try to realize that older people are really interested in youth and want them to profit by their mistakes.

v. 3. Youth needs guidance and oversight just as they need teachers in school. Youth has not walked this way heretofore. When older folks are in smypathy with youth, youth will respond and listen to experience. This is the meaning of the book of Proverbs.

v. 4-5. "Submit yourselves" is not the natural and the easiest thing to do, but discipline conquers impatience and makes us sharers, serving one another.

A Friendship Meeting

Ask each member to bring a friend who does not belong to C. E. The officers of the society should be near the door to meet and greet all of the newcomers.

On a poster of C. E. emblem in the front of the room on top of the piano, write these words. "Welcome Friends." It might be advisable to serve a cup of tea and wafers prior to your C. E. Pre-prayer service in order to meet and get acquainted with the newcomer-friends. It might be well to sing some C. E. songs and Gospel Choruses during this get-together fellowship hour. Extend a hearty invitation to all to join in the Pre-prayer Service.

If you have in your Senior Endeavor a member who is vitally interested in youth and to whom you can go with problems and trust them to give you sound advice, it would be well to ask them to give a short talk on our Topic tonight, following the discussion of the subject by your members. Perhaps a Christian High School Teacher or Principal could be procured for your speaker.

Questions for Discussion

1. To what extent can older folks help us?
2. What old friends are not worth while trusting? Why?
3. Note some qualites which we should look for in friends which we want to go to for advice?
4. Can friends help us at all times?
5. Should we show confidence toward our Pastor?
6. Should our confidence in earthly friends lessen our dependence upon God? (Give this question serious thought.)
7. Why are our parents to be trusted and revered in giving advice and help?
8. Of what value are real true Christian Friendships?

"You are writing a gospel, a chapter each day,
By deeds that you do and words that you say
Men read what you write, whether faithless or true,
Say, what is the gospel according to you?"

What do I know about my Church?—Acts 19:1-7

Beginning Christian Endeavor Week. Denominational day.

Pre-prayer Service

You can lead no one any closer to Christ through the leadership of tonight, than you yourself have been drawn close to the Master.

Use this opportunity to unite your prayers for the Blessing of God to fall upon you.

Songs

"The Church in the Wildwood," "How Firm a Foundation," "I Would be True," "He Leadeth Me."

Your Meeting

This meeting to be most beneficial, should be well prepared by both leader and members. All references are taken from the Scripture and from the History of the Central Conference of Mennonites, which can be borrowed from your Pastor or be purchased from the Publication board at Danvers, Illinois.

Piano Prelude.

THE S. S. LESSONS

January 21

Jesus Begins His Ministry

Lesson Text,—Matthew 4:12-25.

Golden Text,—Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

Matthew in his gospel omits the first year of the ministry of Jesus. This year is often called the year of obscurity. It is the time in which Jesus makes His first acquaintances with His disciples.

The lesson text that is selected for our consideration describes the second year which is His year of public favor. Jesus announced His ministry with the same message as that of John the Baptist, Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. The kingdom of heaven suggests the theme of all of His teaching and preaching. He used a term which is very suggestive to the Jews of His day. They were expecting a kingdom to come, the prophets and the apocalyptic writers had foretold the coming of this kingdom. The Jews, under the bondage of the Roman Empire, were expecting this kingdom to bring them freedom and many blessings, so when Jesus came and announced that the kingdom is at hand, it thrilled the people and many followed Him that they might see Him usher in this kingdom. But this term meant different things to different people. To the Scribes and Pharisees the kingdom meant a kingdom of Israel with the nations around about subdued and this "Second David" to be the ruler. To them it was a national hope. To the common mass of the people it meant material blessing, each man sitting under his own vine, owning his little plot of ground and enjoying the blessings which they felt God had promised them. To Jesus, however, when He said "Repent, for the kingdom is at hand" the kingdom meant something quite different. To Him it was spiritual and would come through teaching and preaching and living the life. To Him the kingdom was God's rule in the heart of an individual. He was in the kingdom and anyone else could get in, even the Scribes and Pharisees if they were willing to allow God to rule in their hearts.

Jesus went about teaching and preaching the gospel of the kingdom. Jesus was the greatest teacher the world has ever had and yet He was not primarily a teacher. He came into the world as a Saviour to reveal God's love to men but His method of work while in the world was to teach and preach and heal. These were all secondary to His great mission of redemption.

Lesson Text—Matthew 5:1-12, 43-48.

Golden Text,—Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

In this lesson we have set before us in condensed form Jesus' standards for entrance into the kingdom of heaven. He says that if the righteousness of His disciples does not exceed the righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees, they can not enter into the kingdom of heaven. The righteousness of the Scribes and Pharisees was legalism and an emphasis on outward conduct. They placed much emphasis on observing traditions and customs and doing things religiously which were a sign of their piety, but according to Jesus they had lost the spirit of their religion. In our lesson text He emphasizes the fact that the outward is determined by the inward. That it is the motives and purposes of man which determine his life. Man's life is judged by what he is rather than by what he does. Man's life is blessed if he feels continually his dependence upon God. If he recognizes his shortcomings and is sympathetic, if he is open minded and teachable, continually hungering for better and higher things, if he shows mercy and is absolutely sincere in heart, if he puts forth definite efforts to make peace. Of course, a man who lives this kind of a life must expect to suffer persecution, but even this will enrich his life and bring him deep joy. The standard set by Jesus is, be ye therefore perfect even as your heavenly Father is perfect. Many church people say that is an impossible ideal but the word perfection in its original meaning means wholeness. It means the same that when Jesus said, "If thine eye be single thy whole body shall be full of light." What it really means is that we have one great comsuming purpose and around that purpose we gather all our ideas, emotions and will for the carrying out of that purpose. This it is to be perfect.

February 4

Putting God's Kingdom First.

Lesson Text—Matthew 6:19-33.

Golden Text,—Seek ye first His kingdom and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you.

These lessons follow each other in a very logical order. First Jesus announces the kingdom, then He describes the standards which must be met to enter the kingdom and now He discusses what place this kingdom holds in our lives. Jesus, in His parables emphasizes different phases of the kingdom. In two of them He particularly stresses the importance of the kingdom in life. He says the kingdom is like a treasure hid in a field, which, when a man found it sold all that he had and bought the field in order to get the treasure. It is like the pearl of greatest price. In other words it is first in our lives. The great problem of many lives is a divided life. Trying to serve the gods of this world and yet the true God. At one time living a life of darkness and at other times attempting to live a life of light. Such people spend a great deal of time in worrying about the circumstances of life. It is illuminating to know how many church people committed suicide as a result of the depression. Their lives had been subject to circumstances, to their environment and when that changed they were not able to adjust themselves. They had been living on a formal borrowed religion which gave them neither light nor power. Jesus says, "Be not overanxious, you cannot serve God and mammon, where our treasure is our heart will be." So it becomes very practical to ask ourselves what is it that takes most of our time, thought and energy. Whatever gets our attention, gets us. Jesus says, "Seek the kingdom, make that the consuming passion of your life, then these other things will adjust themselves.

PROGRAM FOR THE BIBLE WEEK AT BETHEL COLLEGE

February 11 to February 16

Rev. M. C. Lehman of Goshen, Indiana, is to be the special lecturer for the Bible Week at Bethel College this year. Having spent some fifteen years in foreign countries, Rev. Lehman is well acquainted with world affairs and will bring spiritual messages of a high order. He will speak twice a day—in the forenoon at 9:30 (except on Sunday when he will deliver the Sunday morning sermon at the regular time) and in the evening at 7:30. The general public is invited.

The Forenoon Series—College Chapel, 9:30-10:30.

Sunday, Feb. 11: The Mystery of Life and its Practical Solution.
Monday, Feb. 12: The Heavenly Vision.
Tuesday, Feb. 13: The Fellowship of Christ.
Wednesday, Feb. 14: The Plane of Christian Living.
Thursday, Feb. 15: How May We Recapture the Power and Glow of the Early Church?
Friday, Feb. 16: The Call of the Cross.

The Evening Series—College Chapel, 7:30-9:00.

Sunday, Feb. 11: Recent Trends in Religious Thought.
Monday, Feb. 12: What About Modern Missions?
Tuesday, Feb. 13: Some Defects in Contemporary Civilization.
Wednesday, Feb. 14: The Church and Modern Life.
Thursday, Feb. 15: Mennonite Faith and World Problems.
Friday, Feb. 16: The Mennonite Student's Call to Service.

Besides these lectures by Rev. Lehman special courses on a popular level will be offered beginning Monday and ending Friday. These courses are designed especially to meet the needs of certain groups as indicated below:

2:30 to 3:30, a course for ministers on modern social movements and their religious implications by Dr. E. L. Harshbarger. (Meet in Room 12)

Monday: Communism.
Tuesday: Fascism and Hitlerism.
Wednesday: Socialism.
Thursday: Recent American Trends.
Friday: The Peace Movement.

2:30 to 3:30, a course of Bible discussions based on some letters of Paul in charge of various ministers. (Meet in Chapel)

Tuesday: Philippians, by Rev. P. H. Unruh.
Wednesday: Colossians, By Rev. J. J. Plenert.
Thursday: Titus, by Rev. P. R. Lange.
Friday: Philemon, by Rev. P. P. Wedel.

3:30 to 4:30, a course for Sunday School superintendents, teachers, and others interested by Dr. Ed. G. Kaufman. (Meet in Room 12)

Monday: The Educational Function of the Church.
Tuesday: The Aims of Christian Education.
Wednesday: The Content of Christian Education.
Thursday: The Method of Christian Education.
Friday: Christian Education as Spiritual Engineering.

3:30 to 4:30, a course for church choir directors, accompanists, and others interested by Prof. W. H. Hohmann. Some attention will be given to Gaul's "Holy City." (Meet in Chapel)

Monday: Hints on Music Appreciation.
Tuesday: Essentials of a Church Hymn.
Wednesday: The Importance of Intonation.
Thursday: Expression and its Significance.
Friday: Interpretation and its Achievement.

The friends of Bethel College have through the years learned to look forward to the offerings of the annual Bible Week with great expectations. Everyone is heartily invited to attend as many of the meetings as possible. We hope, too, that the courses offered will meet with a general welcome and good attendance. Bethel College is anxious to serve its constituency and this area in general. May our Heavenly Father richly bless us all as we meet together in His name during the days of the Bible Week to learn from Him.

MARRIAGE

Reimer-Thimm:—Frank Reimer and Esther Thimm, evening of November 24th, in the home of the bride, their pastor, Rev. M. Horsch officiating. Text of sermon, Psalm 84:6-8.

DEATH

Mohr:—Mrs. Jacob Mohr, 65, died at 9:30 a. m. Tuesday at her home, three miles north of Normal, Ill., after a three weeks' illness. She was a member of a pioneer farming family of the Yuton vicinity.

Born September 19, 1868, on the Basting homestead near Yuton, a daughter of Ferdinand and Anna Basting, she grew up there and was married to Mr. Mohr in March, 1892, after which they lived for six years near Heyworth, then returned to this vicinity.

Surviving are the husband; two brothers, Fred and Ferdinand J., both of Yuton; a sister, Mrs. A. E. Otto, 306 West Locust street, Normal; six children, Laura, May and Harold at home, Earl of Bloomington, and Lawrence and Mrs. Clarence Ropp of near Normal, and two grandchildren, Orville Mohr and Gordon Lee Ropp. Two sisters, Mrs. Sam Otto and Mrs. Silas Schad, are dead.

Mrs. Mohr was a member of the East White Oak Mennonite Church.

The funeral was held at 1:30 p. m. Thursday at the house and 2:00 p. m. at the church. Rev. E. Troyer had charge of the funeral, assisted by Rev. R. J. Zehr. Burial was in the Troyer cemetery.

Sommer:—Magdalena Lahn Sommer died at her home at Meadows, Illinois, Thursday December 21, 1933, from pneumonia, which followed an illness of a year.

She was born on the Atlantic ocean, February 21, 1855, while her parents, George and Barbara Schertz Lahn were crossing from Germany to find a new home in the United States.

They first located on a farm near Hamilton, Ohio. When Mrs. Sommer was 13 years of age the family moved to Gridley, Ill., where she was married to Jacob Sommer, February 10, 1877. They made their home on a farm near Washington, Ill., until 1899, when they removed to Manson, Iowa.

Leaving there in 1921, they retired to the home in Meadows where her husband died September 1927. An infant daughter also preceded her in death. Surviving are six children: George of Lexington, Ill., Samuel of Bloomington, Ill., Anna, Mrs. A. J. Streid, Joseph and Lydia of Meadows, three grandchildren, Ruth and Arthur Streid and Joseph Sommer, Jr.

She was the last member of the Lahn family. Funeral services were held Saturday, December 23, from the home at 9:30 a. m. with Rev. G. I. Gundy officiating, and from the Waldo A. M. church of which she was a member, at 10:30 a. m., with Rev. J. D. Hartzler and Rev. D. W. Slagle officiating. Interment was made in Waldo cemetery.

Carter:—Woodson Carter son of William and Elvira Carter was born at Fairfield, Ill., December 15, 1865. He entered the Old Peoples Home at Meadows, October 30, 1923, and passed away January 2, 1934. He was united in marriage with Elizabeth Humprey, April 10, 1896. To this union were born two sons Haynes and Euria of Detroit, Mich., and one daughter Lois of Fairfield, Ill. He was a member of the Baptist church for a number of years but united with the Mennonite church at Meadows, October 23, 1927. He was a faithful member until death.

He leaves to mourn his reparture his wife, three children, one brother, O. K. Carter of Onawa, Iowa and two sisters, Mrs. W. W. Draper of Carbondale, Ill., and Mrs. Frank Black of Fairfield, Ill. Funeral from the Meadows church in charge of G. I. Gundy assisted by Rev. Bertsche.

JOTTINGS

The Upland, California, church, Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor, closed an active year with its finances in good shape. A budget was adopted for the year 1934. Communion service was held January 7.

Another long term teacher in the Sunday School. For more than 25 years Abraham B. Weiss has been teacher of an adult class in the Second church, Philadelphia. Recently he resigned this position to become teacher of the Men's Class of the same school.

After teaching one class in the Sunday School for over 20 years J. F. Sprunger of Berne, Ind., resigned the work because of defective hearing. Before taking this class he had taught a young men's class for years. His class (No. 20) gave a banquet in his honor upon retiring.

Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, of Quakertown, Pa., who is a member of the Board of Education of the General Conference, atttended the meeting of the Council of Church Boards of Education meeting in St. Louis this week. The General Conference Board also had a meeting at this time.

At its annual meeting, the Salem church of near Freeman, S. D., it was reported that the membership numbers 430. During the year 18 were added to the membership, 10 by baptism and 8 by letter. Rev. P. R. Schroeder, the president of General Conference, is pastor of the Salem church.

Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Stauffer, of Quakertown, Pa., some days ago celebrated their Golden Wedding in the midst of a gathering of friends and relatives. Brother Stauffer has for many years been an active member of the Eastern District Conference, serving on numerous committees. He is a deacon in the Quakertown church and has always been active in the work of the church and Sunday School. Mrs. Stauffer is the daughter of the late Rev. A. B. Shelly, who for a number of terms was president of the General Conference and Chairman of the Foreign Mission Board. At a Sunday service, the Pastor, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, made an announcement of the celebration and read the names of 110 persons congratulating the couple. Brother Stauffer is the choir master of Bethany church.

The Grace Mennonite Church of Pandora, Ohio, held its Annual Business Meeting on the afternoon of New Year's Day. An unusually large number were present and the business was transacted with good feeling and keen interest. Many of the boards were increased from three to five in order to give a larger proportion of the church a larger part in the organization work of the church. There are now fifty-three persons in the organization activities of the church, exclusive of the Sunday School, Christian Endeavor and Missionary Societies. The church year closed with a small surplus in the treasury. The day after the Annual Meeting the members of the church gave their pastor a well managed birthday surprise which brought to the parsonage a stream of callers who left with their birthday well wishes many generous and useful gifts for Rev. and Mrs. Whitmer.

Dr. C. Henry Smith and Mrs. Smith, of Bluffton College, celebrated their Silver Wedding Anniversary. In honor of the event they entertained a number of friends at dinner. Dr. Smith is the author of a number of books on Mennonite history and is recognized on the history of the church. He occupies the chair of History in Bluffton College.

The Annual Bible Lectures at Bluffton College wil begin January 28. The lecturer will be Harry Rimmer scientist and well known Bible interpreter. There wil be two series of lectures: "The Bible and the Spade" and "The Harmony of Scriptures and sciences." In connection with this the Minister's and Christian Worker's conference has been arranged for the benefit of the ministers and workers of the Middle District Conference, Feb. 1 and 2, the closing days of the Bible lecture series.

Word has come from Howard Liechty, a native of Berne, Ind., who is teaching in Sidon Syria, that a party of Russian Mennonite refugees had entered into Turkey and that they are in severe straits both because of their needs and because of the unfriendliness of the Turkish and other authorities. In a recent letter to the Berne Witness he stated that their fate is uncertain since they have been sent from place to place. It is reported that there are 120 in the party. The Mennonite Relief Board has been trying to get in contact with the refugees.

The Kansas Mennonite Teacher's Association met recently in the West Zion Mennonite Church, Moundridge, Kans. An interesting program had been arranged. Rev. G. N. Harms spoke on "The Kansas Mennonite Teacher's Association in History and Present Objectives." Rev. C. H. van der Smissen spoke on "The Spiritual Causes of the Present World Crisis." The subject of Dr. E. G. Kaufman's Address was: "The Spiritual Heritage of the Mennonites." "Making Our Spiritual Heritage Effective," (a) "Through the School" L. J. Frantz and "Through the Home" Mrs. Paul Erb.

Pioneer preachers often had had experiences that, in our day, would be very unusual. It is related of Rev. Moses Gottschall, one of the first ministers in the Eastern Pennsylvania Conference, that he once went to preach at Settlement in Lehigh Co., where there was located a group of Mennonites worshipping in a little log meeting house. It happened, as was the custom in those days, that the building was not opened for weeks. The weather was still cold and up in the rafters there was a colony of wasps. Rev. Gottshall was possessed of a rich powerful voice. The newly heated building roused the insects from their stupor and the loud speaking of the minister annoyed them and they crowded out of their nest and began to annoy the congregation so that it had to retire and leave the meeting house to the wasps.

At the time of the early settlement of the Mennonites in Kansas the delegations of these settlers found it necessary to visit the settled churches in the east in search of assistance. It is told of one of the prominent leaders of the Russian Mennonites that, wherever he went, it was noticed that he had a watch that ticked so loud that it was heard all over a large room. Later it developed that a friend, learning that he had no clock at home, gave him one of those tin clocks of the type of our modern alarm clock, which he carried with him in his overcoat pocket and the ticking of this instrument was what attracted atention.

Several days ago three former students of the Wadsworth, Ohio, Mennonite school, the first Mennonite institution for higher learning in this country, which closed its doors in 1878 met in the home of Bro. James H. Shelly in Richlandtown, Pa. Bro. Shelly is confined to his home but Rev. N. B. Grubb and Bro. Charles Moyer of Philadelphia, both 84 years of age, paid him a surprise visit to talk over old Wadsworth days together. The brief social hour was followed by a season of prayer after which the Philadelphia brethren took their departure.

During a service being held in the Saucon church, Coopersburg, Pa., last week 18 persons were overcome by a mysterious gas believed to have come from the newly installed heating plant. All but one of the victims has fully recovered. Chemists are examining the water in the boiler and the cement used in the pipes trying to determine just what generated the gas. The Doctor who rendered first aid said he was puzzled by the symptoms shown by the victims, as most of them failed to respond to restoratives usually given for coal gas poisoning.

In the early days in Pennsylvania, before the time of public schools, better fixed farmers sometimes pooled their school interests and engaged a teacher for their children, providing the necessary quarters. John H. Oberholtzer, one of the founders of the General Conference, was a teacher and he had been engaged by a group of farmers living near Boyertown, Pennsylvania. The school room provided was over a stone building whose basement was used as a pig sty. To get to the school room it was necessary to pass through the feed entry which, when one did so one excited the pigs. It is said that a favorite trick of the boys was to sneak into the pig compartment and stirr up the swill barrel. This naturally caused the pigs to set up a terrible squeal. Of course the work of the teacher had to stop until the pigs quieted down. To be able to conduct school under such circumstances was, surely, a tribute to the patience and ability of the teacher.

"Through the Bible in Two Years," etc.

WHO IS DR. KAYE?

Dr. Kaye, the author of The Teachers' Guide, is recognized as one of the outstanding Bible scholars of America today. He is well known through his Biblical, historical and literary works. He is recognized as one of the most scholarly men in the field of philosophy as well as in the field of religion. Dr. Kaye has traveled extensively over the Old World and what is of special value is his work in Bible lands, particularly Egypt and Palestine.

NOT DENOMINATIONAL

The readers may want to know the specific attitude of the author relative to the Bible. In this book, The Teachers' Guide, denominational tenets are not treated. Theological coloring of this nature does not appear. It may be safely assumed that the student of The Teachers' Guide will not discover Dr. Kaye's denominational affiliation. Dr. Kaye is profoundly in earnest regarding Christianity and the Bible to him is greater than any ecclesiastical order.

He stands for the Divine inspiration of the Bible, that it is the Word of God. He stands for the Deity of Jesus Christ as Very God and Very Man. He stands for the Doctrine of Atonement, God's Method of Redeeming a Fallen Race by the saving work of Christ. He stands for the Doctrine of Regeneration, Christ's Doctrine of the New Birth. He stands for the Miraculous as set forth in the Scriptures.

A Better Lesson Help for Less Money

Scores of ministers, Sunday School teachers and Bible students who have examined The Teachers' Guide pronounce it the best they have seen. Dr. Kaye has the happy faculty of expressing himself clearly and concisely and in language a child can understand. All the material in this volume is original and has been prepared especially for this Guide. It is not made up in part with illustrations taken from books and articles already published.

This Guide Is Different

The lesson text is in the King James Version, but incorporated in the text are the American Standard renderings on difficult passages. The same text has been used in the Guide which is found in the Analytical Bible. The references, instead of being placed in a center column or in foot notes, are placed after each verse. The text is printed in long primer type and is diacritically marked.

Up-to-Date

Dr. Kaye has incorporated in The Teachers' Guide many new, up-to-date features never before published. In his lesson notes he has treated at length all the subjects bearing on the lessons. These render great assistance to the teacher in unfolding the lesson. They enable one to follow the movement with ease and to place the hand at once upon any of its divisions.

Beautiful Photographs

The Teachers' Guide abounds in beautiful photographs of Bible scenes. These interesting full page pictures show Bible scenes as they appear today. A brief description accompanies each picture.

Attractive Jacket

The Teachers' Guide contains 400 pages. It is durably and substantially bound in blue cloth, ink stamped. Each copy is put up in an attractive jacket as shown in the illustration.

A LITTLE WORLD AFTER ALL

During the Christmas holidays there appeared in one of the metropolitan papers a picture of a group of university students from foreign countries who have to spend their Christmas on the Campus. Among those portrayed the name given to one was Konstantin Isaak of Harbin, Manchuria. We immediately associated the name Isaak with that of Dr. Isaak, a Mennonite refugee located in that city who has been specially helpful to his fellow Mennonite residents and of great assistance to those who were seeking a haven in some more favorable country. A letter to the young man addressed to the University as a feeler brought the information that this youth is a son of Dr. Isaak and that he is living with a sister, Mrs. I. V. Neprash, the wife of director of Russian Missionary and Relief Service in Philadelphia. This is a small world after all when people from opposites of the world find they have common interests. It is a remarkable thing that, though the Mennonite church is rated as one of the smaller bodies of Protestants, it nevertheless happens that they not only cover a vast field and are located in most of the great countries of the world but, during the several centuries in which they were seperated, have managed to remain in vital touch with each other and at times have been able to be of great assistance, one to the other. G.

FIENDS

Every one will recall that the argument for the repeal of prohibition most strongly urged was that it would abolish the abuses that had arisen in defiance of the dry laws. We have not noted specially that the traffic in illegimate liquor has come to an end. National and State laws are being defied all along the line. Now the cry is that, in order to eliminate the bootlegger, it is necessary to make cheap liquor available. It seems that the bootlegger has the country scared and that the government is believed to be impotent in handling the situation. Well, the booze-thirsty seem to be having their inning, but neither the liquor question nor the matter of enforcing law is to be settled soon.

In the East there has been uncovered the meanest and the lowest effort of liquor distribution in the shape of liquor saturated candies that are dispensed to school children. These candies are reported by the authorities investigating the matter to contain a tablespoon of either whiskey or brandy. Much of the candy retailed by the penny is so inferior that it deserves the name of "penny murder" because of its content, but, when it is loaded with strong drink its evil effects are multiplied to the extent that the making of drunkards begins with the school days of the youngsters. How any one, even one who has no conscience on the matter of using strong drink, can stoop to the lowest depravity by creating an appetite for the vile stuff in children would be unthinkable had one no knowledge of such an attempt. We are not learned in the law, but, we have heard the opinion expressed that the makers of the stuff are within the law. We hope this is not the case and are encouraged because, in some quarters, the authorities are taking a hand in stopping the distribution of this booze loaded stuff and endeavoring to bring the offenders to punishment. G.

SOME EDITORIAL PROBLEMS

We are grateful to the many patrons of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel for the kind words of encouragement and appreciation they have expressed concerning our merger. We also value the friendly and constructive criticisms that have come to us from some who have the welfare of our venture in co-operation as much at heart as we have. It is our hope that the issues of this paper will meet the expectations of those who find satisfaction in the closer relations now possible between the brethren of the Central Conference and those of the General Conference. We realize that there are many problems to be worked out that depend on what experience will teach. The editors are just now at that stage when things must be worked out as they are tried out. Arrangement of space, the matter of giving each Conference a proper share of notice and prominence as well as the matter of using material submitted to the editors before it becomes stale being some of the problems before us.

There are several matters that should receive the attention of our contributors, one of which is promptness in sending in the copy. Our readers expect things to be as fresh as possible and have little patience with stuff that has already passed beyond the point of being interesting because of the lapse of time. Another matter is that of length. Readers generally like articles that are short, pithy and to the point. Articles of great length are difficult things to handle in any religious paper, and, we might say, lose their point when carried through to several issues of the paper. Better several articles on a subject and its related topics than a lengthy one. We have heard editors of other religious papers agree that articles of more than 1500 words in length only choke space and are seldom read. There is no way of checking up on this statement but we are inclined to agree with the opinion.

Remembering that with the merger our paper only appears bi-weekly and that the space assigned to the General Conference for an issue is considerably less than when The Mennonite was published, we find ourselves under considerable difficulty in getting much into the paper that should by no means be omitted. Our promise to the readers is that we shall do our best with the means at hand. In the meanwhile we would not have our contributors feel that they should lessen or cut down the material that might be submitted by them to the editors. Much of what is contributed is of such a general nature that it may be saved when there is an abundance of material on hand for those issues where there is a dearth of material. It is always good policy to have plenty of ammunition on hand. G.

ATTENTION

In the name of the Emergency Relief Board I wish to call attention to the following telegram.

Chicago, Ill.
Jan. 11, 1934.

Rev. P. H. Unruh,
Goessel, Kansas.

Bender Goshen wired me a cablegram from Harbin today I quote Colonization Manchoukuo impossible condition refugees very critical all but two families want emigrate please hurry transport German consul same opinion no means send support. Letter follows.

A. Warkentin.

The General Conference has authorized the Relief Board to ask the churches of the Conference to make contribution for financing the transport necessary. We believe that conditions warrant such a call at this time. It would need about $5000.00 from the General Conference. We are now ready to receive gifts for this purpose.

FOREIGN MISSION BUDGET FOR 1934

Below is the Budget which was submitted by Bro. P. H. Richert for the Board of Foreign Mission. I have just looked up the record and find that in 1929 the budget submitted for this work was over $106,000.00. It is evident therefore that the board is making vigorous effort to adjust its budget to present conditions; and I believe that congregations are rising to the situation as is evidenced by the fine contributions the readers will note for the various causes —over $11,000.00 for Foreign mission alone in December. That is tangible evidence of Faith, Love, and willingness to sacrifice and is cause for thankfulness.—C. E. Krehbiel, conference secretary.

Current expenses, inc. helpers' salaries	$21,528.00
Missionaries' salaries	37,050.00
Repairs	1,500.00
Children money	3,412.00
Auto money	1,700.00
Board expenses	200.00
Mission numbers of church papers	225.00
Interest	200.00
Insurance	100.00
Total	$65,915.00

How many, if any, of the missionaries at home on furlough can be returned, we cannot yet estimate, but the board intends to return as many as the treasury permits. May the Lord help to return them all—eight of them, at least six. This expense would have to be added to the above.

EMERGENCY RELIEF NEEDS

Dear Friends and Readers of our Church Papers:

We wish to call your attention to the exact copy of a letter by our Missionary Rev. H. J. Brown, China, which gives you the condition of the distress in the area which was so seriously flooded a few months ago. It is also an appeal for help to the friends of those in urgent need.

The letter follows:—

Kai Chow, Hopei, China, November 30, 1933.

Emergency Relief Commission,
Freeman, South Dakota.

Dear Sirs:

The first period of the Yellow River flood catastrophe is over. We have passed the immediate stage. The help from the China International Famine Relief Commission, the Union Church in Peiping and other individuals has brought us through the first stage. But now begins winter, the cold weather is coming. Most of the people are under roof. In districts where the water soon went down villages still have their former inhabitants. In those districts less houses have fallen in, and thus the housing question did not become acute. All of the Tung Ming County and parts of the Ch'ang Yuan and Kai Chow districts come under this category. Then we have large districts in Ch'ang Yuan and Kai Chow, where there is still deep water all around the villages and these villages have so to say no houses standing, all is in ruins, water and mud. On the higher spots of the villages a few mud houses have been rebuilt; but the population had to flee to non-flooded regions in order to find lodgings with friends and relatives or even rent a room. Many have moved into Temples and concentration camps. Where houses are not available they have made dugouts in the ground. So that we might say, all are under some kind of a roof.

The government has distributed thousands of winter suits, the Christians have collected warm clothing for free distribution, and the Chinese-foreign Relief Committee of Shanghai is sending for the above named three counties three thousand winter suits and four hundred quilts. The Mission has also supplied a goodly number with suits and quilts. So that after these distributions most of them will have a fairly good supply of warm clothing.

The dire need now and for six or seven months to come is food and burning material. We thank God, that notwithstanding the heavy crop loss through the flood, we have a good supply of grain in the non-flooded regions. In fact the grain is cheaper this year, than it has been many years. But these poor refugees have absolutely no money to buy grain or fire wood. The government employed a limited number of young men on the dike work, but this work is now to discontinue. There are government and other soup kitchens, but only for a small number. In the villages the poorest of the poor have received twenty cents per person and ten cents per child, which however is only a drop of water in a bucket.

We now have thousands of people on the verge of starvation besieging the Mission compound. Food or we die: that is the cry. Whether these poor creatures shall be saved by kind and merciful hands, or whether our streets and yards shall be turned into fields and corpses this winter rests with people that have means at their disposal. Our hearts are paining but our hands are bound. Our appeal is to fellow-human beings to have mercy and to save, while they yet may.—Very faithfully yours, Flood Relief Com., Chairman H. J. Brown.

Yours in the work of the Master,
Emergency Relief Board,
By J. C. Mueller, Sec.

JOY IN THE MIDST OF SORROW

We have been living under a tremendous emotional strain. The Holy Spirit has been working in our midst as we have never before experienced it. Sins of such a heinous character have been confessed that we stand aghast. Some who have been considered pillars of the church have been exposed. Oh, the bitterness of their words! How they berate the young man who was the first to confess his sin saying he had long sought an opportunity where he might confess openly and seek forgiveness. Because he confessed, their sins were also uncovered. Some have humbled themselves before God but others arrogantly go their own stubborn, sinful way.

Yet, in the midst of all this sorrow we have great joy. Today the church bell is tolling the message that an empty house of clay is about to be laid away to rest. But to Ganesh has been given the victory over death.

And who is Ganesh? It was perhaps at Easter time that a lame old man began to come here to beg a handful of rice. He received his bit from time to time as he came to ask for it. When he was asked if he knew anyone who could bring him through the sea of life unto God he said that he knew of no one. As simply as possible he was told of the "door ajar."

One day, wearying a bit of his continual coming, the suggestion was made that he should do a little weeding in exchange for his food. Many beggars before him had found other pleasanter places to beg when such a suggestion was made. Not so Ganesh! He came limping to the garden every morning and weeded his little part. On bazaar day he sat confidently on the veranda waiting for a few pennies. When asked to what caste he belonged he said he was a Christian. Since when? Since the big holiday (Easter Day). The gardeners spoke to him of the Saviour. The seed found good soil.

Last bazaar day, as the sun was setting we suddenly recalled that Ganesh had not come for his money. Had he perhaps gone to better fields for begging? Someone suggested that he might be sick. Two young men went to the old house in which he was living. They found him in the corner covered with a few rags, burning with fever. He had been sick for at least three days. No one had thought of him. There was no fire, no food. As soon as the need became known others gathered, conscience stricken that one in their midst, sick and needy had been so neglected. He seemed too sick to live. When asked whether he desired baptism he said, "Yes" and to the question "When" he replied, "Now." The water was brought. Again he was asked whether he loved the Lord Jesus and believed that He had died for his sins. His answer was positive. Did he realize that this meant that he could have no other gods besides? A moment of thought and his hand reached up to the string of beads about his neck. He flung them to the ground. When asked the meaning of this he made no reply but when it was suggested that he need not take them off he picked them up and threw them into the fire. Then he was ready and as simply as possible the baptismal rite was performed and there was joy in heaven over one sinner redeemed.

Today—just two days later his body rests in the church. There are singing, "Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep." Tears come to our eyes but they are tears of joy. What a Saviour is ours who does not despise the humble and, humanly speaking, worthless ones. We bow before Him in adoration and with Thomas we fall at His feet saying, "My Lord and my God!"

Mrs. J. R. Duerksen.

BROTHERHOOD TOPIC FOR FEBRUARY 1934

"FAMILY WORSHIP"

AIM—To emphasize not only the Spiritual blessings of a "Family Altar" but also point out its essential need in the home.

SCRIPTURE REFERENCE;—Phil. 4:6, 7.

PRAYER:—O Father, hearer and answerer of prayer, "teach us to pray," show us that path of light which leads straight up the shining way to the Throne of Grace, and develop in us this crowning grace of intercession. In the name of Jesus our Lord and Savior. Amen.

LAY SPEAKERS;—Not to exceed five minutes each.

1—The Altar erected by men of old showing their need of a family communion with God.

A. Noah, Gen. 8:20; Moses, Ex. 17:15.
B. Abrah, Gen. 12:7, 8; Saul, I Sam. 14:35.
C. Isaac, Gen. 26:25; Elijah, I Kings 18:30.
D. Jacob, Gen. 35:7.

2—Christ himself eagerly sought that communion with the Father. If He, so much more we.

A. Matt. 14:23. Luke 6:12.
B. Mark 6:48; Luke 9:28.
C. Mary 14:32; John, chapter 17.

3—The need of a "Family Altar" in the modern home.

A. It binds the family together in the unity of prayer.
B. It feeds the inner life of the family for daily spiritual growth.
C. It impresses upon us the need of the word of God.
D. It is the greatest inheritance we can give our Children.

OUTLINE FOR THE LEADER:—The desire has now been created to erect a family altar in the home but to put it into practise is another thing, because—

1—When can we find a convenient time to have it?

This seems to be the greatest problem after we have the desire. In the morning Father goes early to work before the children are awake, and in most families he does not come home till the evening meal. After that, one of the members of the family goes here and another goes there. It is therefore highly necessary to have a definite set time—some suggest that after all are seated for the evening meal, that this would be the best time. Others wait till immediately after the meal and before anyone leaves the home, to devote five or ten minutes in family worship. This plan seems most reasonable.

"ALL SPIRITUAL PRIVILEGES HAVE THEIR PRICE."

2—How should we conduct a "Family Worship?"

Ater the reading of a portion of Scripture by some member of the family (different members taking part) or reciting from memory in unison a few verses, prayers should be offered by each and every member of the family beginning with Father and Mother and including all the Children to the smallest. It is vitally important that all pray so that all learn to bring their problems and thanksgivings to God in their sacred family devotion.

DISCUSSION OR OPEN FORUM. Two minute talks.

How should family worship affect the life of a modern house?

MAXIMS ON FAMILY WORSHIP

1—It creates Spiritual unity and reverence. It is the very breath of piety.

2—It is seeking first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness. It puts God first in the family. God adds the secondary.

3—It is an all-inclusive duty, be a co-worker with Him.

4—There is a great advantage in united prayer. To join with others in prayer enlarges its range and refines its spirit.

5—A prayerless family is an obstacle in the way of both God and man.

6—Wait before God in prayer, get calm and quiet. When we realize His presence, prayer becomes natural.

7—It brings Christ Himself into the fold of the Family and each member of the Family into the fold of Christ.

CORRESPONDENCE

Salem Church, Freeman, S. D. Dear Editor and Readers:— The year of 1933 is rapidly coming to a close and whatever unfinished business there may be, must quickly be balanced before that time.

We have just been celebrating Christmas. "And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people." Christmas is the dominant word for today and tomorrow! The spirit of good cheer, intangible, though easily defined, is an eternal part of it! There is a touch of nobility in the spirit of Christmas, because we even become more tolerant of the mistakes of others, during the Christmas season. "For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." The world today, more than any other time in history, is in need of a redeemer, and if all nations would accept Jesus Christ as the only Saviour of mankind, there would be a happier outlook for the immediate future, because Christmas radiates the principle of good cheer, friendly happiness, and compassion for our fellow men.

This community was especially fortunate and highly privileged to have Dr. J. E. Hartzler in our midst just at this time, who added in a very great measure to prepare the way spiritually to receive Jesus Christ as our Saviour, who died on the cross for the transgression of mankind.

His vivid description, as well as the stereoscopic views of the Holy Lands helped to grasp the Bible facts more readily. Dr. Hartzler's fund of knowledge through his repeated tours to the East are circumstances that have aided him in gaining an insight into conditions and developments in that country which no American, staying at home, be he ever so voracious a reader, could hope to acquire.

His lectures on "Voices from Bible Lands" were based on his own tours and personal experiences as thorough Bible-Student. His forceful personality and masterful delivery held the audience spellbound. The vast crowds that thronged the auditorium proved beyond the shadow of doubt that this community appreciated a program of this nature.

During our pastor's (Rev. P. R. Schroeder) absence, (as has been previously reported in these columns) Dr. Hartzler and local ministers supplied the pulpit. The annual business-meeting of our congregation will also take place this week, in order to regulate matters for the coming year. The Sunday School election took place before this time. Prof. J. D. Unruh, who has served our congregation so faithfully many years, has been re-elected and Chas. F. Schrag is to be his assistant. A children's program was featured Christmas Eve.

The weather has suddenly changed to very much colder. The phenomenal sandstorms which have alarmed this community last fall will be subdued for a while at least, because the ground is changed to a festive panorama, with every bush and tree covered with pure white frost and snow. The thermometer reached the 30 degree below Fahrenheit last night. We appreciate the moisture in spite of the cold weather.

With season's greetings,
Caroline A. Waltner, Corr.

Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minn. December 29, 1933. To the Readers of The Mennonite:—Our country, schools and churches have been developed through the patience and steadfast labor of our pioneer forefathers. Mountain Lake, too, is able to boast of a pioneer who has given forty-five years of his life in service for the church and community.

On November 3rd, 1889, Rev. J. J. Balzer was unaminously chosen to serve as Minister of Bethel church of this city. In the forty-five years of his ministry the church membership has expanded from forty-six to over four hundred members.

Working with young people was on the Rev. Balzer's chief interests. He felt that the future church would depend upon the young men and women, who would sooner or later take the place of the older generation. Thus to insure the growth of the church, and to aid in the Christian training of the younger generation, Rev. Balzer organized the Bethel Sunday School of which he was superintendent for seventeen years. This was the first organized Sunday School among western churches. At his home he also established the first Young People's Society, including fourteen young men. Young women did not take active part in church work at that time, so a men's society was formed.

Besides his services in the home church, he also traveled extensively. Through his sermons on Divine Truths pertaining to Prophecy, the Jewish Problem, the Resurrection and the Glories of the Millenial Kingdom, thousands of hearts were brought to a clearer understanding of the Bible. Churches from the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Oregon and Saskatchewan extended calls to Rev. Balzer to have him bring to them lessons of Holy Scripture.

In 1890 Bethel church joined the General Conference. Rev. Balzer was elected member of the Board of Home Missions, which office he held for twenty-four years; acting as secretary for eighteen years.

Our Community has one project which is rightly a Memorial to our Minister. This is the German Bible and Preparatory School where so many of our present Missionaries received their instructions under the teachings of Rev. Balzer.

I feel certain that I am voicing the opinion of the Bethel congregation and many others, when I say that Rev. Balzer has been a power in the building of this church and community. For his retiring years we wish him God's blessing and peace. Alma Schimnowski.

Bethesda Church, Henderson, Nebr. Dear Editor and readers:—On December 27th, the Bethel College singers were here and gave a very good program in our church. The audience was large and interest and attention was keen. The renditions were well rendered in a manner that spoke well of the instructor and singers.

After the program, some 40 ex-Bethelites and Bethelites assembled in church basement, where light refreshments were served. The delicious supply was more than conquerable, although quite a number answered a second for another ample supply of the refilling of their plates. Old acquaintances and friendships were renewed and new ones were made. A few speeches were made. All spoke brightly of Bethel and what it had been to them. The occasion was climaxed by singing the "Alma Mater," in a real spirited way. All felt a pleasant evening had been spent in a commedatory way.

On New Year's day the yearly congregational meeting was held. Reports were made by the officials of the congrgation and all auxiliary organizations, for the year.

Elder Epp reported that the year 1933 had been a Year of our Lord, as usual, for our congregation. 21 members have been admitted into the congregation, 19 by baptism and 2 by the fellowship. Loss by death and withdrawal 11, of which 9 died. 13 funerals were held in our church. 11 marriages were performed. An increase of 12 members for the year. The present membership is 623. Four choirs consisting of from 12 to 20 voices respectively. On Thanksgiving day a choir of 60 some voices gave a real Thanksgiving program.

These three choirs practise once a week and serve alternately three Sundays in each month in our Sunday morning worship, after Sunday school.

The Bible school is self-supporting. Has an enrollment of 36 pupils and two teachers. This is quite unusual in a time of depression. The Christmas program which it rendered, gave full evidence that it is living up to its name.

The Sunday school has an enrollment of 740, classes 33, teachers 33, and an average attendance of 552. The Sunday School teacher's meetings are held once a week.

The finacial reports were about as follows: Building fund, $510.25; Congregational purposes, 1981; Foreign Mission, $781.91; Home Mission, $423.97; C. E. Society, $41.67; S. Society, $93.33; J. S. Society, $56.34; For Visiting Ministers, $86.00; Benevolent, $470.28; Relief $70.41; Publication, $50.64; Evang. N. Dist. Conference, $110.80; S. School, $358.24; Total, $5040.64; Indebtedness on church building, $3822.

Sunday, January 7, was an unusual and a very large funeral in our church. Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Peters had gone to California about two months ago, on account of Mr. Peter's health. They reached their destination in their car safe and sound, without any mishap. Visiting relatives and friends one day, a large truck ran into them on a foggy night, two blocks from where they intended to go. Mr. Peters died two hours after the accident. His body was brought here for burial. On being asked, if he had any wishes to be carried out here, he said: "I am ready to go. I am thinking of higher things."

The interment was in the Bethesda cemetery north of Henderson.

Mrs. Peters was seriously injured and is still in the hospital in California where she is slowly improving according to the last reports.

We herewith wish to express our sympathy to the bereaved. Leo Peters has been a faithful member of our congregation for many years.

THE CONGO INLAND MISSION

By A. M. Eash.

I. The Appeal of Africa.

I am requested to supply the readers of this publication with news item and reports of the work of the Congo Inland Mission. It is a request for something that I will cheerfully undertake to do. Today is the time limit set for writing the first installment.

Yesterday the bi-weekly African mail reached my desk. It lies before me now. Just as this is being written today's mail brought an additional letter. Some of these letters are written by burdened missionaries. One gives the pathetic word that if they are compelled to try to carry on with the available funds, many of the station boys and girls will need to be sent back to their pagan village influence unprepared to live the Christian life in that demoralizing environment. These letters are written in confidence. They do not contain notes of complaint. But they are burdened—extremely burdened. They convey the feelings of burden to the reader and he cannot rid himself of it.

During the past more than twenty years the Lord has used the Congo Inland Mission in laying the foundations for a large and fruitful evangelical work in Central Africa. The fruits have in the past few years been far beyond any expectations of either board or missionaries. Literally hundreds have each year thrown off the bondage of sin and superstition and accepted the offerings of salvation through Jesus Christ. They are babes in Him and it seems that now the lack of funds is driving many back into the paganism out of which they have so recently come. The thought of this harrowing experience is distracting. The information is coming from the missionaries. They are greatly burdened and are sharing that burden with us. The calls for funds are moderate but the supply is so very limited. This burden can no longer remain with the missionaries and the board. We are passing it on to you who are the readers. It shall be your burden, also.

Since this and subsequent messages will go to many readers whose acquaintance with both the Belgian Congo and the work of the Congo Inland Mission are limited and, also, since those of us who may be quite closely associated with the work of the mission through having supported it during the past need a "renewing of our convictions," it appears necessary to write an appropriate introduction to what shall follow.

It is really difficult to properly "introduce" Africa. For so long it has been a land of mystery. For many centuries only the northern edge of the continent was in touch with the civilizations of the world and made its contribution to world progress. The broad expanse of the Sahara desert quite effectively shut that civilization out from the remainder of the continent. Then, almost impassable physical barriers on both the east and west coasts effectively shut all that was "modern" out of the large interior areas. Africa remained a "land of mystery." Seventy-five years ago it was not known that the large Lualaba River in Central Africa was a part of the Congo River system. Livingstone believed its source to be also the source of the Nile River and one of his final exploration efforts was for the purpose of proving that theory. The maps which men ventured to make made woefully wrong ventures at guessing. It was a land of savage black men thought to be fit only to become the slaves of the whites. Its dense jungles overrun by fierce wild animals and infested by disease germs were sufficient to turn back the most persistent efforts of strong, determined men to penetrate its mysteries. The civilized world was satisfied to call it "The Dark Continent" and to write the large question mark across its face.

The peoples of Africa are largely a black race. There was a time when they were all classed as Negroes. In these days we know that a large portion of the black population—called "Bantu"—is not Negro at all but a people who have much that is akin to the whites but have been blackened through long exposure to the tropical sun and winds. To the American they make a strong emotional appeal for we can not easily forget the disgraceful experience through which our nation passed when it trafficed with the bodies and souls of the black men.

The first foreigners to penetrate into the interior of Africa were the exploiters of human life—the slavers. When the day finally came that Mackay and Livingstone and Stanley were successful in penetrating the jungles for the purpose of giving the Gospel, they found a torn and bleeding people. The powerful slavers spared neither life nor property in their mad endeavors to seize the blacks and drag them into the horrors of slavery. Their first message was often given to those whose homes and villages had been ravaged and scattered and whose loved ones either killed or carried into slavery.

The Congo Inland Mission feels signally honored in being listed among the agencies who have in these later years followed in the footsteps of the pioneer missionaries in carrying the saving and comforting Gospel of Jesus Christ to the benighted of Central Africa.

THE YEAR BOOK FOR 1934

The Year Book for 1934 is printed and is now ready for distribution. The Year Book contains the reports of the missionary meeting held at the August Conference, church conference reports and general articles of interest to our readers. We would urge our Central Conference churches to send in their orders as soon as possible so that the books may be distributed. The price is 15c.

To the former Christian Evangel subscribers:

Since the new paper has now been launched the editor of the former Christian Evangel wishes to make an explanation concerning subscriptions. The business manager of the new paper and the editor of the Christian Evangel spent a day together and readjusted all subscriptions in relation to the new paper. All of the Evangel subscribers who have asked for their subscriptions to be discontinued will be taken care of beginning with this issue of the new paper. All subscribers who have not paid the Central Mennonite Publication Board for the Christian Evangel up to January 1, 1934, have been sent letters informing them of how much they owe to our Board and also announcing the new paper. The new paper will be sent to all such subscribers marked January 1, 1934 unless other orders are given. Those subscribers who had paid the Evangel beyond January 1, 1934, have received credit on the new paper at the rate of $1.50 a year. Please notice your label on this issue of your paper. We would advise our subscribers that all subscriptions for the new paper be sent directly to Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana. The editor of the former Evangel would be glad to answer any questions concerning your subscription that may not be clear, if you will write to our office.

To the Ministers of Our Conference:

We would like to take this opportunity to suggest to the ministers of Central Conference that they announce to their congregations that their church correspondents send in their church correspondence to our office every two weeks. It should reach our office one week before the dates announced on the back of the first issue of the new paper. Also urge your people to send in any contributions they may have in articles. We would appreciate sermons by ministers, addresses that have been given at Christian Endeavor meetings, Sunday school conventions or any other material that is of general interest to the readers of the new paper. We would also ask our ministers to urge that more of our members subscribe for the Mennonite and the Christian Evangel.

Articles in This Issue.

We are glad to announce that beginning with this issue we are starting two series of articles. One by Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock, Illinois, on Themes of Spiritual Life and one by Rev. A. M. Eash of Chicago, Ill., on Our Mission Work in the Belgian Congo.

An Appeal for Funds.

Word has reached us from our field that unless more funds reach them it will be necessary to curtail their work on the field and send some of the native children that are being trained at the mission stations back again to the native villages and into heathendom. This would be a very serious step backward in our foreign mission work and of course very detrimental to the lives of these boys and girls. We are making an appeal to our churches for larger offerings so that the work in the field can be kept going. We would suggest that every member of our Conference send one dollar or more to our foreign mission treasurer, N. O. Hoover, Bloomington, Ill., before March 1, 1934.

TEMPTATION—(1) Nature of (James 1:14)

Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock, Ill.

There is in all probability no spiritual experience more common to all Christian men and women than the experience of temptation. Not every one has frequent experiences of transcendent joy, or overwhelming sadness. Not every one is constantly bubbling over with enthusiasm, or struggling in the slough of despair. One sometimes wonders if some Christian professors ever really and truly pray. But when it comes to the consideration of the subject of temptation it is safe to say that no single person has ever been exempt. This discussion, which will consist of four sections, should, then, be of interest and, it is to be hoped, of practical consequence to all.

Of course, the really important thing in relation to temptation is to resist it. To this end a number of considerations may definitely contribute, and first among these is the consideration of the nature of temptation,—what it is, how it attacks us, and where.

Temptation is the suggestion, or inducement, to do something in conscious violation of God's divinely established order, i. e., His sovereign will. This suggestion may come from one's environment, or originate in his own mind or heart. Whatever its origin, it suggests something to be done which one's better knowledge labels as contrary to God's appointed way for man, and yet toward the doing of which there is some sort of inducement. This consciousness of the thing suggested being opposed to God's ordained order of things, brings the element of conscious decision into the nature of temptation. In temptation one knowingly decides to do what his better knowledge forbids. One may commit greater error unwittingly and not have yielded to temptation for in that event he did not consciously and deliberately decide to violate the will of God for man. Compliance with the suggestion, yielding to the temptation, may or may not be an offense against man, but it is always an offense against God.

Moreover, the thing suggested may be inherently wrong, or it may be untimely. Some things are pressed upon individuals in temptations which are always wrong, viz; falsehood, stealing, covetousness, hatred, immorality, etc. Other inducements are brought to men in temptations which in their proper time and place are perfectly legitimate and right. There is no more honorable vocation known among men than that of tilling the soil, sowing the seed, and gathering the harvest, but when a man feels something trying to induce him to pursue those operations upon the Lord's Sabbath, then those otherwise honorable pursuits become a temptation. There are few more wholesome pastimes for boys than fishing, but when a schoolboy feels the lure of the creek inviting him away from school, then the harmless diversion of fishing becomes a temptation. Sometimes when Satan is unable to get us to do what is inherently wrong, he may still be able to trip us by suggesting the untimely.

One fact regarding the nature of temptation that should be very clear to any one who looks closely at his own temptations, is that it always comes in a guise of legitimacy. Sin does not usually present itself to the mind of man in its hideous ugliness. Rather it comes "as an angel of light," as a wolf "in sheep's clothing."

The inducement offered has an aspect of harmlessness or propriety. If at first it should appear as a thing very wrong, if there is a real desire on the part of the one tempted to do it, he will very likely turn it over in his mind until he has himself clothed it with some degree of respectability or legitimacy. Men seldom, if ever, decide to do that which their own discretion labels as pure wrong. Rather their eagerness to do the thing in question obscures their vision and dulls their sensibilities, until the thing suggested seems sufficiently proper or justifiable. Herein lies couched one important item in resisting temptation, but that belongs to a later discussion.

Another feature concerning the nature of temptation is that it comes within the realm of one's desires. Before a suggestion can become a temptation there must be a definite, moving inclination on the part of the individual to do it. The suggestion must relate itself to something within the individual which seeks gratification, it must offer the prospect of some desirable, some pleasurable experience as a result of compliance with the suggestion. Realizing this the Apostle James wrote, "Every man is tempted when he is drawn away by his own lusts and enticed." (Jas. 1:14). Without this sense of desire, there can be no temptation. No one ever had a real battle to keep from doing the thing he did not want to do, unless the choice were forced by outside circumstances. Evil makes its assaults upon all of us in the realm of the things we like, or enjoy, or think we would find pleasure in doing. This accounts for the fact that what may mean a life-and-death struggle for one person to overcome, never even assumes the proportions of a temptation for another. James put it right in one terse statement.

A further element in the nature of temptation is that temptation comes in the realm of the powers or possibilities of the person tempted. Obviously it must lie within the power of the person to do the thing suggested or considered, or there can be no real temptation. Who could imagine Robinson Crusoe being tempted to lie, or steal, or cheat? Who was ever tempted to leap from the highest building in the most public part of a city, hoping to land without harm and thus catch the eye of the public? Jesus had power to do just this and that power made it possible for him to be tempted to do that very thing.

It follows then that the larger the realm of possibilities the more numerous the temptations. Certainly much of our modern life verifies this statement. Have not the increased facilities and conveniences of our generation greatly increased the temptations which youth and age must face today? But one case in point need be mentioned,—the automobile. What opportunities for travel, and contact with life in various forms and places this one product of our age has afforded us. Yet consider how it figures in relation to crime, intemperance, revelry, and sensual indulgence. How limited were the possibilities of the horse-and-buggy age for participation in these phases of life on the part of many, compared to the possibilities for participation therein today. This increase in possibility has meant a commensurate increase in scope of temptation.

It follows, also, that an increase of power is the basis for not only more, but greater temptations. As personal power or ability increases temptations become more intense. The hope is often cherished by persons in the early part of their Christian experience we find themselves sorely beset by temptations, that in time they will gain in spiritual power and will then be able to overcome temptation more easily. This is a delusion and will eventually be found to be a vain hope. It is true that the temptations which in former years were overcome with difficulty may, and should, then be overcome with ease, but it will be discovered that new and greater temptations must then be met, and that it will be just as hard to conquer them as it was to keep from yielding to the enticements of life's earlier years.

As an illustration, suppose a young man with aspirations in public life is elected to the state legistlature. He is obscure but ambitious. A bill whose passage is of interest to a certain industry is pending. The young man is approached by a representative of that industry and advised that if he will support the bill, the company concerned will compensate him to the extent of $500; and if he does not, they will see that his career in public office terminates with his present, and first term. Years pass and through the years he has gained in the art of persuasion, and in influence, and is now an out-standing figure in Congress. Again vested interests are seeking passage of a measure and they know that without his support, it cannot pass. Again he is approached but this time the sum offered is $50,000. Will it be easier to resist this temptation than the former one? His power has greatly increased, it is true! but the financial inducement is one hundred times the first. Let no one become discouraged, if he realized that his temptations instead of getting less, are become greater in number and intensity; for in that fact lies the assurance that he has been growing in spiritual power and grace.

MISSIONARY SERMON

Romans 10:12-18

By J. D. Graber

The Message

Our passage does not say only, "Whosoever calleth upon the name of the Lord shall be saved," but it also says, "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," which brings us to a consideration of the message of the missionary. As he goes to the ends of the earth he goes carrying a message, and, as one writer has said, that message is good news and not merely good advice. The Christian Gospel is not merely a good or desirable way of life but it is first of all a proclamation of liberty to the captive and a declaration that this is the acceptable year of the Lord.

We read much these days in missionary literature about "sharing." It is unfortunate that a word that has been so useful in describing the work of a witness of Jesus Christ as he seeks to share the blessings he has received in Christ with others should now be gradually taking on an objectionable meaning, for the word has ceased to mean a sharing of blessings in Christ and has come to mean a mere pooling of religious ideas with a view to taking out from the combined mass of ideas some sort of a satisfactory religion. The Laymen's Missionary Inquiry Report gives this advice unreservedly. They admit frankly that the early missionaries went out with a conviction that men and women who do not believe on Christ are lost and doomed to eternal destruction. But, they say, people in our day no longer believe those things. They advise that we should rather go out in the spirit of fraternity seeking with people of other faiths, sharing what we have found with what they have found, and thus attempting to find some kind of a religion that will be satisfactory for the present need.

This advice sounds like that of a man who is spiritually bankrupt. Certainly a true disciple of Jesus who has through Him found all the blessings of salvation, light, life, and hope that God pours out upon those who come to Him through Christ could not go to people of other faiths in a spirit of attempting a common search after reality. The spirit of courtesy, kindness, and gentleness is indeed the spirit of the Gospel and our attitude toward non-Christian faiths need not, dare not, be that of a roaring lion attacking his prey. But one who has truly found Christ will go out in the spirit and love of Christ conscious of the fact that he is carrying a message from God, a message that is final and one that is adequate for every human need. The true missionary is not a mere stockholder in a world-wide religion, but he is very conscious that he is an ambassador of Christ on a world-wide mission.

Nor do the non-Christian peoples welcome this sharing spirit of uncertainty that is recommended to us in the Laymen's Appraisal. They are for the most part conscious of the inadequacy of their religions and are only interested in the testimony of one who has found and who can point the way. Mr. Gandhi of India voices this attitude very clearly when he writes, "At the present moment, India has nothing to share with the world, save her degradation, pauperism, and plagues. Is it her ancient Scriptures that we should send to the world? Well, they are printed in many editions, and an incredulous and idolatrous world refuses to look at them because we, the heirs and custodians, do not like them. Before, therefore, I can think of sharing with the world, I must possess."

This puts the issue very clearly. If Christ is all we need, if in Him dwells all the fullness of the Godhead bodily, if He is the propitiation and the reconciliation for the whole world, why not tell the world so and win the world to accept the final and supreme message of redemption?

The last idea that I have gotten out of this passage of the Apostle as he wrote to the Romans is the

METHOD

This idea is suggested to me when he writes, "How can they preach except they be sent?" A missionary is not qualified for his task unless he is very conscious of the fact that God has laid His hands on him and has sent him forth. I listened not long ago to an old man addressing a group of young men preparing for the ministry. Thirty years ago he took over a Church in a western city whose membership had dwindled down to two hundred, but to-day that same Church has a membership of seven thousand, with twenty-six sub-stations, and preaching points. That evening this man told us these startling and challenging words: "If there is any young man here to-night preparing himself for the Gospel ministry who can possibly do so I wish you would pack up your goods and go home. I advise you to go to-night, for the ministry does not need you. The Church can use as ministers only those who cannot stay out of it; only men who are conscious of the fact that God has laid His hands on them and has called them into this service."

SUPPLEMENT TO

Vol. I FEBRUARY 6, 1934 No. 3

This Supplement to the regular issue of The Mennonite and The Christian Evangel was made necessary to prevent the following long article from crowding out other material which generally appears in the regular issues. The printers have on hand several times as many correspondences as they can possibly insert in this issue and since many of them are already several weeks old, it would have been a pity to delay their appearance another two weeks. The contents of this supplement will probably be of greatest interest to the General Conference readers but since the Publication Board of the General Conference was charged with arranging for the printing of The Mennonite and The Christian Evangel, the Board felt it wisest to inform all readers of what it had decided to do. The Board has a host of difficult problems to solve and as Dr. Thierstein states in his article, will at all times welcome constructive criticism.—F. J. Wiens, Business Manager.

OUR PUBLICATION WORK

For more than fifty years our General Conference has been conducting a publication business and almost as long a bookstore. The older one of our church papers, the "Bundesbote" was printed in St. Louis in 1882, then a couple or so years at Goshen, Ind., and according to reports from Berne, Ind., for a while at Dayton, Ohio, and with the "Kinderbote" and the "Sonntagschul Lektionen" also at Elkhart, Ind. From 1896 on, so the imprint on the "Bundesbote" indicates these publications seem to have been put out at Berne, Ind., and were joined in 1901 by The Mennonite. So for a period of some thirty to nearly forty years the bulk of our printing, including quite a number of books and pamphlets, as well as two song-books, was done at Berne, Ind., and, as far as I know, by the Berne Witness Co. And, be it said, to their credit, they have done their work well.

As to the matter of prices for printing, the Board of Publication used to leave that confidently in the hands of the beloved manager of the Book Concern who, as an efficient business head, succeeded year after year, in offsetting the rather heavy losses on our periodicals, especially The Mennonite, from the profit on the book business. However, toward the last that, too, became impossible.

Since Brother Lehman laid down his work as manager of the Book Concern in 1929, business conditions in the country have grown steadily worse, as every one knows, and our Book Concern was no exception. The book business gradually dropped off, especially in German books which formerly had been our chief source of revenue. And the purchase of a rather large stock of German books just at the time when the decline set in made conditions still worse.

In the year 1929 the editor of the "Bundesbote," "Sonntagschul-Lektionen" und "Bundesbote Kalender" suddenly became ill and had to submit to a serious operation, so that he found it necessary to give up the work. In the search for a suitable successor which was not at all easy, the Board of Publication finally turned to Bro. C. E. Krehbiel, for many years editor of a German paper and partner in a printing establishment at Newton, Kansas. He agreed to take charge of the "Bundesbote," if its publication were moved to Newton. Meanwhile Brother van der Smissen had rapidly convalesced and regained his vigor, so that the Board asked him to continue editing the "Lektionshefte," "Kinderbote," and "Kalender" at Berne, and proceeded to transfer the "Bundesbote" to Newton and put it in charge of Bro. Krehbiel.

This transfer, however, was not carried out until the Conference at its session in Hutchinson, Kansas, had passed the following resolution: "In view of certain changes that must be made in our publication work the Conference grants to the Board of Publication the authority to relocate our publication work and bookstore to some other city, if such a change should seem advisable to the Board inside of the next triennium, with the understanding that the Board do it in cooperation with the Executive Committee.

In this instance for the first time in the history of our publication business the Herald Publishing Co. at Newton, Kansas, was given the opportunity to bid on our printing with the Berne Witness, and their quotations for the triennium 1929-1930 were slightly lower.

The removal of a part of our publication enterprise from its accustomed place to another state seemed rather difficult to understand by some of our friends in and around Berne. For this the members of the Board felt sorry. But the change brought the paper closer to its circle of readers who live mostly in the middle west of the states and western Canada.

The new editor and manager of the "Bundesbote," Brother Krehbiel, has succeeded in handling this publication with rather surprising economy, and has thus brought a part of our business into a new channel. Magnanimously and with a will to sacrifice he has voluntarily lowered his salary forty per cent. He has also succeeded in bringing down the printing costs of the paper almost twenty per cent, so that the total deficit on the paper during the nearly three years at Newton amounted to only $1195.00 as compared to $1323.00 for the last year in the former place. Thus the change has resulted in considerable saving financially.

Since the decline of our book-sales and the unusually large number of unpaid subscriptions have brought our publication business deeper and deeper into debt, until at conference time it had mounted to almost $11,000.00, our Board found itself in a serious situation. True we had, to set up against this large debt, about $5,500.00 due the business on back subscriptions. But who would vouch that these would yield even half this amount. More than once the churches were appealed to for help, but comparatively few came to our rescue. From our business office at Berne came repeated requests for immediate help for several thousand dollars cash, to save the business from impending collapse, because the creditors might proceed to close the store or commence bankruptcy proceedings any time. A large loan at the Berne Bank made the situation all the more precarious, as our Board has no collaterals with which to back up the debt as required by government rules.

We then brought our problem before the Conference at Bluffton. It, too, seemed unable to offer us the immediate help that was so badly needed other than to give us permission to send somebody out among the congregations to work for the cause of publication. Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander now does this work in part.

In our distress we even dared to think of the purchase of a printing press which was offered us cheap and under very favorable terms of payment, but where were we to get the money to buy? Anyway, the Conference set an end to our dreams by passing a resolution that the big debt must first be paid.

What should, what could we do now? One means had not yet been tried. Why not give other Mennonite publishing houses, such as the Mennonite Publishing House at Scottdale, Pa., and the Mennonite Brethren Publishing House at Hillsboro, Kensas, also an opportunity to bid on our printing? Perhaps we could in this way bring the cost of publication down still more. In Berne, Ind., previous to the Conference and again at Bluffton during the conference session, the Berne Witness Company, the Herald Publishing Company and the Mennonite Brethren Publishing Houses submitted bids. But since the offers intimated that the action of the NRA might necessitate a change in prices, it was agreed to wait until revised quotations could be submitted.

Under date of Nov. 17 the above named houses again submitted their bids to our Board through our secretary M. J. Galle. Since the bid of the Hillsboro concern was $600.00 lower than that of one of the other firms and $3400.00 lower than that of the other, we saw no other way, under the circumstances, than to accept the lowest bid.

The quotations were for all of our printing, figured on a yearly basis. Our secretary was consequently instructed to notify the respective firms of our decision, with instructions that the change be made Jan. 1, 1934.—The agreement would be for only two years at the most.

We took this step in the hope that with the reduced cost in printing, the efficient cooperation of the editors and business managers, the brotherly cooperation of the members of our churches, and the help of God we might be able to save our publication work for a more extended and successful service for God's kingdom in the future.

Now our Board seems to have committed a grave error. Our action is being criticized. Threats are heard that some subscribers of one or the other of our church papers are going to cancel their subscriptions, if we carry our plan through. A rather prominent brother minister writes: "If the report is true the 'Bundesbote' will lose some readers here and what the paper may gain in price reduction it will lose in readers.—You wish that the members of our Conference should be loyal to our publications, but the Board is not loyal to our institutions if this is true." To this the reply may be made: "Does loyalty to our printing institutions means that our Publication Board must have its work done there even though the cost is considerably higher?"

Our Board appreciates good, constructive counsel. But if it doesn't reach farther than the threat that the papers will be dropped if the change is made, we do not get the help we need. Anybody who can give us sound advice as to how we can get out of our dilemma should be so kind as to write us AT ONCE. Letters should be addressed either to Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Reedley, California, or Rev. M. J. Galle, Odessa, Washington.

(This article has been written with the full understanding and under the censorship of three other members of the Board of Publication. It is to explain how we came to take the action that we did.)

J. R. Thierstein.

In justice to the highest bidder mentioned in the above article it must here be stated that for some unaccountable reason there was a typographical error in their quotations. This error made a difference of nearly $1600.00 in the total amount of their bid. In addition to the above error this same print shop allowed 20 per cent above normal charges because it was forced to take into consideration the increased cost due to the large increase in wages brought about by its effort to conform to NRA code for print shops. These facts were not known to the members of the Publication Board at the time it decided on the bids, and under the circumstances the Board cannot be blamed for deciding to award the contracts for the printing of its periodicals to the lowest bidder. —F. NO COMPROMISE

No compromise with evil shall be our battle-cry,
For God and right must conquer, and sin and wrong must die;
Unflinching we are standing, uncompromisingly,
Beneath the flag of holiness forever we will be.

No compromise with error, for Bible truth we stand,
Let none remove the landmarks erected by God's hand.
With loyalty our watchword and faith in Christ our stay,
We'll bravely storm the forts of sin and through Him win the day.

No compromise with worldliness, no yielding to the wrong,
No lowering the standard that's stood through ages long;
With Jesus as our Leader, His Spirit as our Guide,
We'll firmly stand for righteousness whatever may betide.

—Haldor Lillenas.

MY FIRST TRIP TO KORBA

C. H. Suckau

We were stationed at Champa. Some Indian workers and I were to explore the northern part of our mission field to find a suitable location for a mission station. The Indian workers had started out on foot. I followed on my bicycle the next day. As we had had a shower during the night, I waited till 9 o'clock to let the warm sun dry the road a bit. But even at that I soon came to a stretch of muddy road and I had to push my bicycle two or three miles. As I neared a low mountain range the scenery became more and more beautiful and ere long I found myself in the jungle. Had it not been for the bad road I would have enjoyed the trip immensely but the road leading through the mountain pass had not been made for bicycles. Along this mountain pass of about three miles distance I had to dismount my bicycle more than thirty times and push it across some rivulet or ditch or other obstruction in the road. This of course tired me very much I arrived at Barpali which is about half way between Champa and Korba dead tired at 1 P. M. I had only traveled about thirteen miles. Had my men not gone on I would have stayed there over night. The villagers were very friendly and brought me some rice and milk. Strengthened by this I again pushed my way northward. I was glad that the road now led through open country and I could make a little better headway. Just at dusk I arrived at the first small river. I was wondering how I would get across, and by the map I realized too, that I would have to cross three more such rivers. Darkness would soon be upon me and I was all alone in the midst of a jungle infested with all kinds of wild animals. These thoughts and the possible dangers of the jungle made me feel a bit uneasy, I confess. I had expected to arrive in Korba at about noon and here night was falling. The most dangerous and difficult road lay still ahead of me. In this troubled plight my soul cried out to God. I do not remember of ever having experienced a quicker answer to my prayers than was granted me on this occasion. I there learned to know what the promise means: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Just as I came to the last turn in the road and was coasting down to the river's edge lo, and behold, to my great joy there walked before me my workers. They were as much delighted to see me as I was pleased to see them. They gladly carried me and my bicycle across the river and so we traveled together. The other rivers were crossed in the same manner and in company with one another time passed quickly and the road did not seem so dangerous and long. We arrived at the Korba Dak bungalow (a traveler's inn) just twelve hours after I had left Champa. It thus took me twelve hours to make the trip of twenty-five miles. We were all happy to have arrived safely at our destination and to pay our first visit to Korba.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR HISTORY AND PRINCIPLES

By Amos R. Wells

Who founded the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor?

Rev. Francis E. Clark, at that time pastor of the Williston Congregational Church in Portland, Maine.

When and where was it founded?

On the evening of February 2, 1881, in the parsonage of Williston Church.

What was the first newspaper article about the new society?

An article entitled, "How One Church Cares for its Young People," by Dr. Clark, published in The Congregationalist in August 1881.

Where and when was the second society formed?

In October, 1881, by Rev. Charles Perry Mills, in the North Congregational Church in Newburyport, Mass.

When and where was the first Christian Endeavor Convention held?

In Williston Church, on June 2, 1882, when only six societies were recorded.

What was the first Christian Endeavor book?

Dr. Clark's book, "Children and the Church," published in 1883.

At what convention was the United Society of Christian Endeavor formed?

At the convention held in Old Orchard, Maine, July 1885.

Who was the first president?

Hon. W. J. VanPatten, of Vermont.

How is the United Society supported?

By the voluntary gifts of individuals, societies, and unions, as an expression of appreciation for the continuing service rendered by Christian Endeavor, and by the sale of Christian Endeavor helps. There are no dues or assessments from the societies.

When was the Christian Endeavor organ, "The Golden Rule," now "The Christian Endeavor World" established?

In October 1886.

When did Dr. Clark become president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, giving up from that time his entire life to the work?

In 1886.

When did Dr. Clark make his first foreign journey in the interests of Christian Endeavor?

In the spring of 1888, when he laid the foundation of Christian Endeavor in England.

When was Christian Endeavor day first observed?

In 1888.

Who have been general secretaries of the United Society?

Rev. S. Winchester Adriance; Rev. George M. Ward, D.D., now president of Wells College; John Willis Baer, LL.D., Von Ogden Vogt, William Shaw, and Edward P. Gates.

What have been some of the most notable of Christian Endeavor Conventions?

That in New York City in 1892, when 35,000 came together; that in Montreal in 1893, the first held outside the United States; the Cleveland Convention of 1894, held during the great railroad strike; that of Boston in 1895, with more than 56,000 registered delegates—our largest Convention; that of Washington, 1896, held in three large tents near the foot of the Washington Monument; that of San Francisco in 1897, when nearly 30,000 delegates attended, half of them from the East; that of Atlantic City in 1911, which was the first to be addressed by a president of the United States—President Taft; that of Los Angeles in 1913, which instituted the Life-Work Recruits; and that of New York City in 1921 with its great parade up Fifth Avenue.

What Conventions of the World's Christian Endeavor Union have been held?

Those in Washington; London, England; Geneva, Switzerland; Agra, India; Chicago (1915); and New York (1921).

What is the spread of Christian Endeavor?

Into every country of the globe, but it is especially strong, next to the United States, in Great Britain, Germany, Canada, Brazil, South Africa, Australia, India, China, and Japan.

What is the spread of Christian Endeavor among the denominations?

It is found in about eighty evangelical denominations, in most of which it is the only young people's society.

What are the principles of Christian Endeavor?

Definite standards of service, and definite commitment to those standards. Open confession of Christ, and speaking for Him according to ability and opportunity. The cultivation of the devotional life by regular prayer and Bible-study. Training in Christian service by a variety of committee work. Loyalty to the church, and regular attendance upon the church services. Generous giving to Christian work. Christian citizenship. Interdenominational fellowship, and the promotion of peace and good-will among the nations of the world. All of these endeavors to be made in accordance with the will of Christ, and trusting in Him for strength. These are the purposes and the steady aim of Christian Endeavor.

FIFTY-THIRD C. E. ANNIVERSARY

Jan. 28-Feb. 4, 1934

"For Christ and the Church"

As long as Christian Endeavorers keep this motto as their guide and goal, the Young People's organizations will be a real blessing to their various churches.

Very likely during this week many Societies and churches will give some special recognition to the anniversary celebration.

In the past the C. E. organizations have furnished hundreds, perhaps thousands of workers for Foreign Missions. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have gone into Mission Treasuries. To record the help and service that Christian Endeavor have given to every other phase of church work would require many books.

What C. E. will mean to the church and the Cause of Christ in the future is in the hands of our youth of today. If the above motto is adhered to in full faith and devotion greater things will be accomplished in the future. Will our youth stay true to "Christ and the Church?"

I have abundant faith that you will.

Y. P. Secy. of General Conf.

LETTER FROM AFRICA

Dear Boys and Girls:—

I have often wondered just what impressions you boys and girls have received regarding the African children. After we have heard and read about a certain people or conditions, we somehow form our own conclusions. Before I first went to Africa I studied a great deal about the people. I also was always eager to hear lectures given by returned missionaries from there. In spite of that it seemed there were only about three things that I was able to associate with those people and their country, deserts, snakes and a degraded, disagreeable people. If any of you, dear readers, might have similar impressions, I wish I could take you to one of our mission stations and help you to become acquainted with our people there.

This morning I am thinking, as I often do, especially about one of our young men on the Charlesville station. He was a little boy in the boarding school when I first learned to know him about seventeen years ago. He was a bright eyed, cheerful, happy lad. If you would have seen him then, you would have readily agreed with me that he really was a handsome child.

So far as intelligence was concerned, I have not met many to surpass him. A more studious, energetic and courteous boy was hard to be found. To a missionary, his development was most interesting. As the years passed he developed rapidly mentally, physically and spiritually. He was of heathen parentage and occasionally went back to his village to visit them, but their yearnings for him to stay at home with them and again practice heathen customs had no influence in his life. On the mission station he had found a new life which opened up to him marvelous and beautiful. While he was quite young he yielded his life to God and God honored that gift.

After he had completed his school work, he was sent to an outstation as teacher and preacher. His Christian influence not only made a deep impression on the immediate village, but the entire community was influenced by his presence. From the very beginning of his work in the out-station he showed unusual ability as a leader and teacher, winning his way into the hearts of the people with whom he was working, because of his unselfish, untiring devotion to his task, and living out the injunction, "he that would be great let him be servant of all." Because of these fine qualities a large field of service opened up to him when the missionaries asked him to return to the mission station as a worker there. If you would be privileged to go to Charlesville today, you would find him an outstanding leader. He is a deacon in the church, has been Sunday school superintendent, is secretary of the native conference and because of his fine Christian spirit and character many of the diamonds in the rough are being polished for Jesus Christ.

As an office helper, he also does much typewriting. He is a father of several children and his home life is a splendid credit to Christianity.

Because of his unusual musical talent, he is leader in song of the large audiences which gather in the chapel from time to time to worship the true God.

When I compare this young man with hundreds of other older men, I learned to know there, I am inclined to wonder just what his life might have been if he had not been privileged to come under the influence of Christianity. And so, my dear friends, I am quite sure you will want to pray for him every day as he works so faithfully for our blessed Master, putting forth every effort to win those of his own kin for Jesus Christ.

I am your sincere friend,

Lydia Mary Sommer.

ABOUT FRIENDSHIP

Friends are most necessary in the lives of all of us. No two persons are alike. Every one we meet has something to contribute to our personalities and we in turn have something to give to others. Our lives become bigger and broader according to the number of friendships we cultivate.

Bertha Conde, in her very valuable little book, "The Business of Being a Friend," tells of two friends of hers. The one lived on a farm and seldom came into contact with many people at a time. But she made a friend of every one she did come into contact with. The other, more weathy and with more education, sits lonely in her house. Housekeeping, music, books, and a devoted husband have filled her life. Very few people "appealed to her," she said. Now there is a consciousness of limitation that she cannot explain, and she says of the woman first mentioned, "I'd give all I possess to have just one-tenth of the influence and real greatness she has."

SUGGESTIONS

As we consider the work of the early Christian Church and its progress compared to the work of the Mennonite Church as a Body of Believers who have been the means of winning many souls, let us as Intermediates, put forth a greater effort this new year to aid in this, our work, by the yielding of our lives to Him for SERVICE.

Remember that denominations are like groups of people climbing toward the same mountain top; all one at heart; One Lord, One Love, One destiny.

Few church members could tell just how their denomination was organized, and of the present activities of the denomination, and the beliefs or doctrines.

The use of blackboards, maps or charts, drawn freehand, pictures and the like will help to make this meeting a wondrous inspirational Service not to be forgotten.

A PROBLEM

Ruth knew that people were talking about her. Then one day a group of girls came to her and said something like this:

"You probably know why we are coming to you, Ruth. It's about Marie. We haven't been talking to you much lately because you have been going around with Marie. You know Marie doesn't have a very good reputation, and if you don't stop going with her you'll ruin your own reputation. We have always considered you a friend of ours, and as friends of yours we thought we should warn you."

"I appreciate your care for me," said Ruth, "but really I don't see any reason for not going with Marie. I know she hasn't a good reputation, and I know much that is said of her is true. She does smoke, and the kind of company she has kept has not been of the highest type. But she has never done anything wrong while with me. And I think that perhaps by being a real friend to her I can raise her standards."

"But are you sure," the girls continued, "that you are strong enough to go with her and not be led to do the things she does? And, after all, your reputation is part of you. You've just got to take care of it. We cannot let you spoil our reputations too."

"I am very sorry," Ruth replied. "I shall go with Marie until I have a real reason for stopping. I love you all, and shall continue to be your friend, even if you are no longer mine."

Does God Always Punish Wrong? How?

Galatians 6:6-7.

In the Old Testament Dispensation, it was believed that prosperity, good health and a large family of children were direct blessings from God. The lack of these was likewise thought to be a punishment of curse from the Divine Hand. Many people today still have Old Testament conceptions in respect to suffering punishment. They believe droughts, earth quakes, storms, depressions, sickness and all kinds of suffering to be punishment for wrongs committed.

Such reckoning is easy. That is the difficulty, it is too easy. In judgment of others it becomes Pharisaism and intolerance. Jesus tried to correct this false conception. The problem of suffering is much more complex. Many of these problems will long be mysteries but we must remember that God sees all life in the long perspective, He sees from above and He deals lovingly.

On the other hand, he who breaks a law must bear the consequences. "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap." There is physical law, moral and spiritual law. He who breaks a law of health must suffer in broken health. Likewise he who sows his wild oats will reap suffering and moral ruin. Many a time God does not punish but if man sows foolishly, God permits evil to come.

If we violate His just laws and bring disaster upon ourselves, we believe the heart of a loving Father is grieved and that if we are willing to cooperate with Him, He will enable us to turn what seems to be a terrible hardship into a blessing.

How to Master Temptation.—Matt. 4:1-11: I Cor. 10:13.

Plan to make this a triumphant, overcoming meeting. Choose your hymns accordingly. But be sure to face the facts squarely.

Youth today is no worse than in other generations. But temptations have multiplied because of the complex age in which we are living, and in many cases their training has not prepared them for these new tests. And then in addition there always remain the old temptations of temper, greed, selfishness, pride, physical lusts and appetite, etc.

Temptations are no sin in themselves for Jesus was tempted. But to accommodate them, to play with them and yield, that is sin. When temptation comes, replace it immediately with something better. Some think of Jesus on the cross or some other sacred painting. Others with great seriousness bid the devil to flee, and still others pray and find new strength.

We need some over-mastering love or passion which will buoy us up and will not permit us to yield to anything on a low plane. That high ideal should be Jesus Christ. A strong will plus the power of the Christ can rid any man of a temptation if he hates the habit more than he loves it.

And oh, the joy, the strength and victory when he has conquered. He will have more power, a finer character and will be one step nearer to God. Try it.

How Shall We Act Toward Those of Other Races?—Mark 7:24-30.

"Ye are My friends if ye do My Commandments."

Pre-Prayer

The Eternity of our I. C. E. meetings is founded in these moments of unified prayer.

Suggestive Meeting

"A Rainbow Meeting."

God made the rainbow and He also made all nations and races.

Prepare this meeting by placing in the vestibule or in the I. C. E. room a rainbow made up of the colors of the various races of the world. Be sure to have all of the races represented.

Arrange your members who are to take part in three rows. Row No. I will tell the characteristics of each individual race, a speaker for each race. Row II will tell of the contributions which each of the races have made to human happiness and progress. Row No. III will suggest plans of actions toward those of other races.

Service

1 Piano Prelude: "Send the Light."

2 Hymn. We've a Story to Tell to the Nations.

3 Call to Worship. Psalm 100 in unison.

4 Sentence prayers—

5 Leader's talk and opening remarks.

6 Row I—Speaker 1—Africa (characteristics).

Row II—Speaker 2—Africa (contributions).

Row III—Speaker 3—Africa (How shall we act toward Africans).

7 Special number of music—"Africa."

8. Row I—Speaker 1—China, etc., as above.

9 "More Like the Master"—Quartet.

10 Row I—Speaker 1—India, etc., as above.

11 Hymn "Fishers of Men."

12 Row I—Speaker 1—Japan, etc., as above.

13 Announcements.

14 Offering.

15 Summary by leader; closing remarks.

16 Consecration Prayer: That our lives may be conformed to Christ's last command, "Go Ye" and "Teach all nations," Remembering the Foreign Missionary Work.

Other races may be substituted or added as time and talent permits. The arrangement may be varied to suit the taste and guidance of the leader. May God erase all prejudices from our hearts and minds as we feel the dependence we have one upon the other as nations in this great World!

Topic:—Telling "the Story" to Mohammedans. I Cor. 2:1-5.

Dr. Harrison who has worked among Mohammedans in Arabia tells us that these people are very hard to win to Christ because they do not want missionaries. They like the missionary doctors to take care of them but they are not willing to listen to their message. They need the missionary to teach them respect for women, love for others, right habits of life, etc. Most of all they need Christ because they are lost and "there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved."

Questions

1 What does Mohammedanism teach?

2 Why do the Mohammedans not want Christian missionaries?

3 Why are they so hard to win?

4 Why is it important that missionaries go to them?

5 Why has Mohammedanism spread so far?

Timely Warnings

(Temperance Lesson)

Lesson Text. Matt. 7:12-27.

Golden Text—Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast into the fire. Matt. 7:19.

Again and again through our Sunday school lessons our attention has been drawn to the subject of temperance. To many people this always applies to the question of drinking. And since prohibition has been repealed many think the cause of temperance has been lost. Temperance does include the problem of liquor but its application is much broader as is shown by this lesson in the Gospel of Matthew.

Temperance is a virtue and is one of the qualities of the Christian life. It has its application in any phase of a person's life. A person may become intemperate in body, mind, social relations or even in religion. Jesus teaches us in this lesson the true approach to the subject of temperance. We thought in America that we could legislate temperance and gain control by outward force but we see now that we need to come back to reconsider the whole problem of temperance. Jesus in the sermon on the mount emphasizes the fact that if the fruit would be good there must be a good tree and that wolves are wolves by nature rather than by conduct. If we would then have temperate men and women it must be brought about by a change in people's thinking, in their motives and purposes and in their attitudes to others. The Hebrews had a negative warning given by Hillel which said, "What is hateful to thee, do not to thy neighbor; this is the whole law all else is comment." Jesus changed it to the positive and said "all things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you even do ye also unto them." No man lives an intemperate life prompted by a desire to be of service to others. Intemperance is always selfish. It is looking at the immediate present, it may look good if you take a ten minute look at it, but when you look at it from the angle of ten years, it gives a different picture. The great question is what will intemperance do to my own personality and second, what will it do to others, will it injure or help? Jesus opposed intemperance because He believed and taught that personality is sacred. It is sacred because it is made in the image of God. Any intemperance is wrong because it destroys personality and hinders the development of the personality of others. Therefore it is the broad way that leads to destruction: It is the false prophet that comes in sheep's clothing, it is the corrupt tree that bringeth forth corrupt fruit. Jesus ends this lesson with a warning against hypocrisy. Hypocrisy means an actor on the stage who is playing the part of real life. There are many people today who wish to substitute ceremony, creed and outward acts for right motives and true purposes. Jesus said not every one that speaks the right words and poses to be very religious shall enter the kingdom but they who show by their fruits that they are truly Christian. To build our houses upon the rock then, is to live a life of love, joy, peace and self-control. This kind of a life produces good fruit.

Jesus' Power to Help

Lesson Text. Matt. 9:1-13.

Golden Text—I desire mercy and not sacrifice for I came not to call the righteous but sinners.—Matt. 9:13.

In this lesson Matthew gives descriptions of Jesus' busy life in helping needy humanity. In chapters 8 and 9 he gives us a description of ten of Jesus' mighty works. In our lesson He helps a man sick of the palsy, a man at the tax collector's place and many publicans and sinners. Jesus was continually challenged by the needs of the people of His day. On the day of His baptism there came to Him a consciousness of the unique power that He had because He was the Son of God, but He would not use this power selfishly or as an evidence to prove His Messiahship. The tempter in the wilderness tried to persuade Him to use this power to show that He was the Christ. Jesus never trusted this method as a way of getting true disciples but He was always willing to use His power for the healing of the body or the soul. In relation to the palsied man, He not only healed him but also forgave his sins because the healing of the crippled soul is infinitely more important than restoring the crippled body.

Jesus, throughout His ministry was continually on the watch for men upon whom He could place responsibilities of His work when He would leave them. As He was going along He saw Matthew, the author of the gospel we are studying sitting at the place of the tax-gatherer. He asked him to follow Him. This man was one of the hated publicans but Jesus saw in him possibilities of leadership. Jesus continually received severe criticism from the religious leaders of His day because of His deep and abiding interest in the Publicans and Sinners, but He says, I came not to call the righteous but sinners to repentance. It was as great a miracle to change a Publican as it was to heal a palsied man. The church today needs to learn the lesson that she is in the world not to save herself or to escape from the problems, neither to protect or defend a certain creed, but it is her prime duty to go forth as her Lord did in a loving ministry to the needy.

MARRIAGE

Larson-Litwiller.—Roy E. Litwiller, son of Mr. anr Mrs. Jacob Litwiller of Hopedale and Lois Larson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Larson of Middletown, Ill., last week announced their marriage which occurred September 27, at Covington, Ind. A single ring ceremony was performed by Rev. A. L. Brandenburg, pastor of the M. E. Church.

The bride has been in training as a nurse at the Deaconess hospital in Lincoln and the groom, a graduate of the Hopedale schools, is a graduate of I. S. N. U., and has a Master's degree in Bacteriology at N. of I., is employed as plant supervisor at the Commercial Solvents in Peoria. Both young people are popular in their home community where a host of friends will wish them a long and happy wedded life. They will make their home in Peoria.

Springer-Steider.—A pretty wedding took place on Christmas eve at the Metamora home of Mr. and Mrs. Steider when their daughter Verna was united in marriage with Wilford Springer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benj. Springer of Washington, Ill. Rev. Val Strubhar officiated in the single ring ceremony.

Emory Steider, brother of the bride, attended the groom.

Following the ceremony a bountiful goose dinner was served. The color scheme of pink and white was used throughout the two-course dinner.

Mrs. Springer is a graduate of the Metamora high school and her pleasing personality has won her a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Springer is a graduate of the Washington Community high school and since that time he has been farming with his father. He is a progressive young farmer and a young man of sterling habits.

Mr. and Mrs. Springer will make their home on his father's farm, on their return from a wedding trip to points of interest in the east.

Guth-Rastetter—Mrs. Emma Guth of Washington and August D. Rastetter of Eureka surprised a good many of their friends by going to Chicago last Saturday where they were quietly united in marriage by Rev. A H. Lehman, an intimate friend of both parties. Miss Mary Lee Guth accompanied them and was a witness of her mother's marriage.

Mrs. Rastetter is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Reeser of Eureka, where she received her education. For eleven years she has been an employe of the Illinois Central Telephone company in Washington and has taken an active part in the work of Calvary Mennonite church. Mr. Rastetter is also a worker in Calvary church and a farmer of many years' experience.

After a brief honeymoon in Chicago, the happy pair returned to the Rastetter farm two miles west of Eureka.

Broadstone-Deatherage—Announcement, of much interest to the friends of the bride, is made of the marriage of Miss Lena Maude Deatherage, and Cyrus Broadstone of Bartonville, which took place at 4:45 Saturday afternoon at Petersburg, Illinois.

Rev. Wagner, a friend of the groom, officiated in the simple and impressive ceremony.

The bride has taken an active interest in the activities of the Calvary church, serving as pianist for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Broadstone returned to Washington Sunday and will reside with the bride's parents in the Orth house on North Main street. They are both employed in Peoria.

DEATHS

Lantz—Susan King, daughter of Nicholas and Catherine King, was born near Carlock, Illinois, March 10, 1875, and went to her Heavenly Home, Sunday, January 14, 1934, aged 76 years, 10 months and 4 days. In this vicinity she lived all her life with the exception of the past year, which was spent in Bloomington, Illinois.

On October 21, 1879 she was united in marriage to Aaron Lantz. She was a kind and loving mother to four children, the oldest child, Eddie, dying in infancy. Surviving are her husband, and three daughters, Mrs. Alfred Stahly of Newton, Kansas, Mrs. Charles Briggs, of Bloomington, and Miss Mabel Lantz, at home. There are eight living grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren, one grandchild preceding her in death. . She also leaves one sister, Mrs. John Ernst, and one brother, Adam J. King, both of Carlock.

She united with the Mennonite church in youth, being a faithful member, though deprived of attending public services. She was well known in the community as being a good Christian and patient through years of suffering.

Her devotion to her Saviour is a witness to God's power to sustain in every circumstance. During her last illness her intense desire was to go home. Among her possessions were found these words, "If the Lord blessed me with patience, give Him the glory. I don't deserve anything." Her unwavering faith and courage, which held her to the last is a comfort to those who remain.

Funeral services were held at the Carlock Mennonite church Tuesday p. m., January 16, conducted by J. H. King and R. L. Hartzler.

Rich.—The commnnity was suddened by the sudden passing of Joseph Rich, well known retired farmer, at his home on South Main Street in Washington on Sunday evening about 6:30 o'clock. He had been seriously sick only a few days with a heart attack.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon from Calvary Mennonite church in Washington and was very largely attended. Rev. Ben Esch, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by Rev. L. J. Powell, and a splendid tribute was paid to his memory. This male quartette of the church furnished the music. Burial was in Glen Dale cemetery.

The following obituary was prepared by Rev. Esch:

Joseph Rich, son of Joseph and Katherine Rich, was born on the Rich homestead, near Cooper Station, July 9, 1861, and died at his home in Washington, following an illness of short duration, on December 10, 1933, aged 72 years, 5 months, and one day.

On April 26, 1887, he was united in marriage to Louisa Roth of Morton, and to this union four children were born. Mr. and Mrs. Rich established their home on the farm acquired of his grandparents, and which had been also occupied by his parents. They remained there until their retirement to Washington 14 years ago.

The life of our brother has ben a very successful one. Not by any short-cut, but by following well defined rules of progress, by hard work, and by use of good judgment, he was unusually successful in his chosen enterprise. And yet he was no slave to material things. He had ample time to devote to other worthwhile interests. He was especially devoted to his family, and had the privilege of seeing all of his children accept the responsibilities of life with the same high ideals that he himself cherished. He was a faithful member of the South Washington Mennonite church, always taking an active part in its program, and consistently accompanying his Christian faith with Christian works.

He leaves to mourn his sudden departure a loving wife, the children, Mrs. Katie B. Kinsinger, Milton D. Rich, Rufus J. Rich, and Dr. Lillian L. Rich; six grandchildren, two brothers, Christian Rich of Meadows, and Daniel Rich of Deer Creek, and one sister, Mrs. Lydia King of Deer Creek. And all of us who have worked with him in the church and in business contacts will deeply miss the constructive influence of his life.

Life's labor done, as sinks the clay;
Light from its load the spirit flies,
While heaven and earth combine to say,
"How blest the righteous when he dies!"

JOTTINGS

Students of Bluffton College are planning to give programs in churches in Indiana and Illinois during the Easter vacation. President Mosiman will accompany them and participate in the program.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the Parents and Teachers Association of Moundridge, Kans. His subject was "Building World Understanding."

Rev. C. H. Suckau, pastor of the Berne, Ind., church was in Pennsylvania attending a Summer Bible School conference for a week. During his absence the pulpit of the Berne church was supplied by Rev. Marvin Lehman.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who is traveling in the interest of Young People's Work and the Publications is at present in Eastern Pennsylvania, visiting the Mennonite churches of that section. He is to appear in the Philadelphia churches during February.

The Year Book and Church Directory of Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, which has just made its appearance contains a membership list and other useful information concerning the church and its work but the unusual feature is that after the name of each member the amount of his or her contributions for the year is given.

Mr. Ferd J. Wiens, manager of the Mennonite Book Concern has returned from a trip to Kansas where he spent some time in the interest of his work. He reports that the merger of The Mennonite with the Christian Evangel has met with general approval in that section, favorable comments were heard from numerous sources.

Missionary H. J. Brown, of the General Conference mission in China, who hails from the Northern District Conference, writes to a local paper: "We have registered the families coming to us for help and very soon found that we had more than 700 families on the list, and still they come. What shall we do to help these starving people? Even to help them a little will take a lot of money.

Ordinarily Mennonite congregations are not large, still there are some large and famous churches here and in America. The churches in Amsterdam Holland and in the Free State of Danzig have memberships numbering thousands. In America the largest congregations are in Berne, Indiana, and the Alexanderwohl, Kansas.

The Alexanderwohl, Kans., church came in a body to America from Russia in the early seventies and is one of the most enthusiastic missionary churches in the General Conference. It originated in Prussia and when the church moved to Russia. At the time when Mennonites were seking a new home in Russia their caravan was met by a Russian Prince Alexander, who asked them who they were and where they were going. Upon being told he wished them well. The name Alexanderwohl means Alexander's well wishing and from that the church gets its name.

Rev. H. H. Regier who for more than 43 years was a minister in Bethel Church, Mt. Lake, Minn., and its elder for 36 years, passed to his eternal reward. For some years he had been in failing health making it necessary to retire from active service.

Some thirty years ago there was discovered in the Mennonite church in Harlem, Holland, an ancient painting which bore the inscription "Menno Simon." It was believed at that time that this was an original painting of Menno and numerous reproductions were made and distributed. Some years later, however, a Dutch visitor noticed a duplicate of the painting in a gallery in Italy, this time labeled John Calvin! Upon investigation it was found that the picture was neither that of Menno or Calvin but of another prominent man of the time.

The Salem Mennonite Church at Dalton, Ohio, has recently enjoyed a successful Home Coming Good-Fellowship Day. Many former workers attended. A good program and a fellowship meal were enjoyed. The ministry of music is receiving considerable attention under the able leadership of Mr. Victor Gerber. The pastor, Rev. A. R. Keiser is preaching a series of sermons on the Ten Commendments which are being well received. There is also a lively interest in the catechetical class and in the voluntary Bible Class in the local high school for which latter academic credit is being given.

One of the landmarks in Montgomery County, Pa., is a log house. In fact it is the oldest building in the county dating back to about 1730 or before. It was erected by one of the first Mennonite ministers in this country, Hans Neues, (Nyce), but after he had withdrawn from the church at Germantown because of some misunderstanding. After his withdrawal he located in a wild section about 30 miles away in order to be as far away from his brethren in Germantown as possible. However, fate ordered otherwise. Years after he was gone a Mennonite church was erected on the land he once owned and in sight of the house he built, at another part of his holdings there now stands the Mennonite Home for the Aged at Frederick. Neues lies in the burial plot next to the Mennonite Church.

There recently appeared in the official papers of the Soviet government a list of more than thirty names claimed to be those of prominent Mennonites who endorsed the Societ regime and made statements that Mennonites were much better off than they were before the time of the Soviet Union! With the dedeliberate efforts on the part of Russian authorities to destroy, not only Mennoniteism, but, Mennonites also, the only explanation for such a statement is that it is a lying propaganda.

Russian papers are also telling their readers that Mennonites who have gone into Paraguay have not only plunged themselves into the greatest misery but are in terrible distress because of a lack of food and the ravages of war that is being carried on between Bolivia and Paraguay. Of course people outside of Russia have opportunity to know that such reports are false but Mennonites in Russia are in no position to know what is going on outside of Russia except through the information given out as propaganda and that, when it relates to Mennonites in other parts of the world, would not be permitted to be truthful. The Mennonites in Paraguay have advanced to the state where they publish a paper of their own, which reaches Mennonite communities in America and Europe outside of Russia and from that one may get reliable information of the real state of the colonists.

A contest between the different C. E. Societies of the First Mennonite Church of Aberdeen, Idaho, is now in full swing. The main object is to create a real interest for C. E. work. Points are given for different goals gained such as: new members obtained, observance of the quiet hour, staying for the evening worship, being on time, tithing, taking part in the regular C. E. program. The Young People have challenged the Adult Society and the Intermediates have challenged the Young People. The challenges were all accepted and the winning society will be entertained at a social by the losing society. The Juniors, however, are not dropping out of the picture. Although they did not challenge any society, they are working hard and are very earnest in their work. This contest was started two weeks ago, and will be checked upon in three months. The Young People can already boast of several new, active members and a good attendance at evening worship.

Bro. Daniel M. Landes of Philadelphia, writes us the following interesting letter concerning a Bible in his possession:

"I noted reference to old Bibles in one of your recent issues which leads me to tell of a Bible in my possession which might be of interest to the readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel. It is a German version printed at Lancaster, Pa., by the noted publisher Bar, whose Lancaster Agricultural Almanac has been continued by his successors, John Baer's Sons, to date and is now in the 109th year of its issues. The Bible in my possesion evidently was one that was sold by subscription and has appended to it a list of 1466 persons who were subscribers. These names represent people from Berks, Bucks, Montgomery, Northampton and Lehigh counties, in Pennsylvania as well as from Ohio, Maryland and Virginia. Added to the Scriptural text contained is an extract from the diary of Martin Luther covering the years 1483 to 1533 in which entries giving the names of his father, mother and grandfather are to be noted. An interesting item describes a run-away accident which occurred on the way to a funeral when the carriage was upset and an aged woman was seriously injured so that she had to be confined to her bed until the day of her death. Many other events that made their impression on Luther are also included in the diary. The Bible was the property of my great-grandfather, Henry S. Landes, whose dates are 1765 to 1838."

(We are familiar with the edition of which Bro. Landes speaks. This Bible had such a wide circulation among Mennonite families of the time that it was commonly spoken of as "The Mennonite Bible." Practically every Mennonite family in the counties named is represented in the list of subscribers. The volume is a magnificent folio bound in leather over oaken boards, has good printing on good paper. Grubb.)

"Now, since the Mennonite and Christian Evangel are printed as one, I do hope more correspondences will be printed and that readers in both of our conferences will come to know more of one another."

THE WEATHER

The cold snap through which we have passed during the past days brings to the minds of the older people recollections of days when the country was raw and the severe weather was a condition that brought discomforts and handicaps. People had to be content being shut up on their farms and going about was largely curtailed. Now, a series of bad weather means little. We simply, with our conveniences and comfortable ways of getting about, need not let the uncomfortable weather bother us much. A pastor told us recently that his attendances were, if anything, better on bad days than on clear days. This, however, must be an exception, splendid though it is. There are others, nevertheless, who are only too ready to blame the weather for irregular church attendance. Let those who think and act that way think of their fathers and mothers who would go to their churches in spite of bad roads, snow drifts, storm and swollen streams. The house of God meant much to those who would face storms and snows in order to join with the brotherhood in worship. They put to shame those of our day who would let the weather stand between them and their service in the House of God. Not long ago we were in conversation with one whose boyhood life was spent in Switzerland. His family lived on the side of a steep mountain. It was six miles to the church on the other side. They had to walk to and fro to church. This meant twelve miles to travel by foot every time they attended worship and they never missed when it was possible for them to be abroad. We fear that in our day if attending meant walking that distance over rough mountain paths there would be a considerable number of pagans on this side of the mountain. G.

ONE WAY OF HINDERING WAR

A discussion in the English House of Commons brought out the fact that there is an abnormal exportation of nickel from Canada to other countries. Nickel is needed in the manufacture of modern arms and armaments. Armor plated battleships and big guns would be impossible without nickel, and without battle ships and big guns, modern warfare would be hard, if not impossible, to carry on. An Oxford professor, Alfred Zimmerman, speaking at Winnipeg, Canada, made the assertion: "We could cut right under the problem of disarmament by treating nickel—the bottle neck of armament—like dangerous drugs by establishing quotas for its legitimate commercial use." In four months, June to September, 1933, 8,000,000 more tons of nickel were produced by the famous Sudbury mines than in the entire year of 1932.

The present greed of commercial interests in exploiting material such as this, essential in waging war, may react not only upon the nations who begin war, but also upon the nations that get rich by providing the means for fighting. Warfare has become a complicated affair and no nation has at its command all that it needs for waging war. It must get some things it does not possess in sufficient quantities to help it along. Providing these things, it has been demonstrated, draws into the war those who only sought to profit from the fighting of others. Common sense and a consideration for safety should lead all nations to take measure that would prevent the use of what they have for war purposes by others. The materials that we as a nation sold to the allies before we got into the struggle seemed for a time to have enriched us beyond anything we knew before but we now are a poorer and should be a wiser nation for it so happened that we have been ruined financially because of the War. G.

A CAREER STARTED WRONG

He was a bright little fellow when we knew him as a member of our Sunday School. Not only was he present at the sessions of the School but also practically at all the other services of the church. His parents, while not showing a very great interest in religion, were diligent in sending him to the services, recognizing, no doubt, that the best influences with which to surround a child should be religious. The lad soon indicated a more than usual interest in Bible things which was a great encouragement and comfort to his teacher. Then, the family moved away and were lost to sight. We knew nothing of his later associations. It so happened that as a youth just out of High school he appeared one Sunday morning "for old times' sake," he explained. To those of us who greeted him he annouced that he proposed to study for the ministry and was just about to enter College. Naturally we wanted to know what college and what seminary he planned to attend. We knew nothing of the college he named but were surprised when he told the seminary he proposed to enter at the close of his college career. The seminary, we knew, was one that had a reputation for its extreme liberalism. Why, we asked, naming an institution of the church with which he had identified himself, do you not plan to go to this other one? His reply was: "Because they teach there that everything in the Bible is true and I can't quite swallow everything." Poor boy! He was just in that cocksure state of mind that we often find in boys just out of High School. How he or any one else like him could ever hope to be an honest minister after selecting for an institution in which to receive training one where it is taught that God's Word is not God's Word is something beyond our understanding. Faith and character must be the outstanding characteristics of every minister who serves at God's altar. To go into the minister with the preconceived notion that Divine Truth is not truth at all makes that ministry sheer hypocrisy. Our remark that an unbeliever has no place in the work of the kingdom of God was not pleasing to the youth and he disappeared again, we don't know where to, but we hope that this young man has by this time either become converted or changed his life's plans. The godlessness and irreligion of this age is to be directly traced to those who presume to become teachers of the Word in which they have no confidence. G.

MINISTERS HOLD PRAYER SERVICE

The Ministers and Deacons of the Eastern District Conference met in the Hereford Meeting House, Bally, Pennsylvania, for special session of Prayer. This meeting, the third quarterly session, was held on Friday, January 12, afternoon and evening. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, President of the Conference, was in charge.

This service, particularly the afternoon meeting, was the outgrowth of a suggestion made by Rev. P. R. Schroeder, President of General Conference, on his visit East in the late fall.

The close proximity of the churches in the Conference makes the matter of meeting frequently possible. It also affords great opportunity for a closer fellowship through prayer. The Executive Committee requested the Secretary, Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, to prepare a paper designed to lead to a closer fellowship through prayer.

The paper prepared was entitled: "Prayer a Basic Essential to Fellowship." It was written from a very personal point of view, embodying, first, the general principles that underlie Prayer, second, its relation to fellowship, third, a practical application of these principles and relation to the local conditions in the Conference.

There was a strong personal undertone to the whole of it which was intended to lead the individual in the group to a personal appreciation of his own relationship to the group as a whole. A few brief comments, re-emphasizing some parts, were made by several of the Ministerial brethren. The whole group then knelt and spent the greater part of an hour in silent and audible petition.

The evening meeting was addressed by Rev. Henry Kistler, assistant pastor of the Pennsburg-Zion Hill (Lutheran) Charge. Though still a young man the Rev. Mr. Kistler is enjoying a wide-spread confidence of all who have been privileged to hear him. He embodied his thoughts in the theme: "Being Evangelical." The whole of his message was presented in an intimate manner and had a strong vein of humor in it.

Rev. George B. Buehler, Quarryville, conducted the evening devotions. The afternoon session was opened with a number of short prayers.

The Ladies Aid of the local Congregation furnished a very appetizing and attractive meal to the brethren.

A CELEBRATION

in remembrance of the entering of Sister Hillegonda in the Bethel Hospital, 25 years ago, Thursday, February 1, 1934. The chapel of the sisters' home of the Bethel Hospital, Newton, Kansas, was on the afternoon of the above date filled with the directors of the Bethel Hospital and their wives and the sisters.

Above the place of the speaker on the wall was a beautiful silver wreath with 25 in the middle. Friends had sent beautiful flowers. Sister Hillegonda sat in the middle of the first row. The celebration was all in German and began with the song: "Lobe den Herren, den mächtigen König der Ehren." Rev. Ratzlaff, 25 years ago a director of Bethel Hospital, spoke on Psalm 118:24: "This is the day which the Lord hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it." An octette of sisters sang beautifully: "The Lord is my shepherd" (German). The brethren H. E. Suderman and C. F. Claassen spoke kind words of appreciation of the work of Sister Hillegonda. Rev. H. J. Dyck read a suitable poem. Rev. B. Regier read a letter, which Rev. Gustav Harder 15 years ago had written to Sister Hillegonda for this day, then the 10th anniversary. Bro. Regier spoke of the time, when he was Sunday-school superintendent, and Sister Hillegonda kindly helped him. Sister Frieda read a very nice poem, made by herself for the occasion. She also read the letter, by which Miss Hillegonda was called into the work and Miss Hillegonda's answer to the letter. She also spoke with loving appreciation of the sister's work. Sister Hillegonda thanked for all the love shown unto her all these years and especially this day. Rev. Jak. Penner, 92 years old, closed with prayer. All sang : "O Vaterhand, die mich so treu gefuehret."

All went then to the dining room, where Rev. J. E. Entz prayed at the beginning of the meal and the celebration closed with the song: "Nun danket alle Gott."

One who was there.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

The Board of Education of the General Conference met in the Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, Mo., on January 15-16-17, 1934. Every member of the Board was in attendance, though not all were able to be present all the time. The members of the Board are: Dr. S. K. Mosiman, Bluffton, Ohio; Dr. E. G. Kaufman, Prof. A. J. Regier, Prof. D. H. Richert, Newton, Kansas; Rev. D. J. Unruh, Lansdale, Pa.; Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, Quakertown, Pa.

Due to the fact that the Board did not have a quorum at the General Conference in Bluffton, it could not organize at the time. This meeting was called by the temporary chairman, Dr. S. K. Mosiman. Following the opening devotional service, the Board proceded to reorganization by re-electing Dr. Mosiman as chairman, and Prof. D. H. Richert as treasurer. Dr. E. G. Kauffman had been elected secretary of the Board through a ballot taken by mail but felt that he could not serve in this office due to his many other duties. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger was elected secretary.

One of the first matters to which the Board gave its attention was the Junior Catechism. A resolution of the General Conference reads that this work, and the Revised Catechism, are to be published upon the approval of the Education and Publication Boards. After some study which resulted in some changes being proposed, the Board gave its general approval of this piece of work. Since it is, however, not strictly speaking a catechism, the Board decided that it is to be called "A Guide to Christian Teaching as held by Mennonites."

Later, the Revised Catechism was also discussed, and general approval given of this piece of work. Brother P. R. Schroeder is asked to see it through the press. The Board feels that there is a demand in our churches for both the Revised Catechism and the Guide to Christian Teaching, and suggests to the Publication Board that both of these be published when advance orders warrant this step.

There has always been close co-operation between the Board of Education and the Young Peoples Committee of Conference. The latter committee, through its chairman, Rev. D. D. Eitzen, of Los Angeles, Cal., requested that this relationship be continued through the appointment of a member of the Board as counselor of the Young People's Committee. Dr. E. G. Kaufman was asked to serve in this capacity. The Board also voted that Christian Endeavor be classified as a part of the Young People's work of our Board.

The matter of teacher training courses was thoroughly discussed. It was voted to recommend the Western District Conference plan for Training of Church Workers as our General Conference plan of teacher training. It was pointed out that if the requirements for teachers are met, credit of the International Council of Religious Education can be secured for this course. Credit will also be given by this Board for the International Council of Religious Education, and the Evangelical Training courses.

A further motion with respect to this work reads: That we ask Rev. D. J. Unruh, Prof. A. J. Regier and Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander to serve as a committee for Sunday School work, with Rev. Unruh as chairman; and that this committee work in co-operation with the proper committees in our district conferences where there are such, to effect an integrated program for the General Conference relative to Sunday School and Teacher Training work.

The Board discussed the possibility of having a part time executive secretary, or field worker. The following motion resulted: That Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, and the officers of the Publication Board, and Young People's Committee, be consulted regarding possible arrangements under which Brother Neuenschwander could also represent the work of this Board in the field.

The future of seminary work among the Mennonites, a matter over which the Board as a whole is much concerned, was generally discussed. A motion, embodying a suggestion to the Boards of Witmarsum Seminary, Bethel and Bluffton Colleges, was passed by the Board.

Other motions passed by the Board are as follows:

That the presidents of Bethel and Bluffton Colleges delegate someone in their institutions to prepare sample copies of church constitutions, these then to be placed in the keeping of the secretary of the Board.

That we continue our contribution of $25 per year to the Council of Church Boards.

That we ask Dr. Mosiman to continue as a member of the College Committee of the Council of Church Boards.

That the Board of Education turn its Peace work over to the Peace Committee. (Prof. D. H. Richert had formerly been designated as the member of the Board in charge of Peace work).

That we ask Dr. Mosiman to get the necessary information concerning a suitable time for a period of prayer for Schools and Colleges, and report to the Board.

That each member of our Board write one or more articles each year for our church papers.

The members of the Board also attended the sessions of the Council of Church Boards of Education. These meetings reflected the spirit of the times in being largely concerned with the practical problems of the survival and evaluation of denominational institutions of higher learning.

The organization of the Board now is: Dr. S. K. Mosiman, chairman; Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, secretary; Prof. D. H. Richert, treasurer; Dr. E. G. Kaufman, Young People's Department; Rev. D. J. Unruh and Prof. A. J. Regier, Department of the Sunday School.

CORRESPONDENCE

Friedensberg Church, Avon, South Dakota. Dear Friends:—Looking back over the past year we find that we have many reasons to be thankful. To be sure not everything has been as we had hoped and wished it would be, there were disappointments, but the goodness, mercy and the blessings bestowed on us outweighed these so we must say: "Great and good is the Lord."

During the year we have been permitted to conduct our services as we saw fit, every Sunday with the exception of a few when the weather did not permit. Also different ministers and workers visited us and spoke to us. Such visits are always a help and appreciated very much.

Especially has our congregation received blessings of late for on December 10th we had baptismal services at which times eighteen (18) young souls and a father and mother (20 in all) were baptised and received into the church. On the afternoon of the same Sunday we were privileged to partake of the Lord's Supper.

Prior to this Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Tiezen of Marion, South Dakota, came to us on December 5th and Rev. Tiezen spoke to us every evening. His messages were timely and inspiring. They prepared us for the coming Sunday. It was indeed a time of rejoicing and thanksgiving.

Christmas is again in the past. The Sunday School rendered a Christmas program, December 23rd in the evening. As this is the time that children enjoy most, the major part of the program consisted of their pieces and songs. For this occasion our little church had been beautifully decorated with evergreen boughs and Christmas trinkets.

On the eve of December 29th the Bethel College Men's Octett favored us with a program. They inspired us all with their songs and harmony, and we want to extend a "thank you" and "come again."

Wishing the Editor and all readers Happiness and Success in the New Year. A. Unruh.

Burrton Mennonite Church, Burrton, Kans. —Two young couples were married last summer. Jacob Auernheimer was united with Bonnie Warnoff. They now live near Bentley, Kansas. On June 2, Bertina Richert was married to Theodore Braun. They live near Council Grove, Kansas, on a fam.

Ernest Pankratz of Burrton and Leon Boese of Garden City, Kansas, were received into the church through baptism. Leon spent the summer on the farm with his grandmother.

On the eve of Thanksgiving Day a large group of people gathered at the Richert home for a social. Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Braun of Council Grove were also present.

The Sunday School gave a Christmas program on Christmas Eve.

Church services were also held on Christmas Day. Rev. Pankratz delivered a short English sermon while the Rev. Hirschler spoke in the German language.

Here is wishing you all a Happy New Year.

First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho. Dear Readers of The Mennonite—This Christmas season reminded us of the Saviour's birth, but it should also remind us of the Lord's return, Mark 13:32, 33. But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. Take heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

Our Church Choir in charge of the Music Committee is singing the Cantata, "A King is Born" by Shelley. There are thirty-nine voices in the choir this year and we are using both the piano and organ.

The Sunday School gave its Christmas program on the evening of December 25 this year.

We have enjoyed many blessings this year; material as well as spiritual blessings.

During the past summer we had with us two missionary families from two different fields. Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Wenger and son, our own missionaries to India, were with us during the greater part of the summer and gave us a number of inspiring and interesting messages. Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Boehr and family were with us for a short time and also gave us very interesting and inspiring messages. It is not very often that we have missionaries with us and still less often that we have two missionaries here at the same time, so we felt especially blessed.

While our Pastor was at the General Conference the different organizations of the Church took charge of the regular Sunday morning worship services.

The Lord has also given us material blessings by giving us good crops and better prices. The prices are not what we would like but they are higher than they were a year ago, so we should not complain, but rather thank God for His kindness.

Yours in His service, Henry D. Becker.

Mt. Lake, Minn. Annual Report of the Oakleaf Mission Society. The Oakleaf Mission

Society of the First Mennonite Church of Mountain Lake, Minn., has closed a year which has been of great blessing to all its members. The fourteen members turn their thankful hearts to the Lord and say: "O give thanks unto the Lord for He is good: His mercy endureth forever."

The Society has been quite active during the past year, having sponsored a project of some kind nearly every month. In the following paragraphs is a brief outline of the monthly activities.

During the month of January our church observed the fortieth anniversary of the ministerial services rendered by Rev. D. D. Harder. The Society took it upon themselves to take charge of the lunch.

February, though cold and stormy, proved a blessing in several ways. A Mite-box program was given at which time the Mite-boxes were brought in and the contents removed. Following the program a lunch was served in the church basement. Later, the Society served noon-lunch at the Farmer's Institute.

The regular meeting in March was in the form of a birthday party in honor of Mrs. I. J. Dick. Everyone remembered her with a small gift. An appropriate program was given by the members.

The month of April brought a request for rompers from the Montana Misson at which Rev. and Mrs. Petter are stationed. The request was answered by each member offering to donate a pair.

May and June turned the thoughts of the members to their own church at home. The need for a large cupboard in the church basement had long been felt. Therefore, the Society sponsored the building and painting of one. Part of the building labor was donated and the painting was done by the members themselves. The expenses were covered partly by the society and partly by outside donations.

Hot July called for cool refreshments. Accordingly, the ladies served watermelon and crullers in the village park.

Miss Martha Hiebert, missionary on furlough from Africa, brought to our September meeting the true missionary spirit. This meeting was held in church with a short program arranged for. Miss Hiebert led our thoughts to "Dark" Africa and pictured for us the great spiritual need of those dark people. She gave us the assurance that our efforts, though small, are not in vain.

In October plans were made for a duck sale just before Thanksgiving. A special committee was requested to buy live ducks, one member offering to keep them till the time of the sale.

November brought the duck sale. The ducks, those purchased and others which had been donated, were dressed by the members. These were sold the day before Thanksgiving. Lunch was served and pies were sold at the same time.

December brought to mind those needing a bit of cheer and a kind remembrance. The Friendship committee spread Christmas cheer with small gifts and cards and by the singing of Christmas carols for the shut-ins and the lone-ones.

The year of 1933 has been a successful year, considering circumstances. The Society feels richly blessed and deeply thankful. During the course of the year, they have been able to send approximately $140 directly to the General Treasury, this going for the support of missionaries, sewing for Champa, and a gift for the Christmas fund. Individual gifts were made to different people and organizations. Besides the amount used for helping our own church, the above named are perhaps the outstanding contributions made. The income for the entire year was $185.43 and the total amount of cash on hand during the year was $213.

In view of the fact that financial problems were just as difficult if not greater than last year, we still have the faith that "With good will doing service knowing that whatsoever good thing any man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord." Eph. 6:7, 8.

Mrs. P. B. Dick.

Donnellson, Iowa—The young people of the Donnellson Mennonite church in Iowa sang Christmas Carols at twenty-three homes Christmas night. We sang for some who were members of other churches in Donnellson. We have only a few who are not able to come to church, so we also sang at the homes of the older members of our church. At some places we sang Carols in German. Our singing was appreciated by all, and we enjoyed singing Christmas Carols, thus sharing the Christmas spirit with many.

Sunday evening, December 31, the C. E. members of the Mennonite church of Donnellson, Iowa, had a candle-light service during the Christian Endeavor hour. Almost every member had a part on the program. The topic—"The Birth of Our King," was used. There were many others present besides the C. E. members.

(Miss) Ellen Irene Handrich.

Bally, Pa., Jan. 1, 1933.—Greetings to the Editors and Readers of "The Mennonite" and "The Christian Evangel" from the members and friends of The Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pennsylvania.

This is a time of the year when a person's thoughts naturally turn backwards across the space of time and reflect on the happenings of the past six months.

Six members of our church attended the General Conference of Mennonites which was held in Bluffton, Ohio from August 22nd to 31st. Our church was one of the six churches to have a delegate under 30 years of age.

November 5th was a big day for Bally when the annual Fall Communion Services were observed in the morning and 10 young men and women took their stand for Christ and the Church. In the afternoon we had the dedication of the new addition to our church. This new addition, which was made possible through the generosity of friends, gives us new quarters for our primary room, a new Ladies' Aid Room and a Mother's Room. This Sunday also marked the twelfth anniversary of our pastor, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson.

On Sunday afternoon, November 12th, the Royer Greaves School for the Blind presented a program in the church. This program was sponsored by The Ladies Aid Society of the Church and a person cannot help but marvel and wonder at what can be done for the blind and what those thus afflicted can accomplish with their hands.

Dr. Harvey Bauman spoke in our church on Sunday evening, November 12th, when the Ladies Aid Society observed their 52nd anniversary.

Our pastor gave the historical address at a Union Service held in The Market Square Presbyterian Church, Germantown commemorating the 250th anniversary of the settlement of Germantown, Pa., and the coming of Mennonites to America. These services were held under the auspices of the Germantown Historical Society. He also delivered the principal address on Sunday afternoon, November 26th, in the Bethany Church, Quakertown, Pa. These services also commemorated the 250th anniversary of the coming of Mennonites to America. The Publication and Historical Committee of The Eastern District Conference had charge of this service.

We held special worship services on Thanksgiving Day morning, November 30th.

Our Senior Christian Endeavor Society again made its annual pilgrimage to the Old Folks Home at Frederick and presented a program of song and music after which Santa Claus arrived and gave each of the inmates a Christmas Gift.

The Bluffton College Boys Glee Club visited our community and sang in our church on Friday evening, December 29th.

A very unique and inspiring service was held in our Church on New Year's Eve, December 31st, when the Christian Endeavorers of the Perkiomen Valley Union gathered at 10:00 o'clock for an hour of song and praise. From 11:00 o'clock to midnight a Candlelight Communion Service was observed, a very fiitting wy to close the old and approach the New Year. This surely was a service full of inspiration and unconsciously made you resolve to strive to attain the higher and loftier things of this world. This service was in charge of Rev. Freeman Schwartz,

THE CONGO INLAND MISSION

By A. M. Eash

II. The Belgian Congo.

When in the early seventies David Livingstone expended his last vestige of strength in a search for the headwaters of the Nile River at the source of the Lualaba (for he thought these two were parts of the same river system), neither America nor any of the large European powers was interested in the opening up and development of the resources of this large central area of Africa. It remained for King Leopold of Belgium to finally enter into an agreement with Henry M. Stanley to seek to win the allegiance of the Central African chiefs and in that manner take the territory for himself. What is now the Belgian Congo became in that manner a personal possession of King Leopold of Belgium. The great value of the natural resources of the land were soon discovered and the first step in its occupation was through exploitation of these resources. Among the first was the rubber industry. Simultaneous with the entrance of the first American and European missionaries into what is at present the Belgian Congo, progressed the activities of the rubber companies and the development of the cruel pages of the rubber atrocity history. Eventually the large powers of Europe and America intervened and the territory was taken out of the hands of the King. It now became a colony under Belgium, the agreement between that country and the Powers stipulating that certain rights of the native population, such as freedom of worship, shall be sacredly guaranteed.

When once the foreign missionaries had penetrated beyond the disease infested coastal regions and the mountain barriers, they found a land rich in natural resources. It was beautiful beyond description. Even though it was tropical in location, because of the high elevation, there were not the extremes of tropical heat. They found a people living in the densest ignorance and superstition, with witchcraft and spirit worship abounding. All that has been said in the past of the excesses of living existing among a people bound by these degrading conditions, does not suffice to convey an intelligible picture. The people were divided into tribal groups with different languages, traditions and customs. Tribal jealousies and conflicts led to continual conflicts. Neither childhood, parenthood, womanhood nor old age were held in respect. The survival of the strong, the satisfaction of the sensual, the exploiting of the weak—these prevailed. There were no written languages and, naturally, there was no literature. Experiences with slave raiders and material exploiters made the natives fearful of all white men. Many prejudices had to be overcome. The missionaries faced mountainous tasks. Always there were the tropical sun, the danger of overexertion under tropical conditions, the prevalence of ravaging diseases and the uncertain danger from natives and wild animals. These, together with the native mentality, made his task a difficult one.

When in the beginning of 1911 the first Conga Inland missionaries reached the territory which has since been designated as the "Congo Inland Mission" and is now our field of labor, they found in adjoining territories well established missions of both American and European Societies. There were American, British and Swedish Baptist Societies. The Christian and Missionary Alliance, the Disciples, the work of the Regions Beyond Missionary Union of England, that of the Southern Presbyterians and others. Already some languages had been reduced into writing and literature was being produced. It was not difficult, however, to find a large territory in which no missionary work, whatever, had been done and which the other missionary organizations gladly allotted to this new organization.

The territory of the Congo Inland Mission lies several degrees south of the Equator and is about one thousand miles from the western coast of Africa by the route that missionaries need to travel to reach it. As the birds fly it is only about half of that distance. In size it is approximately two hundred by four hundred miles in dimension and has a population of possibly four hundred thousand people.

The population is divided into a number of tribes with distinct tribal languages and customs. For only one of these tribes had the language been reduced to writing when the first missionaries arrived and a limited amount of literature was available in that language when they started their work. In the less than twenty-five intervening years, the first three missionaries multiplied to more than twenty, with about two hundred native Christian workers, a Christian church membership of approximately three thousand, six thousand in the day schools and a combined Sunday morning worship audience of more than ten thousand.

MISSIONARY SERMON

Romans 10:12-18

By J. D. Graber

METHOD

(Concluded)

There is no missionary, or minister either, in our own Church or in any other Church who, if he could possibly do so, should not lay aside his ministry and refuse to serve. He is wasting his time and is an impediment to the advancing Kingdom of God. If there is any city missionary or foreign missionary who could leave his task of definite service for the Master he ought to do so by all means. We have a right as servants of the Almighty God to feel and to know that the Lord has laid His hands on us and has called us out. This consciousness is what gives a preacher poise and power. You remember the answer of Amos when his authority was questioned up at Bethel. "I was no prophet, neither was I a prophet's son; but I was an herdman and a gatherer of sycamore fruit: and the Lord took me from behind the flock, and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel." Every servant of the Lord has a right to know of a certainty that God has laid His hands upon him.

I think also of the lepers about whom we read in the book of the Kings. The city was starving because of a siege and when these leper beggars had made their way into the enemy's camp and found the camp deserted but well stocked with provisions, and, after they had eaten their fill said, "This is a day of good tidings, and we hold our peace: if we tarry till the morning light, some mischief will come upon us: now come, therefore, that we may go and tell the King's household." I appeal to all who are ministers of the Gospel and to all who are laborers in the vineyard of Jesus Christ. Are you conscious of your call? If you are not you cannot preach!

This same sentence in the fifteenth verse suggests to me not only that the individual worker must feel and know that his call is from God, but that the Church must ever be alert and active in sending out those whom God has chosen. We think at once of the famous missionary Church at Antioch, not of the Church at Jerusalem. It must have been a blessed day in that church when men and women began to feel and then to say that God is calling some of our number to carry the Gospel to the unevangelized portions of distant provinces. Later on, when the vision became clearer, they discerned that the Holy Spirit was directing them to lay their hands on Paul and Barnabas and to send them out. So they sent them out and supported them as faithfully as a God-directed Church can.

Oh, for more Churches like the one at Antioch! It was a growing Church. It grew so fast that the Church at Jerusalem became alarmed and launched an investigation. But when they saw the power of God they were large enough to say, "God bless you and go on." I believe this Church was first of all active in its own immediate community. They no doubt had preaching centers in Antioch, evangelistic meetings and tours, personal work, prayer, and all manner of activity and organization, as they felt it was needful and effective, for building up the Church and for gathering souls into the Kingdom. They were active first in their own "Jerusalem," but their vision did not stop there. It never does under such circumstances. Gradually the vision and the burden of the evangelization of the whole world weighed upon them and, as Paul once expressed his own experience, they were not disobedient to the heavenly vision.

The work of the Church must ever continue to be that of sending out those whom God has called. The future of the foreign missionary program in our own Church is not too reassuring. In these times of financial depression, especially, it seems as if we had about reached the limit of our missionary expansion. How can we send more when we have scarcely enough funds to carry on the work we already have? To some it looks as if our foreign missionary program of the future must of necessity consist merely of bringing back missionaries on furlough and of sending them back to the field at the expiration of their furloughs, replacing a few here and there as some drop out of the ranks, but not much more. This is a rather discouraging outlook indeed and no doubt overdrawn, because I believe there are great resources in the Mennonite Church which have not yet been touched and which will more and more become available as the Church continues to grow in missionary spirit and zeal.

The fuller solution, however, lies, I believe, along the line of finding methods of evangelism, that are less expensive in money but which will be able to use ever greater numbers of personnel; a missionary program that will put the Church to work more effectively in its own immediate neighborhood. Such a program would not only be the means of bringing many into the Kingdom and of putting to work a large army of the consecrated manhood and womanhood of the Church, but would serve to build up and strengthen the Church herself. I have been greatly inspired as I have met those in some of our Churches who are conducting mission Sunday Schools in their own home communities: young men and women with vision who are not waiting to do great things for the Lord, but who are willing to take hold and do the service of the Lord right at home. The Churches of Virginia and West Virginia can testify to the fact that this type of work is the means of great blessing to the Church as well as to the unevangelized communities which they touch. Let no one say, "Since I cannot go to the foreign field there is nothing for me to do." I have the courage to make the statement that on the fringes of practically every Mennonite community in the United States and Canada there are neighborhoods and sections of country that are unchurched and in need of the Gospel. I challenge you to make a simple survey of your own community if you doubt my statement.

But what I want to say particularly in this connection is that the solution of this problem must ever lie with the Church herself. Individual members here and there can do effective work, sometimes even in spite of active opposition, but the Church can never fulfill her mission nor adequately enter into her opportunity until she enters into this work intelligently and wholeheartedly.

Our program of missionary expansion seems to be somewhat stopped for the moment because of the financial depression. But alongside of this we have an ever growing army of consecrated young people who feel that God is calling them into definite service. If the call were issued here this afternoon I do not doubt that the Board could not find at least a dozen volunteers who would be acceptable and who would be acceptable and who would be ready to be sent to the uttermost parts of the earth carrying the Gospel message. We have schools for the training of our young people for service, and we have missionary literature, meetings, and conferences for inculcating the missionary spirit and for leading young people to offer their lives a living sacrifice to the work of the Kingdom. This is not only a distressing circumstances but it is positively dangerous.

I am reminded, by way of illustration, of a steam boiler under high pressure. The steam is blowing out at the joints and packings and the safety valve is open, and all the while the fire is roaring and the drafts are open. The situation is dangerous. There are two things that can be done; either the fire must be drawn, or else the throttle must be opened to put the ever rising steam pressure to work. This represents to me the condition of our own Church at the present time. The pressure of missionary spirit and consecration is running high while all the time the fires of vision and zeal are burning. There are two solutions to the present difficulty open to the Church: either we must draw the fire to let consecration and vision cool down, or else we must put our consecrated resources to work! Draw the fire we dare not in the sight of God do! We must open up avenues of work! The Church must, to avert tragedy and disaster, lay its hands on its consecrated and called talent and send it forth! If there is culture and no service the culture becomes a mere affectation; if there is consecration and no self-denial and renunciation the consecration becomes a mere effervescence; if there is readiness and no adequate expression the readiness lapses into reaction; where there is vision and no task the vision leads but to disillusion and tragedy, and where there is no vision the people perish!

The burden of the task rests with the Church for, "How can they preach except they be sent?"

CORRESPONDENCE

East White Oak Mennonite Church: Rural near Carlock Illinois—The young people of our church gave a Christmas program on December 24. The program consisted of recitations, musical numbers and a pogeant entitled "The Star Leads On."

A Watch service was held at the church on New Year's eve. We had Christian Endeavor and preaching as usual, after which we spent an hour of fellowship in the basement of the church where refreshments were served. At 10:00 o'clock we gathered in the auditorium where we held devotions and the rest of the service. Rev. Bebout, pastor of the Christian church of Hudson, presented the sermon, "The Gospel Train." Other speakers were: Mrs. Pearl Anderson of Chicago, Miss May Schad, Mr. Ferdinand Basting, Jr., Mr. Lloyd Mishler, and Mr. John Treece, Jr., all members of our church. Their subjects were based on the idea of, The Manner in which we should face the New Year. Many musical numbers were given throughout the program. As the New Year arrived the audience spent several minutes in silent prayer.

The Rev. P. D. Naffsinger had charge of the preaching service on Sunday evening, January 7, in the absence of our pastor.

Our pastor, Rev. R. J. Zehr, began evangelistic meetings in Panola, January 7. Thus far ten souls have been won for the Lord.

North Danvers Church Notes: Rural near Danvers, Ill.:—The annual business meeting of the church was held January 1st, with good attendance. The reports given at this meeting were very encouraging. It showed that we had one of our best years in the activities of the church.

The attendance at the church services this year has been very encouraging. We have been having a mild winter and our roads are being gravelled which means very much in relation to church attendance. The church is planning to have a series of special lectures during Passion Week. The special speaker will be Rev. J. E. Hartzler.

The pastor gave a series of sermons on The Kingdom of God at the 26th St. Mennonite Church Church from December 31 to January 5.

A teacher's training class has been organized which meets at the Carlock Mennonite Church every Monday evening. The six Mennonite churches in the community are sponsoring this. The class is studying the Life of Christ under the direction of Rev. Weaver.

The young people of the Christian Endeavor society attended by invitation a union Christian Endeavor meeting at the Presbyterian church in Danvers, January 28.

An Intermediate Christian Endeavor society has been organized and began their separate meetings Sunday, January 21.

Comins, Michigan—Mrs. Mary Schmid of Fairview was seriously burned several weeks ago. While she was taking her bath she became fainty and fell on the stove. Her burns are healing very well and she is now able to lie down to sleep, before she had to sit in a chair.

Mrs. William Housover is slowly recovering from a severe illness of double pneumonia.

Mrs. E. A. Stutesman returned home from the hospital in Gaylord, Michigan, where she underwent an operation recently. She is recovering as well as can be expected. Mrs. Wayne Shrock has been working in their store during her convalescent period.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Barnes were in Detroit for several days attending the funeral of a relative.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Erkfitz of Rogers City, Michigan, visited Mrs. Erkfitz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Stutesman over the week-end.

Mrs. Charlie G. Nyf gave a shower in honor of Miss Hazel Shrock. About fourteen of her girl friends were present and she received many useful gifts.

Saturday evening, January 13th, the marriage of Miss Hazel Shrock and Mr. Emerson Lantz, took place at the home of the Pastor.

Our attendance both at Sunday School and Church has been increasing since the beginning of the year.

Peoria Mennonite Gospel Mission: Young People's Christian Endeavor — The Young People presented a Missionary play "The Challenge" which the Young People of the North Danvers Church have given several times with great success, on February

4. The first scene discloses a Mother and daughter talking intently. The daughter is telling her Mother that she has never before felt the slightest responsibility for the souls of others but now she is accepting the Challenge, "Go Ye." The Mother is thoughtful but very submissive and they kneel in prayer, praying that God may speak definitely to both of them, having HIS way. Scene 2 discloses an office of an American Missionary in a girl's school in China. Kou-Ying, one of the pupils enters frightened to tell the Missionary how her father has beaten and starved her because she has prayed to the Loving Jesus to whom the Missionary has taught her pray. The missionary takes her back into the school, not knowing how she is to take care of her because of the lack of funds. A letter is received from America from Missionary's first convert who is in America studying medicine that he may come back and heal his native folks' bodies and souls. The scene closes with the Missionary kneeling in prayer asking God to teach America to give as God has blessed them with the Gospel and with freedom to worship. Scene 3 reveals a Missionary Doctor's office where a native has brought a dying babe for help. Surrounding her are native women and her mother-in-law who would burn the body of the baby with hot irons to appease the wrath of the gods, and idols. The mother of the babe has been taught by the Missionary to pray to God and will not give up her faith in the God of this white Christian Doctor, despite all the threatenings from the natives. The Doctor prays and works until the baby breathes again and the native women and the mother-in-law accept Christ who can heal their souls as well as their bodies. Scene 4 brings us back to the home of the Mother and daughter where they anxiously await a letter from the Missionary board telling of the plans and date for her sailing. The daughter with a burdened heart and uplifted soul pleads to God for His voice to speak to men and women to pray, and yield.

The last scene reveals all the characters kneeling in prayer and Miss America in the center holding a lighted torch and an open Bible, while off-stage and unseen a chorus sings "We Give Thee But Thine Own," by Shumann. The invitation for consecration for service will be the fruit of this message in drama. Pray much for the spiritual success of consecrated Christian lives of our youth of today.

LET US BE VOICES INSTEAD OF ECHOES!

Mrs. L. A. Jaggers, Coach.

Peoria Mennonite Gospel Mission, 1001 N. Adams St., Peoria, Ill.—As an expression of our love and appreciation of Rev. Wm. B. Weaver and his untiring and sacrifical zeal for Christ and the Church in his daily Christian life and in his teaching us in "Church History" and "The Life of Paul," here at the Peoria Mission, we as class honored him on his birthday with a Birthday Supper and Christian fellowship prior to the class period, on Tuesday, January 23, 1934. It was to be a surprise but since Rev. Weaver opened the invitation sent to Mrs. Weaver, as our guest, we met them at the door singing, "Happy Birthday" and we cherish the memory of the good spiritual feast which we all enjoyed. Rev. Graff, a Baptist pastor of Danvers, was also our guest on this occasion. We are happy to have met him and to have enjoyed his interest in the class. We heartily invite visitors at any time. The class periods are: Tuesdays and Fridays at 6:45, Church History; at 7:45, "Life of Paul." We meet in the downstairs Sunday School Rooms. May God make our lives more fruit-bearing and deeper consecrated than ever before because of the knowledge and truth Rev. Weaver shares with us!

Mrs. Roy Yoder.

Meadows Church—A Christmas Cantata was given at the church on Christmas Eve. The program was well attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Schirch are the parents of a baby boy.

Rev. Emil Sommer preached a Missionary sermon here, January 14th.

Mrs. Jacob Schirch is able to be out again after several weeks of illness with pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Garber of Washington, were church visitors here on January 21st.

Herbert Roszhart has accepted a position with a creamery in Minonk, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Sommer will move to their farm near Chenoa, Illinois, March Ist.

The Sol. Birky family will move from their present location north of Meadows to a farm north of Flanagan.

THE WORKER'S PRAYER

"Let me but find it in my heart to say
In field or forest, at the desk or loom,
In roaring fire-place or tranquil room
Let me but find it in my heart to say
When vagrant wishes beckon me to stray
This is my work, my blessing not my doom.
Of all who live, I am the one by whom
This work can best be done in the right way."

Y. P. REPORT OF THE FIRST MENNONITE CHURCH, BERNE, INDIANA

We have been enjoying some very interesting and helpful C. E. meetings, and as Y. P. reporter for our church, I should like to share some of these blessings with the readers.

Our Christmas program, given on December 24th, featured a short talk by the Y. P. Secretary of our denomination, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander. He spoke to us of the challenge that Christmas offers Youth—a vivid, stirring challenge—and within each of us was renewed the vision of the Babe of Bethlehem; the desire to serve Him, and to make Him King of our lives.

This was the only talk on the program; the other numbers were musical, both vocal and instrumental.

"Important Happenings in 1933" was the topic discussed on December 31st, New Year's Eve. The following talk was given by Miss Velma Sprunger, student at the Moody Bible Institute, who was home on her vacation. This talk is a real "eye-opener;" it merits your prayerful study.

Happenings of World Importance of 1933 According to Bible Prophecy

What I have to give on this subject are mostly quotations.

1. Perplexity of nations.

Luke 21:25, 26. "And there shall be signs in the sun, and in the moon, and in the stars; and upon the earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and the waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven shall be shaken."

"Distress of nations" unparalleled in human history now grips the world. No nation is exempt. There are 30,000,000 human beings in the "bread lines" of civilized nations! All are in despair. Russia probably presents the most horrible picture of all the nations. But from China also come tales of hundreds of thousands dying of massacre and famine, and the world hardly takes note. India's agonies cry to high heaven for relief. In those three lands alone dwell half the people of the earth. All other lands are filled with want and terror of the marrow. Even in our own most favored land, our N. R. A. Administrator is warning us that millions are "facing a winter of terrible distress." And the distressing thing about this "distress" is the "perplexity" which accompanies it. First of all, men are perplexed as to why there should be any distress at all. The markets of the world are simply glutted with food and clothing and man possesses the machinery to multiply the production of all human necessities and even luxuries far beyond the material needs and even desires of mankind.

2. Wars and rumors of wars.

Matthew 24:6, 7, "And ye shall hear of wars and rumors of wars, . . . For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom."

The nations are threatening each other. Practically every statesman of earth has expressed a terrible fear that the world will be at war again within the next few months. So recently as Nov. 12, Pres. Philip Curtis Nash, of the University of Toledo and until recently a director of the League of Nations Association, told a gathering of the Toledo Council for the cause and cure of war that: "mankind, not wise enough to capitalize the victory of fifteen years ago, is now apprehensive that another war ten times more horrible than the last, is sure to come."

Everywhere the statesmen of earth are echoing the words of Lloyd George, Prime Minister of Britain during the World War: "There is an economic war between all nations, the worst the world has ever seen, and actual war is preparing. Louis S. Bauman in the King's Business says, "Even as we write, Germany steps out of the League of Nations and announces her intention to arms. Instantly the terrible war clouds lower over all Europe. Statesmen are talking of the conflict that will send Europe back into barbarism.

James P. Cox, of Pittsburgh, who in the past has been considered real presidential timber, has just made the statement that "unless the N. R. A. goes through, the streets of American cities will run red with blood." That awful haunting fear of "what is going to happen" is literally terrorizing the hearts of men and women of every class in every nation.

3. Unemployment.

Zechariah 8:10. "For before these days there was no hire for man, nor any hire for beast; neither was there any peace to him that went out or came in because of the affliction: for I set all men every one against his neighbor."

The United States Conference of Mayors which convened recently in Chicago was told by Harry L. Hopkins, Federal Emergency Relief Director, that there are now 15,000,000 unemployed in the United States, "We must face the facts as to the huge numbers of unemployed in the nation." Hopkins declared, "prior to last March, that information was a deep, dark secret. "We have determined now, however, that the number at that time was 4,800,000 families or about 20,000,000 individuals. There has been improvement, the figure at the end of last August being about 3,200,000 families.

4. The N. R. A.

Rev. 13:16, 17. "And he causeth all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand or in their foreheads; and that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name."

The N. R. A. is not the mark of the beast. That mark is 666 and not N. R. A. But it points in that direction. Nevertheless, N. R. A. is presenting the World with a system of government, which, carried to its limits corresponds amazingly to the Biblical description of the government of the coming "prince." (Dan. 9:26, 27). A few weeks ago, Prof. Maynard Krueger, of the University of Chicago, speaking in Paris at a World Socialist Convention, declared that if workers with socialistic ideals fail to take advantage of the opportunity that N. R. A. affords them, then we face the grave danger that N. R. A. shall become the framework of a Fascist state. The Editor of Pentecostal Evangel asks: "I wonder how long it will be before we see the figures 666 where we now see the letters N. R. A. Now it is a national voluntary effort; in the coming day it will be an international compulsory edict.

5. Crime.

II Tim. 3:13, "But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived."

Latest tables show that nineteen-year-old boys topped the lists of arrests for serious offences in the first six months of 1933. The Justice Department's report showed that from January to June it examined 159,493 finger print records of arrests. The record of murders in the United States is appalling. Prohibition in the U. S. is gone. Liquor is flooding in. Drunkenness is again seen everywhere. The doors have been opened wide for all kinds of gambling. Moral and social standards have gone down everywhere.

6. Jews.

1933 marks the turning point in the history of the Jews. Said Arthur H. Graves, assistant pastor of the Full Gospel Church, Dallas, to a prominent Rabbi of that City, "What is going on among the Jews which has a bearing on the fulfillment of prophecy?" "A great deal," he replied, "much more than most of us realize."

"It is obvious," says The Intermountain Jewish News, we have heard one account that actually 60,000 Jews settled in Palestine last year. According to the Palestine Post of September 17, "within three days 1500 persons entered the port of Haifa." Many of these were Jews. The largest single group that has ever left New York for settlement in Palestine made their departure July first. It is estimated that they took with them new capitol to Palestine of approximately three quarters of a million dollars.

Much more could be said regarding this subject if space would permit.

The One who is Himself to fulfill, leaving it to none other, said: "When these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."
—Velma Sprunger.

Great Religious Leaders of Today.—Gal. 1:11-24.

In our discussion tonight we are to discuss the lives of our great missionaries on the foreign fields, of our faithful ministers in our churches, our sacrificial teachers in our colleges and every humble leader who is serving well, irrespective of place. Above, in and through it all let us study anew the life of Jesus Christ who gives power and initiative to every one who leads in His cause.

No, the great religious leaders are not all dead as some would have us believe. Greatness is rarely recognized until decades after the passing of leaders. We still kill our prophets and later build monuments in their honor. Lincoln is just now being recognized as a leader of first magnitude, in his day he was scorned and laughed at, his defeats were without number. There are today great religious leaders national and international, but we do not need to go outside of the ranks of the Central Conferences of Mennonites to find great human souls. In your C. E. Programs plan to make mention of our heroic pioneer missionaries, our unselfish laymen, teachers and ministers. Mention them by name, scatter their praise ere they have passed away.

Like many great leaders of our day Paul was discredited by those who should have been his staunchest friends. He had been laboring among the Galatians and then after having been away for some time he returned only to find that their attitude toward him had changed. He declares unto them that he had received his message and power not from men but from God. When a man receives a message from God he can do nothing but give it to men.

It is interesting to note the training for leadership received by the disciples. First, they did not train themselves but were instructed and followed the example of Jesus for three years. He gave them a definite message and He expected them to be true to the charge. They were to preach repentance and the coming of the kingdom. And then in the second place they were not to preach their own whims but were to preach and glorify the only One worthy of being thus uplifted. They were instructed not to seek the chief places for themselves but to proclaim the message of their Lord.

Questions

1. Do we have as great religious leaders today as we had in the past?
2. What made Paul such a great leader in his day?
3. Name and describe three of our greatest national or international religious leaders.
4. Characterize three favorite missionaries in your denomination.
5. Name your choice of the five most outstanding religious leaders in your denomination.
6. What makes a leader great? What will be their relationship to Jesus Christ?

Jesus in Poetry—Revelation 5:11-14.

In our Scripture portion we read of that great worshipful praise service when ten thousand times ten thousand will gather round the throne. There they will worship the One who alone is worthy to receive praise. Tonight let us as a C. E. Society praise Him in anticipation of that great day.

In planning for this program hand out but a few topics. Let it be a consecration service and have the secretary call the roll. Have each member respond with a poem or a hymn exalting Jesus Christ. Choose all your hymns with this same thought-content in mind. Have each member enter into the spirit of this service. It shall be a joyful, worshipful and helpful service.

Some very acceptable poems of Christ can be found in our best hymns, also in "The World's Great Religious Poetry" by Hill; "Quotable Poems" (Vol. I and II) by Clark; and the beautiful story of the life of Christ in verse "Gentlemen . . . The King" by Oxenham.

Questions

1. Give a talk showing forth that the best poetry, art, paintings and sculpture exalt the Christ.

2. Which is your favorite Christ-exalting poem? Why do you like it?

3. Which is your favorite Christ-exalting hymn? Why?

"When I survey the wondrous cross,
On which the Prince of glory died,
My richest gain I count but loss,
And pour contempt on all my pride.

"Forbid it Lord that I should boast,
Save in the death of Christ, my God;
All the vain things that charm me most
I sacrifice them to His blood."

WHAT DO I KNOW ABOUT MISSIONS?

Mark 4:30-32.

"LIVING IS AN ART OF EDUCATION"

Pre-prayer Service

This prayer service prior to the C. E. meeting is the Breath of the Spirit of God upon the meeting. "Men are seeking better methods but God is seeking better MEN." Often all that is holding back just such a program for the Kingdom is the lack of a leader, just someone to start the work. WILL YOU BE THE LEADER OF YOUR PRAYER BAND? Can the Master count on you to do it with only one purpose in mind which is, to unite your prayers for Christian Endeavors everywhere and for God's ABIDING PRESENCE to be had in your meeting and His Will to be done by your group in harmony, for 10 or 15 minutes before each C. E. meeting.

Your Meeting

Prepare for this meeting long before hand. Get and circulate books on missions. Consult your counsellor and Pastor about this. Write for material to your foreign-mission board. Make a list of questions based on the material distributed, and ask them in the meeting. Give denominational missions first place because it is that portion to which God holds us responsible. Use the map. Write to your secretary and ask for a recent map of the foreign fields and get a Year Book and there find all you can about the home missions, their locations and some of the work accomplished there. Whenever possible go to visit these home missions and you will contain a new enthusiasm in Christ's last command. Have definite information about each mission; number of missionaries; when founded and by whom; number of converts; customs of the people; former beliefs, and so on.

Some General Questions

1. What have home missions done for us?

2. Should we make any distinction in our minds, between home and foreign missions?

3. Why must we have both home and foreign missions?

4. What has the Christian Missionary enterprise meant in the history of our country?

5. What has it meant to the world?

6. What have missions done for education? for literature? for science?

7. What do you as an individual, owe to Christian missions?

8. Suppose all missionary work were stopped right now, what would happen?

Tuning-in on Christian Endeavor Topics.
Missions brought Christ to us. Acts 8:5-8.
Missions bring education. Prov. 4:1-13.
Missions and healing. Acts 3:1-10.
Missions and industry. II Thess. 3:7-13.
Missions and ideals. Rom. 12:1, 2.
Missions and knowledge of God. Acts 17:22-31.
Missions and conversions. Acts 8:26-40.
Missions and personal work. Acts 16:11-15.
Missions and trials. Acts 19:21-41.
Missions and Christ's Will. Matt. 28:18-20.

What we owe to Missions

Our Time.

Time to study missions, time to teach missions, time to do missionary work.

Our Money.

O that God will give America a deep concern and conviction about HIS share in our earnings.

Our Worship.

Every one who bears the name of Christian God has called to be a missionary.

Our Prayers.

We can do missionary work around the world every day and many times a day in prayer.

Our Lives.

We owe our lives to HIM who died that we might live.

BEGINNING THE CHRISTIAN LIFE

John 1:12, 13; Acts 2:36-39.

CONSECRATION SERVICE

Pre-Prayer Service

The open door to God's working power in the melted hearts of the leader, prayermeeting chairman and as many of the officers and members as are interested. God has said, "Prove me now herewith!" . . . Try it and see for yourself.

Living for Jesus

Living for Jesus, oh, what peace,
Rivers of pleasure never cease;
Trials may come, yet I'll not fear,
Living for Jesus, He is near.

Living for Jesus, oh, what rest,
Pleasing my Savior, I am blest;
Only to live for Him alone,
Doing His Will till life is done.

Living for Jesus everywhere,
All of my burdens He doth bear;
Friends may forsake me, He'll be true,
Trusting in Him, He'll guide me through.

Begin Today

We begin the Christian life by believing in Christ, accepting Him as our personal Saviour, and realizing our failure to do anything without Him. Then we need a definite guide which is God's Holy Word which is revealed to us as we read it, by the Holy Spirit. St. John 14:26. It is well to read St. John, 1st, 2nd and 3rd John, Matthew, Mark and Luke, then Ephesians, which is a book regarding the behaviour of Christians, then by this time you are almost ready to choose your own study course perhaps starting at the beginning of the Bible and reading it straight through, marking passages of Scripture which you do not understand, then spending much time in prayer asking God to show you just what you need to know about these truths. Accept just what He gives you and read it again and again. CEASE NEVER TO STUDY YOUR BIBLE DAILY and PRAY AS YOU READ.

After having repented of your sins and habits do not become discouraged but have faith to believe that since God is BIG enough to SAVE you then He is BIG enough to give you something more precious than your old customs and habits. Give HIM your whole heart, you cannot serve God and Satan at the same time. Romans 6:23.

Your Program

Opening Hymn—"Only a Sinner," "In My Heart There Rings a Melody," "Since Jesus Came into My Heart."

Call to Worship—Bow our hearts in a few moments of silent prayer, praising God for our Salvation and praying for those who are in your midst and are not saved; closing with these words, "May the words of my mouth and the meditations of my heart be acceptable in thy sight O Lord, my Strength and my Redeemer," in unison.

Topic "Beginning the Christian Life." Comments by the leader and welcome to all.

Text—John 1:12, 13. Acts 2:36-39. Comments upon Scripture.

Question—1. What does it mean to be a Christian?

2. How can I know if I am a Christian? Give Scripture.

3. What are the first steps in becoming a Christian?

Topics—1. Tell of Paul's beginning. Acts 9:1-9.

2. Tell of Timothy's beginning. II Tim. 3:14-17.

Question—4. How are new converts like new born babies?

5. How does public confession of our decision help us to become stronger?

6. If you were dealing with a new convert, how would you describe to him, this new but rugged road? Remember it will depend much upon their success.

7. How important is prayer to one beginning the Christian life? Why?

Topic—3. Nicodemus's beginning. John 3:1-13.

4. Tell of the Ethiopian's beginning. Acts 8:26-40.

Question—8. How does the beginning of the Christian life here in America differ in some respects from that in foreign lands?

Question—9. Why do some people begin and then backslide so quickly? What is wrong?

10. In Revelation 2nd chapter, what are some of the promises God gives to all those who are faithful to the end, to those who are overcomers?

Leader—Let us all stand and .... will lead in sentence prayers for the young Christians on the foreign fields and for all the work there, and others will follow in prayer.

Leader, Counsellor or Pastor—Since tonight is Consecration night, perhaps there are some here tonight who feel that they have once started out in this Christian race but somehow they have lost out and they know their failure tonight and want to with me lift their hand as a sign and confession to the group that we want a deeper experience, a new beginning, a new consecration of ourselves to Christ and the Church. Or perhaps there are those here tonight who have never taken a stand for Christ, who have never accepted Him as your personal Saviour, will you put your hand up also with ours?

Closing Prayer by your pastor or counsellor.

Everyone of us need to raise our hearts to God each day in deep consecration to His Will.

February 25

Topic:—Children of One Father. Acts 17:22, 23.

Margaret Applegarth, a writer of Mission stories, tells a story of "How the Artist Forgot Four Colors." A lovely new church was being built and the committee in charge of the work had asked the best artist they could find to paint a picture for one of the stained-glass windows. They asked that it be a picture of children around God's throne in heaven. The artist worked long and faithfully on the picture of Jesus and the little children, painting it first on canvas that the committee might decide whether they liked it or not. Finally one evening the work was finished and he went to bed well pleased expecting the committee to visit him in the morning.

During the night he had a dream. He saw a man who looked like Jesus come into the room, pick up the brushes and begin working on the picture. He feared the work would be ruined but the Stranger kept on painting. After He had gone, the artist went closer to see what had been done. He found the picture was not spoiled but changed. Instead of seeing only white children with Jesus as he had painted them, the Stranger had changed some to red, some to yellow, some to brown and some to black. The artist awoke and found the picture as he had left it the evening before but he had learned a lesson. Quickly he took up his brushes and before the committee came painted the picture as he had seen it in his dream. The committee was more than pleased when they saw it for it reminded them of God's love for all His children.

Sometimes we forget that in God's family there are not only white children but those of four other colors as well and He loves them all the same. Color doesn't make a bit of difference. The sad part is that many of each color are not His children because they do not know Him. Some have not even heard of Him. That is why we send missionaries because the only way to become children of the Father in heaven is to accept Jesus Christ as Savior. All must come by the same way whether red, yellow, brown, black or white.

Plans for the Meeting

As this brings us to the close of our series of mission subjects, it will be well to spend a little time in review. Use the note-books and map in this review. If the Juniors are not already dong Mission work, decide what people they will help and make plans for definite work. As a rule, it is best to assist in the missionary interests of your church.

Questions

1. Which of the people we have studied interests you most? Why? (Give this to several).
2. Who are children of the Father?
3. What are some of the things He has done for His children?
4. How may we help other boys and girls to become His children?
5. Mention some things the Father will do in the lives of His children?

The Twelve Sent Forth

Lesson Text,—Matt. 9:35-38; 10:1-8, 32, 33.

Golden Text,—The harvest indeed in plenteous but the laborers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that He send forth laborers into His harvest. Matthew 9:37-38.

The ministry of Jesus is divided into three years, the year of obscurity, of public favor and of opposition. The incident recorded in our lesson takes place in the second year of His ministry and the second period of that ministry in Galilee. Jesus spent much of the first year in making personal contact and getting acquainted with His disciples. His second year is a very busy one in which He goes about all the cities and villages teaching and preaching and healing. The healing which He did and the miracles drew large multitudes. As He saw this multitude and was sensitive to their needs, He was moved with compassion. While this same situation looked to the Scribes and Pharisees as practically hopeless as far as this life was concerned, to Jesus it suggested a harvest which is ripe and plenteous.

Jesus, by this time was very conscious of the fact that His own ministry would be very short and so He began to think of preparations to carry on His work after He was gone. We have a very impressive example of Jesus' method of extending the kingdom. The question is often raised whether Christianity is a religion to be taught, wrought or caught. As we study Jesus' method we are impressed with the fact that He felt Christianity was something to be caught, something contagious, which goes from one person to another. He never wrote a book or organized any group for the furtherance of His cause. He simply called unto Him a group of men from the common walks of life that they might be with Him to see what He does, to hear what He says and to imbibe His spirit. These disciples are the men in our lesson today who were chosen as apostles. These men were not selected by accident but after much thought and prayer. He depended entirely upon them to go forth and to extend the borders of the kingdom of God. If they fail, everything fails. It is well to note in this lesson the great confidence Jesus had in persons.

The question may be raised as to what is the chief mission of these apostles as they go forth. It is to confess Him before men, to be a witness in life and teaching of Christ. The appeal of Dr. Daniel A. Poling to the Christian Endeavorers at the last International Convention is the theme of this Sunday School Lesson. I will be Christian.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

March 4

Jesus' Testimony Concerning Himself.

Lesson Text,—Matthew 11:1-6; 16-19, 25-30.

Golden Text,—Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest. Matthew 11:28.

John the Baptist as we remember in one of our first lessons was the herald of the Messiah that was to come. He preached and baptized in the river Jordan. He said that the ax was laid at the root of the tree and that when the King comes, judgment would be here. But when Jesus actually came He did not manifest so much the spirit of severity and judgment as He did the spirit of love and sympathy. He went about doing good and instead of His gaining control of the forces of the world and establishing an earthly kingdom the evil forces gained the control of John the Baptist and he was put in jail, and that for telling the truth. As he is in prison he has time to think over the whole situation of Jesus as the Messiah. He has difficulty in convincing himself that Jesus really is the King that he had heralded in the beginning of his ministry and so he sent some of his disciples to Jesus to get some assuring and definite evidence as to whether Jesus really was the Christ. He undoubtedly thought that Jesus would send back definite statements as to whether He was the Christ.

Jesus, however, in answer to John the Baptist told the disciples to go back and tell John what they had seen. His work was to be a clear evidence of His Messiahship. This testimony of Jesus' work is based however, on some very definite facts in Jesus' own experience. The works that He did after all were the fruitage of the kind of person He was. As we study His teachings carefully we find Him emphasizing His unique relationship to His father. He is the Son of God and is very conscious of the presence of the Father in His life. His life continually is sensitive to the Father. Out of this unique relationship there comes His moral consciousness. He asks, who convicts Me of sin? Even Pilate said, I find no fault in this man. This consciousness of the Father, an unbroken moral fellowship gives Him authority. Not the external authority manifested by the Scribes and Pharisees but the inner authority of life and experience. He also realizes in His life the possession of a unique power and out of these characteristics of His life there came the fruitage which John's disciples beheld as they saw Him go about His mission. There is a practical emphasis in this lesson in the fact that we too, not as fully as our Lord, but we too can live in the presence of our Father and from Him receive a moral consciousness and power, the fruitage of which will be manifested in our life and work.

Topic:—Being Like Christ in His Trust in God.
Matt. 10:29-31. (Consecration Meeting)

The dictionary tells us that trust is an absolute and assured resting on that which is its object. That means, if we trust anyone or anything we are sure that person or thing is alright. Did you ever cross a bridge that felt "shaky"? Every move made the bridge tremble and you were so glad when you got to the other side for it seemed in danger of going down any minute. You couldn't trust it. Then you came to a good, strong bridge that didn't seem to feel your weight at all. What a difference! You weren't the least bit worried, were you? You knew it would hold. That is something of what it means to trust God. He has made a great many promises to His children. Trusting Him means that we are sure He will keep His promises. Some people are like the poor bridge. We don't quite know what they can or will do but God is able to do all He has promised so we may safely trust Him. That is what it means to rest on His Word. That is the way Jesus trusted. See John 11:42a. He always knew that God was right there understanding, loving, helping.

Plans for the Meeting.

This is the first of nine topics on being like Christ. With only one exception, we have such a subject each month the rest of the year, usually for the Consecration meeting. Let this serve as an introduction to the rest. According to the teaching of God's own Word, not even a child can become Christ-like until he has a changed heart, has been born again. This reminds us of a consecration song which may be sung prayerfully.

"Give me a heart like Thine,
Give me a heart like Thine,
By Thy wonderful power,
By Thy grace ev'ry hour,
Give me a heart like Thine."

Have the Juniors tell stories of Bible people who trusted God and how their faith was rewarded. They might also quote Bible verses on trust.

Questions

1. What does it mean to trust anyone?
2. Tell some ways in which Jesus showed His trust in God.
3. How may we become like Christ in trusting?
4. Quote some of God's promises to us.
5. Why do folks sometimes doubt and worry?

pastor of the Eden Mennonite Church, Schwenksville, who is pastor counsellor of the C. E. Union, Rev. L. K. Bergman pastor of the Evangelical Congregational Church, East Greenville, and our pastor assisted him.

These past six months have been full of activity and inspiration for our members and friends but they have also had their share of responsibilities, disappointments and discouragements for all of us. But we all know that forgetting the past is a definite conduct of life and so let us face the New Year with cheer and say with the poet:

"If life to you seems dark and drear,
If you've lost hope and all that's dear,
Awake! Arise! It is not so,
God is your Life."

Sincerely yours, Mae Latshaw.

MARRIAGE

Wagner-Guth—At 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon Miss Ethel Margaret Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Washington Wagner of North Main street, was married to Orville Guth, son of Mrs. Peter Guth of Deer Creek, at the home of the bride's parents.

Before the fireplace, which was banked with evergreens and flanked by tall candles, Rev. H. B. Schaeffer read the marriage ceremony in the presence of some forty relatives and friends. Before the ceremony Miss Geraldine Smith, a cousin of the bride, played two piano solos and Mrs. H. B. Schaeffer sang, "I Love You Truly." Miss Smith also played the wedding march from Lohengrin. Mr. and Mrs. Buford Mooberry were the attendants.

The bride, a talented and charming young woman, is a graduate of Washington high school. The groom is also a graduate of Washington high school and has been engaged in farming near Deer Creek.

After a brief honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Guth will live on a farm south of Washington.

Shrock-Lantz—An impressive wedding was solemnized in Comins at the pastor's home Saturday evening, January 13, when Miss Hazel Shrock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Shrock, was united in marriage to Mr. Emerson Lantz of Comins, Michigan. Mr. and Mrs. Charlie G. Neff were the attendants. Miss Roxie Pletcher played Mendelssohn's wedding march while the bridal party took their places.

The bride wore a dark blue velvet dress and the bridesmaid wore a deep gold crepe dress. The house and tables were decorated with blue and gold crepe paper .

Tables were laid for the bride's family: Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Shrock, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Shrock, Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Miller, Shirley and Carol, Miss Esther Lantz of Middlefield, Ohio, sister of the groom, Mrs. Jeff Miller of Fairview, Michigan, grandmother of the groom, Miss Ethel Stutesman, of Middlefield, Ohio, Mr. Kenneth Gusler, Fairview, Miss Roxie Pletcher, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie G. Neff, Mrs. W. S. Rhoads, Mrs. Alice Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Mitchell.

The bride and groom left early well showered with rice and the best wishes of the guests.

DEATHS

Yoder—Katherine Ann Heiser Yoder, beloved wife of William Yoder, and daughter of Christian and Elizabeth (Zehr) Heiser, was born in Morton township near Allentown, on May 14, 1885, and died at her home in Goodfield, Ill., Tuesday, January 23, 1934 at the age of 48 years, 8 months and 9 days.

She leaves to mourn her early departure, her loving husband, her aged father and four brothers, Peter S. of Washington, Edward J. of Metamora, Simon A. of Eureka, and Benjamin A. of Goodfield. She was preceded to her eternal rest by her mother on January 29, 1933, and one brother Christian D. on September 27, 1927.

Katherine Heiser Yoder was united in marriage with William Yoder on October 20, 1926, starting their happy home life in Goodfield where they have since resided.

Early in life she accepted Christ as her Savior and united with the Mennonite church in which faith she continued until death.

Mrs. Yoder was a devoted wife and a true friend to all who knew her, always of a happy disposition she scattered smiles and sunshine wherever she went. It was truly a privilege to be counted her friend and be associated with her, because she devoted her life for the betterment and happiness of those with whom she came in contact.

Some bright day again we'll meet her,
In that Glory World so fair,
Where all sorrow will be ended,
No more sadness, no more care.—Rest in Peace.

Funeral services were held Friday, January 26, at 12:30 o'clock from the home and 1:00 o'clock at the Baptist church in Goodfield. Rev. George I. Gundy of Meadows officiated assisted by Rev. Ellison of Deer Creek. Interment in Mt. Zion cemetery north of Deer Creek.

Ankney—Leota Lucille Ankney was born September 11, 1923, at Comins, Michigan. She passed away at her home of this place December 7, 1933, age 10 years, 2 months and 27 days.

She leaves to mourn her loss her mother, Mrs. Cora Ankney and two brothers Leonard and Maynard. Her father and grandmother Johnson having preceded her in death. She also leaves her grandfather and grandmother Mr. and Mrs. John Ankney of Sturgis, Michigan, and her grandfather Mr. Leander Johnson of Comins, besides many aunts, uncles, cousins and friends.

She was dearly beloved by all who knew her for her little smile and willingness to help others. She was an active member of the Jolly Fourteen Sewing Club, a Jolly Junior in Sunday school and a member of the Comins Mennonite church. Her excellent grades and sunny disposition at school made her a favorite among her school mates and teachers.

JOTTINGS

An oil lease on the property of the Hebron church, near Buhler, Kansas, recently brought in a respectable sum covering the church property. The church immediately turned a part of the sum, $300, to Bethel College as a donation.

The celebrated pianist, Robert Harkness, a native of Australia, who came to be widely known to the American public through his connection with the Torrey-Alexander revival movement some years ago was in Newton, Kan., in the First Mennonite church of that city.

At a recent service of the church in Berne, Indiana, during which the cause of Publications was presented by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, a considerable sum was raised for the relief of the Publication Board which, every one knows, is laboring under a severe burden of debts.

The six-day Bible lectures given in the Ebenezer church, Bluffton, Ohio, by Prof. A. Warkentin of Bethel College, met with considerable appreciation. A large delegation of visitors from Berne, Ind., made the trip to hear the lectures. Prof. Warkentin also spoke in the First church, Bluffton.

Although the institution is not in operation at present, the trustees of Witmarsum Seminary held a meeting in the Bluffton College library to transact necessary business. Rev. Emanuel Troyer of Danvers, Ill., is chairman and Rev. J. E. Amstutz of Trenton, O., is secretary of the Seminary Board.

Edwin C. Graber, of the class of 1924 of Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., who had quite a reputation as a writer of poems, having more than 4000 of various lengths to credit, was the guest speaker at one of the chapel exercises of the college, discussing poetry. He is also devoted to several other well developed hobbies, such as stamp and coin collecting.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Ind., who represents the Publication and Young People's interests of the General Conference is at present visiting churches of the Eastern District Confernce. For ten years Rev. Neuenschwander was a pastor in this conference and his visit gives opportunities to renew old acquaintances as well as presenting the special interests he represents. Sunday, Feb. 11, he was the guest of the Second church, Philadelphia.

Among the heirlooms treasured in many Mennonite families in the older communities are the hand illumined books and "Schriften" of rewards of merit given by the teachers to pupils deserving special recognition. Some of these "Schriften" go back to Christopher Dock, America's pioneer writer on the science of teaching. The front pages of Hymn Books and Bibles were often so illuminated. Persons who made a profession of this kind of work went from house to house soliciting business. Whenever a new book was purchased the owner had the visiting "Fracture" inscribe it, usually with his name and date of his birth. Very frequently the name of the singing school the owner attended was also so inscribed. Volumes so inscribed are eagerly sought after by collectors.

The 40th issue of the Year Book of the Mennonite church of N. A. has just come from the press. Besides the usual statistics and lists of conference workers and officers the book contains various articles of special interest to members of the church. It should be in every home and so used that those who read it may inform themselves concerning the many interests in which the church is occupied and therefore every member of the church has a part.

Orie O. Miller and Elam Stauffer, representing the (Old) Mennonite Mission Board, are on their way to Africa where they expect to locate a mission under their Board. After consulting with Dr. Julius Richter, a noted missionary expert in Germany, they left for Alexander, Egypt. From there they journeyed into the interior. It is expected that they will find a location in Abyssinia or the Soudan. Following the finding of a suitable location Orie Miller will return home.

The Intermediate and Senior Christian Endeavor Societies of the Second Church, Philadelphia, won an unusual recognition at the meeting of the Delaware Branch of the Philadelphia C. E. Union, one of the large divisions of C. E. work in the city, when both societies carried off the banner given to the societies bringing out the largest representation. During the past year both the Intermediate and the Senior societies won either a major or minor recognition from every meeting since they have been members of the Union.

The beginning of the First Mennonite church of Philadelphia back in the early sixties, came about because one of the ministers of the Eastern District conference attended the Philadelphia markets every week-end to sell his products. Rev. Moses Gottshall of Schwenksville, finding that it could be easily arranged to remain in town over Sunday met with the scattered Mennonites of the city and preached to them in a hall. From this service grew the congregation which has had a leading part in the work of the east. Rev. Karl Landes is the present pastor of the First Church, Philadelphia.

Rev. P. H. Richert, secretary of the Board of Missions of the Gen. Conference, announces that the Annual Meeting of the Foreign Mission Board will be held February 20 in the home of Dr. J. W. Kliewer, Newton, Kansas. All mission friends are requested to remember the Board and the whole work in their prayers. The most difficult problem will be to decide how many of the missionaries on furlough may be returned without reducing the salaries of all missionaries too much. Last year some felt the cut quite keenly. If the gifts were to continue to come in as they have been coming during the last few months, most of them could be returned. But during the summer there comes, as a rule, a sort of dry season for our treasury. Through a special gift from Idaho, the home church of Brother and Sister Wenger, it will be possible for them to return this month, February 23rd. Their address at the ship will be: Paul Wenger, S. S. Montcalm, Sailing Feb. 23, Saint Johns, Newfoundland, Canada. May the Lord give them a safe return.

The transition from the German to the English in Mennonite churches has been rapid during this generation. There was a time when an English service was unusual. Even as late as 1900, at the meeting of General Conference, whenever a brother made a statement in English on the floor of Conference there was an immediate call for its translation. With the coming of the World War and a ruling against public German meetings in some states there was naturally a rapid transition to English services. Mennonites are scattered in many countries, but, because they are fortunate enough to have a command of the German, though living in countries where this is not the language in use, they have been able to keep in vital communication with one another. We note that there are Mennonites in Brazil, Paraguay, France, Switzerland, Canada, and Russia, yet a communication coming to any of them in German from other parts of the world is in a language they use and understand. Mennonites in Brazil and Paraguay are publishing papers of their own in the German language and through these mediums it is possible for Mennonites the world over to keep posted on their state and condition.

Her passing has left ne'er to be forgotten memory in our hearts, but we know she will be an even greater shining mark as one of Jesus' little angels.

Funeral services were held at 1:30 Sunday afternoon at the home and 2 p. m. at the Comins Mennonite church. Interment was made at the Fairview cemetery.

In some rude spot where vulgar herbage grows,
If chance a violet rear its purple head,
The careful gardener moves it ere it blows,
To thrive and flourish in a nobler bed;
Such was thy fate, dear child,
Thy opening such!
Pre-eminence in early bloom was shown;
For earth, too good, perhaps;
And loved too much—
Heaven saw, and early marked thee for its own.

Schwartz—On Dec. 9, 1888, there was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Sloneker, who were then residing in Bloomington, a daughter for whom they chose the name Pearl. Soon afterward the family moved to a farm in the Carlock community where the little one grew to womanhood. She acepted Christ as her Saviour in her youth and united with the Mennonite church of which she remained a faithful member until her death.

On May 6, 1909 she was married to Louis E. Schwartz of Carlock and became the mother of two sons, Merle and Herbert Wayne.

On Nov. 4, 1932 she suffered a severe paralytic stroke from which she recovered very slowly and which left her very much an invalid. On Sunday morning, Dec. 17, 1933 she suffered a second stroke after which she showed no apparent sign of consciousness until her death very early on the morning of Dec. 21, at which time she passed from this world at the age of 45 years, 12 days.

She is survived by her husband and two sons; her mother, Mrs. Rosina Sloneker of Normal; five sisters and two brothers, Mrs. D. E. Imhoff, Albert Sloneker, Mrs. A. A. Miller, Mrs. F. J. Fry, Herbert Sloneker, Mrs. Ralph Schad, all of the Carlock and Normal communities, and Mrs. E. A. Salzman of Farmington, Iowa.

Mrs. Schwartz was of a quiet, winsome disposition and was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends and acquaintances.

Funeral services were held Saturday p. m., Dec. 23, at the Carlock Mennonite church, conducted by J. H. King and R. L. Hartzler.

Steiner.—Peter P. Steiner died at his late home in Pandora, Ohio, Dec. 17, 1933, having attained the age of 11 days less than 88 years. He was born one mile west of the Ebenezer church. Upon his marriage he located on a farm near Pandora, Ohio. Later he moved to Pandora and became a miller and merchant until he retired because of advancing age. He served the Swiss Mennonite church of the Pandora-Bluffton community as a deacon for many years. Upon the organization of the Grace Mennonite church, thirty years ago, he became an active member of that church and was a prominent leader in that church until within a few years of his death. Mr. Steiner was in the best sense of the word a Father in Israel, beloved and respected by all. He is survived by one son, Noah, and one daughter, Mrs. P. D. Amstutz. The funeral was conducted at the Grace church, Dec. 19, 1933, by his pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer, assisted by Rev. Toevs of the St. John Church. The funeral was largely attended.

Gering—Peter Gering, March 13, 1856-Jan 22, 1934. Born in Poland where he united with the Mennonite church. Came to America in 1874 settling in Dakota, later went west. Married (1) Anna Waltner; (2) Freni Kaufman; (3) Katherine Shrag. One brother, 2 sisters, 10 children, 18 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren survive, as well as a host of relatives and friends. Funeral services were conducted in the Menno, Washington, church. Rev. M. J. Galle speaking words of comfort, Jan. 25.

Are Your Hymn Books and Song Books TORN, RAGGED and WORN OUT?

Whether your church contemplates replacement or is planning to buy new books it will pay to buy now before publishers raise their prices.

It will pay every congregation to check up on its supply of hymn and song books and send us an order in the near future.

Here are some of the favorites used most extensively in our churches.

MENNONITE HYMN BOOK

No Mennonite Church can afford to be without this hymn book. Those churches which have used it for any length of time are enthusiastic about it.

The Mennonite Hymn Book is a 392 page volume, containing 412 hymns of dignity and character and a splendid selection of responsive readings. Hymns are well arranged for all Church Year occasions. Choice selections for Missions, Peace, Home and Religious Education, including a number of children's hymns and translations of "Gesangbuch mit Noten" favorites.

A suitable hymn-book for every department of the church. Nearly every hymn has the text set within the music. The music and type are clear and bold.

DUTY AND PRIVILEGE

A little girl, once confronted with a task that was not to her liking, exclaimed: "I know it is my duty but I hate it." Perhaps that is the attitude of many of us toward the necessary things into which we do not enter with enthusiasm. Duty under such circumstances does not make any of us happy. We get it out of the road like going to the dentist and are glad when it is over. We might say that this is living under the law. It is doing because there is an imperative MUST.

On the other hand, we have in mind the child who came to his mother with something particularly helpful and said: "I want to do it for you because I love you." There was happiness in both the doing and saying. We are children of our Heavenly Father. God has given us a law that must be respected and obeyed for the good of everybody. It is like the Law of the Harvest—we reap as we sow. That which we do, because it is a privilege, brings joy and peace of mind as well as a satisfaction that only the willing servants of God may know. Some one in comparing in an Oriental city, where one is hardly safe at night, with a well ordered city in another part of the world observed that the laws in both cities were practically the same, but the attitude toward law was different. In the one law was obeyed because there was enough force displayed to convince men that the better part was to obey—yet, even this did not work out very well. In the other city there was not so much show of force but better respect for law, the citizens living orderly lives because it was characteristic with them that they ought to obey the law. In our attitude toward God's law the situation is the same. We ought to be obedient to the will of God. If we are Christians, in the true sense of the word, it will be a joy to conform to all the divine requirements because we are living under GRACE. We do what we do because we ought to do it.

G.

Ian Maclaren wrote that "The Prince of the Power of the Air" has a great deal to do with drafty churches. He meant to imply of course that uncomfortable churches are not condusive to worship. In part we agree with him. An overheated church, or a cold and drafty one goes a great way toward disturbing the helpfulness of the service to the worshipper. We recognize that our fathers worshipped in log meeting houses and sat through long meetings on hard, backless benches. That, however, was more a matter of necessity than choice. Neither in their homes nor in their churches would they have endured the discomforts to which they had to submit had there been more comfortable conditions possible. The fact that they introduced greater comforts as soon as possible and continued to add improvements to their homes and churches shows that when opportunities made it possible they were ready to embrace such opportunities. We are not arguing for churches that represent extravagances that often pass great debts on to their children to meet and are so much of a display that pride must have had a considerable part in calling them into being. Extravagances, be they personal or the sin of a group are sheer folly and serve no good and abiding purpose. But one may be comfortable without being either proud or extravagant. If it is possible to have ones mind taken away from bodily discomforts it surely is the better way of entering into the spirit of worship. Long ago the world discovered that the self-torture of the devotee did not insure piety, much less a faith that elevates. It is surely wisdom to keep our homes warm and healthy. The brain cannot do its best where there are bodily discomforts neither can the soul function to fullest extent in an atmosphere that either make one stupid or makes one shiver. G.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD BOOTLEGGER?

One of the arguments continually made when politicians were doing their utmost to bring about the repeal of the 18th Amendment was that the legalizing of the sale of liquor would eliminate the bootlegger. This was accepted by thousands of voters as a good reason why the country should be voted wet. The country is wet now. The saloon that was not to return is at half of the corners of our cities doing business under the new name of "Tap Room." The slimy bootleggers are still with us, defying what there is left of the liquor laws. Now, if press accounts are correct, the President has ordered cheaper liquors in order to make bootlegging unprofitable. It is bad enough that every citizen is a partner in the liquor business, since profit through taxes from the liquor business makes every citizen a participant in the business. But to set up the Government in a cut-price competition with the bootlegger is not the lawful way of eliminating him. There are, and have been, laws enough to deal with the evil of illegal liquor business, but it would seem that, from the beginning, the bootleg business has had our Government scared and on the run. First, it was fear of the bootlegger that led to the elimination of a part of our Constitution. Now, it is fear of this same menace that leads to the suggestion that bootlegging be driven out of business by cut-throat competition. If it was not official corruption that led to the scandals of pre-repeal days, it surely must have been pure scare of what bootlegging was doing that led to repeal. Now, the weak-kneed policy appears to be, if you cannot stop it by laws, of which there are plenty, try starving it out. The gist of it all is that enforcement officers are just as lax, if not worse, since repeal as they were before it came about. G.

FAMILY CHRONICLES

Before the writer lies an old diary, written by a relative during the early half of last century, covering a period of twenty years. It is a closely written manuscript in German. In it are noted such things as the weather, the text the preacher used for his Sunday's sermon, public and political events, when the first blue birds were noticed, who came to visit, etc. There were also expressions of opposition to slavery, intemperance, denominational factionalism. Things that showed that the writer had positive views concerning current evils. On a number of occasions the writer fell to the spell of the Muses and attempted to write poetry. To be sure, matters relating to family life were recorded. Since the writer intended that the diary should be chiefly for his own personal satisfaction, and not for publication at some future period, he records such personal sentiments as his feelings when his wife died. He also noted some of the progress of the age, for example, one entry tells of how he had left Reading, Pa., for Philadelphia, and was able again by evening the same day, making the entire trip and transacting his business in daylight. To him it was a wonder that such a thing could be done because of the operation of the railroad. Today one may easily make that same trip in considerably less than an hour.

We wonder what might be the worth of such a document to those of a later generation and why there was such painstaking in keeping such a record when it hardly concerned any but those of the immediate family of the writer. The answer is that we get more from real life as it existed in the Christian home of that time than we would find by reading all the newspapers of the period. Crumbling, as are the pages and fading as is the ink, there is a character written in that bundle of old paper.

Suppose some one, a hundred years from now, would want to learn something about family life as it exists in a multitude of homes in our day, would he consult the newspapers published in our time? If he were a person of intelligence he would realize that papers take little notice of existing normal good. It is only the things that are abnormal that get notice on the front pages. A newspaper man once said that "If a dog were to bite a man that would be no news, but if the man were to bite the dog, that would be news." With all the scandal and seemy things recorded of life today we can hardly hope that the newspaper press will be giving anything worth while of that which is normal and respectable, that will call for the respect of our grandchildren and great grandchildren. Such information must come from other and more intimate sources. For this reason we see in those faded old diaries, and other family records, something that is destined to give us of this generation a better and truer concerning of the ordered and decent lives of the present. It would be an act of real worth if heads of families were to write up in some way pictures of their problems and experiences that would at least become a tradition worth maintaining. A great student of human nature once said: "It is worth more than we can estimate when we may feel sure that our boys and girls will be ready to say concerning questionable things, "Our family does not do that sort of a thing." CORRESPONDENCE

First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas. February 6, 1934. Dear Readers of the Mennonite:— On the 15th of October we celebrated the Lord's supper with good attendance. The Western District Conference in the Alexanderwohl church was very well attended, many of our members were present. On October 29th Bro. E. Harder gave an interesting report of the same. On November 5, Dr. E. G. Kaufman preached in the forenoon and in the evening and founded a Bethel College Fellowship. Since October 1, quite a number of brethren and sisters have joined our congregation, I believe 21. The yearly Sunday school meeting was held on Tuesday, November 7, and Bro. Paul Bartsch was reelected as superintendent. On Thursday evenings at seven o'clock is teachers' meeting, at 7:30 is prayer meeting and teachers' training class, conducted by Prof. Lohrenz of Bethel College, and at 8:15 is choir practice. A catechumenal class was organized, which is well attended and is taught by our pastor, Rev. C. E. Entz, in the chapel of the Deaconess-Home. Since Rev. Abr. Warkentin has gone to Chicago, other ministers have been preaching on alternate Sundays. Thursday, December 21, Dr. J. E. Hartzler gave a very interesting illustrated lecture on Bible lands, which was well attended. On December 17, Prof. Lohrenz of Bethel College preached and in the evening the choir sang the cantata "The Coming of the King" to a large audience. The Sunday school Christmas celebration was on Christmas in the evening. The week of prayer was observed by having three prayer meetings, taking two parts of the program every evening.

The yearly meeting was held on Monday, January 15, in the evening. It lasted until 15 minutes before 12 o'clock. At 9:30 the ladies served a cup of coffee and doughnuts. On Monday, the 29th, another meeting was held which did not last so long. The sisters in this congregation are not permitted to vote, they can only pay and work, which they do very faithfully.

On Sunday afternoon the composer, Robert Harkness, gave a sacred concert which was well attended. Some were disappointed.

In spite of his wish to be relieved, the correspondent has been reelected. May God bless the Mennonite in its new form and all its readers. C. van der Smissen.

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. The Good Fellowship Class was in charge of the service Sunday evening, January 14th.

Mrs. M. W. Steele was hostess to the Berean class of the Sunday school Thursday, January 18th.

Sunday evening, January 21st, the evening program was given by the school teachers, with Miss Elizabeth Kauffman as chairman. The address of the evening was given by Principal Russel Bollinger of the High School.

Because of the sudden stormy and cold weather no services were held Sunday evening, January 28th.

Rev. and Mrs. Salzman and daughters attended funeral services of Mrs. Salzman's sister, Mrs. Albert Sauder, of Archbold, Ohio, Thursday, February 1st. When returning home they escaped injury when their car was side-swiped by a truck. A front wheel, axle, and running board on their car were crushed.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Neufer are the parents of a son, Edward Lewis, born January 29th.

Sunday evening, February 4th, this church united with the Methodist church in a sacred concert, given by musicians from Nappanee.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, February 8th, at the church.

The young people of the class taught by Howard Emmert entertained the young people of the class taught by Earl Neufer in the basement of the church, Thursday evening, February 8th.

Miss Cassie Yoder had the misfortune of falling several weeks ago and still is unable to be about and attend services.

Mr. Earl Greenawalt of the Methodist church was the speaker Sunday evening, February 11th.

Funeral services for Mrs. J. C. Lehman, who was one of the first members of this church when first organized and who has been a patient sufferer for eight years, were conducted at this church Monday afternoon, February 12th, by Rev. Salzman and Rev. Allen Yoder. Our sympathy goes to Rev. Lehman who has cared for her during her illness.

Beatrice, Nebraska, January 19, 1934. Dear editors and readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— Since we have entered the year 1934, I am reminded that a report in regard to our church should have appeared in our paper before New Year, but I hope it is never too late to let others know that the Lord has blessed us abundantly according to His riches. With the Apostle Paul we have every reason to say: "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ." We were greatly blessed in our Sunday school work, in the regular Sunday services and C. E. meetings. We also had the privilege to listen to missionaries and other visitors, who brought to us the message of salvation. The choir gave several sacred musical programs during the year, and sang at various occasions. Our Bible Academy opened last fall with a Sunday evening service. Rev. M. Horsch and Franz Albrecht were the speakers. Rev. Karl Friesen is the teacher, and sixteen students attend.

Our annual meeting was held January 17th, and was an all-day affair as in former years. Lunches were served in the basement at twelve and four o'clock. The opening service was based upon the parable of the pounds of which the noble man said: "Trade ye herewith till I come." May the Lord help us to be true and faithful in that which is least as well as in that which is much.

According to the statistical report our congregation has 349 members and 131 children. Six of our young people were baptized on Pentecost, and two members were called to their reward. Five children were born.

To do more efficient Sunday school work, the building committee was instructed to find out and report to the congregation how much proper arrangements for Sunday school classes in the basement of our church would cost.

The financial report showed that all expenses were paid and about $2700.00 contributed to Home and Foreign Missions and Relief Work. In our Mennonite Deaconess Home and Hospital the work has been continued according to the physical and spiritual needs of about 630 patients, an average of 18 daily, at the expense of a little more than $18,000, leaving a balance of $5000 in the treasury.

With grateful hearts to our Heavenly Father who is the giver of every good and of every perfect gift, we continue to pray: "Let thy work appear unto thy servants, and thy glory upon thy children. And let the favor of the Lord our God be upon us; and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it." Ps. 90:16, 17.

With sincere greetings,

Heinrich Albrecht, Corr.

San Antonio Height, Upland, California, January 14, 1934. Dear Editors:— Again I find myself intruding into your editorial sanctum. Only recently I sent you an article for the Mennonite, now I am following it with a letter. If it seems to you worth while to publish in whole or in part in The Mennonite and Christian Evangel, you may do so.

Pastors, church workers, church officers, and leaders are constantly seeking methods of improving the efficiency of the church and Sunday school in either the teaching or worship programs or in both. The Upland church has adopted what we call a unified worship service.

Our Sunday school is completely departmentalized. Immediately upon arrival at 9:30 A. M., the time for opening of the Sunday school, all members from the Adult Department to the Cradle Roll report at once to their particular department. Each department conducts its own worship program or service in charge of the departmental superintendent. At the conclusion of the departmental worship service everyone reports to the appropriate Sunday school class. Then at 10:25 every one, old and young, adult and child, moves into the church auditorium (why not call it the sanctuary?) and promptly at 10:30 the service of worship begins with an instrumental prelude (some day we hope to have an organ) during which the choir and the pastor take their places on the platform. The following is the program as arranged:

The Morning Worship at 10:30 A. M.,January 14, 1934:

Piano Prelude—Adagio..................Mendelssohn
Choir—"The Lord is in His Holy Temple"
The Children's Service—
 Superintendent's Minute
 Hymn No. 365—Congregation
 Prayer
 Hymn—Juniors
 Talk—"Gold Mines"..............Rev. Hostetler
Hymn—"Holy, holy, holy," No. 3 (During the singing of this hymn the children may go to their parents or leave the auditorium, if necessary.)
Scripture—Isa. 40. Selection 23
Choir Hymn
Offertory—Traeumerei—Schumann
Hymn—No. 165
Serman—"The Promise of New Strength," Isa. 40:31
Benediction and Doxology
Piano Postlude—Choral—Luther

Grace Mennonite Church, Albany, Oregon. Dear Editor and Reader:— Greetings in our Blessed Redeemer's name. As we are on the threshold of a new year, we wish to thank God for the many blessings He has bestowed upon us, and we are looking for greater things in the new year, in that we may be more faithful to His cause.

Our Truth Seekers' Bible Class has been making calls in our community in the homes of those who are not affiliated in any church. Others of the church have been endeavoring to sing to the sick.

The Ladies Missionary Society has made six comforters in the past year, which were given to the needy in our immediate community. Also twenty-eight dollars and fifty-nine cents were contributed.

In September we had the pleasure of having in our midst Rev. J. E. Lauby, who was on a vacation from his pastorate in California and stopped here on his way through to present us a Sunday morning message, which was given from the book of Hebrews. Rev. Herbert Widmer brought the messages while our pastor and family were on their vacation.

November 5, Rev. Martin of the American Sunday School Union presented the Sunday morning message, after which contributions were made to the work of the Sunday School Union.

Sunday, November 12, we commemorated the Lord's Supper. December 11, the annual business meeting of the church was held. Election of officers for the new year were made, and much to our regrets our pastor, Rev. Harley King, and family presented their letter of resignation, due to ill health, which will cause them to discontinue their work. They have labored so faithfully and God truly has blessed their work with us. Our prayer is that God may continue to bless their ministry wherever they may go, and may the way be opened that the pastorate here may be given to the man God would have to continue to present the Gospel Message, as it has been presented heretofore. May you remember us in prayer regarding this matter.

The Christmas program was presented by the Primary and Junior Departments of the Sunday school, with the exception of part of the singing, which was rendered by the Young People of the church. New Year's night the Truth Seekers' Class participated in a banquet, which took place in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Widmer.

Sunday, January 14, Mrs. Douglas of the Women's Christian Temperance Union gave a short talk to the young people during the Christian Endeavor hour, and also presented the Sunday evening message.

The average attendance of the Sunday school for the year was eighty-nine. Our Christian Endeavor work has also been progressing in the past year. May God especially cause our young people to see the need of being faithful, for there is much work to be done for the Master. "Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost." Romans 15:13.

Pulaski, Iowa, January 20, 1934. To the Mennonite-Christian Evangel:— In 1861, so a venerable member states, the pioneering settlers on this middle west prairie felt the need for uniting heads and hearts in the cause of the eternal truths of the church, and thus came into an active life the Pulaski Mennonite congregation. And thus, also, was held last evening, at this church, the seventy-third annual business session of the membership, called for elections and the transactions such other matters as pertain to the maintenance of a growing concern.

For the next year, J. A. Baughman will continue to serve as president, S. F. Ramseyer will again act as secretary, and Chas. Dieffenbach has once more been chosen as treasurer. Others named were: Harold Baughman, chorister; Doris Cowles, pianist; Mrs. D. L. Widmer, missionary treasurer; Victor E. Swartzendruber, corresponding secretary; John Schindler, trustee for the new three-year term. Other selections recently made for local offices in connection with the church include Wesley Delzell and J. C. Miller, valuators, and C. E. Bussey, secretary, for the Aid Plan.

The pastor, Rev. W. W. Miller, who has served here for some twenty-five years, promoting peace and harmony all the while within the church and in the community, is in California at present on the winter's leave of absence. Bro. Miller is preaching in brief series of meetings at several points in that state, from the pulpits of old time friends, and also visiting in the homes of some of his own people. He expects to return to his work here in March, Rev. M. A. Niswander of Pulaski being in charge during the absence.

The church was represented at the general Aid Plan conference in the presence of two members at Corn, Okla., in October. The next meeting of this group will take place in three years, and on invitation of the local officers, the body has accepted the Pulaski church as the point for the 1936 deliberations. A report of the Oklahoma meeting was presented by Secretary Bussey at last evening's business session, and plans were made to start on the revaluation of all properties affected here for the new three-year period. At present the local membership carries some $380,000 of Aid Plan insurance, and it is estimated by the officers that the new writing will total about $300,000.

A plan adopted at the meeting just held here, and which will become effective with the new insurance period, provides for a small pledge to the church budget as a part of the insurance agreement, and based on the amount of protection carried. The rate for this church contribution was fixed at two dollars per thousand of Aid Plan insurance, and will become payable twice in the year, along with Aid Plan assessments. This is intended not to discourage those members who wish insurance, nor is it the thought to indicate that this is a sufficient support in all instances. However, it is believed that the benefits of the Aid Plan protection are considerable enough, and are enough cheaper than old line rates, for example, that all persons receiving the protection should be willing to give at least this small amount to the church which makes the Aid Plan program possible.

Victor E. Swartzenden.

Hutchinson, Kansas, January 12, 1934. Dear Friends:— 1933, the year just closed, was a very eventful one, full of surprises and changes, unexpected. In some respects seemingly the shaky bridge of one era to another. We had become accustomed in the last decade to the news of topling thrones, radical changes of Governments, Dictatorships, Communism and what not, all over the distressed world. We at home, in our beloved United States, are also, as someone said, in a swordless revolution, industrially, economically, and politically.

1934 we have just entered. What has it in store for us? Who knows! We Christians trust and believe: "The Lord will provide," "in Him we trust."

January the third, in the evening, we held our annual First Mennonite Church meeting. It was cold and the ground was covered with snow. But of the 95 members, 48 were present. Our pastor, Rev. J. J. Plenert, led the meeting. The secretary's and treasurer's reports were encouraging and faith provoking, considering our economic distress. Our pastor's report showed a busy year for him, and, we believe, a blessed year for the church and our community. The many sick, distressed and seeking souls to visit; as chairman of the Hutchinson Ministerial Alliance, those obligations to meet! The field of the faithful worker in the Kingdom is varied and has its roses and thorns.

Among the new officers elected were: For deacon, C. C. Epp; for trustee, D. H. Kasper; with A. Matthies and A. W. Oyer (A. M. Mar-

Perkasie, Pennsylvania, January 28, 1934. On Wednesday evening, January 24, 1934, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Indiana, Young Peoples' Secretary for the General Conference of Mennonites, was the guest preacher at the Bethel Mennonite Church of Perkasie.

Rev. Neuenschwander had made many friends in this part of the East when he was pastor of the First Church in Philadelphia. He spoke from the text Acts 1:8, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." In closing his sermon he made a plea for more interest, spirituality, prayer, and loyalty in the Young People's work. He made an appeal for all to be loyal to our Mennonite heritage, and emphasized such phases as: Peace, the simple life, adherence to the Bible as ruler of life and faith, and opposition to secret societies. The Y. P. or C. E. Society is urged to subscribe to our church papers and help to collect subscriptions. F. E. Landis, Corr.

Congerville Church, Congerville, Illinois. At the annual church business meeting the following official board was reelected: Chairman, Elmer Sharp; secretary, D. A. Kauffman; treasurer, J. B. Detweiler; missionary treasurer, Susie Kauffman; chorister, S. L. Lautz; pianist, Margaret Lautz.

At the election held by the Christian Endeavor Society, Lyle White was elected president; Susie Kauffman, secretary; Alma Detweiler, pianist.

Miss Nina Detweiled who teaches school at Cicero, Ill., and Merle Kauffman who teaches at Steeger, Ill., both spent their Christmas vacation with home folks.

The Ladies Aid Society held an all-day meeting January 4th at the home of Mrs. L. C. Irons. The work done was sewing for our African mission. The Ladies Aid served lunch at a community sale held on the Eglin place near Congerville. The Primary Department of the Sunday school rendered a Christmas program in the evening of December 23rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Crump and daughter Norma Mae visited at the home of Mrs. Crump's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Irons, during the holidays.

Mr. Wm. Dagit of Cherdan, Iowa, visited at the S. L. Lantz home Christmas day. Mr. Dagit is a nephew of Mrs. Lantz.

Mennonite Church, Trenton, Ohio. Sunday, January 14, 1934, after a splendid morning service, dinner was served in the basement of our church, and a delightful social period followed.

Promptly at 1:30 P. M. we again assembled in the auditorium for our Annual Congregational Meeting with singing for our opening hymn, "Faith of Our Fathers," followed by a Scripture Reading by Rev. J. E. Amstutz, and prayer by Elmer Kennel.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, followed by a report from the Sunday School by Karl Ehresman; report of the Missionary Society by Lydia A. Augspurger; and a report of the Women's Society by Mrs. Lewis Augspurger. At this time short talks were made by the president of the Missionary Society, Miss Elisa Holly, Mrs. Schaffer, president of the Woman's Society, and Miss Lisette H. Kinsinger, formerly a missionary in Oklahoma.

Rev. Amstutz gave a very interesting report of the year's work. We were especially favored by having two of our former pastors fill our pulpit during the past year—Rev. H. J. Krehbiel of Reedley, California, and Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Indiana.

In August we had the pleasure of having in our midst Mrs. Bertha Petter of Lame Deer, Montana, who gave us the message on Sunday morning, and then again addressed our missionary meeting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Amstutz.

However, 'mid our pleasures we also had our sorrows as seven of our members departed this life during the year, their names being read by Mr. Amstutz and a hymn sung in memorium.

After election of officers the meeting adjourned.

We hope each and every one will assist our pastor in making the year 1934 a blessed one for our church and community.

South Washington, Rural Church, near Morton, Ill. The "True Blue" girls met at the home of Elnora and Ethel Ingold on Saturday, February 3. The afternoon was spent in picking wool. We had several visitors at this meeting. As there was no new or old business to be discussed, a formal business meeting was dispensed with.

The hostess served delicious home made icecream and cake, which was very much enjoyed by all present.

Sunday, February 4, we observed as missionary day. The "Busy Bee" class of Juniors handed in $10.00 which will send their Africa student to school another year. Rev. Sommers of Normal preached a very interesting sermon on the Second Coming of Christ.

We are glad to say that several families of our church have taken up the new project of sending an African child to school. We hope to see more families taking up this good cause.

The German Ladies' Class is sending two new students and they already have one to their credit. The class is a very small one and it behooves the rest of us to hustle in order to keep up.

Calvary Church, Washington, Ill. The Chris Imhoff family held a family dinner at their home on Christmas day which included, besides the family, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Imhoff of Urbana, and Bob Carlson and Richard of Peoria.

Robert Strubhar and Earl Guth took charge of the morning church service on December 31. They are both attending Bible School at Fort Wayne, Indiana, and both seem to have a very promising future.

Ruth Dingledine has been having scarlet fever, but is getting along nicely.

Elsie Netherton had an appendicitis operation January 10, but is getting along very well.

Miss Thelma Roth entertained the Kum Joy Nus Sunday school class on January 10. It was also a shower for Mrs. Cyrus Broadstone who was married recently.

Miss Elizabeth Stried of Oak Hill, Ohio, is visiting with her relatives. Her sister, Miss Frieda Stried, gave a dinner party in her honor on Saturday evening, January 13.

Ray Shelly was baptized January 14. Mrs. Wilferd Springer was taken into the church by letter.

Christmas at the Home for Aged

Newton, Kansas

The Christmas spirit entered the Home early, and the week preceding Christmas Day found beautiful decorations all over the Home and in all the rooms of the residents. Groups of carolers which came at various times by day and night demonstrated to all that the Home was in many hearts and minds during the holiday season. A most hearty "Thank you!" is extended herewith to the various singers.

The Bethel Home family was increased by three new members during December, one from Newton and two from Halstead. Of the latter, Mrs. Sternberg entered the Home on December 24th, so she is a Christmas gift. Mrs. Frank Philbrook, formerly of Sedgwick, who has been a resident of the Home for six years and who lost her husband recently through death, went to Kansas City shortly before Christmas to visit with her sister whom she had not seen in many years. Mrs. Adelaide Glazier, who had planned to remain in San Angelo, Texas, to spend the holidays with her only daughter and her family, returned on December 18th. She had not been well during her stay in Texas and decided to come home while she was able to travel. She is feeling better since her return. Mrs. Anne McMahan, who has not been well, spent her Christmas as a patient in the Bethel Hospital.

The Christmas celebration was held in the assembly room of the Home on December 22nd at 7:00 P. M. The sisters and nurses of the hospital and the home sang the cantata, entitled, "Chimes of the Holy Night," by Holton. A number of friends joined the Home family for the evening. All residents and the sisters of the Home were remembered with a Christmas treat of candies, fruit, and nuts by the Women's Auxiliary, and a number of friends brought cash gifts, candies, and various household supplies. Sunday and Christmas Day were celebrated much like other families in Newton observed the day, in quiet enjoyment of material and spiritual blessings. Love in the form of greetings and gifts found its way into the rooms and hearts of the residents. The Bethel Home wishes to thank all who have helped to make Christmas a joyous occasion, and extends hearty good wishes to all friends for a most blessed and prosperous New Year.

CORRECTIONS

By Valdo Petter

After reading the article in the January 2nd issue, entitled "How We Got Our New Testament," I feel constrained to make a few corrections. I should be guilty of denying my Lord and Saviour if I refrained from so doing. I am fully aware that there are many better qualified than I to do this "correcting," but just in case no one else does it, I am undertaking the job.

The New Testament is not primarily a record of great experiences. It is first and always the record of God's redemption of man from sin through His Son, Christ Jesus. "Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." "These are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in his name." Jn. 1:29; 20:31.

The New Testament is not an introduction to Christ. It is the final and full revelation of Christ's redemptive work for mankind during this age of grace—until we shall see Him face to face. Yea, it is Christ Himself: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." Jn. 1:1.

And by no means is it a "fragmentary group of writings that makes no claim to completeness." God never does things fragmentarily or incompletely. The New Testament is one complete writing, together with the Old Testament of which it is an integral part. The New and Old Testament have one Author: God Himself. It is true that He used various human writers, but God dictated to each one who wrote —even as a human author might dictate to several secretaries at different times in writing one book.

The completeness of the Bible as one book is a miracle, considering how many men were used of God in writing it. And that miracle is only explainable by knowing that God is the infallible author.

If the New Testament were incomplete, why should it claim completeness and finality by pronouncing a special course at its close upon any one who should add to it or take away from it? (Rev. 22:18-19.) When "men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit" to produce the Bible (II Pet. 1:21), they could not help but produce a complete and perfect Book, for God is a perfect and complete God. He never does things half way. He is absolute.

"Every Scripture is inspired of God . . . . that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work," II Tim. 3: 16-17. How could the God-inspired Scriptures make a man of God complete in every way, unless it were thoroughly complete itself? And though a "written story of the Gospel may have been unthought of" by early Christians, such a possibility is of no consequence, for God had "thought" of it before the foundation of the world, and He fully intended to have it written —just exactly as it is written. In other words the New Testament was not written because man happened to feel a need of some sort of record, but because God always intended to have such a record made. How else could His glorious gospel be made known? Without His Holy Word, the very work of Christ would have remained unknown and thus wasted. So then per force the Word of God is fully as important as the Cross itself, it was fully planned by God as was Christ's redemptive work—in fact, it is in itself a part of that work, for it IS Christ Himself. (See John 1:1.) If the Bible is fragmentary or incomplete, then Christ is also fragmentary and incomplete.

While it is not certain that Paul wrote Hebrews, there is no warrant for saying that it was not written by him. No one would know the symbolism and service of the Old Testament better than he. Then, too, the whole Epistle has distinctly the type of expression used by Paul, and at the close, 13:23, reference is made to Timothy, who was closely associated with Paul, and mentioned by name in other Epistles of Paul. Also, reference is made to Italy ,13: 24, where Paul was prisoner and from where he wrote epistles.

Revelation is just what the title implies—it is a revelation of things to come to pass, in the future (Rev. 1:1). It is not a mere revelation of the presence of Christ in times of trial. It is infinitely and eternally more than that! Symbols and images, etc., were not used because of persecution, but because God dictated it so, in order to reveal His plans for the end time, for judgment day, etc. Revelation is the pinnacle of the Bible, the tower containing the chimes that sound forth the marvelous and awful truths of the consummation of the Age of Grace and the glorious entrance of all God's true children into the eternal habitations of God.

It was not written by "a John," but by the beloved Apostle John, who also wrote the Gospel of John and the Epistles of John.

Furthermore, the four Gospels DO agree. They furnish one complete record of Christ's earthly ministry. What detail one may omit (not by chance or error, but for a divine purpose, as a close study reveals), the other may supply. John's Gospel does not at any point "correct" the other three Gospels. The Word of God never needs any corrections anywhere. Each part is perfect, and exactly as God wants it to be. It was God's plan that each one of the four Gospels should reveal certain aspects and details of Christ (proving Him to be a King, a Servant, a Son of Man, and the Son of God). There is no "correcting" by any of the Gospel writers. They form one perfect record of Christ.

While it is true that the Spirit of Christ is greater than a collection of writings, it is well to remember that the Bible is not a collection of writings. It is the infallible, complete, perfect, and final Word of God to men in this age of grace. It is Christ Himself who is "The Word," it is the very Holy Spirit breathing to us the will and plan of God, the Father. Christ has never shown "that the written records were only to introduce Him," but He has ever shown that the Bible is Himself. Those who have read and studied it as The Living Word of God can testify to that.

Christ does not anywhere invite mankind to merely enjoy fresh and great experiences with Him. But He does invite man to forsake sin and receive eternal life. If we only want fresh and great experiences, we can find plenty of them outside of Christ. But if we want deliverance from sin and eternal life, we can only get that from Christ. "The Spirit and the Bride say, Come. And he that heareth, let him say, Come. And he that is athirst, let him come: he that will, let him take the water of life freely." "But these are written . . . that believing ye may have life in his name." Rev. 22: 17; Jn. 20:31.

When we use the Bible, we are not "looking back to a historic Jesus," but we are communing with the present living Christ, who has existed before ever the earth was formed, and will exist forever and ever, and whose Word is not ancient history, but a living, supernatural message from God to us.

Christianity stands or falls upon the Bible. If the Bible is fragmentary and incomplete, written at random by men of like passions as we, then Christianity must also be fragmentary and incomplete. But if the Bible is complete and final, one whole Book written by One Divine Author, then Christianity is also complete and perfect—as revealed to us in His Word.

And, thank God, the Bible IS the complete, perfect, inerrant, and inspired Word of God. "Every scripture is inspired of God. For no prophecy ever came by the will of man: but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit." II Tim. 3:16; II Pet. 1:21.

WHERE WILL YOU SPEND ETERNITY?

Where will you spend eternity?
This question comes to you and me!
Tell me, what shall your answer be?
Where will you spend eternity?

Many are choosing Christ today,
Turning from all their sins away,
Heav'n shall their happy portion be,
Where will you spend eternity?

Leaving the straight and narrow way,
Going the downward road today,
Sad will their final ending be,—
Lost through a long eternity!

Repent, believe this very hour,
Trust in the Savior's grace and power,
Then will your joyous answer be,
Saved through a long eternity!

RIGHT CHOICES

Place on the table three jars of ointment or salve.

1. The first is filled with evil smelling salve.
2. The second has no particular odour.
3. The third should be highly perfumed.

Tell the children that you would like to have them tell you which of these is nicest. Pass the jars around one after the other in the order given. When all have tested them ask which they liked the best.

The application—Our lives are like these jars of salve. Some because of the evil in them are like the first. Some are so indifferent that they are like the second. Others are like the third and belong to those spoken of in 2 Cor. 2:15. "Which do you choose to be?"

What Did Religion Mean To Jesus?

Luke 10:25-28; Acts 10:38

This will be the first of a series of closely related topics. The second in the series will be: "What Has Jesus Done For Us?" And the third: "What Does Jesus Require of Us?" This is a very helpful study before us. What did religion mean to Jesus, what did it do for Him, and what did it cause Him to do? Jesus was the world's greatest religious leader, so His religion must have meant a great deal to Him, and it should bring us some helpful lessons for everyday life.

In the first place we are certain that religion for Jesus was not simply something to believe and talk about, for Him it meant a certain kind of life to live—the abundant life. At the age of twelve, when every Jewish boy became "a son of the law," Jesus went to Jerusalem and there in the temple He gave evidence of a special relationship with God, His Father. Then for about eighteen more years He was a loyal son in a peasant carpenter home, helping His foster-father, and after the father's death Jesus became the provider for the family.

When John the Baptist went forth preaching and baptizing, Jesus responded to the call and was baptized. It was at this time that He received His definite commission of Sonship. It was quite fitting that Christ should be tempted as He began His active ministry in order that He might the better become the Savior of tempted men. Just like millions of young people have been tempted at the beginning of their career so Jesus had to make this decision as to the goal and the methods to be used to push on towards that goal.

He decided that the Kingdom must come slowly through spiritual-born individuals, growth from within outward. Service and self-forgetfulness must be outstanding principles. A life of trust, fellowship and communion with God the Father must permeate the Christian life, and if duty leads to the cross there dare be no shrinking away from it. Jesus did not. Jesus' life was a blessed, joyous life, even though He was a man of sorrows. He lived the truly religious life, He had peace within.

"On a hill far away stood an old rugged cross,
The emblem of suffering and shame;
And I love that old cross, where the dearest and best
For a world of lost sinners was slain."

Questions

1. What is the purpose of religion?
2. Trace the religious development of Jesus to the beginning of His public ministry.
3. What was the significance of Jesus' temptations in the wilderness?
4. To what extent did Jesus' religion manifest itself in:— belief, testimony, living?
5. In what ways was Jesus' religious faith of help to Him?
6. What did Jesus' religion cause Him to do?
7. How can Jesus' life and death help us?

What Has Jesus Done For Us?

John 3:16; I Peter 3:18

Last week we studied "What Did Religion Mean To Jesus?" Tonight it is our privilege to study the value and worth of Jesus' life, His teachings and His death for us today. This will be a rich and rewarding study. Let us concentrate on the daily Bible readings:

March 12	Jesus saves us. Acts 4:12.
March 13	Jesus loves us. Romans 8:35-39.
March 14	Jesus reveals the Father. John 1:18.
March 15	Jesus reveals Himself to us. John 14:21.
March 16	Jesus conquered death for us. II Timothy 1:8-10.
March 17	Jesus gives us strength to live. Philippians 4:9-13.
March 18	What has Jesus done for us? John 3:16; 1 Peter 3:18.

There are a number of different ways to conduct this meeting. A very helpful meeting could be had by taking the above Scripture readings as the basis of topics. Christian Endeavorers can not spend too much time with their Bibles. We have there the spiritual experiences of some of the greatest spiritual leaders of all time, the record of the manifestation of God through Jesus Christ, what He taught, what He did for us and what He expects from us. Or you might plan a series of topics on the teachings of Jesus. The following are suggestive teachings: On prayer, the worth of the individual, peace by the way of love, the possibilities and development of spiritual growth, the Christian family, other races and classes, the abundant life here and hereafter, and every Christian a missionary.

It is of interest to meditate on the various things which Christ has done and is doing for us. There are great blessings in store for those who spend time in counting their blessings and publicly announcing them one by one. Let us enumerate some of the things Jesus Christ has done and is doing for us. When we see Christ we see God. He is an example to us, the great Teacher, our Comforter, the true Vine, our ever-present Guide and Helper, our Savior and the Resurrection and the Life.

In our Scripture portion in I Peter we note how "Christ also hath suffered once for our sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God." That will forever remain a mystery to us, we will never be able to understand and explain it, but we can believe it and experiene the wonderful peace which comes in response to a prayer for forgiveness and newness of life.

"Man of Sorrows," what a name
For the Son of God who came Ruined sinners to reclaim;
Hallelujah! What a Savior!

Questions

1. What are some of Jesus' teachings that challenge us most today?
2. In what ways can Jesus' life as an example help us?
3. What methods have you found most helpful to fellowship with Christ?
4. What is the meaning of Christ as our Savior? From what to what?
5. What has Jesus Christ done for you?

"Helps to the Christian Life"

Matt. 22:41; 2 Tim. 3:14-17

Pre-Prayer Service

Where Jesus meets your united needs in prayer.

Program

1. Prelude—"It pays to serve Jesus."
2. Call to Worship—Unison—read or repeat the 100th Psalm.
3. Sentence Prayers by all, asking God to help us to "Be Christian."
4. Announcements.
5. Offertory.
6. Leader's remarks—Last week we discussed the "Beginning of the Christian Life." This week we will continue our discussion in "Helps to the Christian Life." Review some of the discussions, in brief, from last week's topic. Now let us look into the "Guide of Life," as we discuss "The Procedure of this Christian Race." (Ask someone or several to read the given scripture texts, commenting upon them with interesting thoughts or illustrations.)
7. Special Song—"The Bible Stands."
8. Question 1—How is the Bible a source of help to you in your Christian Life? Rom. 15:1-6.
9. Song—"Sweet Hour of Prayer," "What A Friend."
10. Question 2—Why is prayer the "Breath" of every Christian's life? Eph. 1:15-23.
11. Song—"Leaning on the Everlasting Arms."
12. Question 3—How much does Christian Fellowship mean to me in my Christian life? Is it ever a hindrance? Gal. 5:13.
13. Song—"Wonderful Peace."
14. Question 4—Explain "Experience" is a dear teacher. Can you profit thereby? I Cor. 2:1-5.
15. Song—"Tell me the Story of Jesus."
16. Question 5—How much the preaching of His Word be accepted and heeded? Luke 4:16-21.
17. Song—"All for Jesus."
18. Question 6—How does the reading of other books enable me to grow in grace and in favor with God and man? Rev. 2:1-7.
19. Closing remarks by Counsellor or Pastor.
20. Stand and several will lead out while we all pray for the Christians and Missionaries in ALL foreign lands and for those who are yet living in sin, after which we will repeat together the Christian Endeavor Benediction.

Thoughts

Our Christian life must be fed daily, even as our body needs food. Satan will attack a young Christian from every angle because of his defeat in you, so if Christ is to continue to possess us and we to serve Him only, we need to know all we can learn about Him and aim to be like Him. This is only possible as we see and know His image by reading and studying the Scriptures and praying; then testifying and entering in upon some kind of services for Him. Look around you, opportunities are waiting with outstretched hands in entreaty to you. Be willing to do small things first. Do not look too much to others. Keep your eyes upon the image of Jesus whom you are striving to be like and to serve. Take an inventory of your life at the close of each day, each week, each month and each year, and watch Christ growing in your life. Be sure it is Christ and not "I." Be humble, be sure, be willing—then go ahead! You will either grow or backslide. In every heart there is a cross and a throne. If Jesus is on the throne of our heart, self or fleshly desires are on the cross. If our "old self," nature, desires, aims, ambitions, pleasures, are not on the cross, then Satan is on the throne.

Who reigns in your heart? Gal. 5:24, 25, 26.

Qualities of a Christian

Gal. 5:22, 23

"Is my life a disappointment
To the One who loves my soul?
Have I given ALL to Jesus?
Is my life in His control?
He's the Lily of the Valley,
Fairest of the fair is He;
Does my life reflect His glory?
Can the world see Christ in me?"

Pre-Prayer Service

Mirrors

LEADER: Tonight we are all going to take a mirror and hold it before ourselves as we discuss the "Qualities of a Christian." You know a mirror is a tell-tale Truth Bearer. It reveals us as others see us. It does not reveal someone else's beauty and failures, but only our own as we ourselves stand before the glass.

Tonight we will use God's Word as the mirror and as we continue the discussion let us put down all of our spiritual umbrellas and let the rain from heaven pour showers of blessings upon our own souls instead of letting the rain run off our umbrellas on to everyone around us.

Suitable Songs

"I Would Be True." (Unison.)
"Loyalty, Loyalty, Loyalty to Christ."
"True Hearted, Whole Hearted." (Duet.)
"I Love Him." (Male Quartette.)
"Lord, I Want To Be A Christian." (Unison.)

"Mirror Foundation for Talks"

Gal. 5:22, 23, "But the fruit (singular) of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law." Rom. 8:9, "Now if any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of His."

1. Name as many qualities of a true Christian as you can (write them on a blackboard if possible). Discuss them individually relating all that is involved in such a state or quality. Use the Scripture as much as possible and some personal experiences as illustrations.

Here are some suggested qualities if many should not be suggested by the group.

Reverence—Matt. 6:9. Love—1 Cor. 13:1-8. Unselfishness—Phil. 2:1-11. Service—I Cor. 15:58. Loyalty—John 15:11-15. Peaceableness—Rom. 12:18.

The Christian life a race—Heb. 12:1-3. The Christian life is bearing a cross—Matt. 16:12. The Christian life is the life of a soldier—Eph. 6:10, 11 . Christian life is like a branch—Jno. 15:1. Christians as sheep—Jno. 10:14. Christians as Sons of God.—1 John 3:1, 2.

Open Discussions

1. A little girl said, "I was a peacemaker today." "How?" "I knew something I didn't tell," she replied. Was she a peacemaker or not? Discuss it.

2. Someone says, "I do not believe this "fruit" is to be found, every day, and all day, and always in the life of any Christian while we are yet here upon earth and in the flesh. Discuss it. You will notice if we haven't ALL we haven't any fruit. It does not say "fruits," but "fruit;" all these qualities are included in the "Fruit of the Spirit."

Ask your pastor to give a short discussion of the topic, summing up the "Qualities of a Christian," and closing in a consecration prayer. Each member for himself, asking God to purge your life of hindrances and for a Victorious Life.

Privileges of Junior Workers

Spurgeon once said: "Will you be angry if I say that a boy is more worth saving than a man? It is infinite mercy on God's part to save those who are seventy; for what good can they now do with the fag end of their lives? When we get to be fifty or sixty, we are almost worn out; and if we have spent all our early days with the devil, what remains for God? But these dear boys and girls—there is something to be made out of them. If now they yield themselves to Christ, they may have a long, happy and holy life before them in which they may serve God with all their hearts. Who knows what glory God may have of them? Heathen lands may call them blessed. Whole nations may be enlightened by them. Oh, brethren and sisters, let us estimate children at their true valuation, and we shall not keep them back, but we shall be eager to lead them to Jesus at once."

When we view children's work as Spurgeon did, it becomes truly a privilege rather than a duty. The faithful Junior worker feels amply repaid for any sacrifice she may make. The reward which comes first is found in the love and loyalty given by the boys and girls. Perhaps no other person outside the home has so great an entrance into the child heart. The little confidence, the childish embrace or the shy "I love you" of small Juniors are greater rewards than gold.

The Junior superintendent has the privilege of dealing with the boy and girl at the best time in life for the learning of scripture. A "grown-up" Junior who had moved to a distant state one day wrote her former superintendent: "They call me the Bible-verse lady here because I can quote so many more verses than the other ladies." She had learned them in Junior C. E.

The Junior society is a good missionary training school. Boys and girls listen with undivided attention to the telling of a mission story. And how they love to give and work for missions! An out-standing missionary on the field today tells of having heard the call to service when but a child. Happy, indeed, the superintendent who can so lead those in her charge that they will early yield their lives to the Lord for service.

The Junior worker is in a position to help mold the character of those in her society. Her work here is especially important when Juniors come from non-Christian homes. The superintendent who wins their love may do much by example as well as precept.

Last and most important of all, she has the privilege of leading boys and girls to accept Christ as Savior. This fact calls to mind the old story of a minister in Scotland. He was thought by some to have outlived his usefulness because during one year of his ministry there had been but one person saved and that one only a boy. That boy was Robert Moffat who became such a blessing to the world and especially to Africa where he labored faithfully as one of its early missionaries. The winning of even one boy or girl for Christ is true joy and will surely result in blessing. It is extremely important that boys and girls not only know of Christ but really know Him. Let no Junior worker feel that her work is unimportant or to be lightly considered. One entrusted with the work of winning boys and girls to Christ, teaching them the Word and the value of prayer and leading them out into lives of yieldedness to Him has a high calling indeed.

Topic:—Jesus' and Our Friendship for the Poor.

Matt. 19:21; 25:34-45

Long before any of us were born, before even the earth was created, Jesus the Son of God lived in heaven, that happy home where there is no need. He loved us so much that one day He left His home in heaven, came to earth and became poor not only that He might save us but that He might better help us. He knows how it feels to be tired, hungry and alone. Always He was especially kind and loving to those who were in need. When we become His children and His love fills our hearts, we too, love and want to help those who are poor. It may be that some of you feel that you have nothing to give, but no matter how poor you are someone needs you. Sometimes one can give a bit of help that will be worth more than money. I just heard of a girl who was greatly loved because she was cheery and ready to comfort and help anyone who needed her either at home or outside. In Prov. 19:17 God gave a very special promise to those who help the poor. "He that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again." Here is a little poem that is good to think about if we should ever get tired of giving:

"What! Giving again?" I asked in dismay,
"And must I keep giving and giving away?"
"Oh no," said the angel, piercing me through,
"Just give till the Father stops giving to you!"

Plans for the Meeting

It will be necessary to guard against being too far-sighted in the study today. Juniors should know of need in far-away places, but we must not overlook that which lies near at hand. Almost every community and surely every city has people who lack even necessities. Plan something definite the Juniors may do, remembering that often the greatest need is not financial. Perhaps a neighbor is ill or sad and would appreciate a visit with some songs by the Juniors.

Questions

1. Why do you think Jesus lived on earth as a poor man?
2. How did He help poor people?
3. Tell some things Jesus said about poor people.
4. What are some things poor folks need beside money?
5. How can we help?

Daily Readings

Helping the Poor—Matt. 6:1-4.
Imitating God—Luke 6:30-36.
Jesus Himself was poor—Matt. 8:18-20.
Loving aid—Acts 20:35.
Practical Help—Acts 9:36-43.
Friend of the poor—Job 19:11-16.

Topic:—An Invitation to Follow Jesus.

Matt. 4:18-22

An invitation! That word reminds us of ever so many interesting things, doesn't it? Parties, games, picnics, visits, weddings. The thought of an invitation almost always brings a little happy thrill. We are thinking today of an invitation which, if accepted, will bring more joy than any other and it is sent to everybody. Did you ever try reading John 3:16 using your name instead of the words "world" and "whosoever?" That is the way Jesus would have us think of it, for that is exactly what it means. Every person has a right to read his or her name into the verse. What would you think if you were to invite a group of boys and girls to a lovely party and only two or three would come? You would be terribly disappointed, I am sure. And Jesus is grieved when people do not accept His invitation. He calls us first to believe on Him, then to follow Him all of our lives. It pays to accept His invitation right now. A little boy was told to draw a straight line, but the teacher soon saw that it was crooked and told him. He carelessly said, "I know it is, but I'll straighten it after a while." The teacher reminded him that the line would never look as nice as if he had made it straight in the first place. Jesus gives such joy that we should be glad to accept His invitation now and have a whole and useful life.

Plans for the Meeting

The superintendent may use the story of the boy and the crooked line as a background for her talk. Draw two lines on the blackboard, one straight and the other crooked. Both represent people. The first follow Jesus closely, but the others are careless. Show how difficult it is to go back and straighten a line that has once been crooked. Those who have been saved late in life are always sorry for the "crooked line" of earlier years. Use the daily readings in the order in which they are given.

Questions

1. Why should we accept Jesus' invitation?
2. What is the first step in following Jesus? See Acts 16:31.
3. How many verses can you find in which Jesus said "Follow me?" Read some of them.
4. How may we know the way to follow?
5. What reward does Jesus give to those who follow Him?

Daily Readings

Jesus' invitation—Rev. 22:17.
Paul's invitation—2 Cor. 5:20, 21.
Learn from Jesus—Matt. 11:28-30.
Following Jesus' Teaching—John 8:12.
Reward for following—John 12:26.
Abide with Jesus—John 15:1-8.

Carlock, Illinois,

Dear Juniors and Junior Workers:

Greetings in the name of Jesus. What a wonderful opportunity we have of learning to know our Bible, God's Holy Word, through our study of Christian Endeavor lessons this year.

As we take a general survey of the topics for the year we find our general topic to be centered about the word "Work," but subdividing itself into two months of missionary study from the viewpoint of missions and missionary work in lands on different parts of the world.

Each month of the year we have special day programs emphasized.

Beginning in June and continuing until October we are making a study of Bible characters both from the Old and New Testament.

Let us make a special endeavor to promote the study of the Word and encourage the children to do much reading and memorizing.

Many rural churches must disband during the next few months either because of road conditions or to save expense of fuel, so I am hoping our Juniors with their superintendents may meet in the home of some member on Sunday afternoon or evening or even during the week and still continue their Endeavor work.

If it is impossible to meet, get directions with someone familiar with your work and study at home, so you can better acquaint yourselves with your Bible, until the time presents itself for you to again meet as a society.

May I hear from many of the Juniors or Superintendents, as to what your plans are, and may we become better acquainted.

Your Friend,
Mrs. Ali Stahly,
Junior Conference Supt.,
Central Conference.

Modern life calls for energy and more energy. It needs God more and more, even if it seeks Him less and less. Only in God is there an exhaustless reservoir of strength. "They shall run and not be weary" was said long ago of those who trust in God.—Sel.

"Thou shalt call His name JESUS: for He shall save His people from their sins (Matt. 1:21).

THE S. S. LESSONS

March 11

Parables of the Kingdom

Lesson Text—Matthew 12:31-33; 44-52

Golden Text—Of the increase of His government and of peace there shall be no end. Isa. 9:7.

Matthew 13 is the parable chapter of the New Testament. These parables were given by Jesus to teach certain truths concerning the kingdom of God. Jesus never defined the kingdom of God but He describes it very clearly in the parables He gives. A parable is an earthly story with a heavenly meaning. Jesus as a great teacher used this form to clothe His truth in beauty and to make it more attractive to the common hearer. On the other hand, to the prejudiced mind of the Pharisee it may be only a story, but later, after the personal element is forgotten, truth may grip his mind and heart.

This lesson is a very significant one because there is very much needed in the church today a kingdom of God movement. The ordinary church member knows very little about the kingdom as a practical truth. There are those who speculate about it and make it entirely a future and materialistic kingdom such as the Jews were looking for when Jesus came. On the other hand, there are those who think that we must first have universal peace and common honesty among all men before we can have the kingdom. Jesus and Paul went into the kingdom in a world worse than ours. Until we are in the kingdom we can not work for the kingdom. The kingdom is spiritual. It means God's rule in the human heart. Wherever God rules in a heart or in an institution, there is the kingdom of God.

Jesus believed the kingdom was the supreme good of life. This is illustrated in the parable of the merchant finding the pearl of great price, and also the treasure hid in a field. It is something for which we need to sacrifice all to obtain it.

Jesus next illustrates the growth of the kingdom outward and inward by the parables of the mustard seed and leaven. He said the kingdom is like a seed sown. When a farmer puts seed in the ground it grows not simply because he has cultivated the soil and there is sunshine and moisture, because a stone does not grow regardless of the environment, but the seed has an inward germ, a vitality, an inherent force. So is the kingdom. We can not build the kingdom or devise it with our own human ingenuity, it has a vitality all its own from which it grows in the heart of man. Someone has said that the farmer furnishes five per cent and God ninety-five per cent in the success of a crop. So it is with the kingdom. God brings the kingdom, He plants it in the human heart. This is the second great truth of the kingdom as a seed. Seed is adapted to the soil in which it is to grow. It will not grow anywhere else. So is the kingdom of God, it does not come out of the sky and exist in space, but it grows in the heart of man. Here are the hopes for the kingdom. Of course it is a mystery and a miracle, so is the growing of any seed that is put in the ground. Because of man's origin and the nature of his life and the possibilities within him, he is good soil in which to plant the kingdom.

The third great truth in this parable is the development from the seed to the full fruitage, from the acorn to the oak, from the wheat seed to the wheat stalk with a head of wheat on it, from the mustard seed to the mustard bush. This is an orderly development. We must wait for the blade and then the corn and then the harvest. We become impatient. You can not produce wheat sooner than the proper time for its development, so it is with the kingdom. Jesus had faith in the kingdom when He brought it and we must have faith in its development and consummation.

The kingdom is also as leaven. This has often been looked upon as meaning evil because leaven is referred to a number of times as meaning evil. But the same word may have two meanings just the opposite. The devil is referred to as a roaring lion, but Jesus is also referred to as the lion of the tribe of Judah. Leaven was that which the women took and put in the dough, not to spoil the dough, but to make it rise so she could have bread. It was a power in a mass. Leaven is a silent agency. You can't hear seed grow nor leaven work. We like noise in America. Music must be jazzy. Works of art must have loud colors. We want notoriety, reputation, what is the news? Our nerves are tuned to the noise of the city and machinery. Jesus uses the illustration of leaven, light and salt. These are silent agencies that work in the lump of the mass of humanity. The Jews were looking for a spectacular kingdom, one with a great king on the throne, armies to subdue other nations, but Jesus said, the kingdom works quietly, in an unassuming way, it comes like the springtime and operates like love and friendship. Leaven works inward and invisible.

The third element of leaven is the fact that it works like a contagion until the whole is leaven. Jesus established the kingdom, but not by the sword. He chose twelve disciples and lived with them that He might send them forth as apostles. The spirit of the kingdom broadens on the world like light, preserves like salt and transforms like leaven. Have you contacted with Jesus in such a way that your life is leaven, or are you the dough that has to be leavened?

Finally, there is the responsibility in relation to the kingdom. There are those who will accept and those who will refuse. Every day is a day of judgment, every act and habit is a link in the chain which either anchors you in protection or a chain which binds you in slavery. May we then, as the last parable suggests, bring out of the treasure of our thinking things old and new and with them build our lives in the kingdom of God.

Jesus' Response to Faith

Lesson Text—Matt. 15:21-31

Golden Text—Ask and it shall be given you, seek, and ye shall find, knock and it shall be opened unto you. Matt. 7:7.

In this lesson we find Jesus for the first time and only time outside of the borders of Palestine.(He was in Gentile territory, in the parts of Tyre and Sidon. He went there rather to get away for time of meditation and to be with His disciples. Jesus spent most of His efforts with His own people. He said, "I was not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." But while they were in the parts of Tyre and Sidon, a Gentile woman came and begged Jesus to cast a devil out of her daughter. Jesus at first ignored her, but she kept on pleading. Finally He said to her in terms of the Jews, you are a dog and I came to feed the children bread. But the woman said, I am willing to accept that position, but even a dog eats the crumbs that fall from the master's table. Jesus was testing her faith. He helped her daughter. Jesus marvelled only twice in His life; once at the unbelief of His own brethren and the other of the faith to be found in even such as this woman.

The title of the lesson is "Jesus' Response to Faith." And we can not help but raise the question: What is faith? You hear some people talk about the faith of our fathers and defending the faith. Faith often is interpreted as a set of beliefs, a creed handed down which it is our business to defend and protect. On that basis this woman could not have had faith. She had no creed. She knew nothing about Jesus, but still she had faith. She did believe, but not in any statements that Jesus made, but she believed in Jesus. Faith is trust and confidence in a person. Jesus could never depend in His day on the Scribes and Pharisees who had very carefully worked out their theological beliefs and even condemned Jesus because He did not say things as they had said them. Jesus saw more hope in the Publican and in the Gentile woman than He did in the defense mechanism of the Pharisee.

Faith to the early Christian church did not mean protection, complacency and hiding oneself in an institution, but faith to them meant risking their lives, an adventure, facing the enemy because they believed in a person. Paul said, "I know whom I have believed."

MARRIAGE

May-Orendorff.—On Tuesday morning, at 11 o'clock, at the home of Rev. George I. Gundy, in Meadows, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Velda Lucile May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ora May, to Dale D. Orendorff, of Flanagan. They were attended by Miss Martha Springer, of Princeton, and Roy Schertz, of Flanagan. The single ring ceremony was used.

The bride wore a dress of salmon-colored flat crepe, with metallic trimmings, and accessories to match. She has spent all her life in this vicinity, and was a student in the Chenoa Community High School.

Mr. Orendorff is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Orendorff, of Flanagan. He is a graduate of the Flanagan high school, with the class of 1929, and spent one year in college at Goshen, Indiana.

Following the ceremony, the couple left for the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held in their honor. On Wednesday evening, a reception was held for them at the home of the groom's parents.

At present, they will remain with the bride's parents, but after March 1 will be at home on the farm south of Flanagan, owned by the groom's father. A large circle of friends and acquaintances are extending the young couple cordial wishes for a happy life.

DEATHS

Sauder.—Ida Mae, daughter of Emanuel and Magdalena Weaver, was born in Nappanee, Ind., August 3, 1882. On June 20, 1907, she was united in marriage to Albert Sauder of Archbold, Ohio, who together shared the joys and sorrows of life for nearly 27 years. To this union were born three sons, Floyd H., Roy E., and Harley D. In her youth she accepted Christ as her Savior and united with the Forks Mennonite Church near Middlebury, Ind., later changing her membership to the Central A. M. church at Archbold, Ohio. Her loyalty and faithfulness to her church and family was an inspiration to all who knew her. On Monday night, January 22, she took sick with pleurisy, which later developed into pneumonia, and on the evening of January 29, 1934, she peacefully fell asleep in Jesus at the age of 51 years, 5 months, 26 days. She leaves to mourn her sudden and unexpected departure, her sorrowing husband, three sons, daughter-in-law, three brothers and three sisters, Mrs. C. P. Shidler, Samuel E. and John of Goshen, Ind., Mrs. Earl Salzman and Mrs. Chester Dumithan of Topeka, Ind., and William B. of Danvers, Ill., also a host of relatives and friends. Mother, father, and four brothers preceded her in death. She will be greatly missed in the home, church and community.

Her willing hands will toil for us no more,
Her voice is still.
Fond hopes are shattered, hearts are sore,
Yet, 'tis His will.
God called dear mother home to rest,
Away from pain and care.
Some day, oh happy time, 'twill not be long,
We'll meet her there.

I. S. Mishler.—I. S. Mishler passed away at his home near Carlock, Ill., in Dry Grove township, Friday night, December 15, 1933. He had been in ill health for a number of years. He was the son of Rev. Samuel and Catherine Miller Mishler, born in Owen county, Ind., February 21, 1873, the youngest son among eleven children. With his parents he came to Illinois when a child. He married Miss Hattie Metzger of Kappa, January 1, 1904, and she survives with their six children, four sons, and two daughters: Lawrence of Carlock, Lloyd of Normal, and Earl, Marie, Raymond, and Luella, at home; two brothers and three sisters. They are Emanuel of Goodman, Mo., Eli, of Carlock; Mrs. Fannie McClure of Carlock; Mrs. Mollie Weirman of Bravoria, Tex.; and Mrs. Saville Stephens of Carlock. He accepted Christ as his Savior in his younger days and united with the East White Oak Mennonite church of which he was a member at the time of his death.

The funeral was held on Sunday, December 17, at 1:30 at the home and 2:00 P. M. at the church. Burial was in the East White Oak Cemetery. Services were in charge of the Rev. R. J. Zehr, pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. F. Troyer. The text Rev. Zehr used was Matt. 24:44.

Guth.—Clara Evelyn, daughter of Samuel and Ida Ropp Guth, was born at Goodland, Indiana, July 16. Her parents moved to Washington, Ill., when she was a small child, later coming to Huntley when she was nine years old. She was a graduate of Huntley high and taught several years in and about Huntley. For several years she was employed by the Bell Telephone Co., and later the Union National Bank of Elgin, until failing health forced her to give up her work. She had been in failing health for the past five years. She united with the Huntley Congregational church in early girlhood, still being a member at the time of her death. She died December 8, at Marshallton, Del. She leaves her mother, Mrs. Ida Guth, three sister: Mrs. Eunice Fulmer of Wilmington, Delaware; Mrs. Elsie Sharpnack, and Orva Guth, of Maywood, Ill.; two brothers, Arlo and Willie, of Huntley. Her father and one brother, Kenneth, preceded her in death. Clara was of a very loving disposition, patient during her long illness, and always cheerful. She was a talented musician. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn her loss.

Funeral services were in charge of Rev. G. I. Gundy of Meadows, Ill.

Hostetler.—Mrs. Amelia Kauffman Hostetler died at her home suddenly, Thursday evening, February 1, 1934. She had been in poor health for several years.

Amelia Jane was born on April 9, 1875, the daughter of Jonathan and Gertrude Sharp Kauffman, on a farm two miles southwest of here. On June 16, 1912, she was married to John E. Hostetler. She is survived by her husband, two sisters, Mrs. Irene Reaba and Mrs. Anna Zook, both of Congerville; two brothers, David of Congerville, and Frank of Cooper, Iowa; two half-sisters, Mrs. Sarah Plank of Danvers and Mrs. Tobitha Gingerich of Lada; a large number of nieces and nephews, and other relatives and friends.

She became a member of the Mennonite church in early youth and remained true until the end. She was a member of the Ladies Aid Society and the Home Department of this church.

She will be greatly missed in the home, church and community, but we hope to meet again.

Funeral was in charge of Geo. I. Gundy, assisted by Rev. Smith of Eureka, Ill., and Rev. I. H. King of Carlock, Ill.

Suter.—Peter C. Suter, Pandora, Ohio, passed to his reward on Tuesday, January 23, 1934, having attained the age of 77 years and 12 days. His wife and one child preceded him in death. Four sons and four daughters survive to mourn the loss of their father. In early manhood Mr. Suter united with the Mennonite Church and remained a loyal and active member all through life. He had much to do with making Sunday school work a part of the church life of his home community. He served for many years as S. S. Superintendent, and later as deacon of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio. He was a Sunday school teacher until his health failed two years ago. He was one of the promoters and trustees of Bluffton College. He took a deep interest in the college to the close of his life. In early life he taught eleven terms of school, through which he exerted a strong influence in the community outside his own church. Funeral services were conducted at the Grace Mennonite Church, January 25, 1934, by his pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer.

ANNUAL REPORT

of Women's Missionary Society, Moundridge, Kans.

We had twelve meetings during the year. We meet the first Thursday of every month. Our membership is 35 at present. Average attendance 20, and 18 visitors for the year. We received 33 letters from our missionaries, which were read at the meetings and keep us informed with the work. 25 "Thank you" cards were also read. These came from our friends here at home who have either been remembered with flowers or visited by our Mission Committee, as they made 125 visits and sent 143 bouquets. Tree birthday card showers were given to our older sisters.

Mission "News and Notes" are read every month except July and August, when it is not published.

Monthly offerings amounted to $57.61, or an average of $4.80 pei meeting. Birthday offerings were $18.10. These offerings are used for mission purposes. Thirteen mission stations were remembered with $3.00 per station, to help with their Christmas celebrations.

We are also sending Christmas greetings to all of our foreign missionaries. Our society supports one Bible woman and two orphans. $15.00 is sent annually to the Leper Asylum in India. This money, also the money sent for Christmas, is raised by subscriptions.

Our annual mission program was held last year in November when Miss Seike gave a talk on Korea. Offering amounted to $17.60, which was given for Home and Foreign Missions.

In June we had our annual picnic. Missionary Boehrs from China were with us at this time and gave very interesting talks about their work. Collection amounted to $11.00, which was given to Rev. and Mrs. Boehr.

We had two canned fruit showers, amounting to about 150 quarts, including Jams, Jellies, Pickles, etc.

Sixteen garments were made and sent to India.

One member moved away and three members were called to their heavenly home.

We have gained one new member, but hope to have several more in the near future.

Total Receipts were $268.09. Disbursements $247.04.

The Quilting Committee reports that we have finished thirteen quilts during the year. Proceeds amounted to $170.88, of which $46.00 was applied to foreign missions, and $35.00 to home mission work, $15.00 for relief work and $15.00 for a sterilizer to India. Since the society started quilting in 1927 we have completed 117 quilts. Total receipts for this work amounted to $1273.83, most of which was used for mission purposes.

E. Ruth, Secretary.

RESOLUTIONS

Jonathan Edwards' resolutions were these:

Resolved, to live with all my might while I do live.

Resolved, never to lose one moment of time, but improve it in the most profitable way I possibly can.

Resolved, never to do anything which I should despise, or think meanly of in another.

Resolved, never to do anything out of revenge.

Resolved, never to do anything which I should be afraid to do if it were the last hour of my life.—Selected.

JOTTINGS

There lies before the writer a file of the "Botschafter," the first Mennonite paper published in this country. It was edited and published by Rev. John Oberholtzer, one of the founders of the General Conference. John Oberholtzer was a blacksmith and the work of editing and printing the paper was done in a corner of his shop. Deacon Allen Bleam of West Swamp, Pa., church, who passed to his eternal reward some weeks ago, owned the anvil over which father Oberholtzer sweated and worked.

The Mennonite church in Hamburg, Germany, one of the influential churches in our denomination, needed a new church several centuries ago. Money for building was scarce. Some of the membership were interested in the whaling industry and these made a pledge that they would devote a certain percentage of their profits for the year toward the erection of the church. It then happened that their ships made a record catch that season and the share of the proceeds that went to the church was sufficient to meet the needs of the congregation.

During the World War when many of the young Mennonites served in the Hospital Corps of the Czar's army, it happened that some of them were taken prisoner. These were sent into Germany to work on farms. Upon arriving at their location, the man on whose farm they were placed was surprised to discover that they spoke German as well as he did. It soon developed that he, too, was a Mennonite, and instead of giving the prisoners quarters in the stable, as was his custom, they were taken into the house and treated as welcome guests.

Bro. and Sister Joseph A Schrock, members of the Trenton, Ohio, church celebrated their Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary on Sunday, February 18th. Brother Schrock is one of the few surviving students of the Wadsworth, O., school, which was the first institution for higher education established by the Mennonites of America. Brother Schrock attended the school about the year 1870.

Having completed 25 years in the service as a deaconess in The Bethel Home and Hospital at Newton, Kansas, Sister Hillegonda van der Smissen was the guest at a celebration held in her honor at the Deaconess Home. Sister Hillegonda entered the Home February 1, 1909. She is the daughter of the late Rev. C. J. van der Smissen, who was principal of the Wadsworth, Ohio, school. Her brother, Rev. C. H. A. van Smissen of Newton was among those present. Rev. van der Smissen was for many years the editor of the Bundesbote, the German organ of the General Conference.

An interesting story comes to us from years back. It appears that a certain man and his family had moved into a section of the country where they were strangers. The father, after returning home from the store, remarked to his boys that the country was full of Mennonites. The next morning he observed that his boys had their guns with them and were starting across the field. Upon asking them what they intended to do they replied that they were out gunning for Mennonites.

The recent death of Bro. John Egley, of Philadelphia, recalls the fact that he came to America from the Frederickstadt church in Schleswig-Holstein, a Mennonite congregation that dates back to the time of Menno Simon. Bro. Egley had the distinction of being one of the two oldest members of the First Church, serving as its secretary for a number of years during the early part of that church's history.

The Holy City, an oratorio by Gaul, was presented to an appreciative audience in the Eden church, Moundridge, Kansas, by the local choir under the direction of Jacob J. Goering. The soloists were: Adina Goering, Viola Schrag, Ben Zerger, and Peter Krehbiel. Verne Schrag was the pianist.

Rev. Andrew Shelly, who for a number of terms served as the president of the General Conference, once was visiting in a High German community and, arriving late one evening at a place, informed the host that he had left his "Lutzer," the Pennsylvania word for lantern, in his buggy and must go out and fetch it. Not knowing what he meant by "Lutzer" the family supposed it must be his wife and so made preparations for her reception. Imagine their surprise when he came into the house bringing not Mrs. Shelly, but his lantern.

In Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, there stands an old stone house. It was built in 1707 by William Rittenhouse, the first Mennonite minister in America, who was also America's first paper maker. The house is preserved and maintained by the Park Commission because it was also the birthplace of David Rittenhouse, a descendant of William. David Rittenhouse was a public character before and after the period of the Revolutionary war. He was noted as an astronomer and a statesman, having served as a member of the Committee of Safety during the period of the war and, after the establishment of the Constitution, as the first mint-master. The early coins of the country were minted under his direction. The orginal mint building was torn down some years ago.

A commission of the League of Nations recently visited the Mennonite settlement in the Chaco, Paraguay, and interviewed some of the settlers. The mission of the Commission was to endeavor to have the warring Bolivians and Paraguayans find some other way for settling their differences instead of continuing their present war.

Rev. Harvey Allebach, a former editor of The Mennonite, was a noted botanist whose fame for his large knowledge of this subject spread over the eastern part of Pennsylvania. Among other contributions to the science for which he was responsible was the discovery and identification of a hybred oak, the only one known to exist. Efforts have been made to purchase the tree and its site and set it apart as a memorial to him.

Dr. Lucy Wilson, the first woman to receive the $10,000,000 Bock Prize for having done outstanding work for the community in Philadelphia, in a recent radio address said that the education of the American youths could not reach its highest ideals until the moneys spent for military purposes were applied to education.

A newspaper report from Kansas brings the information that a company of Mennonites have gone to New Mexico from Kansas to locate a new colony near Las Cruces, New Mexico. There are from 75 to 100 persons in the party, most of whom are members of the Krimmer Mennonite Brethren church.

One of the newest ventures of Bluffton College is the organization of its graduates into The Alumni Loyalty Foundation. As every institution of this kind must depend upon its Alumni to help, foster and promote the interests of their Alma Mater, it is expected that this new venture will be of great worth to the College.

The Quakertown, Band, an outstanding musical organization of the community, makes it an annual practice to attend church services on its anniversary day. This fell this year on February 25, on which date the Band attended services at the Bethany Mennonite church. Rev. A. S. Roshenberger, the pastor, preached an appropriate sermon.

Every other week Bethel College is broadcasting from station KFH at Wichita, Kansas. These broadcasts began February 14 and will continue indefinitely. The college octette appeared on the first program. Later on a program is to be given by the girls' quartet, the brass sextette, the chorus and the musical faculty. Several speakers are also to appear.

The following suggestive note from Dr. S. K. Mosiman of Bluffton College is worthy of consideration in every rural church: "Inasmuch as the General Conference suggests that the Executive Committee work out a plan for meeting the obligations of the various Boards, Publication, Home and Foreign Mission, and Education, the following item taken from the Associated Press might be suggestive:

'The country church of the South is keeping step with improved economic conditions and through a plan of its own making the God's Acre Plan. Preachers are being paid, debts are being liquidated, and mortgages destroyed, thanks to the soil and the determination of those who till it. The plan is simple. The rural church member simply sets aside one acre of his land, or any amount he may desire, for the benefit of the church. Cotton, corn or grain is planted and after the harvest the money thus derived is poured into the church coffers.' It seems to me that the plan has real merit and if every one would till God's Acre, as well as it deserves to be tilled, the rest of the fields might also receive better care."

A LETTER

RIPE FIELDS

Opportunity for saving souls is a keen concern of the consecrated child of God today who is looking for the soon coming of our Lord—"the small means at my disposal to help spread the glad tidings—the good news that salvation is to be had, must be used to win fruitful results now, for the glory of God."

Some question, whether it is wise to make great preparation by building up institutions of learning or to spend much time in the study of languages or in seeking to educate the masses. They desire a turn-over for God today in all they plan and do. Surely this is a noble spirit for a child of God to have. However, it must be left open to each child of God to follow the course in life, into which they feel the Holy Spirit is leading them.

The Secretary of the Northern Bible Society has for thirty-five years keenly appreciated the open door for soul-saving throughout our northern States among people in thinly settled settlements, where children are growing to manhood and womanhood having some school opportunities so that early in life they can read the Gospel of Jesus Christ and as this glorious Book comes into their hands what a world of thought it opens up to them—as in their sections are no churches—no radios—and no Bibles.

The following is briefly told.—A Christian young woman teaching school in a settlement such as is above described. She felt a concern for these spiritual needy families and our Society came in contact with her and on three occasions a small lot of Bibles and Testaments were sent her until the entire community had been taken care of. And these are the results which have just recently come to the knowledge of our Society. Quite a few of the boys and girls in that settlement were converted to Christ and have since grown up and are now scattered, but are leading Christian lives. Three young men are engaged in business in Minneapolis and are prospering and are likewise leading Christian lives today. Thank God! Would you please help us send out the Missionary that never fails —The Bible?

Northern Bible Society.

See how precious it is to wait upon God! See how those who do so are not confounded (Psalm 22:5). Their faith and patience may long and sharply be tried; but in the end it will most assuredly be seen that those who know God, He will honor (1 Sam. 2:30), and will not suffer them to be put to shame (Isa. 54:4).—George Muller.

MISSIONARY NUMBER

HOME MISSIONS

For the many contributions received from congregations and private persons during the holidays, the Home Mission Board desires to express their heartfelt gratitude to all contributors, and sincerely wishes them a most prosperous year during which we hope they will remember our treasury generously so the work can go on and the workers exist.

The Work in Pennsylvania

With unabated devotion our workers are pursuing their task. Would you be interested to pay a visit to the different stations? We have more stations in this State than any other in the country. Let us begin with the Mountain Mission near East Freedom, about sixteen miles south of Altoona. We leave the highway at East Freedom for a four-mile drive into the mountains, but you will be surprised to see that the road is also hard surfaced to within about a mile of the mission, and is now to be continued past the Smith Corner chapel where our mission is located. It is a rather rough country and it is evident that the people as a rule are poor, the farms are small and the buildings likewise, and many were cheaply constructed, and it requires the strictest economy to exist in such a place. These people had little educational advantages and but for the influence of the little mission in their midst, their moral standard would be low.

Here on the corner stands a little chapel that will seat several hundred people, it is kept in good condition, having just lately received a new roof at a considerable sacrifice of the people and the workers. Back of the chapel is a little bungalow in which Brother and Sister Sylvan Lehman live who have charge of the work here. A private electric plant in the home supplies both home and chapel with electric light. The place is surrounded with steep hills and rather dense forests. In this chapel a Sunday School and service is held, the latter twice every Lord's Day, and while the attendance is not large, yet the number who gather in proportion to the membership might even fill the pastor of a large congregation with envy. There is also a midweek service on Wednesday night and a Bible class which meets on Friday evening. If you ever have the privilege of speaking to these people you will have an attentive audience. The mission has been a benediction to the people in the community, transforming many lives and strengthening them in the faith. The writer can notice a great improvement in the conditions there during the past years since we took over the work.

Now let us go back to Altoona, a city of over eighty thousand population and depending almost entirely on the industries that are located there, foremost among them are the shops of the Pennsylvania Railway System. Many thousand people work in these shops in normal times, but now they seem almost deserted.

There are, perhaps, few towns that are so hard hit by the depression as this one. This is the cause of the extreme poverty and need among the patrons of our mission.

Have you a good pair of lungs, a steady heart, and strong legs? Altoona is located in the heart of the Alleghany Mountains and is a very hilly place, especially on the north side. We climb a steep hill for two blocks, on 11th Avenue, and after walking another block and a half, going partly down hill again, we come to the workers home first and joined to it is the church, both are respectable looking buildings. It is a section of the city where the rents are a little cheaper, and mostly occupied by people who depend on industrial labor of which there is almost nothing doing now.

The home is occupied by Sister Stiffler, who is a widow, with her daughter, who takes care of the church and does the visitation work and has charge of the Junior Endeavor, and the Missionary Society and Girls' Sewing Circle, and helps in the immense relief work in the neighborhood. Bro. Glass, the pastor, lives in his own house about two miles away, which distance, up and down the hills, he travels on foot often twice a day.

This two story church is full on Sunday morning and evening. The Sunday School meets before the service in the morning and the Young People, both Junior and Senior, before the evening service. Well attended Bible studies and cottage prayer meetings are held during the week. The attendance is always good and even if it rains, and new people are drawn in all the time. Every quarter additions to the church are reported, but during these hard times many people were compelled to leave the city and find cheaper homes.

The greatest work during the winter is the relief work, as practically all the people there must depend on the mission and the Red Cross and the city charities. They have distributed hundreds of garments and blankets and provided the people with coal and provisions. Some of our congregations have sent them clothing and small sums of money, and with the help of the local charities many were supplied with clothing which enabled them to attend the Sunday School and services, especially at Christmas time. It made it possible to have a blessed Christmas service in which 53 children took part and some older ones, and made so many happy that some parents wept for joy. These dear people do a great work for the Lord and earnestly covet your prayers.

In the southwestern corner of Lancaster Co., Pa., is a little hamlet called Mechanics Grove. It has only a few houses and store and garage, and a neat, good sized and comfortable church with a basement that comes in handy for Sunday School purposes. The field is worked by Brother and Sister G. G. Buhler. The congregation was the result of a community revival some years ago in which over one hundred souls were converted; some joined other churches in the community and a group of them formed the nucleus of the congregation. The country round about is beautiful and good for farming and dairying. The church is well organized with Sunday School, C. E., and other auxiliaries. They have their prayer meetings and Bible studies, the latter seems to be especially appreciated and well attended and definite results are recorded. Two weeks of special evangelistic services were held and a class of five are under instruction regularly.

The Work in Hutchinson, Kansas

Bro. J. J. Plenert writes: "The past year has been one of the happiest years in our work here. The people seem to have a different attitude toward life since these trying days. Many have rededicated their lives while others have drifted with the tide, and some even gone under with it. If the Lord tarries and is willing I am looking forward to this year as a challenge for the church of Christ everywhere. During the past several months we have had better attendance in our church and Sunday School than we had any time since we are here. Some Sunday mornings our church was filled to overflowing. Our space for classes is getting so crowded that the Educational Board has to make new arrangements right along.

We are very thankful to the Home Mission Board for the help they have been able to give us, and the churches and children of God that have made it possible. At present we have $1700 against the church building. We paid off $550 last year and are planning to do the same this year. When that is paid off, then we will go alone."

From Portland, Oregon

Sister Niswander reports that the work has not picked up as fast this Fall after the Summer slump as in other years. The things of the world attract many away from the things of God. But she hopes that many will come again. The last quarter they had an average attendance in the Sunday School of 51. The Missionary Society sponsored a special Christmas service for the mothers of the Sunday School children. They had a good attendance and a strong Christmas message by a Miss Anderson, and they pray that many may by this means be brought to accept Christ as their Savior and Lord. The Bible Class for boys and girls has been quite well attended and are doing good work in memorizing.

Canada

Rather lenghthy reports have been made by several of the Canadian itinerant ministers and Elders, they are J. P. Klassen, J. J. Klassen, Wilhelm Martens, C. D. Harder, Gerhard Buhler, John Bueckert, Jacob Janzen and Herman Lepp. They all have large parishes covering many hundred miles by travelling and visiting the larger and smaller groups that lie scattered through the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario. They conduct preaching services, Bible Conferences, Baptismal services and Communion. During the Winter months it is especially hard to travel from place to place, but they do a great work in gathering the scattered members and complete the organizations and so hold the people together. Bro. Herman Lepp, North Ontario, writes that he and his wife walked to church one Sunday, a distance of between three and four miles through a deep snow when the thermometer stood at 56 degrees below zero.

The work in the Girls Home in Winnipeg is going on satisfactorily. In Saskatchewan we have also a church extension work in connection with it and both are flourishing. At both places they write of a most blessed and happy Christmas Season. — W. S. Gottshall,
Secretary Home Mission Board.

FOREIGN MISSIONS

Greeting from Montana

During the last session of the F. M. Board meeting the following message was received from Mrs. R. Petter, Lame Deer, Montana, February 20th:

"Today on his 69th birthday anniversary, Mr. Petter sends greetings with Isaiah 55:10-11. While sharing the good news that he finished the translations of the epistles of Jude on Saturday, with God's help, he proceeds at once to translate Revelations, thus completing the Cheyenne New Testament."

The Mission Board replied and sent greeting with Phil. 1:2, and a wish of blessing and reward for them with Ps. 2:8.

In Arizona Bro. Frey is now at work to finish the translation in Hopi.

The total budget of about $60,000.00 was based as much as possible on last year's income, which was only $55,000.00. As the mission friends can see, we hope for a little improvement, financially, this current year, and are praying for that. May we all pray for it.

The reports for the past year were on the whole very encouraging. About 150 new members could be added to the native churches.

Within a few weeks the whole report of the Board meeting will appear in the mission number of our church papers.

The "Christian Century" claims that in the church as a whole missions experience just now a "nervous breakdown" because of the strain caused between the conservatives and the liberals. May the Lord protect us against this by keeping us close to Him and His ever firm and strengthening Word, of which Christ says, "The words which I speak are spirit and truth," every one of them.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE FOREIGN MISSION BOARD SESSION

held in the home of Brother and Sister J. W. Kliewer, Newton, Kansas, February 20—23rd, 1934

The President, Bro. Kliewer, asked the Secretary to lead in the opening of the session. After the reading of Luke 11:1-13, that wonderful lesson on prayer, a brief season of prayer was observed in which also two officers of the the Women's Societies participated. All board members were present: J. W. Kliewer, M. Horsch, G. T. Soldner, P. P. Wedel, J. E. Regier, A. P. Waltner, and P. H. Richert of the Mission Board, and Mrs. J. G. Regier and Mrs. R. A. Goerz of the Executive Committee of the Women's Societies. Later also Bro. S. M. Musselman, Ex-member, and the missionaries Marie J. Regier, from China, J. F. Suderman and J. B. Frey, from Arizona, were present part of the time.

As usual, the first report presented, was that of the treasury, read by Bro. J. E. Regier, treasurer. The following is a brief resume of the same:

Receipts

General Fund	$45,104.80
Orphans, Teachers, etc.	5,884.90

Bank Balance January 1, 1934		16.89
Total		$55,267.55

1. Resolved, to accept the treasurer's report with thanks, and with full appreciation of the fact that he does this work gratis.

2. Resolved, to thank also Bro. J. N. Funk, Drake, Sask., assistant treasurer for Canada.

China

3. Resolved, that we approve of the plan of the Workers' Connference in China to write a history of that mission, and we suggest that it be published in pamphlet or booklet form as a jubilee booklet at an expense not too great for them to bear.

4. Resolved, in response to an urgent call from the Workers' Conference in China, to return Bro. and Sister S. F. Fannabacker to China this coming fall.

5. Resolved, in view of Sister Fast's furlough being overdue, that we permit her to come home this spring.

6. Resolved, to allow for the China budget $7000.00 (U. S.).

7. Resolved, that, with the exception of resolution No. 35 in the China report, we accept this report of the Workers' Conference. We are gratified to see the Chinese church sponsor Christian education, even to the extent of building up the Junior High School again. We are also pleased to hear of the more friendly attitude of the government to such Christian schools.

8. Resolved, that we are glad to receive a letter from Miss Linda Brown, daughter of Missionary Brown, and now in Bethel College, in which she declares her desire to go back to China as missionary after a few years. As soon as she has filled out our application blanks for candidates acceptably, we will place her name on our candidate list.

India

9. Resolved, that we accept the report of the Workers' Conference in India, except those parts otherwise to be acted upon.

10. Resolved, to allow for the India budget $8000.00 (U. S.).

11. Resolved, that we are grateful for the new methods used for intensive educational evangelism in India, as developed especially by Bro. Moyer, and as given wide recognition also in other missions.

12. Resolved, to send Br. and Sister P. A. Wenger, who sail on the S. S. Montcalm within two days back to India, the following message: "Mission Board sends best wishes, and prays for safe journey." (Signed by all present.)

13. Resolved, regarding the question of Mieka Wiens's return to United States in 1935, to reply, that, inasmuch as according to Rule III, 10, the board pays no traveling expenses for children who have reached the age of majority, we leave the matter to the discretion of the parents.

14. Resolved, that, since Dr. and Mrs. H. R. Bauman will apparently not have had all the needed rest by this fall, and also on account of our finances, their furlough is to be extended a few months.

15. Resolved, to return Sister Martha Burkhalter to India this coming fall, 1934.

16. In reply to an application from Bro. and Sister E. E. Frank to be sent to India—

Resolved, to express our regrets that there are at present no prospects to send new workers out in the near future, and we wish them God's blessing in their present work in the ministry.

17. Resolved, to reply to Sister Augusta Schmidt's furlough plans, that we would prefer hospital work for her if possible; if not, then teaching, or any other work that would make her self-supporting.

18. Resolved, in reply to requests from the Nappannee and Fairfield churches, to suggest to them to help in the following supports:

Miss Martha Burkhalter in India, or Girls' School at Janjgir, or hospital at Basna, or one of the other sisters in India (Loretta Lehman, Helen Nickel, Clara Kuehney), or let their gifts go for returning Doctors H. R. Bauman to India.

19. Resolved, in reply to Mrs. Burkhard's report, to ask her to find some way of self-support, and meanwhile work out the plans for the mission study proposed by her, and as soon as these plans are ready, to report to the Board for further action.

20. Resolved, that upon Harold Theodore's request for the Suderman scholarship in Bethel College, we recommend him for the same, if funds are available and he meets the conditions. (This is the husband of our native doctor in India, Caroline Banuar.)

Montana

21. Resolved, to accept the following budgets for Montana:

Lame Deer—Native Help	$100.00
Translation	150.00
Birney—Native Help	360.00
Lame Deer and Birney Budget	100.00
Total	$710.00

22. While the field was under discussion, the following telegram arrived from Mrs. R. Petter (February 20th):

"Today on his sixty-ninth birthday anniversary, Mr. Petter sends greetings with Isaiah fifty-five, ten, eleven. While sharing the good news that he finished the translation of the epistle of Jude on Saturday, with God's help, he proceeds at once to translate Revelations, thus completing the Cheyenne New Testament."

Resolved, to send in reply the following message: "Mission Board greets you in words of Philemon one and two, and rejoices with you in translation achievements by sixty-ninth birthday, with prospects of completing entire New Testament shortly. God bless and preserve you together for this great work, and reward you according to Psalm 2:8." (Signed by all present.)

23. Resolved, to wait with budget allowance etc. for Birney until Bro. Habegger reports more fully on possibilities of repairing the Birney mission house at small expense.

Arizona

24. Resolved, to accept the budget for Arizona as follows:

Oraibi
Deepening the well	$100.00
Interpreter	120.00
Orphans	100.00
Moen Copi— Fuel	74.00
Hotevilla—Fuel	8.00
Paint	25.00

25. Resolved, that we rejoice over the fruit of the faithful work and prayers for the Hopis in Arizona, as a spiritual awakening has taken place at Oraibi, resulting in the addition of 16 new members to that church during the year. We praise God for it, and pray for his continued guidance and blessings.

26. Resolved, that we inform Bro. J. B. Frey that our resolution regarding translation of the New Testament into Hopi, dated September 1927, still stands. It reads:

"Resolved, to ask Br. Frey to help in looking over the manuscript of the translations in preparation for printing." We shall not object to his correcting parts already translated, and doing translation work on parts not yet translated, but we are not willing to disregard translations of the past which are now in use. Work at the translation and correction with proper persons will be appreciated by our Board, and used in the mission. But remuneration for this work cannot at present be granted.

27. Resolved, that we comply with Bro. Fred Johnson's wishes that he be ordained as minister, so that he can perform marriage ceremonies, etc. This does not mean that he will be ordained to full eldership at present.

28. Resolved, as soon as Daniel Shirmer is through with his schooling in Los Angeles, we offer him a position as native helper at Hotevil-

la. (Since Sister Schirmer has been appointed Postmistress there of late.)

29. Resolved, to allow Sister Schirmer $50.00 a year for the services she is asked to continue to give to the mission now since she has accepted the position as postmistress.

30. Resolved, that we reply to the Navajo Indian Evangelization Movement in answer to a recent letter from them, that we are not ready to sell the property at Oraibi, nor grant a time lease on same, but are willing to continue renting to them for the present.

31. Resolved, that we sanction the plan of Bro. and Sister Suderman to move into the lower village of Oraibi, if the way opens.

Oklahoma

32. Resolved, to accept the Oklahoma budgets as follows:

Fonda and Longdale Stations
Current Expenses	$100.00
Native help	220.00
Deer Creek and Arapaho Stations
Current expenses	75.00
Clinton and Hammon Stations
Current expenses	100.00

33. Resolved, in view of the fact that Bro. H. J. Kliewer took so few furloughs, the board considers this to be an equivalent for the 3 years he was absent from the field, engaged in teaching.

General Matters

34. Resolved, that we send a letter of appreciation and encouragement to the goodly number of faithful native helpers on the mission fields who have remained faithful under the stress and trials of these times.

35. Resolved, that in special cases it is not contrary to the policy of our Board to use suitable outside workers (i. e. workers from other denominations) for a limited time of service in our mission, provided it means no extra outlay from our treasury.

36. Resolved, to express our great appreciation of the strong efforts and progress our missions are making toward an indigenous church, especially in India and China.

37. Resolved, to ask Bro. Musselman to continue to serve as trustee of the Pannabecker fund.

38. Resolved, to ask Bro. Musselman to let us know whether he can finish the manuscript for the missionaries' handbook in six months, so that it can be sent to the fields for suggestions, and also can circulate in the Board before the next board meeting.

39. Resolved, that upon Miss Elida Schrag's request for the benefit of the Suderman scholarship, we recommend her for the same, provided she meets the conditions.

40. Resolved, to thank Bro. P. A. Wenger for the constructive suggestions in his last communication to the Board before leaving for India, and we want to make the best use of it.

41. Resolved, that the secretary write a letter of appreciation to Bro. A. J. Neuschwander for his work of arousing mission interest during his visits to the churches.

42. Resolved, to inform Bethel College that Bro. P. A. Wenger has met the scholarship requirements, and that his not now can be cancelled.

43. Resolved, that the Board operate this year like last year on a balanced budget by paying salaries and budgets proportionately to all fields as the money comes in.

44. Resolved, to ask the treasurer when he makes the remittances to send along a list of special gifts contained in them.

45. Resolved, to ask all missionaries to send the Board a list of all special gifts sent directly to them.

46. Resolved, to ask Bro. G. T. Soldner to represent our Board at the next meeting of Congo Inland Mission Board in Chicago.

47. Resolved, to allow again $50.00 for the F. M. Conference.

48. Resolved, to thank all our mission friends, churches, C. E. Societies, Sunday Schools, and especially the Women's Mission Societies for their continued faithful support, the latter particularly through the Mission News and Notes, which is herewith heartily recommended.

49. Resolved, to thank Bro. and Sister J. W. Kliewer for their kind hospitality and entertainment of the Board during its session, all the more so, since it has been done repeatedly.

50. Resolved, to praise the Lord for His sustaining grace and the continued open door. Yes, in China especially have the doors again been wonderfully opened for Christian schools, for which we cannot thank enough. We thank the Lord for protecting our mission during the recent earthquake, the like of which India has not had before. It shook all India and cost thousands of lives at some places. May also that spiritual shaking continue as promised in Haggai 2:6, "I will shake all nations, and the desire of all nations shall come . . . The silver is mine and the gold is mine, saith the Lord of hosts." A seemingly strange combination of God's power to shake earth and heaven, and His power over gold and silver. But we find that it usually goes together: Where there are prayers to "shake the place," there the work will not stop on account of lack of money. Thank the Lord!

51. Resolved, to adjourn. Bro. Wedel led in the closing prayer.

Bro. R. Petter writes: "Eine feste Burg ist unser Gott." . . . This was the radio voice heard for the first time in my study here on the mission station. Our daughter sent us a radio set as a Christmas present. Just as it was unpacked and the government electrician had tied two wires together preparatory to installing the set, lo! the wondrous music, "Eine feste Burg ist unser Gott" burst into the room, as the voice of God. This, after one of the hardest years of my life, was indeed as the voice of God saying to me, "Eine feste Burg ist unser Gott" for both the past and the future.

We had such battles and defeats here like Christian in Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," who fighting against Apollyon, fell and let his sword go. We, too, heard the enemy exult and say, "I have got you now," and we wondered whether all "Aarons and Hurs" had let go of the support.

But God be praised, "Er ist unsere feste Burg. Obgleich die Welt voll Teufel waer." "Rejoice not against me, o thou mine enemy, when I fall I shall rise again" . . . "In all this we are more than conquerors through Him who loved us."

Against the "Sword of the Spirit" the enemy cannot prevail. This sword I had the privileged duty and joy to put in its Cheyenne scabbard and am full of hope of finishing the task before many months. I trust that by the time the translations are finished and printing is to be done, that then the treasury will not fail us.

Of course, the unavoidable cuts in budget, salaries, and auto upkeep were auxiliaries to the difficulties that confronted us and the work. The latter had to be given up at the Muddy Creek District and restricted at Birney . . . . two victories for the enemy.

Bro. Habegger writes: We praise the Lord for His goodness, and we wish to trust Him for the future.

Since the last report, we have had special meetings for the Indians. During the Thanksgiving holiday season we had some Crow Indian Christians who brought messages to our Indians. There was much of the Christian Truth presented from typical Indian point of view, and we only regretted that not more heard the messages. A few of the meetings were very well attended, others not so well. We know that those who heard them were benefited by them.

During Christmas vacation we held special services every evening but one, and we are glad to say that the attendance was better than usual. According to the policy of recent years to decrease the Christmas giving of clothing to the Indians, we this year gave very sparsely, but no one complained.

Mrs. Habegger had a sewing class before the holidays which met on Wednesday afternoons. Pillow slips were embroidered as also towels, and there was a good interest. These were given out Christmas eve, a few have been given out since, on Sundays, when the one who did the work was present. Such classes are now beginning work on quilts and comforters. We hope that many will avail themselves of this opportunity, as then we have a good opportunity to teach some spiritual truth to them also.

Two special meetings were held at the C. C. C. Camp. I preached one sermon, and a Christian Indian, Mr. Owl, three-fourths Cherokee, a teacher at the Boarding School, gave a constructive talk the other time, emphasizing co-operation, work, education and Christian living as the four things needed by the Indians in this country. He said things that a white man hardly dares to tell an Indian except as a quotation. For instance: "The American Indian can sleep all day right alongside his job, and his job won't bother him a bit," (he quoted someone when he said this); again, "When an Indian tries to make an effort to rise above the others, his relatives and friends try to keep him down," etc. He teaches a Sunday School class in our Sunday School.

During the past year we have had a number of candidates for baptism, but felt they were too superficial.

REASONS FOR THANKSGIVING

(By Mr. B. K. Petter, Lame Deer, Montana, January 17, 1934.)

The Mennonite Board of Foreign Missions,

Greetings:— Just before Thanksgiving I was asked, as were no doubt other missionaries, to enumerate reasons of thankfulness in this time of "depression" and need. At the beginning of my yearly report, I give those first. They follow herewith:

I am thankful — — —

1. For continued good health of both of us—a gift of God which He may withhold at His pleasure.

2. For a call in life—an activity of engrossing interest and deep satisfaction.

3. For warm mission friends who through thirty-seven years have provided food, warmth, clothing and home comforts.

4. For the knowledge of an intricate Indian language that permits daily intercourse with an interesting people.

5. For being able to enter into the prayer of a Cheyenne Christian without the medium of an interpreter. What a heritage throughout the years of service!

6. For hot and cold water "coming out of the wall" at the sink at last, eliminating many steps during a rigorous Montana winter to the outdoor well on the premises.

7. For the helpful service in the home of a dear young Cheyenne woman living on the premises. Her life as a Christian is a continual joy to us.

8. For the rich experience of a weekly Bible class with the native evangelistic throughout many years.

9. For storm windows and storm doors when the thermometer drops to 40 and 50 degrees below zero at some time each winter.

10. For the privilege this summer of seeing my home people in Butler County, Ohio, after an absence of seven years. (How often do the India and China missionaries see their relatives in the homeland?) Also for the joy of attending both the Middle District and the General Conference . . . . also the World's Fair enroute.

11. For the pleasure and diversion I have had in being able to drive a car.

12. For a field in the midst of beautiful scenery that never loses in interest.

13. For a better insight into the work of the sisters of our General Conference churches in fostering mission interest and handling a growing organization of far-reaching possibilities.

14. For a semester's work at the Summer School of Theology at Winona Lake, with its privilege of studying under Dr. Robinson of McCormick Theological Seminary, Dr. Sloan from New Jersey, Dr. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, the largest in America, and Dr. Leander S. Keyser, life-long theologian and professor of the Lutheran church.

15. For the privilege of witnessing over and over again the power of God through His Word among a stubborn heathen people.

16. For the promise that our Captain goeth forth conquering and to conquer.

17. For the extension of the Montana Power Line from Colestrip to the Lame Deer Agency, which passes our well and permits us to enjoy electricity as a servant in the home, after many years of living under primitive conditions.

18. For the oft-repeated experience that after each storm when the "heathen rage and imagine a vain thing" God gives a calm.

19. For Bible translations into a difficult, but rich Indian language, which for faithfulness and scholarship have few parallels.

20. For the hopeful outlook of a completed New Testament in the not distant future.

THE CONFERENCE AT BASNA, C. P. INDIA.

(By P. A. Penner, Champa.)

I am convinced that our annual conference is as important to us here on the field, as the General Conference is for the churches at home. We always look forward to this event with expectancy, because:

1. It is the only time during the year when all workers can be together.

2. It is the only time where we can encourage one another in the work that is dear to the Master and meet common, as well as such problems that are peculiar to each station.

3. It is the only time when we are permitted unitedly to meditate upon God's Word and wait on Him for definite blessing and guidance.

We came to this conference, — just convened, — expecting great things from God, and we are not put to shame. Usually, our conferences are held in Champa, because of its more central location, but this year it convened in Basna, beautiful Basna in the jungle. All of the missionaries from Korba, Janjgir, Birra and Champa together with the children, except those that are studying in the hill station schools, were present. Some of the missionaries went to Basna by train and lorry; others went overland preaching the gospel in the villages through which their road passed. The Basna missionaries had made most excellent preparations for our entertainment. They went out of their way to make us comfortable. Our refugee friends from Russia were our conference guests, who took a keen interest in all the proceedings, though of course, the language was somewhat of a hindrance. Two days of business were preceded by two days of special waiting upon God. This is not too much time allotted for this purpose. It is not within the scope of this article to go into particulars, nor to broadcast the results of the business meeting. I simply wish to share with my readers some of the thoughts expressed during the first two days preceding those of conference.

We never forget the children, indeed, they are very prominent during these happy conference days. In the morning a short devotional service is held especially for the children. They feel very important because they are told that this is their service. This happy bunch of youngsters consisted of Teddy Moyer, Joseph John Duerksen, Christine Marie Duerksen, Willis Orie Unruh and Helga Dick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick from Russia.

Bro. Isaac was in charge of the first devotional meeting. He based his remarks on Psalm 145, stressing especially that God is great and God is just; but also good, gracious, merciful and slow to anger. Therefore I praise Him, let US praise Him. He hears all who call upon Him, He saved us, He is near, He fulfills the expectations of the heart. His remarks at once brought us into the attitude of waiting and expectancy because of what God is. We were asked to make this an hour of thanksgiving for what God has done for, through and with us during the year. Acts 14:27 and 15:4. For full two hours testimony, praise, prayer and song occupied our time and it did not drag on us. Here are some of the nuggets that I wish to pass on. "When I was isolated in the hospital, separated from all Christian fellowship, I feasted from past spiritual blessings and wealth." "Never have I experienced such definite guidance step by step as during the last months. We could not consult others, being cut off from them by almost impassable roads and weather. So God was our Councelor and Guide." "My experiences have been mostly those of comparison. Looking to what we are and have and comparing this with those round about us, we have great reason to praise and thank God." "My preaching during the past year has more than before had the aim to bring men into vital contact with God through Jesus Christ." "I have learned to lie on my face during the last year. To the questian 'can these dead bones live?' my emphatic reply is Yes. The Holy Spirit can and does make dead bones live." "Call on me in the day of trouble, and I will deliver thee. This I have experienced." "When the work does not go quite as it should there is generally sin at the bottom of it." "I praise God that in our school, sins have been confessed and wrongs made right. There is a wonderful spirit manifest this year." "The Spirit of God has revealed to me that He is at work. I am praying that I may be so used that all of my work may have one aim, bringing men to God." "Does God care? Does God care when difficult problems loom up that baffle solution? Does God care when the mother of Mrs. Dick is crying for bread? Yes, He cares, after the clouds comes the sunshine, and the brightness of God." "I praise God for the victory to leave work among women to those of our Indian sisters who are so willing to help in bringing the non-Christian women to Christ." "I have come to the conclusion that when there are 'downs' in the work, that usually sin was at the bottom of it." "We have been on hill tops and God has been doing wonders." " God insists on prayer. I thank Him for His 'super superlatives,' 'more than conquerors.' " "God's Word is a hammer. During the last year, I have been more than ever convinced that men are saved by the preaching of the WORD accompanied by the convicting power of the Holy Spirit." "In my meditations, I have learned afresh that God is great and God is good." "I am determined to live a life that is pleasing to God, not merely to obey His will. Never, perhaps, as in this year have I realized the blessings and the privileges of a Christian life such as joy and hope which are absent in the non-Christian. All this, because we are children of God." "I want to praise God that He is a constant companion and a refuge." "I am praising God for using me in His service." Mr. and Mrs. Dick's testimony freely given is about as follows: "We thank God that it is different now than it was one year ago. We have realized God afresh as an almighty God, but also as a God of the individual in His care for us when we escaped from that awful country, Russia. We came from a country where the communists say 'there is no God.' There is a God, and we praise Him that He has brought us to a place where there are children of God. We have experienced that 'as thy days so shall thy strength be.' " I have put the thoughts down only briefly and fragmentary. These were elaborated on much more and new courage was the result of these and similar testimonies. This ended the forenoon of the first day.

In the afternoon, Miss Nickel led the devotional meeting and she very correctly said that "we must have before we can give. Three passages of Scripture led us into deeper thinking. These were Ephesians 6:12-18, Put on the whole armor of God. John 15:4, Abide. 2 Peter 1:8-11, Abound. She emphasized that for all workers for the Lord points one and two are essential. There can be no abounding without the armor of God and without abiding. All prayers centered around these words and the thoughts expressed by the leader.

Thus the first day of our stay in Basna was one with God and we are confident that new strength has been vouchsafed to us because of this day.

The second day was as rich as the first had been. Bro. Unruh led the meeting. He began by saying that if he were to preach to us today he would base his words on John 20:21 and then ask the question, "What were Christ's motives for coming into this world and what was His attitude toward the problems of His day?" Next he would ask, what were our motives in coming to India and what attitude do we take toward our present-day problems? Bro. Unruh brought before us precious thoughts, but before he was through with us, he put some very heart-searching questions when he asked us: What attitude do we take to the various problems confronting us? It does us good to take an inventory of ourselves occasionally.

The afternoon service was in charge of Sister Moyer. She stressed the all-sufficiency of God. Perhaps no other thought could have been more appropriate as we see and note, to our great sorrow, that so many are indifferent to the message of Christ's love. Is there anything too hard for God? By the life of Gideon and Paul the thought was forcibly brought home that God is all-sufficient. Referring to ourselves, she stated that God cannot compel our surrender, this is for us to do. The measure of our devotion is the measure of our surrender to God. With full surrender, nothing is too hard for God. The prayers centered about a full surrender to God and the sending of a revival into our churches and an awakening among the non-Christians.

The Sunday following our conference was full of good things also. Mr. Dick spoke about Russia and their escape from that country. This was much appreciated by the Indian Christians who listened to the address because our churches have given for the sufferers in Russia more than once. After his address, four children were brought forward for consecration, Lois Augusta Duerksen, Wesley Paul Unruh, Helena Dick, and Helga Dick. This service was entirely in German, although all the Indian Christians were present. Helga is seven years old, but she had never been consecrated, and so at her and the parents' request she, too, was consecrated.

INDIA

Champa, C. P.,
January 22, 1934.

Dear Brother Richert:

As we again start a new year we cannot help but look over the past one and say, "Hitherto has the Lord helped us and the work in a marvelous way. As we think of all the blessings that we have received we cannot help but feel confident that He who has led us through the past year will continue to lead us through the new.

In our hospital work the Lord has also helped us. Patients have come and gone. Sometimes our work was quite heavy, then again it was very slack. During the Christmas week we were very busy. It might interest you to get a short medical report for the last year's work in the hospital.

Number of new patients treated in the dispensary	4011
Number of treatments repeated in dispensary	4100
Number of inpatients in hospital	332
Deliveries in homes and hospital	35
Deliveries in hospital	24
Deaths	12
Number of operations, minor and major	1991

Because of no competent surgeon we had to send quite a few of our patients to other places for surgical care. We are anxiously awaiting the return of Drs. Bauman so that we need not send so many patients to other places. Patients that were very poor have received free treatments, but those who were able, paid fees.

We wish to thank you all for the support you are giving us in this work and for your prayers. Will you, please, also help us pray that our patients will be healed, not only in body, but in soul as well.

The last week we have been working under great difficulty. Dr. Theodore had a fall and sprained her ankle badly. She was bedfast for a few days, but is improving and is again able to be on duty part of the time.

Last week we had to call Dr. Whitcomb from the Evangelical Mission to see a patient. Mr. Parkinson, a European, has been here for some time and he had a bad streptococcus infection. He is responding nicely to Dr. Whitcomb's treatment and we also praise the Lord for answering prayers in his behalf.

Wishing you all a blessed and happy New Year, I am,

Sincerely yours,
Loretta Lehman.

HOSPITAL REPORT, BASNA, INDIA

(By H. E. Dester, M. D.)

As in America, there is also talk in India of medical graduates being without work or a position. Yet the great bulk of India's rural population is without proper medical aid. The nearest hospitals to Basna are located as follows: Champa sixty-five miles to the north, government and mission hospitals some ninety miles to the west, and Sambalpur some eighty-five miles to the east, offers good medical service. There are government dispensaries, one twenty-two miles to the southwest and another eighteen miles to the southeast. There is a medical practitioner thirty miles to the northeast and the mission dispensary at Birna thirty-four miles to the north, where Rev. Wiens is doing credible work.

The great need in India is doctors who are not afraid to work and who have the spirit of service, men who will not need the stimulus of a bribe in order to do good work. The patient in an Indian government hospital is immediately confronted with a solid front of attendants and servants who are right there to receive the tip, but otherwise not so conspicuous. Patients in the mission hospitals often tempt the workers with bribes and tips.

The thing the patients appreciate and comment upon when coming to the mission hospital is that the giving of drugs and dressing of wounds is not relegated to the most menial servants, and that even the doctor and nurse will lay their hands to any necessary task of this kind.

Ninety percent of India's population is rural and the great bulk of this is without adequate medical aid. Much has been done for the leper. Tuberculosis is a worse scourge than leprosy, but constructive work to relieve the tubercular patient has hardly been started. Proper anti-malarial treatment among the rural population is available in theory but not in practice.

Our work in the hospitals is to serve these neglected masses, and to present Christ the Savior and Great Physician. The name of our hospital is Sewa Bhawan, meaning a place of help. We are trying to make it such by serving and helping to uplift body, mind, and soul. The following summary will give some idea of the past year's work:

	1933	Increase over 1931
In-patients	500	284%
Maximum in-patients	39
Av. daily in-patients	15
Out-patients	3800	11%
Return visits	3200
Major operations	114	375%
Minor operations	320	285%
Cataract, included under major	46	400%
Income in rupees	1354	22%

The comparison is made with 1931 because this was the first year spent in the new hospital.

Of course our work is limited in many ways. The Appraisal Commission would no doubt include our hospital among those which should be closed immediately, but that need not hinder us. One of our limitations is insufficient ward accommodations. The total cost of our present wards is less than $200.00. Suppose that we have thirty-five hospital patients it means that the total cost of ward and ward equipment is about six dollars per patient. Possibly this is the reason we do not have more wealthy pay patients in the hospital, since the ward we offer him costs only six dollars and his own home may cost fifty to one hundred times that much.

Our staff is also limited. Under Miss Kuehny's supervision the hospital patients are well taken care of. But another doctor is needed. Every time I leave the hospital the entire burden rests with Miss Kuehny, or if we are both absent, as is sometimes necessary, this responsibility falls on the compounder. Most of the time I find it impossible to give sufficient time to the work at the hospital. I have been unable to do any district work to speak of the past year. More district work ought to be done, but due to lack of time and lack of roads it is difficult to do so. We are now corresponding with a young man from Janjgir who is to graduate from Robertson Medical School in March, in view of giving him an appointment in the hospital.

Some funds for a sterilizer have been received. We are grateful for these and trust that more funds will be available for this purpose in due time.

We cannot as yet report any conversions at the hospital, but there are those who, we feel, are and have been very near the kingdom. Rev. Moyer reports that in the evangelistic work they frequently find those whose stay in the hospital has made them better seekers, more sympathetic to the evangelistic work.

Pray that the bonds of caste may break and that it may become less difficult for the seeking soul of India to openly confess allegiance to our Lord and Master.

Basna via Raipur, C. P. India, January 16, 1934.

"COME AND TEACH US"

No doubt some of the readers of this article will recall having read the chapter "Christ and Ram Bidding for the Chamar," in the book called "Twenty-Five Years With God In India." With this little report of our experience only a few weeks ago, I wish to tell you that Christ is still bidding for the heart and allegiance of a very large caste or tribe in India, called the Ramramiyas. This is an untouchable caste according to the Hindu way of looking at life and human beings. For years this outcaste group has been restless, and in their search for more light and freedom they adopted the name "Ram," one of the many incarnations of the Hindu Pantheon, as their special god. One of their leaders once had a dream in which an angel told him that if he and his followers would take the name of Ram in their whole life then they would find temporary freedom and eternal salvation. So that leader went ahead and wrote the name "Ram" all over his clothes, and tattooed it all over his body, every inch. Further, he would not open his mouth in speaking, lest he would also utter the name Ram. His followers followed him in this, and now we see these painted-up people by the thousands all around.

Every year they have a reunion, called Mela. These melas are at different places, because different villages invite. But usually they are not over twenty miles away from our mission station. Almost every year we go to see these melas to represent Christ there. This year something new happened. Individuals have in past years always invited us when we chanced to speak to them about the Mela. Usually the invitations came out of sheer politeness, not being backed by much consideration. But this year, already two weeks before the mela took place, a runner came with a letter to us. We read the letter and found that it was a formal invitation from the leaders of those Ramramiyas, asking us to come to their mela "to teach." Needless to say that we were surprised beyond expression. Here were people who knew beyond all doubt what we stand for and what we would "teach" if we would come to their mela. They also know and knew that if that is accepted what we teach then Ram is done for. Yet they invited us. The mela was to take place during Christmas week, beginning with December 27. Yet, could we be too busy in the Christian church with making holiday and not accept such an invitation? No, we felt the challenge. We had to go. We shared this invitation and challenge with the coworkers at our other stations. Everybody had his hands more than full during the Christmas season. But Rev. P. A. Penner from Champa and Rev. S. T. Moyer from Basna, with several Indian brethren, found it possible to break away from their station duties and come to follow the invitation "to teach." Rev. Wiens with a number of men from this station, and the brethren from Champa and Basna arrived at the mela place on the 27th and started their work. Because of sickness in the family I was delayed one day. On the 28th Mr. Walters, one of our teachers, and I also arrived at the place.

The Ramramiyas have two chief leaders. One is Dhaniram, who has more of a political bend of mind and handles the political interests of the sect before the government. He wants me to help him persuade government to register them as "Ramnamis," i. e., people who carry the name "Ram," instead of as Chamars. The Chamars are a very large caste, or rather outcaste in India, and they are divided into quite a large number of reformed sects. They want to get rid of the name "Chamar," which simply means "leather" or "leather worker," which is looked down upon in India. The other leader of theirs is Ratiram. He is much more of a religious leader. I have known both of these men for some years. Before I arrived at the mela, Ratiram had heard that the missionaries had come, and he had inquired whether I, too, had come. As soon as I arrived I went to his tent, which was centrally located, to greet him. He received me very friendly and asked me to sit down with him. Of course I gladly followed the invitation. He himself sat on straw, but for me as his guest he quickly produced an old gunny sack. We had not talked five minutes to each other when he asked me whether I would not sing a song of praise for my "guru" (great teacher). Of course, that was exactly what I had come for. So I said if he wished it, then I gladly would. He said: "Please do it." Mr. Walters and I sang. After we had sung then they sang the praises of Ram. Some more than a hundred people were in and around the tent. When they were through with one of their praises they asked us again to sing. And so we changed off for quite a while; truly Christ and Ram again bidding for the heart of those simple minded people.

When I sat there with Ratiram in his own tent and sang the praises of Christ I could not help but whisper a prayer that the Spirit of Jesus might carry away the victory here at headquarters. That these people, many of them, are wistfully glancing around for a greater leader than Ram, is absolutely certain. Have we as Christians all over the world enough spiritual acumen to lead them to the light?

—John Thiessen.

RAM RAMIYA MELA

(By P. J. Wiens, Basna, India)

Our meetings during the Christmas vacation we set out for three days and went to the Ram-Ramiya mela, to which we had been invited by letter of one of their leaders. He stated in the letter to come and teach them, and so we invited the missionaries from the other stations too, but not all could come, but Bro. P. A. Penner of Champa and Br. Moyer of Basna came. Bro. Moyer had a number of his young workers along and from Birra we had six helpers with us, and so we had meetings in four groups twice a day and some during the evening. We had the meetings outside the mela enclosure which the leaders told us when we met them to make arrangements for our work, that in the enclosure they would like to have for themselves, and only Ram's praise should be sung there. They did it, too. The first night I timed them. They began before dark and continued until two o'clock in the morning. We were half a mile off with our tents, but the noise came well that far. Dancing and jumping accompanied their Ram songs and shouting. There certainly is vain repetition in the RamRamiyas' singsong and worship. These people do not worship idols but believe that by continuously repeating the name "Ram" all is accomplished that man has to do to gain salvation. One would think that a night's shouting would accomplish this, but at six A. M. the tumult and shouting and dancing started again. Not all of them are equally enthusiastic in that and some see the emptiness of it, and the man who sent us the invitation is one of them, because he came daily to the tent to hear of the Christian God. These people have the word Ram tatooed all over their bodies and also on their clothing and on the walls of their houses, everywhere, but some have only RamRam on the forehead. A good many overdo the tatooing and look ugly because of that. How long will they go on like that? When will India leave off seeking for redemption and a redeemer when Christ is waiting for them to come and accept Him?

Before our conferences and afterwards again till near Christmas our two evangelists have been on tour and are out again since the 8th. The people gladly hear the gospel news, but they do not go any further and make it their own. The sale of Gospels etc. is very slow and the cause is the same as before, there is so little cash among the people. That same condition is also the cause of the reduced income for medicine, and a very large percentage of our Christians and poor Hindoos have to be treated almost free.

In 178 villages the Gospel has been preached in 1933. The work of the village supported teachers does not go on as well as it should, and the fault of it can be found in both the teachers and the villagers who do not give the teachers the promised grain or cash as needed during the year. Some teachers have given up and have to look for another place. Our thanksgiving collection this year has been assigned to help these teachers during the first three months of 1934, and after that they may fall to the care of the church for most of their support. It is becoming a problem with those out of employ. Some may be provided with a little land and can, perhaps, earn part of their living that way, but most of them do know so little of cultivation and farming and will have to learn to take hold of work and do it. Some of our church members this year have left and are being helped to earn part of their living somehow. One young man has left for a village where he hopes to make his living with his trade, tailoring. Two others are in their wives' village trying to farm, but come ever so often to look for some work at the station. Both have been in the carpenter shop for several years, but it has not made them carpenters who can go and do something all alone. It is a shame, but it is true nevertheless. It will take some time to readjust in this matter for most of the people.

We in our family have been fairly well all through the year, but in July Mrs. Wiens had her operation for gallstones, as has been reported in due time. The effects of that operation have not yet been fully overcome, but by and by full strength will also return.

Mieka has had her first year of teaching and has that place also for 1934, but what will be after that has to be seen. In the conference report you will have found reference to that.

Martha and Frieda have finished first year high school. Since December 9th the girls are at home with us. P. J. and Agnes Wiens.

STATISTICAL INFORMATION FROM INDIA

By P. W. Penner.

We have a field here of some 5000 square miles, with over 2500 villages, and 550,000 inhabitants. In 65 villages there are Christians, a total Christian community, including children, of 2209, less than one-half percent of the total population.

The purpose is to build up a healthy, self-supporting Christian community. 9 male and 14 female missionaries are at work, assisted by 29 evangelists and 22 Bible women. The latter made calls in about 2710 homes, preaching Christ. Besides these there are a number of volunteers.

The schools have an enrollment of 460 pupils, in eleven primary and two middle schools, taught by 21 male and 16 female teachers, giving daily Bible instruction. Besides these quite a number of private schools were opened with no expense to the mission.

Three dispensaries and two hospitals are operated, besides the dispensary in the Leper Asylum. 11 male and 6 female workers from the medical staff. In all 12,662 patients were registered, and several hundred minor cases not registered. There were 892 patients, and 2491 operations performed.

9 male and 4 female helpers do industrial and institutional work. In all there are 70 male and 48 female native helpers employed, not a single one, so to say, on full pay, and a number receive just a trivial pay for partial support.

The native churches assume more and more the responsibility for higher education, supporting 25 students in high school and college, and the mission only six, outside the primary and middle schools.

The Leper Home has 514 inmates, of whom 347 took special treatments, and 13 could be dismissed this year as relatively cured, which makes in all 57 cured since the treatments began years ago. During the year 49 asked for baptism and joined the church in the asylum, which has now 283 members. This church contributes to the home mission work and relief work besides paying the expenses for its own school.

On the India field there are now 6 fully and 5 partially organized churches, in which during this year 83 could be baptized. The total number of baptized is 1186 with 940 children not yet baptized.

There are 10 outstations only for evangelistic work, 24 schools with 120 teachers and officers, and 1121 pupils.

22 Bibles were sold, 3 given gratis, 51 New Testaments sold or given, 1072 Bible portions, mostly gospels, 2036 tracts of good Christian literature. The total sale returned Rs. 226.

The home mission by the native churches lost one worker through death, and two became self-supporting. With the new workers they now have five. Three baptisms took place in the home mission field, and as many others are ready for baptism.

From all income the members are to pay a certain percent into the treasury besides the regular collections on Sundays. From this treasury 12½ percent goes to the Home Mission fund. The total collections during the year were Rs. 3,827-7-4.

OKLAHOMA

Bro. Linsheid writes: Religious services were conducted regularly at the Longdale church in the forenoon, and at the Fonda church in the afternoon. Twice a month, also on Sunday evenings, we had services for white people in the Fonda community. Several trips were made to Concho to speak to the school children on Thursday evenings, and one evening also at the CCC Camp.

Mrs. Linsheid conducted classes with the children every Sunday, played the organ, kept exact record of attendance and historical data relating to our field, besides preparing and drilling for Christmas programs and planning the gifts. All this in addition to the housework and visiting the homes of the Indians.

Whiteshield has been faithful in assisting in the Sunday services and making his influence felt otherwise as opportunity offers during the week in conversation.

Bro. Ediger writes: We still consider preaching Christ by word and deed our first and most important, and training native helpers next.

Kias is a man 67 years old. He is our old "wheel horse," always willing to help. While he cannot read nor write, he knows the Bible well for his age. His strong side is visiting the sick and the old and witness for his Savior there. While he can never have charge of any church, he is valuable; Christians and non-Christians look up to him with respect. He gets no salary.

Homer Hart is 36 years old. He has helped Bro. Kliewer for years, and since we have charge here, he has helped me. While not a natural leader, he has developed leadership. The Sundays and two other days of the week belong to the Mission. On Sunday he is in church, rain or shine, is Sunday school superintendent, and teaches a class. Then he interprets for me when the roads are too muddy for me to go there the 35 miles, and for two Sundays out of three he has complete charge of the services. He has a family of six children. His salary was cut almost half, and since January first he has received no pay, but has taken up work with the CCC. Still he serves as helper.

Bro. H. J. Kliewer reports: May we all submissively say: "Where He leads me, I will follow." The health of Mrs. Kliewer has not been quite so good the last few months. We were hoping that as the weather got cooler her appetite, strength, and weight would increase, but instead it kept on slowly decreasing. The doctor advised two hours' rest in bed every forenoon and afternoon, except on Sundays and in other rare cases. She is in the hands of the Great Physician, and we pray that our will may be submitted to His.

Willie took up the work again in October on part time. He is supposed to have charge of the services every other week at Canton, when we are not there, and do some work during the week, visiting the Indians.

The CCC Camp, discords, etc., have lessened the attendance, but the day of grace is not yet ended, and the Sun of Righteousness may still shine into their hearts. Thank God!

CHINA

Part of Evangelistic Committee Report, China

(By W. C. Voth, Chairman)

"His right hand and his holy arm hath gotten him the victory." Ps. 93. While drastic cuts had to be made , and even some workers dismissed, we believe that certain spiritual gains have been attained by the Chinese church, causing it to look more earnestly up to the Lord for spiritual victories, and to be more grounded in faith in Christ. Praise the Lord for His victories! On the other hand we see the great task still ahead of us and regret that the missionary staff has been reduced by the leaving for home of the Boehrs and Miss Regier, while none could return to this field.

Bro. Ewert writes from Chang Yuan: We have been here about a month and feel that the Lord has given us a great field with open doors. The people seem very open to the gospel. We feel that, after the church has been without a preacher for some time at this place, the coming of Mr. Cheo from Kai Chow will mean a step forward and revive the church. May we ask an interest in your prayers?

Bro. Brown writes from Kai Chow: For longer distances Mrs. Brown often went along with me on the car. Notwithstanding the fact that we have for more than twenty years been selling Bibles and portions on our trips, the sales were so rapid that our supply became exhausted far too early. We never once met with opposition.—Besides the regular services there have been catechism classes and baptisms. 76 persons took Bible instructions and 15 of these were baptized. The city churches all have preachers again, but the country churches are helpless and for the greater part drifting, because we cannot often visit them. During the flood we helped many of the refugees out of the water and helped many otherwise.

From the hospital report: Evangelistic work in the hospital continues, and the patients are open to the gospel. We do not find this a hindrance as one might infer from the "Laymen's Report." Recently a man expressed his appreciation for physical help at the outstation clinic, but valued even more the acquaintance he had made with the gospel. He asked for evangelists to come to their village and teach them more, and he himself told his people what he knew.

Bro. Goering writes from Taming: We have had some very good meetings and feel there is a growing interest in the services, including the children's services in the basement of the church, conducted by Mrs. Goering. There are about thirty children.

Instruction classes were held with 65, of whom 9 were baptized. More voluntary workers have enlisted who give some time each week to help in the work.

Trying to get the non-Christian people more interested in our church services, we distribute every Saturday tracts to hundreds of homes and shops. Stamped on them are invitations to come and worship with us. We also mail out Christian literature to those not easily reached otherwise. After difficulty for some years to get in close touch with the government students, Bro. Goering could now organize a group of 19 young men into a Bible class every Sunday morning.

In the village church work 18 instruction classes were held besides short term Bible classes. The total enrollment was 523. In each of the seven organized congregations baptismal services were held, and a total of forty new members were accepted.

Voluntary Work. Last spring the first graduating class of the Bible school went out as an evangelistic group to quite a number of churches to hold meetings. They felt the urge to witness for the Lord and did it with no assurance of financial aid. It was a great inspiration to the churches to receive such stirring messages.

From the above it can be seen that 64 were baptized during the year.

Bro. Voth sums up this report by mentioning some encouraging signs: We can truthfully and with joy say that one of the outstanding advancements made is in respect to the visible increase of individual voluntary workers. Let us pray much for more such folks, it strengthens the church mightily. Then there is the shifting of workers. Instead of evangelists from outside of our field, our local Christian people are doing the work.

FROM THE REPORT OF THE MEDICAL COMMITTEE

The medical and surgical work in general has kept us busy, the staff working willingly and efficiently. While outpatient visits have decreased, surgical work has increased. We have had more operations, some of which we had never attempted before, and have had a good degree of success. While two good workers have left us, the advanced students largely take their place. We are especially glad that our Chinese doctor remains with us, who is well liked by all.

Evangelistic work in the hospital has been helped along by the Bible students and teachers. We believe that an earnest Christian spirit among the staff, a desire to do loving, helpful service in the name of Christ among those who come in daily contact with the patients, dressing their wounds day by day, is one of the most important factors in winning them for Christ.

Statistical Summary of Medical Work

Total new cases	2828
Total return visits	49996
Total all visits	7842
Total patient days	7674
Total inpatients	400
Total local income	$7835.65 about one-half of the expenses
Total operations	191

Comparing our reserve bed capacity with the average need, we should have more beds. We have had to turn patients away for lack of room. We hope that some measure can be taken soon to provide us with more space and equipment.

School of Nursing

The number of students is the same as last year, namely 16. The class of advanced students, who are in their fourth year, numbers 6. They are giving heavier responsibility right along, and do quite good work.

Our school has been accepted for registration by the Nurses Association of China.

Outstation Clinic

This work has been carried on by the hospital staff with Miss Sprunger and Miss Goertz taking turns going out a month at a time. We believe it is profitable because of the evangelistic opportunities offered, and otherwise. We believe it helps to increase hospital attendance.

Total places visited	19
Days out	74
Number of patients seen	2102

At present this work is especially important in relation to our medical relief work, which will be one of our biggest problems during the coming year.

Sister Sprunger writes about her clinic work: As I go about in different parts of the field in connection with the Out-station Clinic Work, I am impressed more and more with the greatness of the task before us. This field of work presents great opportunities, and we hope to be able to carry on more efficiently as time goes on, so that the work will mean more by way of meeting both spiritual and physical needs of the people in the country places, arranging, if possible, by means of the hospital car to visit certain given places more frequently.

One phase of responsibility that fell to me this year was in connection with two dear girls who were for a while mentally ill, one a year ago, and the other only recently. They are girls of keen intellect. Heredity seems to have played a part in each of them, but the trouble in both of them seemed to have a strange relation to their spiritual "make up." One was taking nurses' training when the trouble came up, but she is now again in the school for nursing. The other had a setback recently, and is just recovering. She was formerly a bit distant and unexpressive, but is now of an affectionate, clingy nature, and simple trustfulness, meekness, and gentleness. It almost seems that the trouble, unpleasant as it was, must have been permitted in both cases in order to help shape, mold, and mallow their makeup. May the Lord make them to be vessels "meet for the Master's use."

The Educational Committee reports that there are 9 schools, 26 teachers, 415 pupils.

ARIZONA

(A copy of this letter has gone to 63 people, most of whom are praying for these people.)

By J. P. Suderman

"Fear not: For behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." Luke 2:10-11.

One of the greatest hindrances for the Hopis to accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their Saviour, is fear. "What will my father or mother say if I become a Christian? What will the children or the neighbors or my friends say if I become a believer?" Such are the words which often come from the lips of the unbelievers. The message of the angel from heaven was, "Fear not!" So often we find these words in Scripture when fear came to man in the presence of the Lord.

The year which is just passing out, has been a year full of perplexing and vexing problems as well as full of blessings. In the work here in Arizona, we found it rather trying at times during the first part of the year. However, during the last few months everything looks more encouraging, especially now that five souls have found the Saviour.

We were privileged to spend the month of May with our relatives and friends in Kansas and especially to enlist people to pray for many individuals. We believe that the blessings of that trip are still going on now, for the prayers which are going up to the Father are being answered even at this time and we are confident that more prayers will go to the Father's throne in behalf of the mission work in Arizona. Not until we are in eternity will we realize what a power God has entrusted to us when He privileged us to pray and to intercede for one another.

The workers on the field are all well as far as we know. Fred and Minnie Johnson at Moencopi are still continuing faithfully in preaching the Word. During the week when we had special services Emelia, a daughter of Tom and Alice Mootska of Oraibi, accepted the Lord. Rachel Frey, formerly from Kansas, is there too. The younger Hopis at that station are becoming more friendly right along.

Miss Mary Schirmer, stationed at Hotelvilla, has had more help this year, for her Hopi boy, Daniel, was at home during the summer months but now is continuing his studies in the Los Angeles Bible Institute. Andrew Derchar, a native from Jugoslavia, and a friend of Daniel, has chosen to stay at the Hotevilla mission depending entirely upon God for his support. Friends who want to help along in the mission, send him clothing and food as they feel led. He loves the Hopis and loves to work with them. However, he feels that his life work is among his own people in Jugoslavia. They are all Catholic and so was Mr. Derchar until he became a Protestant two years ago. As soon as the way for him is open he will leave.

Most of you are perhaps acquainted with Miss Elizabeth Schmidt's work here at Oraibi. Years ago she adopted several orphan children. Cecelia is married; Karl and Floyd are in the Ganada Mission School and Samuel is at home with her. She supports them by doing laundry work for the government people. 'Twas a joy for her and the Oraibi Christians to have baptismal services for Karl on September 3.

In October, Hilda Frederick Leis, whose age was about 24, died at the Phoenix Indian Sanatorium. She was the daughter of Charles and Anna Frederick, who are Christians here. At Phoenix she was married to Arthur Lewis, a Choc-Taw Indian, who is now making his home here at Oraibi. At the request of her mother, her body was sent here for burial. Then in the last week of October, little Bruce, one year old, baby of Sam and Lavina Jenkins, died. Although they were not Christians, they asked for a Christian burial which was granted. (The Hopi custom of burying little children is to carry them onto a mesa as soon as they die and throw the little bodies between cracks in the rocks.) After the funeral service, Lavina, the mother, made an open confession of Jesus Christ as her Savior and her desire to unite with Christ.

From December 10—15 we had special meetings here at Oraibi. Rev. J. H. Epp from Hillsboro, Kansas, was here to help us. The attendance at these meetings was very good. Then on Sunday, December 17, after Mr. Suderman was through preaching, Laura Q., about 40 years old, and Susie, a twenty-year-old girl, confessed Jesus as their Savior. In the afternoon Mr. Suderman gave a Christmas Vesper Program on the organ. This program was repeated in the evening when an old missionary (Rev. Fred Mitchell) gave a short talk. Norma Mootska, a fourteen-year-old girl, signified her intentions to become a Christian at this time.

On Saturday, December 23, we had our regular Christmas program in the church. About 200 people had crowded into the church that evening, everyone expecting a gift. On Sunday evening the seventh and eighth grade girls together with the returned student girls, sang the cantata "Chimes of the Holy Night," by Holton. Again the church was filled to capacity. This cantata was appreciated very much, for the Hopis love music. On Christmas morning we had our regular Christmas service, after which everybody placed their lunch which they had brought along, onto the oilcloth on the floor and we all joined in on the eats. The meal consisted of bread, hominy, stew, macaroni, and doughnuts. One family had even brought a roast chicken. After dinner was over and the dishes washed, we gathered for another service. This service was intended especially for the Christians, but since there were unbelievers at the service, a sermon on the words of the angels "Fear not" was preached. Opportunity for a decision for Christ was given. Tom Mootska, Norma's father, stood up and received Christ. After a few testimonies from the Christians, Tom's wife, Alice, also received Christ. What a blessed Christmas day it made for all of us! Everybody went home happy.

You can be sure that after all these exercises we were ready for a little change. For the evening we were invited to the Baptist Mission at Polacca, 16 miles east of here. At five o'clock we, together with our interpreter, Brother Johnson, and Tom Mootska, left for the appointed place. The two Hopi men had a blessed time of fellowship at the home of one of the Baptist Christian families, while we enjoyed the fellowship of all the Baptist missionaries.

Rejoice with us for the twelve new babes in Christ. Every one of them need your prayers. Pray that the command of Jesus, "Feed my Lambs," may be carried out according to His plan, that these souls may grow from day to day in favor with God as well as with man. We would also request special prayer for Sam Jenkins, the husband of Lavina, mentioned in this letter, for he knows that he should become a Christian, but is afraid. Pray for Susie's parents who are hostile to Christianity. Seba James desires to hear more of the gospel. Pray for his wife who said that she wants to come back to the Lord whom she had begun to serve when she was a student at school. You may not know these people, but God knows them and is able to bring them into the light. We, too, need your prayers, for the whole work we are called upon to do.

In closing we greet you in the name of Jesus and wish all of you a happy New Year.

P. S.—As a result of this revival, Satan's agents among the Hopis have staged a Hopi dance, that the revival should stop. Let us pray that Satan's force might be brought to naught, so that God's power shall be so much more manifested. J, P. S.

MY REDEEMER LIVETH

"I know that my Redeemer liveth
And on the earth again shall stand;
I know eternal life He giveth,
That grace and power are in His hand.

"I know His promise never faileth,
The word He speaks it cannot die;
Though cruel flesh my soul assaileth,
Yet I shall see Him by and by.

"I know my mansion He prepareth,
That where He is there I may be
O wondrous thought, for me He careth,
And He at last will come for me."
—Jessie H. Brown.

Joel 2:28 and Acts 2:17

In the first passage cited the prophet makes a promise as to what the Lord will do. In the New Testament we find that promise fulfilled as a result of the great Pentecostal Experience.

Many references might be made in the verses indicated, but we desire to limit the application to the young people. The promise is made that the Lord is ready and anxious to pour out His Holy Spirit on the youth of Israel and give vision to young men. This promise is still effective even until today. We need a renewed conviction that the Holy Spirit is to be the constant companion and guide of our sons and daughters. More than this, if the church leaders direct youth aright, youth will respond and be willing to assume even greater tasks than their elders were willing to assume.

The writer has visited the Middle District Churches in the last two months, and he has found almost every Sunday School led by a young man. The schools are growing and splendid young men and women fill many of the teaching positions. Older persons are also definitely in evidence. This is as it ought to be. The enthusiasm of youth needs to be tempered by the wisdom and experience of old age.

In addition to doing young people's work, we have the task of presenting the needs of our publication work. We find that in order to have our church papers pay for themselves, we need at least 1500 new subscribers to "The Mennonite and the Christian Evangel." The appeal to subscribe is made to fathers and mothers, but the appeal to go and secure these new subscribers is made to the young men and young women of vision. We have yet to come to a church where we had a fair chance to challenge the young people to undertake this task, to find that they are not willing and ready to do this work. The visions and hopefulness of young people enables them to undertake tasks from which older ones would shrink.

In future paragraphs we plan to make mention of other things what the readiness and vision of youth accomplished for Christ and the church.

May the opportunities of the new year find us ready and equipped with the Holy Spirit for the tasks that await us in our homes, our churches, our nation and in the world.

A. J. Neuenschwander,
Y. P. Field Secretary.

The executive committee and society presidents of the Eastern District Young Peoples' Union held a business meeting in the Grace Church, Lansdale, Pa., recently and made some definite plans to "carry out" during the last half of the C. E. year.

A lengthy discussion took place regarding a wider circulation of The Mennonite among our church members. It is the hope of the Union that we will be able to place this paper in 75 percent of our homes by May 30, 1934. Young people, let's get to work and not only reach our goal but go "over the top."

The Souderton Society had a very impressive service, December 3, when they conducted their consecration service in the form of a candle light service. The leader was Miss Jean Swartly. This same society will hold a special service on Christmas eve and will have as their guest Mrs. Russell A. Lanz of Bluffton College, who will favor the group with several readings. The society will then go Christmas caroling.

The Hereford society will be host to the Perkiomen Valley Christian Endeavor Branch on New Year's eve when a sacred musicale will be held at 10 o'clock and a candle light communion service will be held from 11 to 12 midnight, thus giving the young folks of the Branch an opportunity to meet as one large church and partake of the Lord's supper as a fitting climax to the year's activities.

The Eastern District Young Peoples Union wishes to extend to Christian Endeavors and young people everywhere its best wishes for a fine and successful year in 1934.

—May Markley.

An ACTIVE SOCIETY

The Mennonite Christian Endeavors of Aberdeen, Idaho, observed C. E. week by having a business meeting and a social gathering of each society.

The Young People C. E. met at the parsonage and held their business meeting. We settled some points on our contest and gave the different committees definite work to do. Our contest is progressing rapidly and with increasing interest.

We have continued to have interesting discussions in our regular Sunday evening meetings. At least once a month the Young People and Adult Societies have a joint meeting at the church, which are very inspiring.

LITTLE THINGS

Some things most dangerous to our life
Are very, very small;
The little germs that float around
We cannot see at all.

Yet who escape the deadly harm
These little microbes bring?
They come upon us unawares
And to us they will cling.

They threaten health and life itself
And bring us much unrest;
They weaken all our powers that
We cannot do our best.

And so with our immortal souls,
The dangers that betide;
Not always are the flagrant sins,
But little thoughts of pride,

Of hatred and of selfishness,
That come upon us here
So quietly we scarce detect,
And cause our heart no fear.

And yet they will destroy for us
Our joy and peace and rest;
And mar each deed we try to do,
And make us fail life's test.

—Hopeful.

Does The Resurrection Make Any Difference In Our Lives?

Col. 3:1-4

The nature of this topic strongly suggests the trend this discussion should take. Often times we are led far afield from any biblical meditation, but this week let us keep ourselves close to the topic in hand. A lawyer once occosted his pastor, and among other things, he said, "The trouble with you preachers is that you busy yourselves with the 'tiddledy-winks' when you might be leading us into the deep things of God. When I am told in no uncertain terms that in Jesus Christ I can see God, it gives me new strength for the work of the coming week."

In our Scripture portion, we are told "If ye then be risen with Christ," meaning if we live in mystical fellowship with Him we will seek those things which are heavenly and spiritual. Here is a rich field for us to explore. What are some of these heavenly blessings, and how may the individual enjoy them. We will do well to contrast the satisfaction of these spiritual blessings with the material and worldly things. Money, fame, and power do not satisfy the cravings of the human soul. We cannot imagine an angel happy by coming into possession of diamonds, crowns, and marble palaces. No more can man be satisfied with these earthly things. They may gratify for a time, but will leave the spiritual man only so much the more dissatisfied.

When a man is dead to things earthy, when they do not hold any attractions for us, that is when we do not idolize them, then our lives may be hid with Christ. Oh, the joy when a life can find its sole satisfaction in being in the will of Jesus Christ, trusting in His shed blood on Calvary for forgiveness of sin and newness of life and thus be raised with Christ into the spiritual kingdom. This will result in the life abundant here and as we move toward our setting sun, we may be assured that we also shall be resurrected.

I Love Him Because He First Loved Me

"Christ Jesus, my Lord, from heaven came,
To save me from guilt and sin and shame;
His death on the cross of Calvary,
Brought pardon and gave me liberty.

"My Lord who was slain by sinful man,
A wonderful Friend to me has been;
He rose from the tomb with victory,
And now I love Him as He loves me."

"O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is in the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

Questions

1. What does it mean to be "risen with Christ" (Col. 3:1)?
2. How may the Christian life be "hid with Christ" (Col. 3:3)?
3. How can Jesus' Resurrection assure us of everlasting life?
4. In what ways does Easter give us Christian confidence?
5. How may we think of Calvary and Easter as a picture of life at its very best?
6. What does Easter mean to you?

What Does Jesus Require Of Us?

Matthew 16:24-28

The world expects the Christian to be different. The religion we profess should transform a man. Whereas, heretofore he has been of a selfish, grasping nature he now will be unselfish, eagerly seeking to serve because the spirit of love dominates his life. No sacrifice will be too great, for he ever remembers what Jesus did for him. The Christian will be active, for there is so much to do. Since Jesus Christ has come into his life, he is fired with a new enthusiasm and his fellowship with the Father assures him of almost unlimited strength and endurance. Dr. E. Stanley Jones tells how while a missionary in India, after his health seemed to be gone, he agonized in prayer and was assured that if he would fully consecrate himself to Christ and His service he would be given sufficient strength for all his tasks. Dr. Jones testifies that since that day he has not known what it is to be physically exhausted.

A secret of this abundant Christian life is a life of daily fellowship and prayer. We must come to the place where we hunger and thirst for fellowship with Him. We will find time for many happy, quiet hours studying His word and permit the Spirit to search out our lives, we will evaluate our lives with that of the Master.

Our topic says, "What does Jesus require of us?" We do not like that word "require?" Christianity is not a system of law, but it is a way of life, it comes through the gift of grace. When a person has become a Christian, he will desire to do those things which are well-pleasing to Jesus Christ. So in reality we are considering in this topic the manner of life which is acceptable to our Master.

Jesus did not teach by means of giving detailed legislation as to man's conduct and his manner of living in the everyday walk of life. Instead He gave us life principles which hold true for all men and for all ages. In our Scripture lesson we find a number of principles enunciated. Discipleship calls for humility and a willingness to accept cross-bearing. The Christian life at its best, and in its mellowed, sweetened form comes as a result of choosing the path of being willing to lose life in the desire to do loving service rather than to grasp selfishly for that which he may deem to be his right.

Loyalty At Any Cost

Matt. 10:24-39

"Seek ye first the kindom of God and His righteousness, and all those things shall be added unto you."

Pre-Prayer

Be loyal to God in united prayer!

The Cost of Loyalty

Verse 25. Jesus wants us to be prepared for conditions that undermine our loyalty. He holds up to us His loyalty to God.

Verse 26. Disloyalty is usually the result of fear. People are not always traitors; they shrink from confession of Christ because of Satanic fear.

Verse 27. There is no "secret doctrine" in Christianity. The teachings of Jesus may be shouted aloud all over the world. They are for all, high, low, rich and poor.

Verses 35, 36. Jesus lays first claim to our loyalty and to our service. No matter what others may say; he who obeys Christ first, will be happier and most fully blessed!

Leader

Tonight our topic deals with our loyalty to Christ at any cost. Primarily let us first discuss what is included in being "Loyal to Christ."

1. Explain Ruth 1:6-18. What is the cost of loyalty?
2. Just what place does conscience have in deciding our loyalty to Christ? Dan. 3:13-18.
3. How examplary is Jesus in His loyalty to God? Jno. 19:8-11. What is the cost?
4. Can a man be loyal to God and not to his family? Gen. 45:21-28. Can a man be loyal to his family and still not be loyal to God?
5. Where does loyalty to the laws and to the state and country enter into our loyalty to God? Matt. 22:15-21. What does it cost?
6. What is the endurance of loyalty? II Tim. 4:6-8. What does it cost?
7. What would you name as besetting sins which hinder our loyalty to Christ? What do they cost?
8. Find out what you can about the cost of loyalty to Christ—to a Jew who accepted and confesses Christ as his personal Savior. Discuss it.

"Think On These Things"

In the Derbies only thoroughbred horses are entered to run in the race. When the horses are yet very young a sum of $500 must be paid before they begin to train them for the Derby. Then when the requirements in training and weight and the entrance is applied for, there must be another fee of at least $500 paid. Just think of it, at least $1000 paid before entering in upon the race for such a short time (perhaps around the track once). Many Christians are not willing to claim Christ as their Savior because they "Will not pay the price" of

What Does the Resurrection of Jesus Mean?

1 Cor. 15:12-23, 54-57 (Easter)

(Consecration Service)

The resurrection means that Jesus is preparing a place for His own (Jno. 14:2, 3).

Pre-Prayer

Matthew 18:19

"That if two of you shall agree on earth touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven."

Easter

For the Leader: When we think of Easter our minds usually call forth from memory the chain of events that lead up to the resurrection. Unless we do think of the things that happened during "Holy Week" we cannot understand the full meaning of Easter. Let us, then, consider some of these events and try to decide just what they mean in our lives today.

1. What meaning does Christ's entry into Jerusalem hold for us? As Jesus entered the city, everyone welcomed Him, claiming Him as their king. Jesus did not set Himself up as king, but merely asked that the temple be restored to its rightful use and that men live their lives as citizens of the Kingdom of God. These same folks, just a few days later cried, "Crucify Him!"

2. What does it mean to accept Christ? Did the city of Jerusalem accept Him?

3. What does the Last Supper mean to us? The disciples were gathered all together with Jesus for the last supper. Jesus told them that one of them should betray Him. All said, one after another, "Is it I?" and within their hearts they must have said as Peter did later, "Not I," "I'll not deny Him." Not many hours later Judas had betrayed Him and Peter had denied Him three times.

4. Does the Betrayal have any meaning to us? Judas was disappointed. He had given up his work to follow Jesus for three years. He thought that some day Jesus would be king and he now realized his false hopes, as he termed them. To Judas to follow Jesus meant "personal gain." What does it mean to you?

5. The crucifixion: What does the Cross mean to us? "Into thy hands I commend my spirit." "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

6. The resurrection: What is the richness of the resurrection to us? If the disciples and friends of Jesus would have understood what He meant when He spoke of His return in three days, they had forgotten it in these days of sorrow and seeming defeat in that awful crucifixion-hour. Then came the resurrection bringing hope and joy without measure with understanding hearts of His previous words.

7. What did the resurrection of Jesus mean to a) The disciples? b) To the mother of Jesus? c) to Mary Magdalene? d) To those who had crucified Him? e) To you?

Telling Our Friends About Jesus

John 1:29, 30, 35-37

No doubt many of you boys and girls are looking forward to the time when you can do something big for Jesus. You hope to be missionaries, preachers, Sunday School teachers, or church workers when you grow up. It is well that you should be thinking of these things but do you know that if you love Jesus you need not wait until you are grown to tell others of Him? Sometimes folks listen better to a boy or girl than to a grown person. Dr. John Timothy Stone, long a pastor in Chicago, tells how, when only a boy, he won another boy to Christ. "We were trading stamps together in the little hall bedroom which I occupied in my father's home. In the Albany Y. M. C. A. rooms a few of us boys listened to older ones talk of the blessing of personal work, and had resolved we would try to win some of our boy friends to Christ.

"How well I remember that night. My sisters and some of our friends were having a good time downstairs, and once or twice called for us to come down. We kept on trading stamps until, at last, I plucked up enough courage to say to my friend, 'Jim, why don't you become a Christian?' If I had hurled his stamp album out of the window he would not have been more surprised. I know my voice trembled and that what I said did not amount to anything. The verses which I quoted were not, in my embarrassment, exactly right, but he saw my heart, and God honored the effort, and there in that little room two of us boys in knee trousers asked the Lord Jesus to help us to live right, and he gave his heart to Christ. Later he became an honored worker in one of the city churches."

Try telling your friends about Jesus, too. Nothing will make you more happy than leading them to Him.

1. Why is it necessary that we know Jesus before telling others about Him?
2. Why should we tell our friends about Jesus?
3. Why may they listen to us rather than to a stranger?
4. Tell how some Bible folks brought others to Jesus.
5. What does Solomon say about those who win others? Prov. 11:30.

The First Glad Easter

Mark 16:1-14 (Consecration Meeting)

Let us try to imagine we are living with Jesus' friends that first Easter time. They were so sad! They thought He had come to be their king and now He had died. They forgot that He said He would live again. Then how happy they were when they knew He had risen!

Easter is one of the happiest days of the year for it reminds us that Jesus still lives and the Bible says, "because He lives, ye shall live also." Of course we are happy at Christmas, we rejoice because Jesus was born, but if He had not died for us and risen again He would have been only an example and not a Savior. He came to earth that He might die on the cross to save us from sin, then He rose again that we might live. Now we know that when we who love Him die, it is just God's way of taking us to that happy home that He has for us and we shall always live.

Plans for the Meeting

Have the Juniors tell leading events of the week preceding the first Easter. The superintendent in her talk should emphasize the importance of Jesus' death and resurrection. Help the Juniors to see that Christ willingly gave up His life because He knew there was no other way for us to be saved. "Without shedding of blood is no remission." Heb. 9:22. Then His resurrection brings the hope spoken of in 1 Peter 1:3-5 and other places. Complete the study with the thought of His coming again.

Questions

1. Why did Jesus die?
2. Why did He rise again?
3. What was the angels' message to the women?
4. What hope does Jesus' resurrection give us?
5. Where is Jesus now and what is He doing?

Daily Readings

All hope gone. Luke 24:21.
Angels in the tomb. John 20:11-16.
Christ is risen. John 20:19-23.
We, too, shall rise. 1 Cor. 15:22.
"There is no death." John 11:25, 26.
The Christian hope. 1 Peter 1:3-5.

Your Niche

There's a niche for you in the world, my boy,
A corner for you to fill;
And it waits today
Along life's way,
For the boy with a frank "I will!"
So, lad, be true;
The world wants you
In God's great plan to fill.

There's a niche for you in the world, my girl,
A corner for you to fill.
And a work to do
Which no one but you
In God's great plan can fill;
So, dear, be true;
The world wants you,
And your place is waiting still.

There is no sham in real goodness. Men may pretend it without possessing it, but no righteousness needs pretense. Real goodness needs no veneer. On the other hand, you can not counterfeit a counterfeit. —M. K.

Christ has said, that through His poverty we may be made rich. Can we understand how it is, that when we are weak, we are strong? That when we are foolish, we are wise? That when we suffer, we shall sing?—R. E. N., D. D.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Confessing and Following Christ

Lesson Text—Matthew 16:13-26

Golden Text—Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. Matt. 16:16.

This lesson is a very fitting one to study on Palm Sunday. It marks the beginning of the third year of His ministry which is the year of opposition. As we trace the life and ministry of our Lord we notice that the first year was spent in the meeting of individuals and becoming acquainted with His disciples. The second year of His ministry was the year of Public Favor in which He did His preaching, teaching and healing. He has now come to the crisis of His life where unbelief has developed and the opposition is very strong. Another incident which affected Him very much was the death of John the Baptist.

He now takes His twelve disciples and goes to retirement in the extreme north part of Palestine at a place called Caeserea Philippi. Jesus became rather anxious to know whether the disciples were grasping the real meaning of His life and mission. He asked them the question, "Who do men say that the Son of Man is?" The answer given by the disciples is extremely illuminating. It reveals the fact that His people did not understand Him nor His mission. Some people said He was the forerunner John the Baptist. Some said He was Elijah, the great fiery prophet, and other said that He was Jeremiah, the prophet of sympathy and helpfulness. These answers revealed that they placed Jesus in the line of the prophets, but did not look upon Him as the promised Messiah.

Jesus is, however, more anxious to know that the inner group thought of Him than the opinions of the people, so He said, "Who do ye say that I am?" Simon Peter answered with a flash of insight, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Jesus then revealed to them that this statement did not come from his intellectual ability, but was rather the expression of his personal experience with the Father. Jesus said it is upon such an experience and testimony upon which He will build His church. One of the largest religious bodies in America believes that Jesus was speaking to Peter as a man and that He gave them authority of which the keys were an evidence. in fact it is to be admitted according to the literal interpretation of the Bible that is the meaning, but Jesus was speaking of spiritual realities. It was rather God speaking through Him that brought this experience to Peter. This is shown by the fact that following this conversation Jesus began to teach the disciples that He must go to Jerusalem and be killed and the third day rise again. Peter could not harmonize this with the Jewish conception of a kingdom as it was not the custom for kings to be killed, but they had rather the authority to kill others, so Peter rebuked Him, but Jesus turned to Him and revealed to Him the fact that in the spiritual kingdom the life principle is sacrifice, unselfishness, and service. It seems to me it would be fitting to close this discussion with the appeal of Dr. Daniel Poling at the C. E. Convention, that a Christian is one who witnesses and that we might go forth with the slogan, "I will be Christian!"

The Risen Christ

Lesson Text—John 20:1-16

Golden Text—If then ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. Col. 3:1.

This Easter morning we again come with the disciples and the women and gaze into the empty tomb and wonder with them at the event that has taken place and then go away to adjust ourselves to the new truth which is discovered.

As we noticed in the above lesson, Jesus had told the disciples that He would be killed and buried and the third day rise again, but they had their minds filled so much with the glories of an earthly kingdom that they were not able to comprehend spiritual truths. How true that is even today that men are so set on how Jesus' future plans will be as far as a material kingdom is concerned that they miss the great spiritual truths concerning the kingdom. The empty tomb simply reveals the fact that life is eternal, death is only a stepping stone into a larger life.

There are some very definite lessons which we need to learn on Easter Day concerning Jesus and life. He said, "I came that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." In the first place Jesus' Resurrection teaches immortality. We live beyond the grave and that hope becomes the anchor of the soul and the incentive of life. In the second place there is a difference between the Jesus of history and the Christ of experience. We may know all about Jesus' earthly life and be able to quote all His teachings and believe that He died for our sins and yet not be a Christian. Jesus must not only be known but also experienced. He is the Lord of life. We need to say with Paul, "I live, yet not I but Christ liveth in me."

THE CONGO INLAND MISSION

By A. M. Eash

Beginnings in The Congo Inland Mission

Since the writer of these sketches only came into close contact with the work of the Congo Inland Mission about six years ago, it is with considerable trepidation that even this brief historical statement of the "Beginnings" of the mission is made. For some reason or other there has been a large "turn over" of missionaries so that today none of the earliest workers have any active connection with the work of the mission. What is being written here must very properly be designated as "gleanings," for it can be no better.

Rev. and Mrs. L. B. Haigh and Rev. A. J. Stevenson were the first three workers of the mission. Rev. and Mrs. Haigh had seen service with the Africa Inland Mission in British East Africa and Rev. Stevenson had earlier served in a Baptist mission on the west coast of the continent. These three workers arrived on the field early in the year 1911 and laid the foundations of what has grown into the present large work.

The missionaries of the Southern Presbyterian Mission, with headquarters located at Luebo, rendered invaluable aid to these new workers in finding a suitable territory and starting the work. Their own mission had been started a number of years earlier and a limited literature had been developed and native Christians trained as workers. Very unselfishly these Presbyterian Missionaries shared both native workers and literature with the new mission. After some investigation it was decided to make Djoko Punda, a native village located at the head of navigation on the Kasai River, the starting place for the work. This had already become a place of considerable prominence through the activities of the Kasai Rubber Company. That the missionaries chose wisely is attested to by the fact that Djoko Punda—now called Charlesville—is still the headquarters of the mission and is in the location of the office and transportation center for the work of the entire territory. The ravages of disease soon made themselves felt and before the end of the second year the body of Mr. Stevenson was laid to rest on the Djoko Punda station grounds.

Before the close of the first year of work the pioneering spirit of Rev. Haigh prompted him to investigate for a second center of work. Those early workers were true pioneers and were laying a foundation for a great work for their Lord. Rev. Haigh's investigations took him south through jungle and forest and across plain until finally he reached the territory of the powerful native chief, Kalamba Mukenge. Chief Kalamba welcomed them into his territory and encouraged them to start a work at what is now the site of Kalamba station. The work at these two first stations was conducted largely in the Baluba-Bulua tribes. Since these tribes had much in common, used practically the same language and were the same tribe as was occupied by the Presbyterian neighbors, the serious problem of reducing a language to writing and producing all the literature necessary for the work, was removed by the simple expedient of taking advantage of the earlier work done by the Presbyterian neighbors. In some respects this was fortunate for these pioneer workers in that it reduced their initial problems. It had, however, the disadvantageous effect of making them hesitate about entering the large tribes to their west for whom they had been made responsible and who had not been touched in any manner by the work of missionaries.

Not until about ten years later did the mission venture into the second tribe, the Bampende. This is by far the largest tribe lying entirely in the Congo Inland Mission territory and at that time had the reputation of being very wild and cannibalistic. While later experiences proved them as being entirely uncivilized cannibals, only on rare occasions in recent times have any of their attitudes been seriously antagonistic toward the white missionaries.

After some investigation, the village of Nyanga was selected as the site for the first missionary work in the Bampende Tribe. Work was started here about ten years after the opening at Djoko Punda with Rev. and Mrs. Aaron A. Jansen as the first workers. Several years later another station was opened near the village of Mukedi so that by 1923 missionary work was being conducted in these four well selected centers and extending its influence into the surrounding territories.

Today the mails regularly bring heartening reports of victories being won for the Lord. A letter from Charlesville (formerly Djoko Punda) reports 62 baptisms in November of last year, and another letter, just received from Nyanga, brings the heartening word of 88 baptized at that place in the same month. These, with the many others who have come into the Christian church during these years, came out of darkest paganism and have experienced the cleansing and redeeming power of the blood of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ.

DEATHS

Wiebe.—Waldo Martin Wiebe, son of Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Wiebe, Upland, Calif., was born September 27, 1923. He died at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland, February 19, 1934. Age 10 years, 4 months, and 23 days. His parents were formerly missionaries to the Indians in Arizona, but have lived in Upland for a number of years on account of Mr. Wiebe's health. Cause of Waldo's death was influenza, which developed into mastoid trouble and later to spinal meningitis. Funeral services were held at San Antonio Community Church, February 22, at 3 P. M. Rev. Lester Hostetler officiating, assisted by Rev. Stone of the Presbyterian Church. A brief service was held at the house conducted by Rev. J. K. Lichti. Interment was made at Bellevue Cemetery in Ontario.

Overholt. — Mary Ann Shelly Overholt was the daughter of David and Susanna Shelly and was born November 3, 1849, in Lower Saucon Township, Lehigh County, Pa. Most of her girlhood years were spent in the city of Philadelphia where the family moved when Mrs. Overholt was six years of age. She lived in that city till the time of her marriage to William B. Overholt, July 14, 1868. In November of the same year the newly married couple migrated to Wadsworth, Ohio. To this union six daughters and five sons were born all of whom lived to manhood and womanhood and eight of whom live to mourn the passing of their mother. Mr. Overholt died May 17, 1921, and three of her children, Harry, Cora, and Emma, also preceded her in death.

At the age of seventeen Mrs. Overholt became a member of the First Mennonite Church of Philadelphia which church she always held in high esteem, it being the church of her ancestors. After moving to Wadsworth the family affiliated with the First Mennonite Church in 1869, to which church Mrs. Overholt gave her faithful adherence, being especially active in the work of the Ladies Aid of the church. She was a member of the church for 66 years.

Being totally blind the last four years of her life, her other faculties were unusually keen and she enjoyed the companionship of her loved ones and acquaintances until the last few weeks of her life.

Death occurred February 19, at the age of 84 years, 3 months, and 16 days. Eight children survive, all of whom live in Wadsworth. There are also 21 grandchildren and 8 greatgrandchildren.

Mrs. Overholt's sister-in-law, Mrs. Henry Shelly, died but a few hours before Mrs. Overholt, and since these two enjoyed a very intimate friendship and were the last of their generation, a double funeral was conducted on February 21.

Mrs. Overholt was the oldest member of the church, both in point of age and also in the number of years as a member of the church. She was the last one of the early pioneers who migrated to Wadsworth from Pennsylvania and assisted in establishing the church here in Wadsworth.

Kinsinger, Hugo J.—Was born at Collinsville, Ohio, September 22, 1889, and departed this life November 25, 1933, after a lingering illness. He united with the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, in early youth, in which church he retained his membership until the time of his death. He united in marriage with Alma May Jacoby, Seven Mile, Ohio, September 22, 1932. He leaves to mourn his loss, the bereaved widow, his mother, Mrs. Emma B. Kinsinger, and one sister, Edna M. Kinsinger, of Collinsville, Ohio.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz, pastor of the Trenton Mennonite Church, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, basing his remarks on Romans 8:38,39.

Augspurger, Salena.—Departed this life at Trenton, Ohio, December 17, 1933, after a lingering illness. She united with the Mennonite Church in early youth, and remained a loyal and faithful member until her death. She left to mourn her loss, her sister Clara with whom she made her home, also a brother, Theodore, of Trenton, Ohio, and a sister, Mrs. Wm. Iutzi, of Bluffton, Ohio.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz, pastor of the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, basing his remarks on Psalm 23.

Ummel, Christian—Departed this life December 26, 1933, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Zoller, on the Middleton Pike, south of the City, having reached the age of 83 years. Mr. Ummel was born in Switzerland and came to the United States at the age of 18 years. He was a faithful member of the Mennonite Church at Trenton, and services were conducted by his pastor, Rev. J. E. Ammstutz, who based his remarks on Psalm 121.

Elliot, Anna S., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Elliot, was born in Elkhart County, near Goshen, Indiana, March 14, 1864, and died near Topeka, Indiana, February 9, 1934. Age 69 years, 10 months and 25 days.

On January 29, 1882, she was married to Rev. John C. Lehman, and two years ago they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. To this union were born four children, Harry and Charley, Noble and Florence, Harvey having preceded her in death about sixteen years ago.

While a young woman she accepted Christ and with her husband united with the Mennonite Church. About ten years ago the dreadful disease of arthritis overtook her and for the last eight years she had been unable to walk. During these years she endured unusual suffering, but through it all endured her pain with profound patience.

She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, three children, two brothers, two sisters, five grandchildren, one greatgrandchild, and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral will be held at the home on Monday afternoon at 1:30 and at the Topeka Mennonite Church at 2:00 o'clock. The services will be in charge of Rev. Salzman and Rev. Allen Yoder.

Susanna (Erb) Miller, daughter of Samuel and Catherine Erb, was born September 25, 1857. She departed this life February 26, 1934. Age 76 years, 5 months and 1 day. She was united in marriage to Daniel J. Miller on August 10, 1879. There were eight children born to this union: Warren, Grover C., Walter, Una, and Mrs. Ed. Leslie, all of this or nearby communties, and Harvey, of Des Moines, Iowa. Her husband and son Earl preceded her in death approximately five and ten years ago, respectively. One son died in infancy. She is also survived by two brothers, John and Samuel Erb, of Wellman, Iowa, and one sister, Mrs. Henry Coffman, of South English, Iowa. Besides these there also remains a large group of more distant relatives as well as friends who pay tribute and respect to the life of the departed one. She was a faithful member of the Silver St. Church, being regularly in her place of worship until illness prevented her attending. Funeral services were conducted for her in the home church by her pastor, Rev. Allen Yoder, at 10:30 o'clock, March 1.

Baughman.—J. H. Baughman, son of John and Katherine Nafsinger Baughman, deceased, was born in McClean Co., Ill., near Oak Grove, October 31, 1859. He died February 15, 1934, at Pontiac, Ill., at the age of 74 years, 8 months and 16 days. He was united in marriage to Miss Mary S. Rhodova at Stanford, Ill., December 25, 1890. She preceded him in death almost four years ago. They were the parents of two sons, Merton and Chester, both of Pontiac, Ill., and three daughters, Leta and Inas, who preceded them in death, and Gladys, of Chicago. He also leaves five grandchildren, eight brothers and two sisters, Jacob N., of Bloomington, Ill., Joseph W., of Zion, Ill., Dr. Daniel E., of Fort Dodge, Ia., Mrs. Anna McMickin, of Manson, Iowa, Alf. W., of near Fonda, Iowa, Mrs. Lydia Barr, of Belosdere, So. Dak., Frank B., of New-Berg, Oregon, Peter W., of Hollywood, Calif., and Lewis E., of Judd, Iowa. One sister, Lena, preceded him in death at the age of six years. He also leaves a large host of relatives and friends.

Mr. Baughman spent eight or ten years of his early life in Kansas, taking up a claim at that place; he also spent nine years on a farm near Manson, Iowa, after which he moved back to Illinois, where he spent most of his latter years in the restaurant and hotel business in Pontiac, Ill. He was sick six weeks, the last two weeks he was confined to his bed with much pain and suffering, but was very patient in his sickness. All was done that was possible for his comfort. He was a member of the Mennonite Church. He was a man that did very little complaining.

The funeral services were held at 2:30 P. M. Sunday from the chapel of the Raleigh J. Harris mortuary in Pontiac. Rev. G. I. Gundy, pastor of the Mennonite church at Meadows, conducting, assisted by Rev. Crabtree of Pontiac. Burial in the Southside Cemetery, Pontiac.

Elizabeth Schrock, daughter of Rev. Benjamin and Maria Schrock, was born near Kokomo, Ind., October 6, 1853. Her spirit returning to God February 19, 1934, at the age of 80 years, 4 months, and 13 days. She had been confined to her home most of the time for the past three years. Her going home relieved her of much pain and distress which she bore patiently. In her early years she came with her parents to Elkhart, County and resided on the home farm near Middlebury for more than sixty years before her decease. She was one of a family of eleven children, all having preceded her with the exception of one brother, Benjamin, residing in Goshen, Ind. She is also survived by two nieces and one nephew, Mrs. Irvin Steele, Wilma F., and Olen Schrock, whom she helped to care for and rear after the death of their mother, twenty-nine years ago. The latter two were living on the home farm with her at the time of her departure. She is also survived by a number of other nieces and nephews, scattered into various parts of our country, besides the many friends of the local community and church who remember her by "what she hath done." She united with the Mennonite Church in her youth, her father being a minister in this denomination. She was a charter member of the Silver St. Church from which funeral services were conducted, February 22, at two o'clock, with Rev. Allen Yoder in charge. Burial was made in the Forest Grove cemetery.

JOTTINGS

The Management of the Mennonite Hospital Society Concordia, Winnipeg, Canada, announces that a long felt need has been realized. "A growing necessity regarding the service and care of our people in sickness and distress has been met. At a special meeting of the members of our society on the 16th of February of this year the Sanatorium in Elmwood was bought. Regardless of the most favorable conditions of purchase the responsibility of the Society remains beyond its present strength. In view of this fact the management of our Society feels the urgent need to appeal to our Mennonite congregations of all various branches to support the Concordia Hospital in every possible way of which they are capable. It is for the cause of our suffering brethren. That much needed parents be restored to their children, and children whose vitality seemed nipped in the bud be restored in youthful vigor to their rejoicing parents. It is worth every effort. Not a single gift is too great or too small. Each donator may feel the joyful satisfaction as he looks upon the recovered and restored: "It has been my privilege to aid in this great work of Christian love."

Rev. Albert Penner, a graduate of Bethel College, pastor of the Jonathan Edwards Congregationlist Church, Northampton, Mass., of which the late Ex-President Calvin Coolidge was a communicant, has been engaged to deliver the Commencement Address at Bethel this year.

Several hundred (Old) Mennonites accompanied the missionaries who were to sail for their field in Africa to New York to see them off. A service of song and prayer, held in a New York eating place, was noticed in several papers of the Metropolis as something unusual. Can it be that the sincere parting in a Christian way with brethren who were about to cross the sea was so unusual in New York where thousands leave every week for the other side of the ocean?

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, of Bethel College, was engaged as the principal speaker at a series of pre-Easter services held in Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, of which Rev. Paul E. Whitmer is pastor. The dates—March 11 to 18.

Bethel College plans the construction of several barns on the camus for the operation of a college farm similar to farms operated by several other colleges. The lumber from the old building of the Mennonite church in Newton had been donated for this purpose and it is expected that there will be other donations of material for this purpose.

At a recent poll taken by the students of Temple University, Philadelphia, on the question of a disarmament policy as a means of securing international peace, 200 voted in favor of disarmament while 55 voted for a policy of armament. 71 of these voting expressed a desire for furthering an organization which would lead in giving peace instruction. This is but one example of what has been going on along in the interest of peace in the larger institutions of learning. The movement began in Oxford, England, and has spread to Universities everywhere and wherever polls have been taken on the vote has always been strongly opposed to such a measure.

Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor of the Upland, California, church has been conducting regular catechetical instructions to a class of young people. It is expected that the new members are to be added to the church on Easter. Rev. Hostetler has been conducting a series of sermons on the book of Jeremiah.

March 1 closed a series of meetings conducted in the First Church, Bluffton, Ohio, by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Beran, Ind., who is traveling in the interest of Young Peoples' Work and Publications for the General Conference.

There has been a Mennonite colony in Central Asia for 48 years, located in three settlements and containing about 1500 people. Crops are raised by irrigation and dairy farming is carried on in parts, cheese being the product sold. The nearest point to a railroad is fifty miles from the colony. The colony is said to have prospered. Just how it is affected by the attitude of the Soviet government is not clear to those of the outside world. At the General Conference held in Beatrice, Nebraska, in 1911, there were several visitors from this section.

Olin Krehbiel, son of Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, editor of the Bundesbote, has been called by the Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference to take charge of the mission in Wichita, Kansas.

Dr. S. K. Mosiman accompanied the A Capella Choir of Bluffton College to Findlay, Ohio, where a sacred concert was given in the First Methodist Church and gave an appropriate address. Prof. Russell Lantz directed the choir in presenting the program.

At a meeting in the interest of The Mission to Lepers held in the Mt. Airy Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, the model of the Mennonite Leper Asylum in India, which Rev. P. A. Penner brought with him on his last furlough, was on display. The model is a correct picture of the institute in miniature and has created great interest wherever displayed. Dr. Ella Bauman was present and gave an address. The date, March 16.

When missionary interest was developing among the Mennonites, the late Dr. S. S. Haury and Rev. J. B. Baer were sent out to look for a field. They set their faces toward Alaska and the United States Government generously gave them passage on the U. S. Revenue cutter Bear. This vessel having been in the service of the Government for many years was only retired from several years ago. The Alaska field did not seem a proper one in the judgment of the brethren and the field in Indian Territory was then selected. Dr. Haury was the pioneer missionary of the American Mennonites.

Mennonite Hymn Book

No Mennonite Church can afford to be without this hymn book. Those churches which have used it for any length of time are enthusiastic about it.

The Mennonite Hymn Book is a 392 page volume, containing 412 hymns of dignity and character and a splendid selection of responsive readings. Hymns are well arranged for all Church Year occasions. Choice selections for Missions, Peace, Home and Religious Education, including a number of children's hymns and translations of "Gesangbuch mit Noten" favorites.

A suitable hymn-book for every department of the church. Nearly every hymn has the text set within the music. The music and type are clear and bold.

THE LAST OF A MENNONITE FAMILY IN EUROPE

Jacob Gottschall, a minister from Gog, a small place near Crefelt, Germany, arrived in Germantown, Pennsylvania, in 1702. With his coming and under his leadership the little Mennonite community became active. A meeting house of logs was soon erected on the spot of the present building and congregational life began to assert itself when, under his direction baptism was administered and the Lord's Supper celebrated. Practically the only reliable source of information concerning that period is to be found in a letter sent by Gottschall to Europe, describing conditions among the Mennonites in Pennsylvania as he found them. Jacob Gottschall left many descendants. A geneology of the family, worked out several years ago, gave the names of about 2000 descendants in the Gottschall clan. A recent letter from Germany, from a descendant of this same Jacob Gottschall, brings the information that the family of that name has practically died out in that country, there being only one other survivor besides the writer of the letter. It is significant that this last word concerning the family should come from Crefelt, the city from which in 1682 the Mennonite pioneers in America came and that the father of the writer had been an official of the local church for more than fifty years. The same letter reports that the Crefelt church, which was erected in 1696, has been repaired and renovated, giving work to a number of people in dire need of employment. The Crefelt church was of Dutch origin, having been founded by Mennonites who came from Holland to find employment in the textile industries of that city. Until the year 1818 the Dutch language was the exclusive language of its public services. G.

WE HEAR FROM OUR READERS

We are grateful to a number of our readers for giving us the benefit of their reactions. It pleases us that this was done in the kindliest spirit and, we feel, for what they believe to be for the benefit of the paper. True, we cannot always look at things from the same side and there are many problems to be worked out in the editorial chair that the reader is not always in a position to appropriate, but in the last analysis, a paper must supply what its patrons expect or it will get nowhere. In order that this may be our policy we must hear from our readers—especially those whose comments and criticisms are constructive and not just trifling. Our problem that tries us most, just now, is to find room for the numerous articles that await publication. Cutting down our space to considerably less than what it was is a serious matter and makes us hope for the return of the day when the patronage of the paper and better times will make it possible either to enlarge our issues or return to weekly issues. An arrangement has been made by the Publication Board whereby an occasional supplement may be issued in order to accommodate the acknowledgements of gifts for missions, benevolences, and other contributions. It has been physically impossible for us to give these items to our readers since the first of the year and we acknowledge the injustice this has brought to the various Boards sending in notice of such contributions. We are happy to announce that the Publication Board feels as we do and is ready to make this addition to our issues. G.

GENERAL CONFERENCE DIAMOND JUBILEE

The meeting of the General Conference in Los Angeles next year will be the occasion for celebrating its Diamond Jubilee. At the time of its organization, in Iowa, only a handful of delegates representing a few small churches were present, but they were men of vision. The beginnings of this Conference were marked by an interest in Missions, Education, and Publications. The aim of the Conference was to undertake the union of the separated Mennonite churches into a body that could work along the lines indicated with greater efficiency and hope for large results. To be sure, the aim has not been fully realized, but it is surprising how much has been accomplished and what a strong and numerous organization has been effected in this time. General Conference churches are now found from Canada to the Gulf and from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It was this body in which such work among Mennonites as Higher Education, Missions, Sunday Schools, Old Folks' Homes and systematic benevolences was initiated. Twenty-five years ago, when the Golden Jubilee was celebrated at the conference held in Beatrice, Nebraska, the conference was still to a very large extent committed to the use of the German language. Today the trend is toward the disappearance of German in its general gatherings. The educational mission and benevolent programs of this body when compared with what is being done in other bodies of Protestants, is way out of proportion to its numbers and, though hindered by the depression, these lines of work continue to be steadily adhered to and supported. G.

Our people are beginning to realize the seriousness of the position in which our Publication Work finds itself and are responding to the extent of their ability, because they appreciate what it would mean to the whole work of our Conference if our publication work were forced into involuntary bankruptcy.

One brother sending his contribution to our treasurer, writes: "I believe that if we permit our publication work to suffer then every department of the work of our conference will suffer; hence I hope that your appeal will find a ready response."

Another sending a contribution writes: "Although our salary is small, we are thoroughly convinced of the strategic importance of the work of our Publication Board in the work of the Kingdom, that we gladly send our contribution. We feel that the Board of Publication is too modest in its appeal. The worthwhileness of its work warrants a more challenging claim on the hearts and purses and prayers of the constituency."

We are grateful for such expressions, and if a large number of our members will come to realizations and appreciations as expressed by these brethren, our Publication Work can be saved for future usefulness.

Send contributions to our treasurer, E. W. Baumgartner, Berne, Ind.

H. J. Krehbiel, Chairman
Board of Publication.

ANNOUNCEMENT

According to a resolution of the General Conference in session last summer, Brother A. J. Neuenschwander has been requested to visit the several congregations of the conference in the interests of the cause of Publication and Young People's work, and indirectly of any other interest of the Conference, such as Missions and Relief.

The officers of the Western District Conference have recently extended an invitation to Bro. Neuenschwander to visit the congregations of this district in order to promote this important work. With the help of Dr. J. R. Thierstein and Rev. J. M. Suderman an intinerary has been worked out which will appear in our church papers. The congregations of the Western District are herewith cordially requested to cooperate in every manner possible to make the work of Bro. Neuenschwander just as effective and successful as possible.

P. H. Richert, President.
P. E. Frantz, Vice President.
P. K. Regier, Secretary.

ARE WE WILLING TO TEACH AND PREACH PEACE?

A. J. Neuenschwander, Secretary
General Conference Peace Committee

There may be a few Mennonites in our General Conference who care nothing about our historic Peace principles, but we believe that the large majority do care and treasure this as a precious heritage.

Some years ago the writer with some friends visited a site of great activity. United States engineers had made a careful survey of one of our fertile valleys and at strategic points they directed the building of a system of dams as a means of flood control. It was summer. The men were sweating. Dust was thick. There was not the slightest indication of even a cooling shower, much less of a raging flood. Still the men worked steadily day after day. The particular dam we were inspecting was about sixty feet high at that time. They were getting ready to prevent another flood. Their work was worth while. Although long and hard rains fell in that particular valley, no flood has ever been reported since.

While we still have peace, let us work for peace. Conditions in Europe are anything but promising for continued peace. In America we have the "big army" and the "big navy" groups shouting loud for "More Preparedness." While these groups are working, should we be silent and inactive? On one thing, I am sure all or at least most Mennonites agree, that this is the time to build up our own Peace convictions. Let us follow Him whom Isaiah calls "Prince of Peace."

In order to carry on our Peace teaching more effectively, the General Conference at the last session elected a Peace Committee of six. This committee is confronted with many tasks, and from time to time we shall take you into our confidence and ask you whether you are willing to help in spreading the Biblical Peace Teaching.

Peace Lesson May 13th

One task assigned to your committee is to prepare quarterly peace lessons. These lessons are selected from the regular Sunday School lessons as arranged by the International Committee. A lesson that lends itself easily to Peace teaching is selected and the exposition and questions are written by some member of our Peace Committee. These Peace lessons are printed in our German Quarterlies and reach all German readers. Since we do not publish English Sunday School helps, another method was devised.

Each quarter the Peace Lesson is prepared and printed on a separate leaflet for those who prefer the English language. These leaflets can be secured, without cost, from The Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Ind. It is the hope of our Peace Committee that this announcement will result in all Sunday School leaders ordering the number of leaflets they will need for Sunday, May 13th. The subject for that lesson is: "Christianity and Patriotism."

That Peace Sermon

The committee is respectfully asking the ministers of the various churches to consider the value and worth of planning for one or more Peace Sermons per year. Some may say, we have preached on Peace recently. Others who have thought similar thoughts, found upon investigation that months and actually years have slipped past since the last real Peace sermon was preached. The men worked during the dry hot summer to prevent the next flood. Let us create Peace sentiment and conviction now. When will you preach your next Peace sermon?

A. J. Neuenschwander.

FROM REV. AND MRS. WENGER

On Board the S. S. Montcalm, in Port at Halifax

February 24, 1934.

Dear readers of our church papers:

We wish to take this opportunity to extend our thanks to our many friends in the homeland for all the kindnesses which you have shown us; to express our deep appreciation; also to bid you farewell, as we journey on toward India.

During our two years in America it has been our happy privilege to meet many members of our constituency whom it had not been our pleasure to know personally before. Many warm and lasting friendships have been formed.

We have spent some time each of our two summers at home with our own families at Aberdeen, Idaho, and Bluffton, Ohio. During this time we have become reacquainted with and have spent many hours of happy fellowship with our own home church people. To meet with them in regular church services has brought us many blessings.

Nine months of our stay were spent in Newton, Kansas, which gave us an opportunity to visit many of our churches of the Western District Conference, and to attend somewhat regularly the Bethel College church. Here also the fine fellowship has meant much to us, and it was here that we had the special joy of seeing our son Laurence baptized and received into church fellowship.

We have also visited churches in Oklahoma, Nebraska, South Dakota, Iowa, and eastern Ohio. We praise God for the warm interest in the work of the Kingdom and for the happy fellowship enjoyed wherever we have gone. Another special privilege was that of being able to attend our General Conference. Again we praise our Heavenly Father for the spirit of cooperation, friendliness, and earnestness which characterized the entire conference.

May we also add a word of testimony and praise to God for His guidance in our own personal experiences. As many of our readers know, arrangements had been made for us to sail for India on October 14th. Then when preparations had been made, we had bidden farewell to many of our loved ones and felt that we were practically on the way, we were detained on account of a question of finances. This was a great disappointment to us and at the time it seemed to our limited vision as a mistake.

But God was leading and the disappointment was soon to turn into deep gratitude, when a month later it was discovered that Mrs. Wenger needed a serious operation, and another month later Laurence had a severe attack of appendicitis which required an operation.

We wish to extend our special thanks to the many friends who upheld us during these days of trial. God has wonderfully blessed the recovery in both cases.

And once again we have recognized that we have a Guide who is able to plan more wisely than we, with regard to our present sailing arrangements. St. John as a port of sailing in mid-winter seemed to all our imagination quite undesirable. We would have chosen to sail at this time from New York. But as it has turned out the winter storm which has struck the east coast during the past week has been more severe and has caused more trouble in ship traffic in New York than has been the case in St. John. "It is a good thing to give thanks unto Jehovah, and to sing praises unto thy name, oh Most High; to show forth thy loving kindness in the morning, and thy faithfulness every night."

We are also deeply grateful to those who have made possible our return to India.

And now as we bid you farewell, may we not ask for your continued prayers, that we may be faithful in the work to which we feel that our Master again leads us forth? We believe that God is working in India and we are eager to be of use to Him as He may lead.

In Christian fellowship,

Paul and Adah Wenger.

CORRESPONDENCE

Aberdeen, Idaho, February 23, 1934. Dear friends of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— On Tuesday of this week we laid to rest a dear brother of ours, Rev. John Toevs. He had suffered much; he was ready, yes, very happy to go home. Rev. J. M. Galle, a former pastor of our church, preached a most comforting message in the German language; for his text he had chosen several Scripture passages, favorites of Rev. Toevs. Our present pastor, Rev. J. E. Kaufman, spoke in the English language. His message, too, was of hope and of assurance. His text was, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints," Ps. 116: 15. We will miss Rev. Toevs very much; he was an active, sincere, and faithful worker.

We are enjoying an extraordinarily beautiful winter. Although the surrounding mountains are covered with snow, we have none in our immediate vicinity. Our moisture has come in the form of rain.

When we compare the number in attendance at Sunday School for the winter of last year with the attendance this winter, we appreciate the fact that impassable roads and cold weather kept many people at home last year. Our church and our Christian Endeavor meetings, also, are well attended.

In our Sunday School we have four departments: the Adult, in which there are eight classes; the Intermediate consists of only one class at present; the Junior, to which all children between the ages of six and twelve belong, has seven classes; the Primary, composed of little children under school age, has two classes. Occasionally our attendance reaches the 200 mark, but the average would be 180 or slightly above. Mr. H. C. Wiebe is the ardent superintendent of the Adult Department, and Mrs. J. E. Toevs is the tireless worker in the corresponding position over the other departments which meet in the basement of our church. Due to God's good grace almost all of our Sunday School people stay for the church services. This crowds our building almost to its capacity every Sunday. We get much good out of our pastor's excellent sermons. We feel that our church is an excellent influence in the community. We know that there are powers and agencies that would draw our young people away. We have much cause to be thankful to God that He blesses our Christian efforts.

With good wishes,

Margaret E. Giesbrecht.

Wayland, Iowa, March 4, 1934. To the Readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel, Greetings! It is a long time since I wrote to our church paper. Last fall when we returned from the General Conference it was time for school to begin and we have been busy since.

September 24, Rev. Basinger began a week's meetings at Donnellsen, Iowa. During that time he was called home twice for a funeral.

At Christmas time we had a program in the form of a pageant, rendered by the young people of our church.

Recently Rev. Basinger was at Bluffton to attend the Seminary Board meeting. He also took in the Bible lectures at the college and visited his aged father and his stepmother.

Allen Meyer, our baker, and Ronald Roth, his helper, were badly burned when they had an explosion in the bakery recently.

The writer of this article, her children and her brother, Otto O. Suter, and wife from Wayland, drove to Pandora, Ohio, to attend the funeral of their father and grandfather, Mr. P. C. Suter, on January 25.

With the exception of two cold snaps we have had a nice winter. The snow that fell a week ago yesterday is all gone and the roads are bad, although we have had very little moisture this winter.

The first two Sundays of the year the churches in town were closed because of an epidemic of scarlet fever. Although there are still a few that do not seem to be over the illness, the disease was not serious. There are a good many at present who have mumps.

William Alston, a senior in high school, was taken down with pneumonia at the end of the first semester. He is much improved at this time, but will not be back in school this year.

Beginning February 6, the churches of Henry county sponsored a training school at Mt. Pleasant. They met twice a week for three weeks, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Four of the young people of our church, Wilma Alston, Franklin Roth, David Wittmer and Dora Sommer were in attendance.

Saturday, February 24, Mr. and Mrs. Xavier Richenberger observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in town. There were 81 people present during the course of the day. One person present at their wedding in 1884, was also present on this occasion. The day seemed to be a very happy one for the couple and we hope that God will further bestow His blessings upon them.

May God richly bless us in the humble efforts we are putting forth to further the work of the Kingdom. I remain, yours in His service,

Mrs. Selma C. Sommer,
Correspondent for the Wayland Church.

Upland, California. Dear Readers:— Among the blessings which we value highly in the Upland Mennonite church is not only the work of a large group of active young people, but the presence of a considerable number of old people, quite a few of whom have passed their eightieth milestone.

A few weeks ago sickness prevented my filling the pulpit when I called upon the Rev. J. C. Mehl, now nearly 84 years old, to take charge of the work. He taught his regular Sunday School class of young people, preached the sermon at the morning service of worship, and again was present and preached at the evening service. I believe that this is a record for one of his age, and deserves mention. At the annual business meeting, Brother Mehl was elected deacon for a term of three years, an office which he held many times before. He has been an active member of this church for twenty-five years and for a long time has regularly taught a Sunday School class. He has offered to retire from his teaching more than once, but the young people enjoy his work and insist upon his continuing. A keen interest in young people, an optimistic outlook upon life, and a practical religious faith characterize his life.

It was my duty recently to conduct a religious service at Camp Etiwanda, one of the C. C. C. Camps located in this section. In company with several of the young people from the church who assisted in the singing, I arrived at the camp at seven in the evening, the time set for the services. We found the room crowded with men listening to a "jug" orchestra from a neighboring camp. There were about a dozen men in the orchestra, half of whom, including the director, were negroes. The instruments they used included jugs, washboards, spoons, banjos and guitars, and a home made saxophone. Their music was hilarious, raucous, tinny, weird, uproarous, rhythmical, sensational, and what not! But the boys apparently liked it and applauded. The lieutenant in charge of the camp, was going to stop the program so that our service might begin on schedule time, but I insisted we were in no hurry and the concert continue to the end. I sat there "beating time" with my feet, wondering how the transition might be made from this performance to a religious service. At the close of the concert, I made my way to the "director," congratulated him upon his effective renditions, and asked if he and his colored brethren would not sing several negro spirituals. They were not prepared to do this, but to my surprise they nearly all stayed for our service and joined lustily in the singing of such songs as "When the Roll is Called Up Yonder," and "Since Jesus Came Into My Heart." I read the 121st Psalm, led in prayer, and then spoke on "Jesus and the Successful Life." I have never spoken to a more attentive crowd. Beneath a loud and rough surface, these men bore hearts that were responsive to the higher and better things. They were away from home. They needed friends, and home, and God. They treated us with every courtesy and invited us to return.

Our congregation is preparing to entertain the annual meeting of the California Mennonite Sunday School Convention during the latter part of April. There are no definite plans as yet for the exact time and place for the meeting of the General Conference in Southern California in 1935, although the people here are much interested in this coming event and delegates and friends may be sure of a most cordial welcome. Sincerely yours,

Lester Hostetler.

First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa. It is a long time since any correspondence was sent in from our church. This is no New Year resolution, but we will try and send some news a bit more frequently and hope this decision may not go the way of so many good resolutions.

Our annual congregational meeting was held on the evening of January 8th, preceded by a splendid church supper at 6:30 P. M., that is, those who partook said it was splendid, and their satisfied faces were added evidence.

There were 42 present. The pastor, H. G. Nyce, as chairman led in a short song service and prayer. He reported 12 new members for the year, bringing the total membership to 174. 61 of these were added during his pastorate. We have had a daily vacation Bible school for several seasons during July and August. A Bible study course was begun in the autumn meeting every Thursday evening. This class is surprisingly well attended and covers the entire Bible. We are deeply grateful for these evidences of labor well done. He again asked for a reduction of his salary which was again voted down. It was felt we had successfully passed over hard times so far and would trust God to see us through in the future.

The treasurer's report showed a deficit for the year with an added deficit carried over from 1932. This was made up by several loyal members present, enabling the treasurer to start off 1934 without a deficit hanging over.

Total contributions for the church treasury were $1964.13; for the Building Fund $223.98; for missions $316.05. Total for all causes $2504.16.

New officers elected were: Treasurer, V. C. Backensto; Trustees, Elmer Stauffer, Francis Geisinger; Financial Secretary, J. C. Solt; Organist, Thos. Glose.

The budget for regular church expenses was adopted for 1934 in the amount of $1900.00. This represents a reduction from last year's budget of $2030.00.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who is appointed Field Secretary of the General Conference, visited our church recently. He is making a canvass to promote the Publication Board and its needs as well as the Young People's work. He gave us a very forceful message on our needs and the Young People's C. E. program, emphasizing the need of a revival, and called for volunteers for prayer for such a revival.

At a recent church council meeting the pastor was asked to work out a plan for a program of gifted Bible teachers to conduct services possibly monthly. The purpose being for the upbuilding and spiritual welfare of our church.

We expect to report about various other activities from time to time.

Gnadenberg Mennonite Church, Whitewater, Kansas. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— As the basis of a brief summary of the past year's work in the church I shall refer to various reports given at the turn of the year.

The pastor's report at the annual meeting listed three deaths within the church community, that of Mrs. H. C. Harms, Mrs. Pete Voth, and Mr. A. S. Voth. During the year three marriages also took place. Ernest Schmidt to Zelda Harms, Clarence Harms to Alida Schmidt, Ben Schmidt to Clara Penner. Three persons were admitted to church membership by baptism and two were excused by letter.

About $400 was collected during the year for missions, schools, and other benevolences. The church school last spring had an attendance of 14 and was held six weeks. Both German and English were used in the instruction. The annual meeting passed a motion that during the ensuing year offerings should be taken twice a month, the elder and the trustees to arrange a program for the allocation of the offerings.

The election of Sunday School officers was held December 25. The elected officers were: Chairman, G. F. Harms; treasurer, Valentine Harms; secretary, Carl Nickel. At the same time the report of the choir director, Marvin Dirks, was read by Menno Nickel, assistant director. During the year the Men's Chorus gave complete concerts at the following churches: Bergtal at Pawnee Rock, Johannestal at Hillsboro, Ervin Memorial Church of Hutchinson, Friendenstal north of Tampa, and Pretty Prairie. The cantata, "The Conqueror," was given by the entire choir at Easter. The young people of the Friedenstal church gave a return program of music, September 17.

The Sunday School gave its Christmas program the evening of December 24. Church services were held December 25 and 26, Rev. A. J. Dirks delivering the sermon on the latter date.

Prayer week was observed this year the second week of January. During the same week the Teacher-Training classes were begun. The courses followed are, "Our Doctrines," taught by Rev. G. N. Harms and "Church History" with emphasis on Mennonite history, led by John F. Schmidt. Both courses will be completed March 15.

On March 4 the C. E. Society had its annual business meeting. Carl Nickel was reelected as president; Grace Unruh, secretary; and Arthur Balzer, treasurer. It was voted to assess each member 50c for the Western District C. E. Convention project. When this project was initiated in 1931 our C. E. members paid 40c each toward its realization.

The catechetical class conducted by Rev. G. N. Harms is now in progress. The Men's Octet of Bethel College will give a musical program the evening of March 22. Preparation has begun for the annual song festival to take place at Bethel College late in spring. The Bethel College Fellowship will soon be active soliciting members for the coming year.

J. F. Schmidt, Corr.

Congerville Mennonite Church, Congerville, Illinois. Those in attendance from a distance at the funeral of Mrs. J. E. Hostetler are Frank Kauffman and daughter, Mrs. Wm. Edgar of Cooperdon, Mrs. Tabitha Gengerich, and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rainwater of Loda, Ill.; Misses Kate and Edith Hostetler of Bloomington, Ill.,

J. Y. Sharp and daughter Nettie and Mrs. Palmer of Normal, Ill., Merle Kauffman and Jesse Mainer of Stegar, Ill., Amos Zook and Otto Nafziger of Peoria, Ill.

Mrs. Nellie Herster of Pontiac visited at the home of Frank Irens and family and attended church services.

Mr. and Mrs. Burnell of Cooper, Iowa, were visitors at the home of S. L. Lautz and family recently.

Miss Nina Detweiler spent a few days' vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Detweiler.

Eden Church, Moundridge, Kansas. Looking back over the past we find many reasons to be thankful. We had a very mild winter with a proper amount of moisture for our crops which gives us hope for another harvest. To be sure not everything has been as we hoped and wished it to be, there were disappointments, but the goodness and mercy and blessings bestowed on us far outweighed these. This may be said regarding our material as well as spiritual welfare. Yet we may say in summing up everything: "Great and good is the Lord."

We are permitted to enjoy the freedom of worship without being disturbed by the enemies of religion and God, which is not possible in every country in the world. When we look at Russia today and ponder over the lot of some of the unfortunate Mennonite brethren in that country we cannot help but think that we do not cherish the privileges of worship as we ought to.

The death angel has also entered our midst. Two infants were taken, as well as a boy of five years of age. Elmer Eugene Krehbiel, the only child of Elmer and Emma Krehbiel, was called in death February 7, 1934. Seemingly without illness or suffering he left his parents. His last words were, "mamma," "daddy!" And so God leads us in ways that we do not understand.

On February 23, 1934, Mrs. Mary Flickner was called in death. She reached the ripe old age of 80 years, 8 months, and 3 days. She was the oldest sister of Rev. C. J. Goering. And so, young and old; but especially the old pass away one by one. Only very few are left with us who have come to this country from Europe.

On February 23, the Bethel College Men's Octette gave a sacred concert in our church. Likewise on Sunday evening, March 3, the Bethel College Volunteer Band gave a very inspiring program. We were also permitted to hear the Lehigh Community Men's Chorus Sunday evening, March 18. All these programs proved a great blessing to us. Sincerely,

Rev. Phil. A. Wedel.

Normal Church. Rev. Troyer left Monday, March 5, for Middlebury, Ind. From there he will go to Fairfield, Pa., where he will hold a ten-day meeting.

Our Sunday School superintendent, Louis Ramseyer, is at the Mennonite Hospital where he underwent an appendix operation.

About seventeen people from the Normal church are attending the Bible study class each Monday evening, conducted by Rev. Weaver at the Carlock church.

Rev. E. A. Somer will have charge of the services Sunday, March 11, in the absence of the pastor.

On Sunday, March 4, Mr. and Mrs. John Sharp celebrated their golden wedding anniversary with a family dinner at noon. In the afternoon friends called to extend congratulations and to wish them many more years of happiness.

The Woman's Missionary Society met at the home of Mrs. Ed. Denlar. An interesting program was given. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. McDevitt and Mrs. Bergstrom.

The Intermediate Sunday School class, of which Miss Nettie Sharp is teacher, will hold a bakery sale Saturday, March 10. The young people are raising money to help toward the missionary cause.

Jacob Baughman, who has been confined to his home because of illness for the past few months, is somewhat improved.

62nd St. Mission, Chicago, Ill. Mr. Philip Lee, a converted Chinaman, who is now attending Moody Bible Institute, in company with three other students, took charge of the evening service Sunday, January 21. These boys have recently completed an approximate 3000 mile tour in the East, giving the gospel message as the Lord opened doors before them. We considered ourselves fortunate to have them with us.

The Semper Fidelis Young Men's Club met at the home of Mr. Charles Andersohn, Thursday night, January 25. Mr. Earl Gotts brought the evening message. He spoke concerning those things that lead to a closer walk with the Lord.

Plus Attra Young Ladies Club met at the home of Mrs. Walter Guth, Thursday evening, January 25. The Club is studying the book of Romans by the instruction of Mrs. Charles Andersohn.

The Ladies Aid of the Mission met Thursday afternoon, January 25. They held their bimonthly meeting in one of the rear class rooms of the Mission.

Messrs. Taylor and King, students of the Moody Bible Institute, had charge of the Young Peoples C. E., Sunday evening, January 28. The speaker, Mr. Taylor, spoke on the subject of Prayer. The boys remained for the evening service and Mr. Taylor, a returned missionary to the Mormons of Utah, told us of some of his experiences on that field.

A group from the Mission went to the Chicago United Mission at 623 West Madison Street, and took charge of the evening service. Our pastor brought the evening message. We consider it a privilege to carry the message of life, which is wrought through Christ's shed blood to these lost souls.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kreft, Jr., and Miss Edith Jeffers have enrolled as students in the Moody Bible Institute. We are very glad for the step they have taken and we trust that God will eventually lead them out into full time service for Him.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Al Luke of New Lenox, Ill., spent Sunday, February 11, with the latter's sister, Mrs. John Nafziger.

David Hostetler, who has been ill with the mumps, is able to be at school again.

Rev. Hostetler, Julius Helwig, Mrs. Jacob Litwiller and son Lester, and Mrs. Barbara Nafziger, Fern and Mona, visited at the Delavan Baptist church Thursday evening, February 8. Dr. Austin of Cedar Rapids, Ia., preached on "The Tribulation Period."

Thursday afternoon, February 8, Mrs. L. B. Nafziger entertained the following ladies: Mrs. John Nafziger, Mrs. Jacob Litwiller, Mrs. Sadie Nafziger, Mrs. Verna Nafziger, Mrs. Ralph Nafziger, Mrs. Elmer Marten, Mrs. Andrew Nafziger, and Mrs. Amos Sutter. The ladies spent the afternoon doing fancy work.

Miss Bernice Nafziger has been ill with the mumps.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kipfer are the proud parents of a son. He has been named Richard Lee.

Evelyn Grace and Virginia Irene, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Unsicker, have been ill with chickenpox.

Sunday, January 21, Mrs. Barbara Nafziger entertained the following at dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Denler of Normal, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Litwiller and daughter Edna of Minier.

Miss Emma Sutter visited with her brother, Mr. Clarence Sutter, of Pekin, Ill.

Miss Marie Brenneman, who has been ill with the flu, is much improved.

Rev. Hostetler attended the ministerial meeting Wednesday, February 14.

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Jos. Augsburger Thursday, February 1. Fifteen ladies attended. They sewed African shirts and pieced quilts.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jeckel of Glasford, Ill., visited at the Geo. Jeckel home, Sunday, February 4.

Several weeks ago while chopping corn a kernel hit Mr. T. Bohn in the eye. An infection set in and it was necessary to take Mr. Bohn to the Mennonite Hospital, where the eye was removed. We are glad that Mr. Bohn is recovering rapidly.

Mr. Warren Birky has been ill with the flu.

Bennie and Carroll Nafziger and Junior Hostetler have been mumps victims.

The Ladies Aid met with Miss Helen Brenneman. The ladies did African sewing.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Nafziger are in Bloomington at present where Mr. Nafziger has been employed. We are sorry to lose Mr. and Mrs. Nafziger.

Mrs. Kitchen and daughter Isadore of Indiana are making an extended visit at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Hostetler, the latter being her daughter.

Mrs. Parke Hannig and son Keith visited at the Amos Roth home in Morton for several days.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Litwiller of Peoria visited the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Donelson and son, who have been living with the former's grandmother, Mrs. Katie Kaufman, have moved to themselves.

Mr. and Mrs. Milo Miller and son Wayne,and Miss Mildred Brenneman, all of Pekin, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brenneman, March 4.

Mrs. Hostetler, Mrs. Ed. Unsicker, Mrs. Marion Brenneman, and Junior Hostetler attended a House Science meeting at Jacksonville, Thursday and Friday, February 22 and 23.

Rev. Hostetler and David, Misses Shirley McBride, Helen, Mattie and Gertrude Brenneman, Fern and Mona Nafziger, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Habecker, Carl Pomrenke, Warren Birky, and Howard Kaufman attended the Mennonite basketball tournament at Danvers. We were all proud of our boys.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Stanwood are moving to Minier.

Mr. Howard Litwiller who is attending I. S. N. U., worshiped with us Sunday, March 11.

Carlock Mennonite Church, Carlock, Illinois. Greetings to the readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel from the Carlock Mennonite Church. We are drawing to the close of a most interesting and helpful series of lectures and studies on "The Life of Christ," conducted by Rev. Wm. Weaver. The class has consisted of members from the Carlock, Normal, North Danvers, Danvers, and East White Oak Mennonite churches.

The Ladies Aid Society has been busy quilting and making garments for African missions.

The March meeting of the Dorcas Band class was held March 8 at the home of Mrs. Clara King. We are conducting an interesting study of the History of the church. At this meeting we heard papers on "The Early Church During the Reformation," "The Early Church in Switzerland," and "The Early Church in Holland."

On the evening of March 13 the Dorcas Band class members and husbands gave a house warming party in honor of our newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stutzman. It was in the form of a surprise, and a gift from the class was presented to them.

Mrs. C. R. Schwartz is at present considerably improved, but Mrs. John Geisel, who has been caring for her, is now quite ill and bedfast. Miss Ida Stutzman is assuming the household cares during Mrs. Geisel's illness.

Our Sunday evening services have been quite interesting and varied. Several weeks ago we had the men's chorus from Metamora as our guests. They gave a very fine concert. The first Sunday evening of every month is designated as hymn night. Favorite hymns of church members are sung as quartet, duet, and solo numbers.

Family nights have also been worth while. Each family is being held responsible for some special number at some service during the winter or spring. Some present musical numbers, others use dramatic sketches or short talks.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stutzman have taken up housekeeping in Carlock after returning from their honeymoon to the south. They were married February 18 at the home in Carlock at 9:00 o'clock in the morning, in the presence of a few close relatives.

Miss Lucille Schad, Mrs. Ernest Zoll, and John Evy were recent surgical patients at the Mennonite Hospital in Bloomington. They have completely recovered and are attending services again.

The Buhler Mennonite Church, Buhler, Kansas, March 22, 1934. Dear editor and readers: Greetings in the name of our dear Lord and Master! As the first quarter of the new year is about past, we feel that it would be fitting to send in a report of the work of our church.

We are grateful for the many blessings the Lord has bestowed upon us thus far, and we know that He has still more in store for us. We have been able to conduct our Sunday School and our services with encouraging attendance. Every three weeks both the Junior and Senior Christian Endeavor meet. The other Sunday evenings are taken up with open Bible discussions, led by our pastor, Rev. J. M. Suderman. They are of great help to all who attend.

Our Senior Sewing Society meets every second Thursday of the month. This year we sew for the Moencopi station in Arizona. We also make articles for our annual fall mission sale. For several years the Junior Sewing Society has been helping in this good work.

On February 22 we had with us the Bethel College Men's Octette. The fine rendition of their program was very much appreciated.

Sunday, March 4, we commemorated the Lord's Supper. March 18, as part of the Sunday morning worship, the Buhler High School Crusaders, under the able leadership of Miss Bixel, rendered a short sacred musical program.

On the night of March 25, our church choir together with the men's chorus, will give a program. We are very glad for the service our young people are willing to give to the church. May God bless them and cause all of us, young and old, to see the need of being faithful, for there is so much work to be done for the Master. Mrs. S. B. G. Matthies, Corr.

THE CROSS

There's the brow of Calvary, ah! what is that I see?
Why, it's a cross! or is it one, no, I believe that there are three.
Yes, there are three, but one stands out alone,
Bearing the form of one who represents glory
and home;
Did you ever see one so willing to die in one's place?
Did you ever see one with such a kind face?
'Twas a bitter cup the Savior drank, His love to others show,
'Twill be a bitter cup for us to drink if on this path we go,
But as the contents of this cup have been completely consumed,
It finally fills the soul with sweetness as to God
we commune;
So let us carry our cross so that the world might see,
That we are disciples of Jesus throughout eternity.

(Composed by Mrs. Wm. Brush of the Peoria Mennonite Gospel Mission.)

TEMPTATION

II. Kinds of Temptations

Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock, Ill.

In the old feudal days the lords built their castles with but one opening through which the enemy could possibly enter. Around the huge mass of masonry was dug a deep, wide ditch which was kept well filled with water. Across this moat there was flung at the castle gate, a heavy drawbridge, which, when drawn up at the outer end cut off all means of crossing the ditch and added protection to the heavy gate of the palace. Apart from this one entrance there was no possibility of the enemy's entering the castle without battering down the wall. If the citadel of character were thus builded, it would seem indeed fortunate. As it is, there seem to be almost innumerable points of vulnerability, at which the forces of evil may strike and take possession of the castle. At not one, but at many points do we have to exercise eternal vigilance and by the grace of God beat back the invader. Let us in this meditation consider some of the general kinds of temptations.

The most readily recognized class of temptations are those which originate in the appetites and desires of the flesh. These appetites and desires may be both natural and acquired. The natural ones are the instincts and tendencies which the Creator placed in man, and then, having taken account of all, pronounced it good. Sin enters in when these appetites and desires are allowed to assert themselves and are gratified for their own sakes, not for the purpose to which God ordained them. To do this very thing, is one of the most common temptations of man. Besides these, there are acquired appetites and inclinations. The use of tobacco, alcoholic liquor, profanity, etc., are among these acquired bases of temptations. God did not incorporate these into the constitution of man; man has taken them upon himself. Yet, while not native to man, they may become most potent in their insistence on gratification and many a life has been ruined thereby. What folly it is when each one is endowed with native desires and inclinations which need to be governed and thus afford plenty of occasion to resist evil, to then acquire still other appetites and thus multiply his temptations. When one yields to the temptation to gratify fleshly lusts for their own sakes, and thus make them ends in life instead of means to larger life and achievement, he is then in danger of succumbing to another equally fatal temptation. This is the temptation to subscribe to a purely physical or materialistic philosophy of life. This term in spite of its forbidding sound simply means "an interpretation of the meaning and purpose of life." Persistent gratification of fleshly appetites for their own sakes leads inevitably to the assumption that the real purpose and satisfaction in life lies in physical satisfaction and abundance. Life's real goods are then conceived to be physical and material, instead of spiritual. The rich man in the parable was a victim of this sort of philosophy. He had so far succumbed to it that he did not have left any vestige of humanitarian feeling. Lazarus got no pity; not so much as a crumb. But when Dives could no longer get satisfaction out of food and drink, he found that the future held nothing for him but disappointment and misery. Jesus in His first temptation was tempted to accept this sort of philosophy and make His ministry one of satisfying men's physical wants and needs, instead of emphasizing to them that the real meaning and end of life is spiritual, and giving His life to supply man's deepest need.

Besides the temptations of the flesh, there are temptations of the mind. These temptations are principally to dote on the trivial, or to feed the mind on the unclean. It is possible for one to be quite careful about yielding to carnal temptations, and yet be quite careless in respect to his mind. What a tragically small world some people live in simply because they allow their minds to become cluttered up with innumerable trivialities; from which it is impossible for them to extract any motive or purpose for worthwhile living and endeavor. As soon as the course of conversation is directed to large and consequential matters, they at once are dumb. Then there are those who seem to relish a mental diet which pertains to the seamy-side of life. Incidents and stories of a questionable sort elicit interest and evoke expressions of pleasure from them. Paul realized the spiritual disaster resulting from yielding to the temptation to think of the things that are small or sordid, and he exhorted the Philippian brethren to think on the things that are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, and of good report. (Ph. 4:8.)

Then, too, there are temptations of the heart. These are temptations to harbor wrong attitudes toward one's self or others, such as undue self-esteem, pride, ambition, contempt, envy, jealousy, covetousness, malice, hatred. A greater degree of vigilance in this respect is to be commended on the part of many; for there are all too many people who would never be found yielding to any of the so-called baser sins, but who fall a prey to the tempter in respect to the attitudes which they entertain toward certain of their fellowmen. Wrong attitudes are just as destructive to spiritual health as wrong practices are to physical health. When one considers the vast amount of misery, ill-will, and strife which are engendered in human affairs by such wrong attitudes, one wonders if the sins of the flesh are really baser than these. Jesus held that these attitudes entertained in the heart involve as much moral responsibility as the outward act which they tend. (Mt. 5:21-27; 5:21; 1 Jn. 3:15.) Well did the wise man of old say, "Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life" (Pr. 4:23).

Moreover, there are temptations of purpose, or will. The chief temptation which comes to one in this respect is to make the will of self supreme instead of the will of God. In a recent Christian Endeavor convention, the motto was "Let go, and let God." In many a life, if not all, this is the decision of decisions, and apparently all too small a percent of Christian professors ever fully get this decision made and executed. Accepting Christ, joining the church, marriage, and similar life concerns are momentous decisions. Yet in these, self may still be seeking its own good primarily; but when it comes to the question of God's will first, self must be fully dethroned and God's interests, God's purposes, and God's concerns be put first, while the things which self might choose must be often foregone.

Finally, there are temptations of method. These are closely akin to the temptations of purpose. Sometimes if Satan cannot dissuade us from our avowed purpose to do God's will, he may still gain his end if he can induce us to use the wrong method. The issue here is choosing between methods that are right or wrong, constructive or destructive, or which make for permanent or transitory results. Rightness in method as well as in purpose is Jesus' example for us. He never subscribed to the policy, so widely accepted in war time, that "the end justifies the means." In His own temptations, Jesus faced this question of method. He refused to make His ministry one of giving folks an easy living by turning stones into bread for them. He refused to resort to spectacular demonstrations to get a following, or to use the methods other kingdom builders had employed, viz: force, cruelty, conspiracy, bribery, etc. Jesus held to the saying that "One must not break heaven's laws to gain heaven's ends."

When one considers well the innumerable sources and forms of temptation to which the human body, mind, and spirit are susceptible he feels constrained to break forth in the words of the well-known hymn:

My soul, be on thy guard,
  Ten thousand foes arise,
The hosts of sin are pressing hard,
  To draw thee from the skies.

Ne'er think the victory won,
  Nor lay thine armor down;
The work of faith will not be done,
  Till thou obtain the crown.

"Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift" (1 Cor. 9:15).

PRAYER

Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Lord, what a change within one short hour
Spent in Thy presence will avail to make!
What heavy burdens from our bosoms take!
What parched grounds refresh as with a shower!
We kneel, and all around us seems to lower;
We rise, and all the distant and the near;
Stands forth in sunny outline, brave and clear;
We kneel, how weak! we rise, how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others—that we are not always strong—
That we are sometimes overborne with care—
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled—when with us is prayer,
And joy and strength and courage are with Thee?
—Richard C. Trench.

THE STUDY AND PRACTICE OF PRAYER

Sunday, April 15, all Christian Endeavor Societies, who use the topics as prepared by the International Commission, will be studying and discussing the topic: "The Place of Prayer in Christian Living," Ephesians 1:15-23.

There is no doubt but that many helpful talks will be given in connection with this meeting. A careful study of the passage reveals that Paul is praying for the Ephesian church and every church that reads this passage, that they may have a knowledge of Jesus Christ, that they may have a fuller knowledge of what the saints might expect, and that they might have an experiental knowledge of all the divine blessings held forth to the believers. This study of prayer is lifting and inspiring.

The practice of prayer opens another most fruitful field. How far have we entered into this field? Have we entered only into one corner and asked for things for self? Or have we entered into the larger range of the field and practiced thanksgiving? Then there is the still untouched part of the field of prayer called intercession. How often and how regularly do you practice this type of prayer?

During the last four months it has been my privilege in the name of the Young People's Committee to distribute over 1500 "Mennonite Young People Prayer Intercessor" cards. These cards have found their way into every church in the middle and eastern districts.

Perhaps others might desire to enter into the practice of Intercessory Prayer. If in any Society you who are officers find that you can use more cards, please notify the undersigned and we will gladly send them to you.

The Place of Bible Study in Christian Living

Romans 15:1-4

It has been said that in any generation civilization advances in the direct proportion as men study the Bible. The Bible is the Word of God, inspired as no other volume has ever been inspired. It was written over a period exceeding a thousand years, by more than thirty authors, under entirely diversified conditions and yet through it all there is a unity of purpose and thought which is nothing short of remarkable.

The Bible was given to us as God's plan to make Himself and His way of life known to all men. "Whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." Again Paul says to young Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." There is perhaps no need as great in our churches and Christian Endeavor Societies as regular systematic reverent Bible Study. A carefully planned program of Bible Study will "make us wise unto salvation through faith that is in Christ Jesus." Furthermore, the Bible will convict us of wrongdoing, help us to make our life choices and decisions and instruct us in the way of righteousness.

This is an ideal time to organize a Bible-study Campaign. Begin immediately. Easter has left us warmly inspired to live closer to our Lord and Christ. School days will soon be over. The whole church should join in this fine venture. Older people will benefit by reading their Bibles more systematically than they have heretofore, and they will set a good example for the younger people. Young people are eager to make their lives count for more for their Lord and Master, they are eagerly waiting for suggestions as to how they may do it. Get your pastor to help outline a series of books of the Bible which are to be read. Enroll everyone who will be willing to read their Bibles regularly each day. Give gold stars to every one as soon as they have completed one book, and give prizes, if you care to, to the one who has carefully read the most books in a certain length of time. All the organization you will need is a secretary who will take care of the membership roll. You will be furnished with free literature for such a campaign by writing to the Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, asking them for information and sample literature concerning the "Golden Legion."

What Great Men Think of the Bible

When Coleridge was asked to cite the noblest passage in all literature he quoted the Beatitudes. Ruskin and Carlyle tell us that they owe more to the Bible in way of refinement and culture than to all other books or to the influence of colleges and universities. Edmund Kean, the great artist, said that there was one passage in literature which no man could properly render, and that was the one "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." Washington, Lincoln, Queen Victoria, Gandhi, Sun Yat Sen, and a host of others have given high tribute to the help they have received from the Bible.

Blessed Bible

"Blessed Bible! How I love it,
How it doth my bosom cheer,
What hath earth like this to covet?
Oh, what stores of wealth are here!
"Yes, sweet Bible, I will hide thee,
Hide thee richly in this heart:
Thou through all my life wilt guide me,
And in death we will not part."
—Thos. B. Mosley.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

April 15

The Place of Prayer in Christian Living

Ephesians 1:15-23

Tonight we will consider the second in this practical series of devotional topics. Last week we considered the subject of Bible study and next week we will study the importance of public worship for Christian living. It will not be our purpose to consider the reason for prayer. We have too long discussed the psychological and phisolophical aspects of prayer. If we instead endeavor to spend more time in prayer we will discover the joys and power thereof tenfold more than by continually discussing the merits and weaknesses of prayer. A man outside of the Christian faith may argue long and hard that there is no reasonableness to religion, if he will be honest he will try the power of the gospel of Jesus Christ and he will see it in a different light. If we would know more about prayer let us study the prayer life of Jesus, let us pray for ourselves, for our friends, for our churches, our pastor, our missionaries, those out on the highways and byways of life, our officers of government, and we will find a new interest and sympathy in all of these avenues of life.

Christian Endeavor Societies have been called prayer meetings, but only too often they have been discussion meetings, or even in some places entertainments, but prayer was almost totally wanting. Tonight let us earnestly pray. Have a pre-prayer service, plan to have the executive group together with the leader and the pastor meet in a small room before the service. Have a number of sincere prayers during the service and urge that prayer covenants may be renewed.

"We kneel, how weak! we rise, how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
Or others—that we are not always strong?"

An ideal prayer will consist of adoration of God, confession of our weak, sinful self, consecration of all we are and possess, petition — asking for big blessings and small desires, and finally intercession—praying for others. Jesus prayed for Peter, for all His disciples and for all men down through the ages. Study the Lord's Prayer, that contains all the elements of a good prayer, it is also a good outline of the Christian way of life if men will abide by it.

Consider the prayers of Jesus. Just before He faced a crisis in life He spent the night in prayer. When tired and discouraged He spent extra time in prayer. In Matthew 11, He was met by the disciples of John who was doubting Jesus' Messiahship because the Kingdom was coming so slowly, note the discouragements which came to Him. Amid all these—"At that time" Jesus turned to prayer, and it was a prayer of thanksgiving. Do we turn to God with thanksgiving when we are most discouraged? Out of that prayer came that most personal invitation "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest." That latter phrase should be read, "And I will rest you." A study of the prayers of Jesus is in itself a very enlightening and inspiring lesson.

The church could do nothing which would be more rewarding than if they would renew the prayer life of all their members. The great things of this world have almost universally come as a result of prayer. The majority of the great men and women who were saints knew how to pray. The Church was born in prayer and grew in the atmosphere of prayer and it will grow much more rapidly than it now is growing if men would pray.

The reason why men do not pray more is largely that they are somewhat in doubt as to the character of God as a prayer-hearing and answering Father. They have never tried Him, and tested Him. If once all Christians would earnestly pray, things would happen, the world would recognize the power of the Christian Church as they never have before. Individuals would find that their lives would be purified, that new enthusiasms would come and new power be given unto them. Let the youth of this generation show what can be done through the power of earnest prayer.

What Happens When We Break God's Laws?

Gal. 6:7, 8

The law is unto us a schoolmaster!

Pre-Prayer

Pause at His feet for ten minutes of united prayer. Watch God work, if you are faithful!

Problems

1. According to the law of generosity found in Luke 6:38—What happened to the miser? How is his soul affected? Is the memory of lost opportunities a fearful thing?
2. In Luke 6:31 the law of Kindness is given. Should we give to God as we expect Him to give to us? Do we? Give some examples.
3. To drink booze may be legal, but how does it measure up to God's laws?
4. Build a 110-story building on a frail foundation and what will happen? How are nature's laws, God's laws?
5. If a man breaks God's moral laws and the public does not find it out, does he break down any of God's laws? How about his character? His soul? His life?
6. Just how should a man regard the ten commandments as moral and spiritual laws for today? Summarize them.
7. We see wicked men rolling in wealth while good Christian people struggle along to make an honest and upright living. Nothing unfortunate seems to happen to the wealthy man, but something is happening all the time. He is rotting inwardly and he is calloused. How does the law of fear grip him? Is this one of God's laws?
8. God's laws of sowing and reaping proves true in grain and vegetables and fruit trees, how does it prove true to life?
9. According to Isa. 17:9-11 and Rom. 6:23, what is the punishment for sinning against God's laws?
10. How is the disobedience to God's laws like boomerangs? Matt. 26:51, 52?

Seed Thoughts

Life is sowing time.

The seed we sow is our thoughts and acts.

One may dodge human laws, escaping punishment, but never God's laws.

What Does Faith Mean?

"Faith is like a cathedral tower which begins on the earth but gradually rises toward heaven. Faith may have humble beginnings, but the big thing is where it points to and where it ends."

Pre-Prayer

The Greatest Faith Exercise in the life of every Christian, strengthened as you pray in groups, and with fervent, sincere willingness to TRUST Him! This is the secret of every successful Christian Endeavor.

For the Leader

Tonight we will discuss something which we cannot see, but which we fully believe and can testify to tonight. Every man out in the world and without Christ exercises "faith" every day even though they deny Christ. They use objects, matter, and devices daily in which they have faith. Our desire is to give those a real grip of faith in God and to strengthen our faith as His children.

Our Scripture is found in Heb. 11:1-6, upon which we will read and comment before we begin our discussions. (Read it.)

Faith is confidence in the reality of the thing for which we hope, even though it is unseen. Hope does not mean guess! It is by their confidence that the ancients won God's approval. Faith is more than believing something; it is really doing something about it. Many examples are given in this chapter. Faith is necessary to life. We cannot live without trusting someone or something.

Songs

"Faith is the Victory."
"Faith of Our Fathers."
Leave It There."
"My Faith Looks Up."
"Trust and Obey."
"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ."
"Only Believe."

Problems

1. Two little girls were on the way to school. One said, "Let us stop and ask God not to let us be late." The other said, "I'm going to run as fast as I can and ask Him as I go." They both had faith, but which was the most fruitful faith? Why? James 2:26.

2. "Can you do it?" a Korean Christian was asked regarding some of God's work. "We ask such questions about man's plans," was the reply, "but not about God's work." Explain Phil. 4:13.

Questions

1. Faith means confidence. It is not mysterious, but simple. Heb. 4:16. How do the credit systems of today express faith in the majority of the public? How about the dollar bill and our faith in the government?
2. What does faith lead us to do? Heb. 11:8.
3. How does knowledge increase our faith? Rom. 10:9-15.
4. Faith in God includes several transactions. Believing, trust, lean hard, and wait and work. Explain the place of each and the results. Matt. 14:22, 23.
5. How does faith add power? Acts 3:1-16.
6. Why does deep-settled peace and fearlessness accompany faith?
7. How does faith work when the outlook is dark and everything seems to go wrong?
8. How does faith in God bring us in the closest of Fatherly relationships with Him?
9. How do you get faith and how do you keep it?

Note

The Word of God is as necessary to faith as the living root of the tree is to the fruit.

Heroes of Missions

In thinking of missionary heroes, we need to go back to the Apostle Paul. He was a real missionary, for he said: "Yea, so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build upon another man's foundation." Rom. 15:20. He first preached to Jews, but God had called him especially to be a missionary to the Gentiles and his great work was done among them. He founded churches in different parts of Asia Minor, then in southern Europe, and finally he preached in Rome. In Acts 14:19, 2 Cor. 11:24-28 and other places we get an idea of how he had to suffer at times.

One of the earliest Protestant missionaries in recent centuries was John Eliot, who lived 1604—1690. He preached to the American Indians in the neighborhood of the Puritan colonies and translated the Bible into their language. He was well known for his kindness. David Brainerd continued the work during the next century.

William Carey, that great missionary to India, early began to study different languages. He was interested in others and had a map of the world hanging in his shoe-shop. He went to India in 1793, where he did a great work as an evangelist and in translating the Scriptures.

Adoniram Judson went to Burma at about the time that Carey went to India. It was said of the people to whom he went that they "were as untameable as the wild cow of the mountains." He had to work six years before anyone was saved, but at last folks did believe and churches were built.

There are two men who always remind us of Africa, Robert Moffat and David Livingstone. It was through Moffat that Livingstone became interested in Africa. Livingstone sailed to that land December 8, 1840, and went alone into the very heart of the continent. By his love and kindness he won the natives and opened the way for other missionaries to go later. He loved the people so much that he refused to leave them even when his health failed. He died there, alone in his hut, May 1, 1873. We say alone, yet he was not alone, for he was on his knees praying when God took him.

Not all brave missionaries were men. There were heroines, too. One of them was Mary Slesser, who went to Africa in 1876. She worked alone among the natives there for years, working harder than many men. She cared for their sick, loved their children, built houses, judged their disputes and all the time told them of Jesus.

Then there was Mary Reed who worked so faithfully among the lepers of India. These are only a few of the men and women who can truly be called Missionary Heroes and Heroines.

A Hall of Heroes: Heroes of Missions
2 Cor. 11:24-27

Why do we think of missionaries as heroes? The dictionary says that a hero is a man honored after death for exceptional service to mankind; a person of distinguished valor or fortitude. That describes many missionaries, does it not? It takes a really brave person to go into a strange country among people whose language he does not know and who may treat him very unkindly. The article on "Heroes of Missions" tells of some who went out bravely where Christ had not been preached. Try to learn more about them. Many missionaries today are just as brave as these. They have gladly left their homes and are willing to do without many good things that they may tell others of Jesus.

Plans for the Meeting

In our study this week we think of missionaries of the past rather than the present. Make this a missionary history lesson. It will help if you use the blackboard and make a list of names of missionaries as they are mentioned together with their field and date. Juniors should not only hear but learn at least this much concerning missionary pioneers. Study map showing Paul's journeys.

Questions

1. Why are missionaries called heroes?
2. What are some dangers early missionaries had to face?
3. How far did Paul go in missionary journeys?
4. Tell some of Paul's experiences while a missionary.
5. Are there heroes in mission lands now? Give reason for your answer.

Daily Readings

Unselfish hero. 2 Tim. 4:6-8.
Peter, the preacher. Acts 2:14-21.
Stephen, the martyr. Acts 7:54-60.
Bold witnesses. Acts 4:18-21.
Philip, the friendly. Acts 8:26-35.
Apollos, the eloquent. Acts 18:24-28.

A Hall of Heroes: Heroes of Peace

1 Kings 4:25

Many men and women have worked hard to put an end to war. They have tried many methods ,but even though peace is declared new wars spring up. In James 4:1 we find the cause of wars. Our Lord Himself is the greatest Hero of peace. He said, "My peace I leave with you." Those who love Him have peace in their own hearts and obey Rom. 12:18. He would have us know that fighting and quarreling are wrong anywhere. We are in danger of forgetting that we can do great harm by fighting with our tongues as well as in going to war.

Missionaries may be called real heroes of peace. John G. Paton said that when he went to the Island of Tanna in the New Hebrides the natives were almost constantly at war with each other. He taught them the wrong of war and although for a long time they did not want the missionary or his Christ, they finally listened and he had the joy of seeing a church built and men who were once war-like enjoying the Lord's supper together.

Later he worked on other islands of the New Hebrides where natives were just as war-like. After learning to love Jesus, two chiefs said: "We are the men of Christ now. We must not fight."

The same change has come in other places where Christ has been preached. There will be real peace when Jesus comes back as King. See Isa. 11:1-9.

Questions

1. Why may Jesus be called a Hero of peace?
2. In what ways are missionaries heroes of peace?
3. Tell some of the evils of war.
4. How may we obey Rom. 12:18?
5. Quote some Bible verses that speak of peace.

Daily Readings

Peacemakers' blessing. Matt. 5:9.
A keeper of peace. Gen. 26:17-22.
Good advice. Gen. 45:21-24.
Kings at peace. 1 Kings 5:1-7.
Prince of peace. Isa. 9:6.
If Jesus were King. Isa. 11:1-9.

A Boy's Prayer

I pray whatever wrong I do,
I'll never say what is not true;
Be willing at my task each day,
And always honest in my play.

Make me unselfish with my joys,
And generous with other boys;
And kind and helpful to the old,
And prompt to do what I am told.

Bless every one I love, and teach
Me how to help and comfort each;
Give me the strength right living brings,
And make me good in little things.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

The Child and the Kingdom

Lesson Text—Matt. 18:1-6; 12-14

Golden Text.—Suffer the little children and forbid them not to come unto Me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven. Matt. 19:14.

It is rather fitting that following Passion Week and Easter that we should raise the question as to what it really means to be a Christian. Jesus had chosen disciples who were to carry on His work and He was trying to teach them by word and example what was the nature of Christianity. It must be described in terms of the kingdom, but whenever Jesus spoke of the kingdom there came to the minds of the disciples the national hope, a kingdom of position and honor. Jesus tried to teach them concerning the spiritual kingdom. The disciples asked Him one day: "Who is the greatest in the kingdom?" and Jesus in answer took a little child and set it in their midst and said: "Unless you become converted and be as this child you cannot enter the kingdom."

There are two truths in this lesson concerning childhood which need to be recognized. The one is Jesus' attitude towards children, another is the qualities of childhood which are similar to Christianity. Jesus always emphasized the sacredness of personality whether it was a child, a woman or a man. He invited the children to come unto Him because they were in the kingdom. Jesus has meant a great deal to childhood. It is only in those countries where Jesus is known that childhood's rights have been recognized.

On the other hand Jesus says the qualities of childhood are characteristic of the Christian life. He does not mean the spirit of childishness which He so severely condemned in the Scribes and the Pharisees when He said that they were like spoiled children that would not play wedding nor funeral. They are like children sitting in the market place. "We have piped to you and you have not danced, we have mourned and you have not wailed." What are the characteristics of childhood that Christianity should have? In the first place it is that of wonder. A child wants to know. It seeks for truth. It wonders about things. So should be the Christian, open-minded, teachable, seeking for truth. The child also has great spontaneity. It is not selfconscious. It becomes so absorbed in the thing that it does that it is not selfconscious. So ought Christians to be. We should be unselfish, losing ourselves in our task. The child is also trustful. It has faith and confidence in its parents. So should it be with the Christian. We must trust our heavenly Father regardless of environment or circumstances.

Jesus Teaches Forgiveness

Golden Text.—Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors. Matt. 6:12.

We are living in a world of hate, jealousy, rivalry and competition. In fact up to the time of the depression we felt that rivalry and competition were necessary for the welfare of individuals. During this depression we are learning that rivalry and competition ruin us and that cooperation is God's law for life.

We have upon Calvary the finest demonstration of the victory of unselfishness and love over selfishness and hatred. Calvary reveals to us the meeting of God's best with man's worst. Jesus looked down from the cross and said, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." But this spirit of forgiveness can not be bought nor borrowed. It is the fruitage of a king of life. It is produced in a life of love. There have been times when the church tried to force forgiveness through rules and regulations attempting to compel church people to love each other. It can not be done. Forgiveness is the natural outflow of a life of love. Peter had in mind a rule of forgiveness when he said, "Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Till seven times?" Jesus said, "Not seven times, according to the Jewish law, but in the divine government of the New Kingdom, seventy times seven." In other words, until it has become the rule of life.

No man or woman that is a Christian will carry a grudge for years or have an unforgiving spirit. Neither is orthodoxy a substitute for the spirit of forgiveness. Some men feel because they are right and wish to defend their position that they can become bitter and hate. This can not be. The first fruit of a life of love is the spirit of forgiveness. It need not be forced but comes as natural as the sunshine. May the study of this lesson have its desired effect in the church that Jesus' statement may be varified. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples because ye love one another.

Our All For The Kingdom

Golden Text—It is more blessed to give than to receive. Acts 20:35.

Matthew 19 is a very significant chapter because it contains three incidents concerning family life which teach great truths concerning the kingdom. Christianity is a family religion. Most of the terms that Jesus uses to describe it are family terms such as Father, Brother, and Love. In chapter 19 we have first Jesus' discussion of marriage and divorce as the question was raised by the Scribes and Pharisees. He then blesses the little children which are brought to Him by their mothers which has already been discussed. And now we turn our attention to a young man who came to Jesus and asked what good thing he might do to have eternal life. Jesus said to him, "Keep the commandments." He said, "I have done this." Jesus then, after studying the young man, saw the weakness of his life and said to him, "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell all that thou hast and give to the poor and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come and follow me." The point here is not an economic one. Jesus is not praising the poor, neither condemning the rich. He saw what it was in the life of this young man that was keeping him from attaining the highest and best. For another young man it might have been something else. This lesson should be one of heart searching. What is it in our lives that is keeping us from a full surrender to the highest and best and a full allegiance to the program of the kingdom?

Peter then raises the question of the reward for those who are willing to forsake all. He, of course, thought in terms of a future material reward. Jesus says if we forsake all, we shall inherit eternal life not only for the hereafter, for here and now. The greatest reward of a Christian life is life.

CORRESPONDENCE

Peoria Mission Young Peoples' C. E., 1001 N. Adams, Peoria, Ill. Four members of the C. E. spent a day hunting rabbits for a Rabbit Fry which the young people thoroughly enjoyed on a cold, windy night in January. There were 37 present and the whole evening was spent in good, wholesome fellowship and fun and games. Again we say, Christian young people can have a better time and more fun than all outside of Christ in their so-called amusements of the world.

Mrs. Jesse Heiser, President.

Peoria Gospel Mission. The Intermediates of the Peoria Mennonite C. E. are preparing a missionary pageant, "Take Christ Around The World," to be given sometime soon. Watch for the announcement and plan to visit the Mission on that Sunday.

DEATHS

Myers.—On January 13, 1934, at the home of his parents, George H. and Mattie Myers. John Myles Myers, aged 10 years, 4 months, and 12 days. Services and interment January 17 at Deep Rim. Rev. Hailenman of M. E. Church assisted the pastor, A. M. Fretz.

Moyer.—On March 3, 1934, near Blooming Glen. Henry C. Moyer, aged 87 years and 21 days. Funeral and interment at Blooming Glen, March 7. Services by A. M. Fretz, assisted by the brethren Wilson R. Moyer and Melvin Bishop.

Mrs. Mary Flickner.—Was born in Wolynia, Russia, June 20, 1853. On April 9, 1867, she was baptized upon confession of faith in her Redeemer. In the year 1870 she was united in marriage to Andrew Schrag. To this union were born two children, of which one died in early infancy. The father was also taken in death quite soon after the death of the child.

In 1874 during the immigration of the Mennonites from Russia to America she was among them. She procured a homestead with others west of the town of Moundridge. On the 17th day of May, 1876, she was united in marriage with P. A. Flickner. They were also permitted to enjoy the festivities of a golden wedding. However, two years from that time (September 10, 1928) her husband passed away in death.

To this union were born ten children, four sons and six daughters. After a brief illness of only two weeks she was called to her reward, February 23, 1934. She reached the ripe old age of 80 years, 8 months, and 3 days.

She is survived by seven children, two sons and five daughters. five sons-in-law, and two daughters-in-law, forty-two grandchildren and twenty-two greatgrandchildren, two brothers, one sister, one brother-in-law, four sisters-in-law, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held on Sunday afternoon from the home of Andrew C. Goering and from the Eden church. Burial was made in the church cemetery.

Sophia Julia Aeschliman Schluneger was born near Locle, Switzerland. She came to Pulaski, Iowa, June 1884. Shortly afterward she united with the Mennonite church of that place. In November 1886 she was married to Ch. Schluneger. They moved to Washington territory in 1887 and located in Whitman County, where she lived ever since. When in the year 1893 the Colfax Mennonite Church was organized they also united with that church and remained true, active members until they became members of the Church Triumphant. After a lingering disease of several weeks she quietly and peaceably passed into her eternal home, March 2, 1934.

To this union 12 children were born, 6 sons and 6 daughters. 2 sons and 1 daughter preceded her into eternity. 9 children, 16 grandchildren, 3 brothers, and 2 sisters mourn her departure.

The funeral took place March 5. A short service took place in Colfax, conducted by the Pastor of the Nazarene church, where she occasionally attended. The services in the church were conducted by Rev. M. J. Galle of Odessa, Wash.. Several selections were sung by our male quartette. —P. R. A.

MARRIAGE

Gahrman-Mill.—By Pastor A. M. Fretz at his home in Perkasie, Pa., on December 23, 1933. Mr. Norman S. Gahrman and Miss Ella Mae Mill.

Yothers-Musselman.—By Pastor A. M. Freth, Perkasie, Pa., on February 17, 1934. Mr. Henry R. Yothers and Edna S. Musselman.

NOTICE—Due to the fact that Rev. Neuenschwander found it expedient to begin his work in the Western District a week earlier than was originally contemplated, the time which the churches have to adjust themselves to this program is very short. But it is hoped that the leaders and members of our churches will do all they can to pave the way for its accomplishment. May we pray God's blessing upon it.

If youth learned to work and save there would be little poverty in the world.—Onward.

Notes

Schwenksville is on Route 29, and the Eden Church is in town, about a quarter of a mile from the station on the Perkiomen R. R., which runs trains between Philadelphia and Allentown.

JOTTINGS

The Second Mennonite Church of Beatrice, Nebraska, had the pleasure of having Rev. Philip Wedel of Moundridge, Kansas, conduct a series of meetings. Those who attended expressed appreciation of the work that Rev. Wedel did while in Beatrice.

The Ladies Aid Society of the First Church, Philadelphia, Pa., held its annual Love Feast and Anniversary on the evening of March 13, on which occasion the address was made by Rev. Forrest E. Dager, D. D., one of Philadelphia's leading ministers and Bible teachers.

Immanuel Mennonite Church, Los Angeles, Calif., entertained as its guest Rev. J. J. Balzer of Mountain Lake, Minn. Rev. Balzer was secretary of the Home Mission Board of the General Conference when it sponsored the organization of Immanuel church as a mission. Next year the General Conference will hold its meeting in Immanuel church. At that time the Diamond Jubilee of the conference will be celebrated.

Rev. D. S. Wipf and P. R. Schroeder who have been doing extension work in the interest of Freeman College, in the neighboring town of Dolton, S. D., have completed their work in this field and the verdict of the community, if newspaper reports are correct, is that the work was satisfactory. An interesting program was presented in Bethesda church by those who were engaged in the extension work.

Rev. T. J. Dick of Mountain Lake, Minn., was in Freeman, S. D., visiting with relatives and friends and transacting business. He occupied the pulpit of the South Church of which his brother-in-law, P. R. Schroeder, is pastor.

Dr. Harvey Bauman, missionary on furlough, is at present visiting the churches throughout the west in the interest of missions. He was in Mountain Lake and the surrounding communities.

The plan to send some of the Mennonites now in Harbin to Brazil has met with some difficulties because of the attitude of the Brazilian Government, according to a report received by Rev. P. H. Unruh from Germany. However, there are indications of a more favorable action. Should this fail, the remaining refugees in Manchuria will have to be sent to Paraguay, the only country in the world where the door still remains open to refugee immigrants.

Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen, writing for "Der Herold," recalls an interesting experience on one of the trains carrying Russian Mennonite immigrants west, way back in 1876. It happened that the conductor requested him to translate something that the car load of immigrants were saying and it turned out that these people were Mennonites whose shedule was so closely arranged that they had been unable to secure food for themselves before taking the train from New York. Rev. van der Smissen immediately telegraphed to his father, Rev. J. van der Smissen, at Wadsworth, Ohio, who was then principal of the Mennonite school there, to arrange for having the train held up at Wadsworth and food provided for the car full of hungry people. The elder van der Smissen and a number of brethren were on hand when the train halted and the brethren were liberally supplied with food. Rev. van der Smissen is now wondering whether any of the party might be alive who could recall the incident.

Writing of the earthquake in India, Missionary John Thiessen says: "Maybe others will have written you already about the India-wide earthquake last Monday afternoon at two o'clock, January 15. It might easily have been that our entire mission property would have been utterly destroyed. In some parts of India whole villages and cities have become heaps of ruins. Our houses shook as though they were built of toy blocks. We ran out of the houses as fast as we could. As soon as the shocks were over we phoned to the other stations and they reported the same. After a few days we heard that the whole of India had been shaken. Severe damage is reported from northern India where there are several thousand dead as a result of the quake. Here at our station only one wall in the schoolhouse cracked. But as suddenly as it came, on one of the brightest days, no warning nor clouds in the sky, no blowing of wind, all of a sudden everything was in motion; reminds us again how suddenly we may be called from this life. If this would have come at two o'clock at night when all peopde are in their houses and if it would have come everywhere as severe as at some places, then the deaths would likely be numbered in the millions instead of the thousands. As far as I remember I have heretofore never heard of an earthquake shaking a whole country some three thousand miles long and over a thousand miles wide. Indeed, our 'solid rock' is happily something more firm than this globe, because we have now seen how this earth can tremble like a feather."

The ministers of the Eastern District Conference held their quarterly Conference in the Flatland, Pa., Meeting House near Quakertown, March 23. Two interesting and helpful papers were read: "The Vicarious Suffering of Christ," by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, and "The Place of Vicarious Suffering in the Life of the Minister," by Rev. A. M. Fretz.

Arrangements are being made for the 1934 Retreat to be held at the Girls' University Camp near Green Lane, Pa. These retreats in the East have been conducted for a number of years and the attendance in late years has been to the capacity of the camp. It is expected that the one this year will have the usual support.

The Inman, Kansas, church had the pleasure of having Rev. Philip Wedel of the Eden church, Moundridge, Kans., conduct a series of meetings from Feb. 18 to 23.

Passion Week services were conducted by the Moundridge, Kansas, churches. At every service one of the seven words of Christ on the cross was used as a text.

BOOKS OF INTEREST TO RELIGIOUS WORKERS

The Soul-Winner's Guide

By R. L. Berry

This book was born of a deep burden for individual soul-winning on the part of the author. It is equally good for personal use, for reading, study, meditation, devotion, and prayer.

The Soul-Winner's Guide does not endeavor to merely advocate a campaign of evangelism to ride to a crest and then recede. It goes to the root of the question and points out the Bible basis for all-the-year-round, all-one's-life kind of personal evangelism. It goes to bedrock spiritual foundation and its principles are sound as the Scriptures. It seeks to show what the duty of every Christian is and points out that every single Christian can do something, no matter what his state is, in the work of the kingdom.

Education in Church Music

By Karl Pomeroy Harrington

An admirable study which surveys the present-day status of church music and offers constructive and practical suggestions for improving the church music program. It discusses choirs and congregations, provides easily understood instruction in reading music, and sets forth the principles of music composition with sufficient detail to enable the reader to judge for himself the merits of hymn tunes, anthems and the like. The book includes a historical review of the development of church music, provides many illustrations of hymn tunes, classifies the anthems available for church use, and discusses many plans of church music which are of special present-day significance. 167 pages. Well bound. Price postpaid..........$2.00

EDITORIAL

Many people make a practice of carrying a Bible of pocket size with them continually. This is only a splendid habit if added to it is the habit of reading it continually. Just to have a Bible with one and keeping it in the pocket until it wears out is like carrying a lucky charm or the proverbial "rabbit's foot." It is to be assumed that the Bible carrier is both a Bible reader and a Bible student. There is a difference between reading the Bible and studying it. Some kind of reading, especially the kind that must read a chapter a day and then forget all about it, is not a very effective way of using Scripture. To choose a chapter at random and then close the Book with a feeling that one daily task, at least, is out of the way, will not go very far toward building up the Christian character and faith. No kind of reading helps unless it is intelligent reading and a seeking after a larger grasp on the Truth. Sure, we should read our Bibles every day. We should go at it systematically with the idea of getting something helpful from it whenever we take it up. We should hunger and thirst for its message just as our material bodies hunger and thirst for the meat and drink that our Creator has provided for them. But we should never give it the superstitious regard in the superstitious way that those who are ignorant of the gifts of God give to their charms and lucky tokens. G.

Several notices have appeared in The Mennonite and Christian Evangel with reference to a group of Mennonite refugees from Russia being battered about from pillar to post without finding a haven that might offer them the slightest opportunity for food or security either in Syria or Turkey. In normal times such an unfortunate group would have received general notice and efforts would have been made to rush help to them. They seem to be altogether out of reach of communications from their brethren in other countries and, while efforts have been made to reach them and ascertain their real condition, little has been accomplished. When the Armenians were the victims of deadly persecution the whole world knew about it. Now, with thousands of Mennonites perishing in the wilds of northern Siberia where they have been banished to be worked to death, starved and frozen at the same time in the effort of the Soviet Government to liquidate, as they say, the people they do not want and with, who knows, how many other groups wandering in misery as is the lot of the Syrian group, future historians may have to tell the story of masses of martyrs who perished because their crime was that of being loyal to the faith. It is to the credit of American Mennonites that they have made every possible effort to relieve their suffering brethren across the sea, but the pathos of the situation is that there are many others of our faith who cannot reach us with their cry and we cannot locate or help them with assistance that might save their lives. G.

It does not often happen that an organization connected with a congregation is older than the organization itself, but this is what has happened in the Second Mennonite Church of Philadelphia. Thirty-eight years ago a new section was being developed in what was then the northern part of the city and many of the members of the First Mennonite Church of that town were moving into this section, who might be lost to the church if provisions were not made for taking care of them. It also happened that the young people of the Christian Endeavor Society were asking the church officials for something to do in a constructive way that might help the church. A mission was opened in a private house and about the first thing done was the organization of a Ladies Aid Society, a Sunday School, and a Christian Endeavor Society, as well as the conducting of regular Sunday evening services. It was not until three years later that the little group of workers were organized into an independent congregation known as the Second Menonnite Church. So it happened that both the Sunday School and the Ladies Aid Society are older than the church itself. C. E. societies sometimes must be renewed. The present C. E. Society of this church is the successor of several others but, according to present indications, it promises to be more enduring because of a better organization. Churches in our day, especially city churches, have a hard time in maintaining themselves and they are not in the habit of swarming like bees. They feel that their needs are such that they could not spare a group that might migrate to some other locality, especially if that group did not go beyond a walking distance. This is what happened, in this case. Twenty-two members from the other church identified themselves with the new organization and several others after the organization was completed. A few of these returned to the old church. This was all that the old church lost in membership, though it continued financial support for several years afterward. Since that time, 35 years ago, less than one could count on one's hands have come from the parent church. The rest of the membership were drawn from the community and came from non-Mennonite families. Someone has said that it is a gift to humanity to make two blades grow where only one grew before. We might add that it is a sign of healthy progress when two Mennonite churches take the place of one, especially when the reason happens to be to strengthen the church and not to express the dissatisfaction of a faction that is not at peace with the rest.

THE CHURCH AND HER CREEDS

Scripture: Matt. 16:1-12. Text: John 8:32

"The Church and Her Creeds," opens one of the most delicate and difficult problems of our time. It is a "serious" theme when creeds are crumbling on every hand, and "secularism" is threatening the very existence of all religion. Jesus one day said to those who were following Him, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Those words cut to the heart of Creeds. Creeds ought to be based on "truth," in so far as we can discern truth through "a glass darkly."

I. What is a Creed?

Webster says, "A brief statement of belief." So this morning we are touching upon the most tender spot in our spirits — beliefs. Of all things nearest our hearts, are our "beliefs," our "creeds."

A history of creeds reveals the important fact that it is not a "stationary" fact; creeds are continually changing. Much of the tragedy of the church has been the effort to "state beliefs," and then "defend" them by "building a wall" so they might "stand." But build that wall as high as we will a "Moses," a "Jesus," a "Martin Luther" ushers in a Reformation; and "old" creeds give way to "new" ones.

"We see through a glass darkly," how can we hope to write creeds which have a copyright on truth. The Kingdom of Heaven is a "growth," and as that Kingdom grows, our creeds must "grow" with it. "I have yet many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now — the Spirit of Truth — will guide you into all truth."

That Spirit of Truth reveals "new insights," new "prophetic truth" to each generation. As those insights come, creeds must grow to conform to purer Love, Higher Ideals. War, Liquor, Slavery were "accepted" by the society of Jesus. Slavery has gone, War and Liquor are making their last stand. Why the change in attitude? Because the Spirit of Truth is still leading into "new insights" and "new paths."

Build your walls as high as you will, you cannot imprison a Moses, a Christ, a Luther. If your creeds are true, they will stand; if they are false, they will fall — in spite of all you can do. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

II. Keeping Creeds in Their Place

The value of everything we use lies in the art of keeping it "in its place." Food is a good thing; but you must put it where it belongs. Gasoline is a good material; but be careful where you ask it to work. Poison is a good thing; but watch the place where you pour it. Creeds are very necessary; but they have a place.

Today we have two extremes which battle with one another. One extreme says, "Creeds are the most important thing in religion; if you believe correctly, you are saved." The other extreme says, "Why worry about creeds; it makes no difference what a man believes anyway." Both these attitudes kill the dynamic religion of Jesus Christ.

An argument, a battle, a split drives the spirit of love and tolerance away. While we argue about our creeds and beliefs, men and women die in sin and darkness. Let us decide where a Creed belongs; and then put it there, and then work together to build the Kingdom of God.

Where does a Creed belong? I should place the Creed "in the life of the individual". A man's conscience should dictate his Creed, not a minister, church committee, or conference.

Many of my readers are General Conference Mennonites. Do you know that we have no "Official Creed?" We have tried to adopt one in the last two sessions of conference, but we have not. I hope we never will have an "Official Creed." It stagnates the Religion of the Living Christ.

The Jews held that Jerusalem was the place to get your Creeds and do your worshipping; the Samaritans said, "in this mountain." Jesus, speaking to the Samaritan woman at Jacob's well, said, "Neither in this mountain or at Jerusalem—but in spirit and in truth." Wherever man has found fellowship with God the Father—there a Creed is born, and religion expresses itself.

The "Holy of Holies" of this "Temple" of God is a Man's Conscience." That conscience is "Holy Ground" upon which no priest dare tread; God alone has, and should have, access to that secret chamber. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

III. Great Creeds of the Church

The Bible is the oldest Creed we know — that is, part of the Bible is in Creed form. "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, for instruction in righteousness." The Bible is a "brief statement of beliefs" of the church through the ages, plus.

The Apostle's Creed, written by the early church to counteract the heresies of Marcion and Gnostics, has released great power in the church in its day. By its dynamic, religion has moved forward to this day. It is a great Creed of the Church.

The Mennonite Creed is important to us. We have no "Official Creed," but our fathers stood for definite truths and insights. "Absolute Religious Tolerance!" That is one reason why we have no "Official Creed." You can't have "Official Creeds" and "Absolute Religious Tolerance." They contradict each other. "Absolute Love!" That is, be a non-resistant," "return good for evil," "take no life." "Simplicity of Life!" Traditional Mennonites have never tried to "Keep up with the Joneses." Take what you need," give rest to others who need.

Do we need those "creeds" today? Yes, we as Mennonites have a contribution to make to the world; large enough to make any sincere minister and layman tremble before the throne of God, and humbly ask for wisdom and guidance; not trying to tell God what we want, but asking God to lead us where He desires—even though it be through the Garden to Calvary. "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." What a responsibility!

In conclusion, what of the Future? No one knows what the Creeds of the Future will be. I do say, I firmly believe we are on the eve of a reformation of world-wide significance. Some Moses, some Luther, the Living Christ will yet break through our weak Modernism and Fundamentalism, our Humanism and Atheism. When that reformation comes, our Creeds must be changed to conform to "new insights," purer "Love," a greater God.

In my own thinking, I have arrived where I require a Creed of but one word: L-O-V-E. "For God is Love." If a man has LOVE at the core of his life, I shall not worry about the minor details of his creed.

"I believe in a God of Love; and One whose attitude toward all mankind is one of Supreme Love and Forgiveness.

"I believe in Jesus the Living Christ, the Son of God; and in the potential Sonship of every member of the Human Race.

"I believe in the Kingdom of God; and that it can, and will, be established among men."

You say, "That isn't expecting enough from yourself or others." My answer is, "Just put L-O-V-E at the core of every act for one week," you "will know of the doctrine," whether it be of God—." And you will "know" also that it has "expected MORE" of you than any Creed you ever memorized. For "Love" leads through the Garden to Calvary.

Ah! "The Church and Her Creeds!" "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free." Carl J. Landes.

IF JESUS HAD NOT BEEN

So much of the regretable still exists, of sin and its resultant crime and misery, in an otherwise desirable world, that one may permit it to obscure — as a cloud the sun, the brighter and more hopeful conditions of today. True, there are temporary set-backs; the policeman gets killed, and not the bandit. Law is defeated by a mob. But "better light a candle than curse the darkness," for the "stone cut out without hands" will ultimately "fill all the earth." Theodore Roosevelt said, "It is impossible to realize what the world would be, but for the Light of the Bible."

First—Man would have remained in impenetrable darkness as to the Being and Nature of God, had not Jesus been. Geologic research throws little light on the true God. Gloom enshrouded the mind till God revealed Himself through the medium of His Son. "The whole world was lost in the darkness, of sun, the Light of the world is Jesus." Even to the ingenuous Greeks, He was an "Unknown God." As a kind understands only the language of its kind, so Christ as man thus came within man's comprehension, as Person to persons. Then "they that sat in darkness saw a great Light." A late erudite naturalist, a mind of exceptional penetration, writer of many books, and fairly immersed in light, but strangely unable to accept the Christian idea of a God apart from creation, or Christ whom he called the "myth of a man-God," yet said, "I must admit, however, that Christianity has lifted and enlightened the world as everything else combined could not." I confess I grow enthusiastic over the evident success of Christ, the "Light of the world," the increasing host of children pouring from a million Bible schools with an ever growing intelligent knowledge of God. I rejoice at this Light penetrating the darkest corners of earth, foreshadowing the time when "They shall teach no more, Know ye the Lord, for all shall know me from least to the greatest."

Second—If Jesus had not been, unmerciful selfishness would have characterized man, regarding not rights of ownership nor life. Biology discloses human kind in past ages much like animals, red in tooth and claw. Near here, Edgewood, Ia., nine human prehistoric bodies were unearthed in an ancient cave, one seven feet tall, the absence of the head indicated violent death in jungle battle. That selfishness dies hard is evident in business, which seeks all the trade: it lingers in contest between churches. A missionary tells of an exceptionally bright African lad, name Lazarus, who saves his Sunday School cards, knows Bible verses, and though unsaved, tries to live the "Jesus Way;" he finds this beyond him. When asked the trouble he replied, "The Golden Rule." "As ye would that men do to you." When recently the missionary inquired how he got along, he hanged his head acknowledging defeat, "I took the biggest potato," he said. Unwittingly he announced in miniature a world trouble, its tragic plight caused by selfishly taking the "biggest potato" with no thought of others. In the train of self has followed untold suffering, it passes by the road-side dying man; the unfortunates themselves lacked sympathy for each other, as in case of the impotent man, "when I would enter the pool, others go in before me." God's image in man is buried deep, and would forever remain so, but for the mission of suffering, under the spirit of Christ. The innumerable agencies of relief mark the progress of His spirit of mercy and sympathy in the hearts of men, as selfishness gives way to self-sacrificing love.

Third—If Jesus had not Been — Man would have been in a world without hope. Can one picture a hopeless world, meaningless, futureless, with inescapable griefs, burying the dead without hope of redemption or immortality? Who can imagine man's sad estate, the continuity of which could never be broken. We have only to visit the isolated sections of earth, or slum districts, to envision what the world would be (or worse) had Jesus not been. Unbelievable conditions of ignorance and misery. A world abandoned to its fate of wretchedness and ruin. Recently a university professor questioned the "Proof of Immortality," but finds it too late to get a following. Feeble and futile indeed is puny man, who would retard a cause which holds forth a hope, the reality of which is demonstrated daily to the world: A cause of which it is written, "Shall prosper in His hand."

Should not His healing touch, His lift from sin-burden, the mighty host of every kindred and tongue, "Returning with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads," be cause to awaken praise and thankfulness for Light, Relief, and Hope, upon which the sun never sets, because Jesus has been, is, and ever shall be, the increasing Christ.

BROTHERHOOD TOPIC FOR APRIL 1934

Our Mission Work Among The Amercian Indians

This work is scattered over three large fields in three states, Oklahoma, Montana, and Arizona. Three tribes with three languages are included: Cheyennes, Arapahoes, and Hopis. Seventeen missionaries, including the wives, are at work on these fields, taking care of fifteen stations, including two out-stations.

The total number of Indians for whom our conference is responsible is about 3500, of which about 25%, or 850, have been won for Christ and the church. That is a good percentage compared with the mission work as a whole among Indians.

Two Indian languages have been reduced to writing by our missionaries, namely Cheyenne and Hopi. The first of these is especially difficult, one of the most difficult languages in the work, if not the most difficult. If Bro. Petter had not had at least six languages before he started the Cheyenne, it is doubtful whether he would have had the ability to master Cheyenne as he has. He has written a large dictionary, about as big as Webster's unabridged, a grammar, a song book, translated nearly all of the New Testament, which he hopes to finish within a year, Pilgrim's Progress, etc. In Hopi we have the four Gospels translated, a song book, and the best Bible stories from the Old Testament. The Arapaho tribe is too small to have their language reduced to writing.

Had it not been for the fact that we had the Cheyenne language in writing, it is doubtful if we would have begun mission work in Montana, where about one-half of the Cheyenne tribe was transplanted by the government. It was practically certain that no other missionary would ever undertake to translate the Bible into Cheyenne, and we felt that we must give them the gospel in their language. So in 1902, Bro. Petter made a trip to Montana, and visited the tribe there, bringing them greetings from their brethren in Oklahoma. The fact that a white man spoke Cheyenne was so unheard of among them, that when Bro. Petter arrived there, he had the following experience, which we give in his own words:

"When I reached these people, there was not a little commotion. An old woman whom I addressed in Cheyenne stared at me, then fell to the ground and cried to the other, "Come, he speaks Cheyenne. Can it be that he is our Messiah?" Well, he was not the Messiah, but a messenger from Him. Soon here also the work was started, Bro. G. A. Linsheid being the first missionary here, he having also the language.

Oklahoma

Cantonment and Fonda.—Brother and Sister Linsheid live at Canton and serve both stations, which are about 20 miles apart. Their native helper is Whiteshield. He looks after 350 Indians, of whom one hundred are church members. They are much scattered which makes the work difficult in many ways, especially now when money for gas and cars is scarce.

Canton and Deer Creek.—Brother and Sister H. J. Kliewer live at Thomas near Deer Creek, but visit regularly also Canton, about 35 miles away, where the native helper is stationed. He takes care of about 325 Indians, of whom about 95 are church members. At Canton is the Arapaho church, and at Deer Creek the Cheyenne.

Clinton and Hammon. — Here Brother and Sister J. B. Ediger are stationed. They live at Clinton, but have charge of both stations, some 35 miles apart. The native helper, Homer Hart, is doing much work at Hammon. Here also about 95 members belong to the two churches. Bro. Hart gets $25.00 a month when we have the money. So here special gifts are welcome.

What makes the work on all stations difficult is the fact that the Indians are so much scattered. Then the peyote eating and drinking has a strong hold on them, as also in Montana. They make a religion of it, and meet usually on Saturday night, seemingly purposely trying to make church attendance for peyote friends almost impossible, because on Sunday morning they are still weak from the after-effects. While they are under the power of the poison they are as in a trance, hearing beautiful music and seeing exquisite colors, forgetting all pain and care. They seem to be in heaven for a little while. But it shatters the nerves and the health for many. The worst is the double hold it has on its addicts, both physical and spiritual. We should pray more for these slaves of peyote.

Montana

Lame Deer and Muddy—Brother and Sister R. Petter, our senior missionaries, are stationed here, and as already related in the introduction, he is chiefly occupied with translation work. The station Birney is also worked from here by a native helper. There are nearly 200 members on these stations. Four native helpers have received for years special instruction as helpers, and three of them are doing good work; the fourth did also until recently when peyote caught him in its net. May we all pray for him especially.

Busby and Rosebud.—Brother and Sister A. Habegger have charge of these places, they have also four native helpers, but they change off. There are over 100 members in this church. Both here and at Lame Deer the Indians have tried repeatedly to oust our missionaries from the field, but so far in vain. The last attempt was made last summer when peyote dealers were arrested by government agents. But the blame was put on the Mennonite Mission because one of the policemen who helped in the arrest, was a member of our church.

Ashland. — Brother and Sister Valdo Petter are stationed here. What makes the work hard is the proximity of the Catholic school and mission. But only our mission gives them the full gospel. Pray for this work.

Arizona

Oraibi.—Brother and Sister J. P. Suderman are stationed here. Recently they had a regular revival here, which resulted in the addition of 16 new members to the church. Here it is not the peyote evil, but more the snake dance and secret organizations that make the word hard. Pray for it.

Moen Copi.—Here Brother and Sister F. A. Johnson are at work, our first native helper who has charge of a station. He is doing good work, and the interest of the Hopis is growing, where until recently there was hostility against the mission.

Hoetevill—Here Sister Mary Schirmer works all alone. Sister Schirmer had adopted an Indian child years ago, Daniel, who will finish the Los Angeles Bible School this year. He has the best reputation in the school, and is a member of the gospel team. If we had the money, we could perhaps employ him as assistant to Sister Schirmer, who is not young any more.

So on all stations the chief needs are prayer and money—prayer as indicated above, and money to furnish translation and employ more native helpers, so as to make them grow into independence.

HERE AND THERE IN THE WORLD PARISH

Japan is feeling the leavening of Christ, according to Dr. Gideon F. Draper, veteran missionary. Dr. Draper, who is now retired and living among his children in the Gospel, reports that among the Japanese Christmas and Easter are occasions for many celebrations expressing the real spirit of Christ. He writes, "God has so blessed our work here in Japan that a living, aggressive native church has been established. It has such strength that even if all the missionaries and all mission funds were to be withdrawn, the work would surely go on, though of course it would be seriously hampered for a time. But the Truth has been planted in Japan.

A Missionary Views America

If America could see herself as those who have a fresh perspective see her, there would be here a mighty Christian awakening. A missionary to India returned after years in that country and traveled through the churches in his native America. He writes to the editor of the World Methodist Press in these words:

"Arriving in this country on furlough nearly two years ago, I became quickly convinced that India was in no greater need of Christianiza-tion than America. I was plunged into months of deepest gloom at what I found upon returning after six years in India. There seemed to be no place in the Church where the spirit of God could break out, but it seemed vital that there should be such an outbreak. This whole problem has filled the two years of our 'extended' furlough. A year in Teachers' College, Columbia, only seemed to increase the sense of urgency. The election found the Socialist Party intellectually respectable as never before, but no nearer legislative victory. There seemed need for a movement like Indian Nationalism, which would cut deep into the life of the Church, be purifying in power, and make Christianity mean frank repudiation of the guilt of our day. It would be conviction, repentance, and conversion, but with a new content. It would be individual, as it only could be, but it must be as social as redemption, as Christ's cross. The next year, this winter, brought me into Michigan to tour the entire state, presenting the work carried on by the church in India. In going about I have been impressed with the fact that ministers and laymen alike, the most devoted of them, are saying something must be done, but they are asking, 'What can we do?' There is a feeling of futility, a sense of no place to take hold, akin to my inability to find the place in the Church where it seemed the Spirit of God could break out. This all set me to thinking more than ever along the same line of the need of a Christian awakening in America."

RELIGION

Albert Oswald, Aurora, Nebr.

"So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him."

This is the climax of God's creative acts. The features which set this act above the creation of the material universe and animal life are: (1) the erect posture of man, (2) the power of reason and reflection, (3) the faculty of transmitting thought by speech, (4) God-consciousness or religious instinct which is accounted for by man's triune nature, body, soul, (or life), and spirit.

What is religion or the religious nature? A belief binding the spiritual nature of man to a supernatural being. As involving a feeling of dependence and responsibility together with the feelings and practices which naturally flow from such a belief. The word is derived from a Latin word, meaning "bind." For instance, it is used to denote the fastener used to bind a boat to the pier. Your "religion" is the fastener between you and your God. If, therefore, you are fastened to your God by Christ then your "religion" is Christian. If your God is fashion, then the intense feeling and desire you have to be fashionable, is your religion.

How does "The Book" define religion? "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." This definition is in two parts. The first shows "religion" in practical action. It is your relationship to your God expressing itself by actions toward your fellowman who is God's consummating handiwork. But we will pass this definition by, as this was to be an article on religion from the angle of false religion. Nevertheless let the reader keep in mind the great importance of it.

Failure to live up to the second portion of this definition, "keep oneself unspotted from the world" is the source of false "religion." What is the "world"? Scripture uses the term in three different ways. And the dictionary gives other uses. The Bible uses are, (1) mankind or the human race. For example, "For God so loved the 'world.'" (2) The material earth and its contents. For example (Ps. 50:12), "For the 'world' is mine and the fullness thereof." (3) An attitude that is spiritual and good. Ils. by Jno. 15:19, "If ye were of the 'world,' the world would love its own, but because ye are not of the 'world,' but I have chosen you out of the 'world,' therefore the 'world' hateth you." In the passage "keep oneself unspotted from the 'world,' " world has the meaning of materialism and evilmindedness. This 'world' is dominated by Satan through the organizations which he controls. Principally the governments of the earth as they exist today. The writer does not wish to be misunderstood here. Governments are not always directly responsible for evil, but it exists because of their permission and indifference. Governments were ordained of God, and are very necessary. And we are to be subject to them in so far as they do not violate the Scripture. But because of sin, Satan in this age has control of the governments of the earth. This is shown by the temptation of Jesus when Satan takes Him up into a high mountain and mentally shows Him all the kingdoms of the "world" and the glory of them, and says unto Him, "All these will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me."

Dr. Scofield states the matter thus: The "world" or "world system" is the arrangement under which Satan has organized the world of unbelieving mankind upon his cosmic principles of force, greed, selfishness, ambition, and pleasure. This world system is opposing and powerful with armies and fleets. It is often outwardly religious, scientific, cultured and elegant, but seething with national and commercial rivalries and ambitions. It is upheld in any real crisis by armed forces and is dominated by satanic principles. An idea of the climax of this world is given in Rev. 13:8, "And all that dwell upon the face of the earth shall worship him, whose names are not written in the 'Book of Life' of the 'Lamb' slain from the foundation of the 'world' (earth)."

The false religions may take subtle and appealing methods to draw men to them. Such as "salvation by works," which might be based on the scripture, "visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction." Or it might take any one of many materialistic ways, such as love of money, self, fashion, property, power, fame, etc.

God's object in creating man in His own image was to glorify Himself. But this object was frustrated by Satan persuading man to sin. But the works of Jesus again made it possible for man to glorify God, for by becoming man He overcame Satan in the flesh. Therefore Jesus says (Jno. 7:4-5), "I have glorified thee on earth, I have finished the work thou gavest me to do. And now, Oh Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the 'world' (earth) was."

Since man was made in the image of God it follows that man was intended to reflect the glory of God of which man is the image. Hence the scriptural injunction, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works (visiting the fatherless and widows, etc.) and glorify your father which is in heaven (being clean in thought and action)."

After Christ's work on earth was finished, the Holy Spirit was given to carry it on. Therefore, the test of any religion is, whether that religion by the promptings of the Holy Spirit accepts the work of Jesus on earth, and thereby glorifies the Father. Any man's religion that by its teaching and actions does not glorify the three members of the triune God, is false. True religion, then, and its climax is expressed in the words of the prophet Habakkuk: "And the knowledge of the glory of the Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea."

CORRESPONDENCE

St. John's Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, March 12, 1934. Greetings to the editors and readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel! We are still on the map. At the yearly meeting the church gave our beloved pastor, Rev. Toews, a call to stay another year. Under his efficient ministry God has blessed, and we believe the church has had a marked growth spiritually.

February 11, Prof. A. Warkentin of Bethel College gave us an inspiring message on the first chapter of Revelation, so that our hearts were gripped by the expounding of God's Word in its fulness.

There has been much sickness this winter among so many church members, but the Lord was so very gracious in restoring most of them back to health, with the exception of a few who are not yet able to be out, but trusting God, He will restore them back to health in His own secret time as He sees fit. We were firmly in the grip of king winter during the month of February, just as our meetings were in progress.

Our evangelistic meetings started February 18, and continued to March 2. During the first week of the meetings our pastor was absent, as he was called to Idaho on account of the death of his father. We greatly regretted his absence, but God's ways are always best. Rev. D. J. Unruh of Landsdale, Pa., was the evangelist, and is a man of much prayer and carries a burden for the lost. The message delivered in his impressive manner aroused great interest, and were indeed rich and wanderful. We felt the presence of the Lord in every service of the two weeks. The opening of the second week of services showed a deepening interest and an added burden of prayer on the church-membership. Prayer meetings were held in homes both in town and in the country, which were indeed a great asset to the meetings, also the pre-prayer service half hour before the meetings. And best of all, there was an interest in salvation on part of some, and prayed through to definite victory. Wonderful transforming power of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ!

The visible results were not as great as we had hoped for, but the seed sown will not return void. The special music by our own church and also neighboring churches was inspirational and greatly appreciated.

February 18, the male choruses from Bluffton, Ebenezer, Grace, and St. Johns gave a sacred concert, each chorus giving two selections, and combined choruses also two, which was much appreciated by the large audience. This was followed by a brief message by Rev. Unruh, his theme being, "The Approach to God," which indeed was inspiring, refreshing, and edifying, as were all the rest of the services. May we not only be hearers of His Word, but doers also, and profit by what we have heard. When our people return to God in intercessory prayer, we may then witness revival throughout our land.

On March 4th we had Mr. E. W. Baumgartner from Berne, Ind., bring us the morning message, which indeed was inspiring and a practical heart-to-heart talk to the Christians. In the afternoon the County Sunday School Convention was held at Grace Church. The addresses by the two speakers, Rev. Haldeman of Findlay, O., on "The Place of Evangelism in the Sunday School," and the evening address by Mr. Baumgartner, Berne, Ind., on "The Church School and the Teacher," were so ably discussed by both speakers, that it was a rich spiritual feast and ought to be a great inspiration to our Sunday Schools. —Reporter.

Calvary Church, Washington, Ill. The Kum-Joy-Nus Sunday School class was entertained by Miss Beulah Schertz, March 7.

The Adelphian choir gave a musical program here Sunday evening, March 11. A very large crowd attended.

Rev. J. E. Hartzler will conduct meetings here for one week, beginning April 1.

Mrs. Rufus Rich has just returned from the hospital where she has been for over two weeks recovering from an operation.

Lester Risser of Eureka was taken into the church by letter, March 4th.

Peoria Mennonite Gospel Mission, Peoria, Illinois. February 18th, the Young Peoples' C. E. accepted an invitation to present "The Challenge," a missionary pageant which we had given at our own Mission on February 4th, at the Calvary Mennonite Church of Washington, Illinois. The weather being snowy and cold, kept many away from the program. But in behalf of our Endeavor we want to say that we enjoyed the spirit of welcome and fellowship of the Washington membership and count it a privilege to carry the gospel message of Christ's last command.

The Intermediate C. E. is practicing a playlet, "Take Christ Around the World," which they expect to present the latter part of March, under the direction of Mrs. J. Sommer.

February 25, Rev. Emil Sommer and family gave to us at the Peoria Mission a very inspirational and unique missionary program, under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society. May God bless them mightily as they work and await their return to Africa, is our constant prayer.

Rev. J. Sommer, our pastor, has been expounding to us 1 Corinthians in a series of Sunday morning messages. God has illuminated our minds and souls and Corinthians has become a new and rich and full experience in our lives.

The Sunday evening messages given by our pastor have been evangelistic. God has blessed the conscientious preaching and prayers with the FRUIT of four souls, since the first of the year.

1. Cor. 8:9, "AND GOD IS ABLE to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things may abound to every good work." B. Y.

West Swamp Mennonite Church, Quakertown, Pa., March 22, 1934. To the Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— In the death of Allen E. Beam, who passed away on January 27, 1934, the West Swamp congregation suffered the loss of one who has long been actively connected with the work of the church. Brother Bleam, who passed away after an illness of seven weeks, was for over thirty years the deacon of the congregation and had been for over forty years a member of the church council. He was also long a Sunday School teacher, and was in every way solicitous of the best interest of the church and her work. He was a familiar figure at conferences and conventions in the eastern district. His loyalty and devotion to Christ and the church will always remain an inspiration to those who knew him.

A few days later occurred the death of another faithful member, namely, that of Mrs. Daniel S. George, who passed on in middle life. Both of these funerals were largely attended, and hearts were stirred in sympathy for the bereaved families.

Prior to the death of Mr. Bleam, a second deacon had been elected at the annual meeting of the congregation, to assist in this office. The choice fell upon Robert S. Stauffer, who now serves as deacon.

We also wish to report a helpful series of meetings conducted by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander from February 18 to 23. In one sense the most notable thing about this series of services was the unfavorable weather conditions encountered, due to the severe winter. In another sense, however, the spiritual benefits received by those who could attend are after all what really count in the course of time, and the spiritual stirring that Brother Neuenschwander gave us was good for all.

We have also greatly profited by and enjoyed the missionary messages that Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman have brought us from time to time. This is the home church of Dr. Bauman and it has been a real inspiration to have him and his family with us during their furlough period. We have also been glad for the missionary messages that Brother and Sister Boehr have brought us at various times.

The West Swamp congregation plans to make extensive repairs to the church building during the coming spring and summer season. These repairs are a matter of necessity and plans are being made for carrying out the project. The church sheds are also to be removed, the day of their usefulness having passed.

Our congregation is experiencing an encouraging growth. We are to receive a class of twelve young people into the church at Easter through baptism and confession of faith, as well as several others by letter. Last year thirteen new members were welcomed. After Easter, the Swamp Charge consisting of West Swamp, Bethany, and Flatland, will have received fifty new members. We are glad for the sign of this growth in the past two years.

The Senior C. E. Society of our church and the young people of four neighboring churches are planning to have a community Easter Dawn Service. Correspondent.

Upland, California. The Easter season this year again brought many rich blessings to the First Mennonite Church of Upland. The evening meetings preceding Easter were well attended. Four different men brought the messages. Naturally, all the themes centered around the last days of Christ on earth.

On Good Friday afternoon the six different churches of the city joined in a union service. On Easter morning a large number of our people joined with many hundreds from Ontario and Upland in a Sunrise Service on one of the lower mountain peaks overlooking this lovely valley, now carpeted with richest green and ornamented with millions of fragrant flowers.

The church followed its usual custom of holding Communion Services on Easter morning. The pastor's theme was "Easter Made A Difference." The audience seemed to feel the solemnity of the occasion. The number of the communicants was one of the largest in the history of this church.

For the Easter evening service a mixed chorus of forty-five voices sang 'JESUS LIVES."

The musical department of the church, under the leadership of Marland Detweiler, is becoming very helpful in the various activities of the church. On Sunday evenings after the meetings of the endeavor societies there is generally a twenty to thirty minute song service, followed by a short message by the pastor. This method seems to have largely increased the Sunday evening attendance.

Our next series of topics for mid-week study will be the Ten Commandments. J. C. M.

Butterfield, Minnesota, March 30, 1934. To the editor and readers:— After a long, cold winter, we rejoice over spring coming again. We have had very little snow last winter and need moisture badly. We pray and trust the Lord will send us rain in due time. We are indeed very thankful towards our Lord for the protection during the past time. At this time we shall mention a number of the happenings which occurred during the last three months. In the beginning of the year we started with a special number in singing for Sunday morning services, which adds much to the service and every one who may, has an opportunity to take part and help along.

The fourth of January we enjoyed listening to a song service given here by the men's chorus of Bethel College.

The second week in January, Rec. J. J. Balzer was in charge of services a number of evenings, followed by prayer meetings.

February 25th, a funeral took place in our church, that of Mrs. Chas. Zea, an aged woman. Our church was chosen because of lack of room in their church. Rev. J. Smythe had charge of the services.

We have had quite a number of sick people last winter. My husband took sick in January with the flu and other complications set in; he was confined to his bed about a month. At this writing we are thankful that the Lord healed him again. The Lord has answered prayers. We know that many true Christians have prayed for us. I am very grateful that the Lord has given me health and strength to do my part in all these days, and we thank God for such days, for those that love the Lord all things should be towards the good.

March 15th, we had Dr. H. A. Bauman with us. He spoke very interestingly about conditions in India. It does a person good to hear about such things, then we forget about depression.

We sent a box of new and worn clothes amounting to about $30.00, to Canada for the poor, which seemed to be very much appreciated.

Rev. D. J. Dick from Mountain Lake conducted revival meetings here two weeks in March, which were of great interest. A number of young people gave their hearts to God and promised to serve their Master. May the Lord help them to be steadfast to their end. The last evening the text was chosen, "Prepare to meet thy God," which was very earnestly brought out. We never know when our time here is up, we should be like the five wise virgins, as it reads in Matt. 25, to be ready and waiting to meet our Savior. During these meetings Rev. Dick's daughter, Amanda, gave very interesting talks to the young children, also taught them many songs. May her work be blessed and win souls for our Master.

We are glad to see Rev. J. J. Balzer back from his trip to California. He occupied the pulpit March 25. Though aged, he still works for his Master and will continue to do so.

Last December Mrs. Henry Brubacher fell on ice and hurt her hip. She was laid up ever since. Two weeks ago pneumonia set in, and March 24th she passed to the Great Beyond. She was nearly 82 years old. Her son, Robert, from Maryland, came to her bedside a few days before her death. Funeral was held March 26. Rev. L. H. Linscheid spoke in the English language and Rev. P. J. Friesen in the German. Many friends came from far and near to pay their last farewell.

On Easter morning the Women's Community Chorus expects to sing a number of songs in our church. There are 25 ladies from all churches. On Palm Sunday we sang at a confirmation in the Nov. Luth. Church.

Today we see our Savior at the cruel cross, put there for our sins. We are so glad that He arose, and some day we will reign with Him and see Him face to face, and we can say„ "Oh, what joy that will be when our Savior we will see in that beautiful city of gold."

Mrs. Gust Miller, Corr.

Meadows Church, Meadows, Ill. Several families have been confined to their homes on account of measles.

The young people of this community were given a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Oyer in honor of their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sommer, who were married March 18th. Mrs. Gundy and Mrs. Raszhart also entertained the ladies of the community at the Old Folks Home in honor of Mrs. Willis Sommer.

Mr. Blanchfield is confined to his home after an operation on his eye.

John Bertsche was quite ill, but is much better at this writing.

Rev. Strubhar delivered the sermon on Sunday morning, March 25th.

A VISION AND A TASK

A vision's a grand and a glorious thing,
An enchanted and mystical view,
For it paints a bright scene of the joys it will bring
In a glowing and brilliant hue.

A task is a joy, for it's something to do;
It's a discipline stern, yet refined:
It's the thing that builds character noble and true
Through achievement of muscle and mind.

But a taskless vision is a dream that is vain,
And a visionless task is a grind.
And the hope of the world is the soft sweet refrain
Of a task and a vision combined.

CHOKED CHANNELS

(From Quiet Talks on Power)

By S. D. Gordon

Turn now to the eleventh chapter of John and you will find another pictorial suggestion of a powerless Christian. It is the Bethany chapter, the Lazarus chapter. The scene is just out of Bethany village. There is a man lying dead in the cave yonder. Here stands Jesus. There are Mary, Martha, and the disciples and the villagers, and a crowd from Jerusalem. The Master is speaking. His voice rings out clear and commanding: "Lazarus, come forth!" —speaking to a dead man. And the simple record runs: "He that was dead"—Life comes between those two lines of record — "came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes, and his face was bound about with a napkin." Will you please take a look at Lazarus as he steps from the tomb? Do you think his eyes are dull, or his cheeks hollow and pale? I think not! When Jesus, the Lord, gives life, either physical or spiritual, He gives abundant life. That face may have been a bit spare. There had been no food for at least three days and likely more. But I see a flash of health in his eye and the ruddy hue of good blood in his cheek. But look closer. He is bound hand and foot and face. He can neither walk nor work nor speak.

I have met some Christians who reminded me forcibly of that scene. They are Christians. The Master has spoken life, and they have responded to His word. But they are so tied up with the grave-clothes of the old life that there can be none of the power of free action in life or in service. May I ask you very kindly, but very plainly: Are you like that? Perhaps some one would say, "Just what do you mean?" I mean this: That there may be some personal habit of yours, or perhaps some society custom which you practice, or it may be some business method, or possibly an old friendship which you have carried over into the new life from the old that is seriously injuring and hindering your Christian life. It may be something that goes into your mouth or comes out of it that prevents those lips from speaking for the Master. Perhaps it is some organization you belong to. If there is lack of freedom and power for Christ you may be sure that there is something that is blighting your life and dwarfing your usefulness. It may be possible that practically in your daily life you are exerting no more power for God than a dead man! A Christian, indeed, but without power because of compromise with questionable or outrightly wrong! Is it so with you? I do not say it is, for I do not know. But YOU know. The hungry critical world knows. Subtle, keen Satan knows. The Lord Jesus knows. Do you know if that describes you? You may know with certainty within 4 hours if you wish to and will to know. May we be willing to have the Spirit's searchlight turned in upon us tonight.

The Importance of Public Worship For Christian Living

Hebr. 10:19-25

What is worship? We must pause a few minutes to put into words something which we know has great significance. Some one has defined it as "Man's effort to express through his mind, his body, and by the use of symbols his deepest conceptions of life, his beliefs, and his spiritual emotions." Such worship may be difficult to experience because we have never cultivated the art.

We are glad that the topic speaks of the importance of public worship. Public worship can be appreciated when Christians worship at home. The greatest need in the Christian church is to have believers come into a close, personal fellowship with their Lord and Master, in order that there may be transformed lives and in consequence a nation of Christians.

A host of so-called Christians make excuses for staying away from worship services by explaining that they can read their Bibles and pray at home, but do they? Studying two or three fat Sunday comics is not conducive to Bible Study. Bickering and arguing with the other members of the family can hardly be the equivalent of public worship. Others try to excuse their carelessness and laziness by saying they can hear better sermons over the radio than their pastor can deliver. That may be true, but if they do not attend worship services with other Christian folk like themselves, and thereby miss the hymns and prayers the best radio preachers in the land do not give the equivalent of public worship with a poor preacher bringing the message. We like to worship with other people. If we come in a worshipful mood we are bound to receive the blessing therefrom. Inspiration, visions, courage, new declarations of purpose are some of the fruits of public worship.

Found In The Text:

In our Scripture portion, the author of Hebrews speaks about the faith and confidence which resides in the true child of God. There are three characteristics of the Christian. Each of them begins with "having." The first of them is "having boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus." Since Resurrection Day it is no longer necessary to have priests, high priests or pious men as intermediaries, Jesus has become our all-sufficient Savior. That brings us to our second word "having a high priest over the house of God." The third condition is "having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water."

A life of faith should become a doer of works, and should in turn increase in faith. We have in turn three "lets." "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith." Faith is not enough, it is well to have assurance of faith. "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering" and "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works."

Questions

1. What are the benefits of public worship?
2. Why is it essential that young people acquire the habit of worship?
3. What should be the status of evening worship in our churches?
4. Who should attend the mid-week meetings, and how should they be conducted?
5. Is it possible to make nature studies and radio sermons take the place of the church worship service?
6. What is the relation of private devotionals to the enjoyment of public worship?
7. How could our church worship services be improved?
8. How can we become better worshippers?

Qualities That Make For Success

I Chronicles 22:11-13

Success! Who does not seek to attain it? No one wants to be a failure. All of our lives the ideal is held before us as a thing to be desired. In high school and college, speakers tell us about it, many of the stories we read speak about it. Surely it is a fine goal, provided we have the right conception of success. The world has in many cases possessed an idea of who "gets by," who can get a pull, or who can amass a great fortune early in life, irrespective of methods, he is considered a success. Public sentiment is beginning to be dubious about such success.

From a more Christian viewpoint a man or woman does not need to hold a high position in life, does not need to amass a great fortune, nor appear in the public eye to be truly successful. He who loves the Lord with all his heart and his neighbor as himself will not be far from being a successful man. What more can a man desire than to be at peace with God and himself and to serve his fellow man? Jesus was not a militarist, nor a capitalist, a politician nor a financier. He died as poor as a beggar, He died seemingly an ignominious death and yet today we have forgotten Pilate and Caiphas except to pity them for their weakness and selfishness, but Jesus is considered King of all men more than ever before. All the progress which has been made has come because men have caught the truths of His principles of life and teachings and have felt impelled to live the life of the Spirit because of His life and death.

In our Scripture portion, David had desired to build the Temple, but his life was marred with too much bloodshed, so God asked him to gather material in order that his son Solomon might take up this task. David prays to God interceding for his son that he may have discretion, and understanding, that he may be strong and of good courage, that he may not fear neither be discouraged. That is a short list of characteristics which are very timely for every one to pattern after who calls himself after Christ. The Christian world needs to come to the realization that our faith must transform life, it will bring sucess as nothing else will, if we give the Holy Spirit an opportunity at our lives. Intelligence, wit, political chicanery and wisdom will not give us spiritual power. God alone can supply that, and He is desirous of giving us the best things of life if we will only receive them.

Bishop Watts tells how that when he was a boy he delighted in visiting a very old Christian lady. She was teaching him to read a wall motto which read "God seest me." The lady went on to explain that as he would grow older people would try to impress upon him that it meant that God is watching evil in his life, but she impressed upon him that it meant that God loved him so much that He could not take His eyes off him. When we have such a conception of God and live accordingly our lives will be sure to be crowned with success.

Preparing The Program

It would be well to ask several people of different walks of life to present their ideas of success. You might think of some noted men in the community or in national life and ask individuals to give their secrets which brought them success. It will be essential that you make plain the different ideas of success. So you might ask someone to define success as the world at large accepts and lives that kind of a life, and then define success from the Christian point of view. Ask some member to give four or five qualities of true success. There will immediately come to their minds such qualities like faith, righteousness, love and tolerance, conviction, sincerity, honesty and others. A final capstone to your program may be a discussion on the success which marked the life of Jesus. This will be a service of high idealism. Plan for it and enjoy it to the full.

How Should A Christian Choose His Life-Work?

Ephesians 2:10; Hebrews 10:7

This is the time of the year when this perennial question again looms large, "What shall I do with my life?" or "What shall be my vocation in life?" If you have answered the question of last week's topic rightly in respect to the kind of success you will seek to attain, it will help considerably in deciding the kind of work you will undertake to do. If you have decided that you will count success as the world counts success, then you will no doubt be determined that you will choose your vocation in life so that it will bring you selfish gains such as wealth and ease. On the other hand, if you WILL be Christian, then you will choose that life-work in which you can best express yourself and in which you feel you can best serve God and your fellowmen, and leave the results with God.

In our lesson text we are told we are to be God's workmanship, which really means "God's poem." Now a poem is something beautiful, it has meaning, the poet has been inspired in giving it forth, he has put real planning into its production. We have been created to do good works. We are pleased in this world to do things, not merely to be driftwood. It is the belief of many that God has planned a definite contribution for every individual, and if we fail He must wait for some one else who will be willing to do it.

In Hebrews 10:7, we have a picture of Jesus being willing always to do His Father's will, even unto the cross when He said "It is finished." That is the privilege of every Christian, yes, that word was well considered, it is a privilege to do God's will, for surely God desires our best. Many an invalid in heaven will praise God for his Invalidism for he will see it was a kindness on the part of God that gave him that privilege of just waiting, and thus becoming mellowed and sweetened. There is the difference between Christians and those only Christian in name: when obstacles come your way, how do you meet them? Do they tend to sweeten and mellow your life, or do you permit yourself the luxury of self-pity and bitterness?

There are a number of principles which will help you to decide as to what your lifework is to be. In the first place it will be decided by what you can do best, by your aptitudes, this in turn will also usually be that which you best like to do. It is hell on earth to be engaged in a task which is drudgery, no man will do his best works in such a vocation. Try yourself out at different tasks if you can have the opportunity. In the second place, do what needs to be done most. Very true, almost every vocation in life seems to be crowded. It follows that if your chosen field is fairly well filled and you still believe that is your choice, you will need to set yourself to the task of so preparing yourself that you will be able to do better work and give more Christian service than some others and you will be assured of a position. Those who are destroying themselves by the destructive seed of evil will fall by the wayside. Remember Lincoln's motto: "I must study and prepare myself and then some day my chance will come." A third vital principle is, where can I do the most good? This will, of course, also include a corollary, it must be Christian in the highest and best sense of the word.

Questions

1. What are some determining principles in choosing a life-work?
2. Ask several professional men to give the requirements of their profession.
3. Discuss the high calling and opportunity of a homemaker for tomorrow.
4. Discuss the high calling of an efficient Christian farmer.
5. How may every needful vocation be thoroughly Christian?
6. What are the rewards of a successful Christian vocation?

What Does Salvation Mean?

Ephesians 2:1-10

Pre-Prayer

Thank God—
1. For His great love for humanity.
2. For Christ and His power to save.
3. For the message of hope which we have to proclaim.

Ask God—
1. To fill us full of the Spirit of God and help us spread this glorious Gospel by our lives.
2. To forgive us for our failures and give us grace to overcome sin.
3. To bless your C. E. and the C. E. movement all over the world in the salvation of souls.

A John 3:16 Meeting

This would afford an excellent opportunity for the Intermediate society to take full or part time charge of the evening church service. The topic lends itself as an evangelistic meeting.

First give out the following subjects to four members. Ask them to give all they can on one-fourth of John 3:16 using illustrations and Scriptures wherever possible. No. 1. For God SO loved the world. No. 2. That He GAVE His only begotten Son. No. 3. That WHOSOEVER believeth in Him. No. 4. Should NOT PERISH, but HAVE EVERLASTING LIFE.

The chairman or leader can then call for short talks on some of the following questions which have been prepared beforehand.

1. What is the Scriptural meaning of salvation?
2. Who needs salvation?
3. Why was salvation necessary?
4. What part did God have in bringing salvation to the lost world?
5. What contribution did Jesus make to make possible the way of salvation?
6. Why is Jno. 3:16 the Golden Text of the Bible or, as Luther called it, "The Bible in miniature"?

Scripture Verses

to help you in your discussions

Salvation means protection. Isa. 12:2.

What Do Missions Mean?

Rom. 1:18-23

Pre-Prayer

"Where two or three are gathered together in my name, I will be there to bless," thus saith the Lord. Try talking to God about the problems of your group instead of talking about them so much to each other, then, watch God work.

A Hear The Book Meeting

Write your talks, topics, and questions on paper folded and cut like a book, representing the Bible. Write all the questions and topics in each member's book and then designate the question you want them to answer by underlining it. Thus every member will have a bird's-eye view of all the questions for discussion.

Questions

1. How is loyalty to Christ included in missions? Mark 16:14-16.
2. How do missions include the "spreading of the good news?" Acts 1:8.
3. What is the original missionary motive? Titus 3:1-8.
4. What different activities do missions carry on? Discuss them.
5. How do we share Christ through missions?
6. How do missions mean sacrifice? II Tim. 4: 9-18.
7. Why must missionaries have vision? Acts 16:8-10.
8. How does giving interpret missions? II Cor. 9:6-15.
9. How do missions mean the training of a native church?

NOTE—Select songs appropriate for your topic, and do not neglect prayer for the missionary work of which you have a privilege to serve by living, giving, praying, going, in the homeland and in ALL foreign countries.

How Can We Prepare For A Useful Life?

"I beseech ye therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, wholly acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

Rom. 12:1, 2

Pre-Prayer

Pray God to prepare each life and the life of your Endeavor for His use in His Plan of Salvation.

Piano Prelude—"Take My Life and Let It Be."

Silent Prayer—Close with the singing of "Have Thine Own Way," while heads remain bowed in song-prayer.

The Leader's Talk—Tonight we are to consider how we can prepare for a useful life. In every life there comes a desire to decide definitely upon some life work. Our discussions will continue along the line of preparation in this decision. Our scripture text is found in Rom. 12:1, 2 which we will all read in unison. Let us continue our worship by singing "It Pays to Serve Jesus."

Question

1. Can a girl or boy get too much education? Prov. 2:1-9.
2. How does one's daily life prepare him for his life work? Discuss it pro and con.
3. Does one's religious life lay any foundation for their life work? I Tim. 4:8.
4. What goes to make up a useful life?

   Special music number: "Living for Jesus."
5. How do friendships add to preparation for useful life? 2 Sam. 15:19-22.

   Group Song: "Friendship With Jesus."
6. How does my interest in the welfare of others affect a useful life

Prayer for Missions—

   1. Home mission work.
   2. Foreign missionaries.
   3. Dr. Unruh.
   4. The natives.

7. Explain Rom. 12:2, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

8. What is a Christian's duty toward his body? Dan. 1:15, 16; Prov. 4:14-22.
9. Is following a trade a useful life? Acts 18: 1-4.
10. What preparation for life can we make while in school? After we leave school?
11. Dare we leave the religion of Jesus or Christianity out of preparation for a useful life? Why?

Leader—Our discussions should have led us to some deep thinking as to whether our preparation has been an act of selfish motives or whether it has made us see that God has need of each of us and we are willing to fill the place in which He has great need of us? Shall we bow our heads in silent consecration of our lives anew to Him who bought us with a matchless price and whose we are! Let us pray. The pastor will close in prayer.

Heroes of the Church

The New Testament is the best text-book from which to learn of heroes of the early church.

There were many Christians in later years who were just as truly heroes. No doubt every older Junior has heard of the Reformation. The church had changed greatly since early days. Other things had come in to take the place of simple faith in God and most people did not even know what the Bible taught. But God had not forgotten. He put it into the minds of some to study the Bible and to have it printed and given out that others might read. Martin Luther has been called the Hero of the Reformation. He had been taught that people were saved by doing things, but as he read the Bible he found that the only way to be saved was by believing in Christ. He began preaching in Germany soon after Columbus discovered America. He was persecuted, but he loved God and believed the Bible, so kept on and did a great work. He lived from 1483 to 1546.

Just after Luther started preaching, a boy was born in France who later became a true hero of the church, John Calvin. He did a great work in Europe, especially in Switzerland. It is said of him that he had no fear of men. So great was his love for God. His desire was just to please God.

While Calvin was preaching in Switzerland, John Knox proved just as earnest and brave in his work in Scotland. Rulers opposed him, he was persecuted, yet kept faithful until his death in 1572.

Another hero of whom we have all heard was John Wesley. He lived from 1703 until 1791. He had many brothers and sisters and a mother who carefully trained them all. A brother, Charles, helped greatly in his work. John Wesley became a preacher when a young man. His greatest work was done in England although he also visited America. He at first had no thought of starting a church, he was just preaching because he wanted folks to hear the gospel. Later, however, his followers organized what is known as the Methodist church. By the time of Wesley's death there were over 130,000 members and nineteen foreign missionaries had been sent out.

It is impossible to tell many things concerning these men here. The history of many of them is as interesting as any story book. Why not read more about these and other heroes of the church and see what God can do with brave men who love Him.

Topic—A Hall of Heroes: Heroes of Courage
Heb. 11:32-34

Let us think again of our definition of a hero. "A man honored after death for exceptional service to mankind: a person of distinguished valor or fortitude." One naturally thinks of courage in connection with a hero. We have spoken of Heroes of Missions and of Peace. Today we shall think especially of heroes of Bible times. What brave men they were! How many can you think of? Abraham was a Hero of Courage for he left his home, went to a strange land and did hard things just because God wanted him to. Then we think of Moses who was brave enough to stand against Pharaoh and lead God's people out of Egypt. We must not forget the prophets who obeyed God even though He told them to take unpleasant messages to kings. See how many heroes of courage you can find in your Bible.

Plans for the Meeting

Give an opportunity for the boys and girls to name Bible Heroes of Courage telling why they think those mentioned merit the title. Much of the hour may be profitably spent in this way.

Questions

1. What is a Hero of Courage?
2. How did Jesus prove His courage?
3. Mention some brave things done by men of the Bible.
4. Why do you think these Bible men were so brave?
5. How many boys and girls prove themselves Heroes of Courage?

Topic—A Hall of Heroes: Heroes of the Church

Acts 7:59, 60

How many of you like to study history? We have a church history lesson today and in it we find many true heroes. Think of the apostles. They were willing to suffer anything for Christ. Every age has had its heroes and there are people in every land today who love our Lord just as truly. Some even now are suffering for Him.

Plans for the Meeting

A plan similar to those used in the other hero studies may be followed in this. The study should include church leaders of scripture as well as those of later years.

Questions

1. Name church leaders of the New Testament.
2. Why may they be called heroes?
3. Who do you consider the greatest hero of the church and why?
4. Mention some brave things church leaders have done.
5. Tell of heroes of the Mennonite Church.

Daily Readings

Peter, who accepted Gentiles. Acts 10:34, 35.
Stephen, the bold. Acts 6:9-15.
Barnabas, who helped Paul. Acts 9:27-30.
James, the martyr. Acts 12:1, 2.
Paul, the missionary. Acts 17:22-28.
Humble heroes. Rom. 16:1-5.

Topic—Being like Christ in His Praying

Matt. 14:23. (Consecration Meeting)

There are many lessons to learn from Christ in His praying. He knew that when He prayed He really met God. He talked to God and God to Him. He was sure of an answer. He said, "I know that thou hearest me." He realized God's greatness. Do we? Isn't it wonderful that God, who is so great, loves us enough to be glad to hear us when we pray?

Then Jesus prayed often. Before and after great work was to be done we find Him praying alone, sometimes for hours. He didn't just pray when others would see and hear Him, but loved rather to be alone with God. And He prayed for others more than for Himself. In John 17 we find a prayer that He offered just before He was crucified and even then His thought is of others. Are we like Him in our praying? Do we really trust God? Do we get alone with Him long enough to let Him talk to us? Are we praying for others? We can never expect to be worth-while Christians unless we spend much time in prayer. First we must allow God to cleanse our hearts from sin, then we may be sure He will hear us as we come to Him believing.

Plans for the Meeting

The radio may be used to illustrate this lesson. Unless we are rightly "tuned in" we do not get desired answers from God. Speak of things that cause "interference" and hinder answers to prayer.

Questions

1. Why did Jesus advise folks to be alone with God when praying?
2. What assurance have we that God answers prayer?
3. Why should we pray often?
4. When should we pray?
5. What conditions must be met before we can expect God to answer our prayer?

Daily Readings

Christ's Standard of Greatness

Lesson Text—Matt. 20:17-28

Golden Text—The Son of Man came not to be ministered unto but to minister and to give his life a ransom for many. Matt. 20:28.

Jesus is on His final journey to Jerusalem. He leaves Galilee, crosses the river Jordan and goes into the Perean territory. He and His disciples again cross the river Jordan north of the Dead Sea and are probably in the vicinity of Jericho when the incident of this lesson took place. From what Jesus had said the disciples realized that this visit to Jerusalem was very significant, perhaps even tragic for Jesus unless He would use His miraculous power to save Himself. He had just warned His disciples that He would be delivered into the hands of the Scribes and that they would crucify Him and that He would rise the third day.

Yet in spite of all these teachings and warnings of Jesus the disciples still misunderstood His mission in the world. They were still thinking in terms of a material national kingdom in which there would be positions and offices. So one day James and John and their mother came to Him and asked for the special favor that the two men might sit on His right and His left in the Kingdom. The mother undoubtedly was very much interested in her sons and also very sincere in the request she made, but she was wrong in her judgment. Jesus said to her, Are the boys able to drink the cup that I am to drink? In other words, are they willing to enter into the experiences of suffering, persecution and perhaps death through which this position is given? Jesus emphasized the fact that these positions are not gifts or privileges to be handed out partially to special friends, but these are rewards which come from faithful service and come rather as a by-product of a sacrificial life.

When the ten disciples heard of this special request of the two, they were angry. Jesus called them to Him and explained to them that His kingdom was spiritual, that is, it was a kingdom in which the greatest should be those who are the most willing to be humble servants. Personal service is the keynote of the kingdom. Love is the principle. And love produces not only forgiveness which was emphasized in last Sunday's lesson, but also deeds of kindness and mercy. The way to serve Christ is to serve others even in the simplest and humblest task. The parable of the sheep and the goats would teach us that "as often as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

Jesus Acclaimed As King

Lesson Text—Matt. 21:1-14

Golden Text—Wherefore also God highly exalted him and gave unto him a name which is above every name. Phil. 2:9.

Jesus with His disciples and friends has now come near Bethany. He sends two of His disciples ahead into Jerusalem to find a room where they might eat the Passover together. He then prepares Himself to enter Jerusalem. He tells His disciples to go and get the colt of an ass which was tied in the small village of Bethphage. The disciples bring Him the colt and He rides into Jerusalem while the people shout "Hosanna to the Son of David!" Perhaps a few words concerning the oriental custom in relation to such an entry clarifies some of the points in this lesson. The coming of a king into the capital city was a great event. A herald usually was sent ahead to announce the coming of the king. The king would then ride into the city on his war horse with pomp and glory while the people shouted, "Long live the king!"

The significant fact, however, concerning Jesus' triumphal entry was that He rode a donkey instead of a horse. This was in keeping with the prophecy expressed in Zech. 9:9, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion; shout, O daughter of Jerusalem; behold thy king cometh unto to thee: He is just and having salvation; lowly, and riding upon an ass, and upon a colt the foal of an ass." It signified that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem as a king, but not a king of military power but of peace and with spiritual power. This demonstration convinced the masses for the moment and they adored Him.

After Jesus entered Jerusalem He went immediately to the temple to pray as was His custom. Most of us forget to pray in the hour of our triumph, but pray only when depression comes, but Jesus in the hour of His triumph went into the temple. When He came there He found situations that were inimmical to the true spirit of prayer. The spirit of commercialism had become stronger than the spirit of worship. It was necessary for them to have money changers and to sell animals for sacrifices, but this became the primary interest of many in the temple rather than worship. So Jesus condemned their attitude and said, "My house shall be called a house of prayer but ye make it a den of robbers. This will be an opportune time to discuss in our churches our devices for money raising for missions and other purposes. May our churches always remain places of worship rather than marts of merchandise.

CORRESPONDENCE

East White Oak Mennonite Church. The Rev. McCone of Macomb, Ill., brought us two wonderful, heart stirring messages on March 3. We are looking forward to the first three weeks in June when Evangelist McCone will be with us for an evangelistic campaign. We are praying for a mighty outpouring of the Holy Spirit in those three weeks.

Rev. Raymond Osterhouse, formerly of the Moody Bible Institute, brought us a message in the morning of March 18th.

Mr. John Treece, Jr., one of our own boys, presented the sermon in the evening of March 18th.

The Mauch sisters of the Moody Bible Institute were in our community the week of March 18 to 25. They had charge of the service at our church on Sunday evening, March 25. We always enjoy having these girls with us as they always bring a great blessing to our church.

Our pastor, Rev. R. J. Zehr, held a two weeks evangelistic campaign in the Bloomington Fundamental church which resulted in a number of conversions.

Communion services were held on Easter Sunday with a large crowd present to partake of the Lord's supper, also on that day several united with the church by water baptism.

The young people of the church presented the Easter program on Easter night. The program consisted of vocal numbers by Earl Meyer and Faith and J. D. Schertz, an anthem by the choir, recitations by Roy Barclay, Raymond Mishler, and Claude Miller, a dialog, and an Easter service.

As spring is here and we notice the buds coming out on the trees we are made to think of the Scripture when it says, when we see the leaves coming out we know that summer is nigh. So, likewise, when we see all these things that are taking place in the church and world, we truly can say that his second coming is very near.

Topeka Mennonite Church. Communion services were observed on Palm Sunday, March 25, with a goodly number present.

Easter Sunday morning, April 1, the primary department of the Sunday School rendered several selections in song.

The churches of Topeka joined in union Passion Week services. The services were held at the different churches and messages were delivered by the local pastors. On Easter Sunday evening, April 1, the closing service was held at this church. Rev. Russel Bollinger, principal of the high school, delivered the message, after which an Easter cantata was rendered by a union choir.

Clifford Loutz, who is attending Worster College, Worster, Ohio, spent Easter vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Lantz.

Alden Plank, who is attending Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, spent Easter vacation with his mother, Mrs. Lydia Plank, and sister, Miss Ina Plank.

The Misses Sarah Bohn and Verda Plank have returned to Worster, Ohio, after spending Easter vacation with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bohn and Ephraim Plank.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, April 5, at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Nelson have moved from Goshen into their home in Topeka and are worshipping with us again.

Friday evening, April 6, a group of students from Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, rendered a program at the church.

Sunday morning, April 8, another group from Bluffton College, were present and spoke and rendered special musical numbers.

Sunday evening, April 8, Rev. I. R. Detwiler of Bluffton, Ohio, delivered the message and two students of the College rendered several selections of music.

One of the greatest physicians of modern times, Sir Andrew Clarke, left his testimony to the one true remedy, thus: "There is one remedy for all this spiritual disease, and that remedy is to be found in the Person and Work of Jesus Christ."

JOTTINGS

The Pacific Conference of which Rev. J. M. Regier is chairman and J. M. Franz secretary, is to hold its Annual District Meeting at Aberdeen, Idaho, June 7-10. A good program has been prepared and so it is hoped that all the churches of the district will do their part and be well represented at this conference.

The Upland, California, church, of which Rev. Lester Hostetler is minister, has just completed a six months' study of the Parables at its mid-week services. For the next period the subjects will be from the Old Testament. For the period between Easter and Pentecost the pastor will make the work of the church his theme. A catechetical class has been organized for young people between the ages of twelve and sixteen. The course will continue for about eight weeks.

All who know Dr. S. K. Mosiman and the members of his family will join in expressing sympathy upon the death of their beloved father, Christian Mosiman, who attained the age of ninety-four years. All of his fourteen children, except one who died in childhood, survive him. Mr. Mosiman was born in Butler County, Ohio, and spent all but ten years of his life in that section. His pastor, Rev. J. E. Amstutz, officiated at the service held in the Trenton, Ohio, church.

A series of historical slides, prepared under the direction of the Eastern District Conference, portray the history of the Mennonite church from its beginning and cover things of interest to Mennonites in many countries. These slides have a great educational value for all, especially the young people. The latest showing was in the Second Church, Philadelphia. The pastor, Rev. Grubb, whose library furnished most of the material, accompanied the showing with talks on the meaning of the pictures.

Howard Lichty, who for a time was connected with the Berne Witness of Berne, Indiana, and is now teaching in a school at Sidon, Syria, has on several occasions furnished information concerning a group of Mennonite refugees from Russia and their pitiful state, recently wrote to his old paper giving some further information. He reports that word has come from the German Counsel at Berdit, Syria, concerning the refugees who are still in desperate straits in Turkey. The refugees will be aided back to Syria to the extent that funds will be supplied from the Nansen Relief Funds that have been set up by the League of Nations for refugees. However, according to latest reports Mennonites are being mistreated and the cold and hunger which is suffered by the group of 300 is pitiful.

The sixth anniversary of the C. E. Society of the Eden Church, Schwenksville, Pa., was celebrated on the evening of April 8, the newly organized Junior C. E. Society taking a prominent part. The speaker was the President of the Montgomery County Christian Endeavor Union. Representatives from the Bally, West Swamp, East Swamp, Souderton, and other societies of the Eastern District Conference were present.

One of the sections largely settled by Mennonites in Kansas lies in McPherson County. The country has a particularly rich soil and Mennonites have gained a comfortable living from it. Recently this section has become noted, for another kind of richness has appeared in the development of an extensive oil field. In some sections the wells are being pumped day and night, making a continual noise, only stopping during the period of church services in the churches that lie nearest or in the fields.

The Easter service in the First Mennonite Church, Bluffton, Ohio, included a cantata, "Creation to Resurrection." The program was made up of chorus and choir numbers, instrumental selections, solos, and quartet numbers.

The great source book of Mennonite history is the Martyrs Mirror, first printed in Holland in 1660 under the title "Het Bloedigh Toneel der Doops Gesinde en Wareloose Christen." It was later translated for the Mennonites in Pennsylvania at Ephrata in 1748 and 1749. It has been pointed out that it is the largest book printed in Colonial America and the first American book to be reprinted in Continental Europe. An English translation was made under the direction of the late John Funk of Elkhart, Ind., in the early 70's. The subject of this large book is the Martyrdoms of Christians, especially those of the early Mennonites. One of the many accounts of the sufferings of those who died for the faith is that of Maeyken Wens at Antwerp in 1573. The account says: "Thereupon the next day which was the sixth of October, this pious and God-fearing heroine of Jesus Christ, as also her fellow-believers, who in like manner had been condemned, were with their tongues screwed fast, like innocent sheep brought forward, and after each was tied to the stake in the market place, were robbed of life and body by a dreadful and horrible fire and in a short time were burnt to ashes. — The oldest son of the afore mentioned martyr, called Adrian Wens, about fifteen years old, upon the day upon which his mother was sacrificed, could not stay away from the place of execution, so he took his younger brother called Hans Matthias Wens, about three years old, on his arm and stood on a bench not far from the burning stake to witness his mother's death. But when she was brought to the stake he fainted, fell down, and lay unconscious until his mother and the others were burned. Afterwards, when the people had gone away, he came to himself, and went to the place where his mother was burned, and hunted in the ashes until he found the screw with which his mother's tongue had been screwed fast and he kept it for a memento."

There are many descendants of Maeykin Wens now living in Holland and in one of the families the screw is still preserved as a precious heirloom.

"The Bible has a greater sale than the combined sales of all books written against it."

DEATHS

Daniel Schumacher, son of Rev. Peter and Elizabeth (Suter) Schumacher, was born in the Bluffton-Pandora, Ohio, community, December 4, 1858, and died at his late home in Pandora, Ohio, March 24, 1934, having attained the age of 75 years, 3 months and 20 days. On October 20, 1887, he was united in marriage with Sarah Gilliom, with whom he lived in happy wedlock for more than forty-three years. He is survived by one sister, seven children, and eleven grandchildren. Mrs. Schumacher died three years ago. This loss was a serious blow to Mr. Schumacher. He enjoyed a happy home life, many kind friends and associates, but the going home of mother left him with a certain loneliness which the love and kindness of children and friends could not wholly overcome. After a short illness he fell asleep to awake in fellowship with his Lord and loved ones. Funeral services were conducted at the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, March 26, 1934, by his pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer.

Nicolas Miller, son of Peter and Anna Miller, was born in Lorain, France, March 4, 1854, and passed away March 29, 1934. He came to America in 1878. In the year 1919 he returned to France and lived with his sister, Elizabeth, for two years, then returned to America. In 1923 he came into the Old People's Home at Meadows, Ill. He accepted Christ in his youth and united with the Mennonite Church. He leaves to mourn his departure, two brothers and two sisters, Christian Miller of Hydro, Oklahoma, and Joseph Miller, of Pryor, Oklahoma, Mrs. Elizabeth Miller of France, and Mrs. Anna Turck of Meadows, Ill. Two brothers and one sister preceded him in death.

The funeral services were in charge of Rev. Harry Bertsche, Floagan, Ill., and Rev. Geo. I. Gundy, Meadows, Ill.

ANNOUNCEMENT

WINONA LAKE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY EXTENSION COURSES

The Management of Winona Lake School of Theology announces Extension Courses throughout the Winona Lake Bible Conference, from August 13th to August 25th.

A number of Lecture Courses to be given by speakers of the Bible Conference have been selected for which credit will be given, provided Lectures are regularly attended, and reports are made on the same. These Lectures have been selected with a view to variety of speakers, subjects, and distribution over the period of time.

The Bible Conference is in charge of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, and the Extension work is in charge of Dr. J. A. Huffman.

A Complete Circular describing these Extension Courses will be sent promptly upon request addressed to the Dean, Dr. J. A. Huffman, to 302 Morton Blv'd, Marion, Indiana.

ANNOUNCEMENT

MOODY INSTITUTE GOSPEL TEAMS

The Moody Bible Institute in Chicago has revived the practice of putting out student gospel teams, and during the spring recess five or six such teams will be in operation in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Missouri. This activity is in addition to the regular church, mission, and visitation work done by students in and around Chicago. Each group will consist of a speaker, a vocalist, an instrumentalist, and in some cases vocal groups.

As many as seventy-five churches or pastors were approached, who welcomed the idea as a movement of the Spirit of God that would revive communities visited and promote the salvation of souls. The Institute hopes materially to enlarge the scope of the work during the summer vacation and, if possible, to make it a permanent feature of student training and a means of blessing over even a wider area than the Middle West.

TESTS AND TRIUMPHS

David tells us, "Many are the afflictions of the righteous." From the time he was anointed he began to have afflictions aplenty. Suffering is the portion of all who are called to reign. "In the world ye shall have tribulation," said the Master. George Bowen says, "The followers of the righteous Jesus in drawing up an inventory of what belongs to them may put down 'Many afflictions.' These are a part of their property. The righteous man is infinitely more blessed in his afflictions than the unrighteous man is in his exemption. But all the afflictions of the righteous open out into something glorious. A prisoner is not merely delivered, but he finds an angel awaiting him at the door."

Mennonite Hymn Book

TWO NEW BINDINGS

To meet the popular demand for newer and more durable bindings we are issuing the NEW MENNONITE HYMN BOOK in two beautiful new bindings. Don't miss this opportunity to replace worn out books.

To replace the black cloth binding which has been listed as full cloth binding we are producing a beautiful new MAROON binding of RECORD BUCKRAM which is much more durable than the old black cloth binding.

To meet the demand of an up-to-date gift binding we are producing a FABRIKOID binding in lustrous SPANISH MAROON. This is positively the most beautiful binding we have ever seen on any Hymn book.

NEW BIBLE EVIDENCE
By Sir Charles Marston

The author of this book has financed many of the recent expeditions to Palestine and Syria. In this book he very ably summarizes the evidence discovered in the expeditions which carried on excavations in Bible Lands during the years 1925-1933 in so far as this evidence substantiates the authenticity of the events recorded in the Bible. 250 pages. Illustrated.

CHRIST AND HUMAN SUFFERING
By E. Stanley Jones

This book on a subject of vital interest to every Christian by one of the world's outstanding missionaries was first published in July 1933, and has already gone through more than six printings. You cannot afford to overlook this book in selecting the books you want to read this year.

PRICE, postpaid..$1.00

THE FINALITY OF JESUS CHRIST
By Robert E. Speer

A careful apologetic in which a renowned missionary, statesman, and administrator, who has spent forty years in this field of Christian activity, declares unflinchingly for paramountcy of the Savior of mankind.

"To us, Jesus Christ did not come to found a religion," the Author says, "He came to be Life and Light and Lord of man. The Christianity which truly represents Him, is not a religion; it is not a human search for God, or quest for truth; it is the supernatural self-revelation of God Himself, opening all truth to the faith and obedience of man."

PRICE, postpaid..$3.00

KAPOOT
By Carveth Wells

The author of this book went to Russia in 1932 to see with his own eyes the wonders of the Five-Year Plan. Soon after entering Russia he found that the colorful literature which annually lures thousands of tourists to Russia is terribly misleading. Instead of happy Communists he found on every hand poverty-stricken peasants starving in what was once a garden of plenty. He saw much that he was not supposed to see. He mentions the Mennonites. This book has already gone through five printings. Illustrated.

PRICE, postpaid..$2.50

100,000,000 GUINEA PIGS
By Arthur Kallet and F. J. Schlink

In the 300 pages of this book the authors give a startling revelation of the dangers lurking in everyday foods, drugs, and cosmetics. The "Pure Food" laws do not protect you. What makes this book unique is the fact that it names and describes scores of typical "standard" products that are either dangerous or worse than useless for the purposes advertised.

THE S. R. A.

Some time ago a religious organization in Chicago suggested that we should have in America an S. R. A. movement which, of course, means a Spiritual Recovery Act. We have been watching with a great deal of interest the operations of the N. R. A. to see whether it is going to be able to pull us out of the economic depression. It shall not be my purpose to discuss successes or failures of the N. R. A., but rather to suggest from the standpoint of the church that we need a spiritual recovery before any other kind of movement or organization can permanently solve our problems. We should come back to normality on our knees. A true recovery should mean the abolishing of economic paganism under the cloak of religion and religious respectability. Some one has said that much of our Christianity is as harmless as a poodle dog and as cheap as dandelions in the month of May.

The time has come when the church needs to face the question seriously: Are Jesus' teachings only nice sentiment or can they be really applied to our individual and social problems? We, perhaps, might learn a very valuable lesson from early Christianity. For a man or a woman in early Christianity to become a Christian did not mean the joining of an organization in which the individual would be safe, secure and comfortable. Accepting Jesus Christ to them was a dangerous adventure. It meant risking their lives in a hostile world as they went out not only to believe but to live the teachings of Jesus. Our spiritual recovery can only come as we have that "moral heat" of the early Christians, that earnestness and enthusiasm. The world must see the teachings of Jesus incarnated in the lives of His followers before they will believe that His teachings are true. Is Christianity true? Let us make it come true.

AN URGENT APPEAL BY THE EMERGENCY RELIEF BOARD

We again come with an urgent appeal to the members of our Conference Churches. Most of you, no doubt, know that all our Mennonite organizations and others have for some time made strenuous efforts to get the remainder of the Mennonite refugees out of Harbin, China, into a land where they again could have their own home and earn their daily bread.

These poor people have for nearly six years lived a refugee life full of danger and privation. The continued efforts the last few years to get them out of Harbin were constantly confronted with almost insurmountable obstacles. The combined efforts of the Mennonite Central Committee, Rev. B. H. Unruh, Germany, and other organizations have finally overcome all of these obstacles, with the help of God, so that our brethren and sisters, 33 families with 171 members, could leave China and start their long voyage, leaving Shanghai, China, April 7th, for their new home in Brazil, South America.

For such an immense undertaking large funds are necessary not only for the trip, but also to provide them with the most simple necessary equipment in their new home.

It is most appreciating how non-Mennonite organizations have interested themselves in this great undertaking and have contributed large sums of money for this purpose. These contributions together with the amounts paid by the Mennonites, were not quite sufficient to carry this project through. A private loan had to be consummated to make it possible for this group to sail.

The E. R. B. would kindly but urgently request all the congregations to help along in this cause according to your means and as the Lord may lead you. And let us kindly remember how others in the past have helped our parents and grandparents to find a new home in this land of freedom, and God will richly bless you in time and eternity.

A MENNONITE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A Contribution of Youth Toward the Reconstruction of German Mennoniteism

(The article from the "Mennonitische Blaetter" "A Mennonite Congregational Church" should prove to be of interest to Mennonite young people in America. The so-called Youth Movement is essentially a German movement though later introduced into Italy and other countries. In America there has been no such mass movement worthy of the name. It is interesting to note the reaction of the Mennonite young people inasmuch as they are directing their energies toward revitalizing their church. This, they feel, cannot be done without a union of all the Mennonite forces.

For more than fifty years I have heard Mennonite young people say, "Why cannot the Mennonite church be united?" "Why so many divisions?" They are still asking these questions and they are asking them from all branches of the church. Perhaps there is a suggestion for them in the translated article.—S. K. Mosiman.)

The union of the German Mennonite churches, now in the process of formation, received its impulse through the new form our national life has recently assumed. Therefore, the impression might arise that this union is but a forced and formal measure. The joyous response, however, with which the growing union is meeting everywhere, especially among the young people, proves the opposite.

Among the groups of young people who have participated in the "Round Robins" of Mennonite young people, or who are in sympathy with them, there has been for a long time a longing for fellowship with all Mennonites. Let us present a few fundamental facts which may serve to define, characterize, and interpret the desires of these young people.

It is not an idealistic, peculiarly selfish aspiration that calls us to the front, but obedience to God who has filled us with love for our Mennoniteism, and who has creatively and historically laid upon us the mission of and the responsibility for this Mennoniteism. At the same time we by no means overlook the fact that we, in accordance with God's creative purpose, have been placed into a particular social environment, namely, our German civilization. The home of this people is our home; their blood is our blood; their welfare is our welfare.

From this social environment we cannot withdraw either individually, or as a group, without going against the Will of God. Thus, we are bound to the nation by cords of stern responsibility. As Christians, and as Mennonites, we are fully aware of the fact, however, that one can never render the adequate services to the nation, which, of necessity it demands from every individual member, without assuming responsibility of a higher order;—the immediate obligation to God. God Himself has placed us into this relationship, inasmuch as He has entrusted us with the responsibility of preaching His Gospel to this nation, our nation.

This commission He gave not alone to us Mennonites, but to His whole Church to which we also belong. There is but one gospel, only one commission, namely, that Jesus Christ is Lord. There is but one Church to declare this message: the Church of Christ. This Church must be within the nation. In the national comity, this Church has no special privileges, but only special obligations. She may assume only such special privileges as are indispensable for the fulfillment of her missionary calling.

As members of the Church of Christ, or of the Body of the Lord, the Mennonite churches have no right to demand any special privileges, lest their special commission unconditionally demands it.

The Mennonite Church differs from her German sister churches only in this respect; she has had placed upon her by God a particular responsibility, in that God explicitly laid upon her heart the service of a community, or congregational church. Thereby we do not place ourselves in opposition to other churches, but consciously we place ourselves alongside of them! To declare and confess God's Sovereignty and Redemption in intimate allegiance to God's Will and Word—that is the commission received of old by the disciples and which in the time of the Reformation was placed upon the conscience of our fathers with new obligations.

Today, also, there is a Reformation. Our German nation today also needs this God-given message. Therefore, the Chancellor has granted the Church the freedom and the privilege which she unconditionally needs to carry out her mission.

In order that we may effectively carry out our Mennonite share of responsibility we must lay aside all liberalism and everything that divides, and find ourselves united in confidence and in common obedience to God, and in sincerity, faith, and love for common service and sacrifice; for real, true, upright fellowship.

That this is possible is proved by the "Round-Robin-Fellowship," the members of which are engaged in the most varied callings, are of the most diverse origins, and are members of widely different churches. We young people feel the greatest responsibility and, therefore, we desire just such straightforward, warm hearted fellowship for the whole group of Mennonite churches in the South and North, in the East and West.

Such a fellowship must come into existence and must grow. That will come to pass only when a great common cause takes possession of us, wells up and lives in our consciousness, and which, in our utmost striving for this common cause, will unite us spiritually through our labors. Without this we are hastening toward dissolution.

This task is to be found in the creative and constructive emphasis we place upon our conception of the Church. The content of our conception of the Church of Christ is manifold and varied. It involves the united responsibility of every member of the congregation for the Church and her service. A sharing of all church activity, therefore, of the nurture of the Church and care of souls, straight forward witnessing to, and proclaiming the Gospel of Christ; a sacrificial mind and attitude; peace-mindedness; baptism on confession of faith; a sharing of all service according to ability, etc., which is calling attention to but a few fundamental ideas which need further elucidation. To this naturally should be added that we thoroughly familiarize ourselves relative to the nature and concept of the congregation and our concept of the Church.

Above all, it should be pointed out emphatically that our conception of the Church has nothing whatsoever to do in any way with the spirit of sectarianism. For the Congregation of Christ and the Church of Christ are related to each other as the office of state is related to the political party; every church must have a congregation within her confines, and every congregation has "the church" about it. By "the church," not thought of in the popular sense, we designate the mass of those who are gripped by the Word of the Lord, and who, at least outwardly, accept His Lordship. The congregation in the midst of a church is the host of those who have fully committed themselves to the Word of the Lord; they are those who have been called out from the multitude and who know themselves to have been made free from all conditions and demands of the world and the Devil and who are now, as faithful warriors, fighting in the first line ranks for their Lord who has redeemed them and who is now their only source of power. From out of the disordered ranks of the "churchly" zones the "Faithful" are chosen and nurtured for responsibility in congregation and church. Church and congregation therefore belong together, and mutually condition one another.

With all this the mark of a church is "the running along with," "the hearing," and "the being gripped." The mark of the congregation is "faithfulness," "sacrificial mindedness," "the giving of testimony," "the Deed"; in short, SERVICE.

The Mennonite churches are never "congregations" in this sense, but churches in the popular sense. For the congregation of Christ can never be represented as a terrestial organization separated from "the Church." Each so-called "pure congregation" is in reality a Church. That is by no means to say that "The Congregation of God," which will always be small in numbers, is invisible. Such a congregation is not to be known, indeed, by outward forms, but so much the more by her activity and by the fruit of her service. Her care is not for this or that form, but for "The Life in God." That Christ abide as Lord in her, that His rule be increased, and expanded, for through Him all true life is generated and maintained. These must be the fundamentals. This, then, shall be the mind of the evolving Mennonite Congregational Church.

We young people are conscious of our responsibility to God and nation. It is, therefore, our heartfelt desire that all German Mennonite churches for the sake of our future, pledge themselves wholeheartedly to the ideal of a united common service. Let all of us strive and pray that God may grant the wisdom and power for the building of the new structure and for the accomplishment of our task.

"MINISTERS AT FLATLAND"

There are three small and rather interesting meeting houses in the Eastern District Conference. They date back about as far as any of the older meeting places of the Conference and still have, small though flourishing, congregations. They stand as testimonies to the tenuous strength that has been the root of Mennoniteism for more than four centuries.

All three of these meeting places were the scene of interesting gatherings during the past year. In order they were, Springfield, Germantown, and Flatland. The first ministerial meeting of the present Conference year was held at Springfield. It was an outing. The second was held at Germantown last October. This was the historic occasion of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary. The last one was held at Flatland on March 23. This program was devoted to spiritual meditations.

Since the so-called "Holy Week" was just in the offing, the executive committee planned to have two papers that centered around the Easter message. They had chosen two of their number to present these papers, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening. The first paper was prepared on the subject of "The Vicarious Suffering of Christ." It was presented by Rev. Arthur S. Rosenberger, pastor of the West Swamp Charge. The evening paper was on the theme, "The Place of Vicarious Suffering in the Life of the Minister." Rev. Allen M. Fretz, aged minister and Dean of the Conference preachers, was chosen to prepare it. It was instantly recognized as the most outstanding presentation in the last decade.

There was considerable comment, all appreciative, following the presentation of each. All felt the presence of the Spirit of God and thought it a fitting fulfillment of the motion passed at the Young Peoples' Conference at Bluffton last August. The Spirit in reviving power had visited us before Easter, 1934.

The ministers expressed their appreciation of the work of these two brethren by voting to have them mimeographed and circulated among the congregations. Their messages were so edifying and so well prepared that they felt they should be given to the whole church.

The devotional services were conducted by Mr. Morris DeHaven and Rev. Elwood Shelly. Mr. DeHaven is one of the assistant deacons of the Eden congregation, Schwenksville. Rev. Shelly is pastor of the Sancon charge.

The ladies of the Flatland congregation served a bounteous supper.

As we close another year of Conference activity in ministerial meetings we can again raise an Ebenezer, "Thus far the Lord has led us on!"

Freeman H. Swartz, Secretary.

FROM OUR PORTLAND MISSION

Dear Friends:—

The program of activities at this place is quite interesting in its variations. The Sunday services consist of Sunday School, preaching services, and Christian Endeavor work. The Sunday School is attended largely by children. There are enough children to keep the adult membership of the little congregation, who can be regular in attendance, at work to teach the various classes of primary, junior and intermediate age. There is an adult class which combines all other ages not in above named classification. It is the writer's opportunity to lead this class in Bible study. Since all classes, with exception of the two youngest children, meet in the auditorium of the church, the confusion of voices renders it difficult for the older members of this class to express themselves and hear each other's statements. At times the clamor of young life threatens to render our efforts as teachers to create a worshipful atmosphere futile. Because of this condition we find it hard to interest older people to attend our Bible class with any degree of regularity that will enable us to convey to each other the blessing we derive from a deeper study of the profound revelations of the Word. Yet the Lord is wonderfully gracious in giving us these opportunities to carry His message to young and old in spite of great difficulties.

Our preaching service frequently does not include more than the Sunday School workers and their children. Here, after the restless crowd has departed, we feel and share the fellowship of workers together with Christ. As often as possible a group of nurses and student nurses, who live in the city temporarily, coming from other churches of our conference, join us with others who live or visit here. It is always an encouragement when more unite with us in praise and worship of the Lord Jesus Christ.

Our Christian Endeavor is conducted in one society, including all ages. This works to the satisfaction of all concerned and leads us into the evening hour of worship, thus granting us splendid fellowship in Christ, our Savior. Often our group is small, but the Lord has never on that account refrained from giving us the consciousness of His presence. This always satisfies.

Our week-day activities of weekly and monthly meeting with the children, prayer meetings, women's meetings, boys' and girls' meetings; these all center around the presentation and study of the Word, the singing of His praise, and prayer. The women's missionary society includes many a mother from a churchless home or where the Lord is not known as Savior from sin.

These activities afford us opportunities to sow the Word in the hearts of young and old. The Lord has promised, "My word shall not return unto me void, but shall accomplish that which I please, and prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it." We pray and wait for the results the Lord has promised.

Our home visitation often presents us with the opportunity of personal work. Not often do we see immediate results or fruit of our labors. But this rests with the Lord.

Recently we enjoyed the visit of Rev. W. W. Miller, Pulaskie, Iowa, and Rev. W. H. Pike, Los Angeles, California. Their messages and encouragement meant much to us. Some of our friends from Aberdeen, working in the city, arranged a friendship meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Toews, also of Aberdeen formerly, which was enjoyed by all participants and which served the purpose of reminding these that they have friends in the city who long for their fellowship in worship and service of the Lord.

Opportunity was granted us on February 4, when Brother and Sister Bernhard Bartel invited us to bring a message from the Word and in song by Sister Niswander at their golden wedding anniversary. This gave us a splendid introduction to the circle of their children and friends. They have lived here many years before our Conference had a place of worship here. We were happy to speak to them concerning the things the Lord has done and is promising to do for them that wait upon Him.

We are here to witness for Jesus and gather believers into a congregation to worship and service of our Savior's praise. Any encouragement to accomplish these purposes for which we were called here we welcome with gratitude. Our first aim, naturally, is to invite our own Mennonite people that there may be a church-home of our denomination and a new unit formed to work together with Him in behalf of the important task the Lord has entrusted our Conference with on the home and foreign field. Pray for us, brethren, and give us your help!

Cordially,

Albert Claassen.

A CORRECTION

The telegram to the Board was sent on February 19th, which is the date of Missionary Petter's birthday anniversary, and not the following day, when the Board received the message.

Mrs. R. Petter.

With the best of intentions, errors creep continually into print. . . . . I supposed the date of the telegram, or night letter, would be given, and had no thought that an error would arise.

It does not matter so much, but for future reference it is best to correct the date. I am also correcting an error which Bethel College made, in giving Mr. Petter the middle initial "A" instead of "C."

I do not know where they got that, for his middle initial, which he seldom uses, has always been given as "C" and never "A." . . . Bethel College need but refer to Who's Who in America where it is properly given.

We are having wintry weather, and are glad, else vegetation would be too precious. It is snowing today and is chilly, though not very cold.

We had a funeral yesterday. The oldest son of Robert Yellowfox finally succumbed. He had T. B. He has spent much of his time at the hospital, coming and going. He was in quite good condition, but took cold and hemorrhages set in.

Yellowfox's peyote friends were very attentive, though Frank finally refused the drug. I was cordially received, in spite of the atmosphere, so painful to us. Frank was always eager for the ministry of the Word. . . He told me his favorite gospel song was "I am a pilgrim, do not detain me, I am going," etc.

The night of his death, his brother Charles sang "Nearer, my God, to Thee" and "Happy day, when Jesus washed my sins away," for his brother, and Yellowfox prayed . . . . I was called early in the morning, after he had passed, and the funeral was arranged for yesterday afternoon. . . . We pray that this new and sad experience will be a deep blessing to Yellowfox. I know you will unite with us. . . . . I was impressed how more and more Christian thought, Christian practices, Christian burials, are taking hold of our Indians. Frank had the very best care by many loving hands. The home was kept in order, there was cleanliness and every possible attention. . . . I cannot help but contrast Yellowfox's home and premises, with its improvements, with that of Willie Meeks, when I visited in Oklahoma. There they seemed still to be living on the floor. Here are tables, oilcloth, chairs, bedsteads, order, cleanliness, and a farm home of several rooms, with outbuildings of stables, barns, root cellar, chicken house, good fences, etc., all indicative of progress of a desirable kind.

Mr. Petter has been hindered by preparations for Lord's Supper, and funeral, also by practice of a cantata, so that he may not finish Revelation this week, but soon after.

With kindest greetings,

Mrs. R. Petter.

P. S.—I notice in yesterday's Spokane daily, that the missionaries of the Southwest are protesting against Collier's "new deal" for the Indians. They say, "The bill glorifies the segregation of the Indians and makes it permanent," etc.

We see in this bill a definite attempt to revive and make permanent tribalism with all its connotations. An Indian speaking of the evils of tribalism puts it in this way: "Tribalism stands for exemptions and exemptions make for race prejudice."

This bill casts a halo of glory around Indian traditions. We, as missionaries, favor very much the preservation of all that is best in the Indian's past, such as arts, skill, culture, but with respect to these traditions, J. C. Morgan, Navajo Indian and member of the Navajo Tribal Council, says, "I would not have these things taught to my children. The most degrading things are taught in these Indian traditions."

We are glad to see this in print. It voices our sentiments fully, also that of our Christian Indians. Our Chief of Police has said the same and more, and so has Yellowfox, Ernest, Frank, and others. Collier's does not know the real Indian. —Mrs. P.

ADDRESS

Given by Mrs. Roy Yoder, Peoria, Ill., at Sunday School Workers' Conference at East White Oak Church, near Carlock, Ill., on January 16, 1934

The main thoughts for my remarks tonight are taken from "My Message to Sunday School Workers" by Marion Lawrence.

Since the Sunday School is an activity of the church which imports religious education to all ages, we need to know and teach as never before the VALUE of this WORSHIP HOUR.

Just what do you consider as worship? If you have come tardy and have missed the Praise and Song Service and perhaps the reading of God's Holy Word, have you missed the foundation of worship today?

Yes, it seems that the whole program should be one of Praise and Worship. The opening exercises, response, and prayer, the singing of hymns on praises to God, the missionary offering, the Sunday School offering (an offering to God in worship and praise), then the class discussion or lesson which will have a more gripping appeal if all have taken part in the worship service prior to the class activities.

The announcements are part of the worship service in that they should draw prayerful attention for coming events or praises to God, for answered prayer in past activities. Then the closing devotions should deeply impress and clinch the truths of the morning in the heart and mind of every worker and child, and prepare them for the worship of the rest of this Holy Day of Rest and Worship.

Just recently, I have known of and read "My Message to Sunday School Workers," by Marion Lawrence, and it has helped me and strengthened me that I urge every Christian worker to consider our discussion together this evening and perhaps in the near future be interested enough to read further in some good worker's text book.

First of all let us consider the qualifications to be found in any Christian worker.

Be a Man or a Woman. Real men and real women, a hero for every boy and a heroine for every girl; someone whom they will look up to and desire to follow; one who will be missed when they pass away, but who will not leave a vacant place in the Lord's work behind him. "Men are seeking better methods, but GOD is seeking better MEN and WOMEN."

2. Be a Leader with a Vision. A leader is the foremost among companions. This means that the leader goes before those he leads, but is not separated from them. He knows the road and knows where he is going, and he knows when he gets to his destination. Organization is very important to a leader. He is interested in getting others to carry out the plans while he is making still further plans, presenting the method of work by example and not authority. Every leader has two classes; one in his head or heart, and one in the building. The one in his head is blue-print, his ideal, his aim. This ideal should always be higher than and beyond the reality. God gave to Abraham a new vision. In Gen. 15:5, the incident is recorded: "God, through His angel, called Abraham out from under his tent on a bright, starry night, and said, 'Look now toward heaven.'" What was God doing? He was changing Abraham's vision from a tent vision to a sky vision. Have we a vision from God which has called us to be Christian workers?

3. Be Loyal. Loyalty to your heavenly vision, to the church and to the pastor. Some folks are always prominent at conventions, rallies, or conferences, but do not remain for the church services at their own churches.

Loyal to the Master's last command, which will give the missionary spirit to all our work. "Go ye into all the world," "teach all nations."

4. Have Faith and Ambition. God has a program for His work, and we should aim to discover what it is, and do our part to carry it out. Never before has the child occupied such a place in this great program for the work of God, as at the present day. The little child that Jesus put in the midst of His disciples, is still in the midst of His plan. The church is the "Father of the Sunday School." We should have enough faith in ourselves to believe that God has for every Christian man and woman a place in serving Him and claiming Phil. 4:13—we are sure of success if we follow God's leadership. Do you believe that? How much faith do we lack? God cannot use a lazy mind or body. Our successes will never surpass our aims and ambitions. The ambition of every superintendent and teacher and worker is to lead the sheep closer to the Master. No leader can lead anyone else any closer than he himself has gone, because you remember in No. 2 we said that a leader must go ahead, leading the way for the others. Are you halting the progress of others because you are walking and following Jesus "afar off"? May God show us the distance between us and the Savior.

5. Be Awake and Happy. Enthusiasm is being awake. It is the tingling of every fiber of one's being to do that which one's heart desires. Wear a welcome in your heart and show it in your face, and in your handshake. Slogan:

"Our Sunday School must glow and grow and go; and I will help to make it so." This is God's promise to you—"The joy of the Lord is your strength."

6. Be Patient and Humble. When you lose your patience, if you are fat, you lose your breath; if you are a speaker, you lose your audience; if you are in a debate, you lose your point; if you are a mother, father, minister, superintendent, or teacher, you lose more than you can ever make up for. Losing our patience as leaders lessens respect, authority, power, and confidence in those whom we are trying to lead to the ever-patient and long-suffering Savior, Jesus Christ. Patience and humility go together. Kingliness and Lowliness are inseparable. How often are we as mothers and teachers guilty of teaching our children selfishness in simple words? Here is a poem which a little girl gave at an entertainment:

"I gave a little party this afternoon at three,
'Twas very small—three guests in all—
Just I, Myself, and Me.
Myself ate up the sandwiches,
While I drank up the tea,
And it was I who ate the pie
And passed the cake to Me."

This brought much applause, but should have brought shame on the part of the one who wrote it and the one who taught it. How often are we responsible for this tiny mustard seed which we plant in these innocent lives, then in years to come, visit the asylums and penitentiaries and reform schools with remorse!

To Know How. The finest of fine arts is to know how; to know how by constant study and preparation. Margaret Slattery, in one of her books entitled, "What it means to know how," tells this story. A young girl at the seashore who with her companions was bathing in the surf, while Miss Slattery herself was sitting near by upon a great white rock, writing some of her choicest chapters, when at the cry for help, it was observed that this young girl had been drawn under by the undertow and the young lady who was with her could not rescue her. All the others in the party were alarmed. One strong young lady who knew the way of the sea, sought to rescue her, which she did, but life was apparently gone. NOT A SOUL IN THE COMPANY KNEW WHAT TO DO. Someone had been thoughtful enough to send word to a nearby village for a doctor. Presently an automobile came rushing down the hill and out stepped a nurse, in uniform. They were all greatly relieved, for they recognized that she would surely know what to do, and she did. After a while another car sped down the hill, bringing the doctor who could not come at the first call, but who had confidence in the nurse. By this time the girl showed signs of life, but was as yet very feeble. The doctor, feeling the pulse and proper examination, took the nurse by the hand and said, "You are to be congratulated, you have saved a life because you knew how." Miss Slattery applies this to the Sunday School teacher and workers in the church. This nurse had no time to get out her Nurses' Training books at this late hour when a life was at stake, to see what she should do first, and then step by step. Neither has a teacher or Christian worker time to read a library when problems and vital questions concerning salvation and LIFE arise. There is much depth to that Scripture, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

Inductive teaching arouses and quickens the mind. Lecturing is uninteresting and aids a sleepy mind. The method of asking questions, properly stated, and of using illustrations of which your listeners are all familiar, such as Jesus used. A house built upon rock and a house built upon sand; the sowing of the wheat being sown in stony soil, with thorns and weeds, and that sown in good, rich soil; telling His disciples that He would make them fishers of men; they knew something of everything that He used in His illustrations. Thus a Christian worker needs to know something of the home life of those with whom he works, their environment and their likes and dislikes. A worker's life should be a life with a PLUS. He should be willing to study up on different subjects of which those in his direction are interested and use these as often as possible in his illustrations as parables.

The story is told of a teacher who had a pupil in his class who was absent quite frequently, and upon visiting the home, found that this boy stayed home to care for his pigeons. The teacher took the time to get a number of books from the library, on pigeons. The boy was absent several Sundays after the teacher's repeated visits. One day when the teacher called, after he had read the books, he went out to the pens with the boy and talked very intelligently with him about this one thing in life which filled such a great place just at present. The boy knew that the teacher was not just guessing at the information which he possessed because he, too, had gotten these same books from the library and studied them. This pupil got a new hold and confidence in his teacher and had a perfect attendance record at Sunday School and church for many years, and today is a great personal worker with a boys' class in a Presbyterian church, and it is said that rarely a boy leaves his class without being saved and starting out in some sort of Christian work.

Christian workers, what is your total impression on your class? The worker should be what he seeks to have his scholars become.

"You are writing a gospel, a chapter a day,
By deeds that you do and words that you say,
Men read what you write, whether faithless or true,
Say, what is the Gospel according to you?"

Someone has said, "The best binding for the Bible is shoe leather."

The teacher's life is the LIFE of his teaching."

A Christian worker should be one with a SHEPHERD HEART. He should know his pupils by name, by temperament, and by weak and strong points, their failures and their abilities.

A teacher with a shepherd heart LEADS his pupils — leads them into right paths of study, leads them into right habits of studying, leads them to right Bible reading and teaches them to pray, leads them into right habits of giving.

A teacher with a shepherd heart FEEDS his pupils — feeds them right food, feeds them the proper quantity of food, feeds them at the right time and in the right way.

A teacher should SEEK his pupils — seek them when absent, seek to be in fellowship with them otherwise than in the class.

A teacher with a shepherd heart gives his life for his pupils — lives for them, carries them in his heart continually, thinks about them, plans for them, prays for them.

And he will have abundant reasons for rejoicing, not only in this world but in the world to come.

Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes.
—Ruskin.

CAN THERE BE REAL PEACE WITHOUT RIGHTEOUSNESS?

Talk Given At Berne Intermediate C. E.

No; the Gospel is the foundation of World Peace. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the gospel of Jesus, who is the Prince of Peace, who, when He came to earth proclaimed peace. Angels heralded His coming and sang, "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

The gospel therefore proclaims a righteous peace, therefore there can be no peace without righteousness.

The human heart is carnal, sinful, and by nature lacks a peaceful spirit. Therefore peace will come only as men disarm their hearts. Many organizations today strive for peace and we give them due recognition to institutions for the promotion of peace, but there is still a basic work for the church. The World Court, the League of Nations, the Kellogg Pact, all will be helpless if we cannot cultivate in the individual a passion for peace. You will note that Paul began with individuals or with small groups of people. He talked to a frightened jailer and to a band of women down by the river bank. Paul knew that when Christ is in the heart then peace most eventually comes. World Peace must be in the hearts of men as well as in the codes of men. The cause of war, jealous greed, fear, go deeper than courts and leagues can reach of themselves.

Christ and His apostles did not speak directly on many of the world's social problems. However, war was seen to be inconsistent with the spirit of Christ strange to say, that it was not until the last generation of the Christian era that it deeply dawned upon mankind that war is contrary to the spirit of Christ. In proclaiming Christ we preach peace. Universal peace will come when Christ returns to earth and then the earth shall be filled with righteausness of God as the waters cover the sea.

TUNE IN ON STATION GOD; NO STATIC

Mae Latslaw

Is your Spiritual Radio giving satisfaction? Possibly not, because you do not have the proper spiritual meter length, and the receiver may not be in the right place.

Did you ever try Station GOD? It is clearer than the strongest radio station and that is saying a lot. There is absolutely no static. If your heart is a five-tube affair — prayer, faith belief, love and helpfulness — you cannot help but get perfect results.

The radio refered to can be heard to best advantage in a church. The greatest results are secured on Sunday. The most favorable time is from 10:30 until noon, and from 7:00 to 8:00 in the evening. The loud speaker in the pulpit transmits the message with convincing clearness, telling the illuminating Christian truth—do unto others as you would have them do unto you.

If there is any static, it is in you and not in the radio. Possibly you must turn the knobs of your heart so that the message can be heard with more distinctness. You may not have been receptive for a long time. A hard heart often causes defective hearing.

On Sunday, just for an experiment, try this Spiritual Radio. If the batteries of your heart do not work and your ears hum with the static of indifference, switch on your better judgment use common sense coils, and listen in on Station GOD. The loud speaker will tell what is best for you. The head may persuade the heart. The sermon will be followed by the sweetest music. That is for the ear, the heart and the head—for the whole of you.

Try hard as you may, you cannot get the same results anywhere else no matter where you are or how hard you try.

We all agree that radio is wonderful. We cannot understand it, but know that some Great Force makes it possible. The same Force will do just as much for you if given the opportunity. Give it a chance on Sunday, try Spiritual Radio as broadcast from Station GOD. Listen in. You have been static long enough. Be like the neighbor who stands highest in your regard. He is a church member.

AS OUR AFRICAN BROTHERS SEE US

Here are some extracts from compositions written by children in the Belgion Congo on the subject of white people:

White people come from Europe. They have pale skin, long noses and soft hair like wool. They have no tribal marks on their faces, their skin is as smooth as a fish.

White men wear shirts and trousers and coats, but the women wear garments made in one piece from top to the bottom, which swing as they walk. They have special coats to keep the rain off. They make little houses with the skins of animals, and into these they put their feet.

They not only wear garments, but they even use cloth to hang in their windows and cover their tables and beds.

White people eat fish and meat that come out of tins, and this food can be kept a long time, even two years without going bad. They drink very clean water.

They are people who sit at a table to eat food. They do not like to sit on the ground, because of the dust and germs.

They do not eat with their fingers, but with their forks and spoons, and they are constantly saying to their boy, "Never bring us dirty plates and spoons."

They build houses made of bricks and wood and cement, that last for years. They make huge canoes of steel which are like houses inside, which move by themselves on the river. They also make air-streamers that fly like birds.

They send messages by letters, and they know how to speak to a man who is a great distance away by means of a wire.

White people are very industrious; they do not stop till their work is finished. They teach us many things, and they love our children.

If it were not for the missionaries, we should still be living in darkness as our ancestors did. They have come, not to look for money, but to tell us of God, our Father in Heaven, and of His Son Jesus Christ.

Let us give thanks for the white people who have left their own country to come and die for our country.

—From Conquest by Healing.

CORRESPONDENCE

North Danvers Mennonite Church, 3½ miles northeast of Danvers, Illinois. The attendance at our church since New Year has been very encouraging. Last Sunday, April 8, the house was filled.

The Men's Bible Class of the church gave a special program Sunday evening, March 18th. The program consisted of special vocal and instrumental music and several addresses, given by men of the class. The main address, on Abraham Lincoln, was given by Atty. Walter A. Yoder, who is a member of the church. The men's class has about fifty members. The pastor is the teacher.

The Young Women's Bible Class met at the home of the pastor and helped Mrs. Weaver make some comforts.

The Basketball Team of the church won first place in the Mennonite Basketball Tournament, representing eight churches of the Central Conference.

Dr. E. J. Hartzler gave a series of addresses at our church on "Voices from the Holy Land." The meetings were very well attended.

On March 31, Dr. Hartzler gave an illsutrated lecture on The Passion Play at Oberammergau at the Comumnity Hall in Danvers. The hall was practically filled, which was the largest crowd in the Community Hall since it was built.

On Easter Sunday evening, April 1, the church rendered the cantata, "The Thorn Crowned King," under the able direction of Mrs. Letta McCowen.

One of the encouraging features in relation to our church in the future is the fact that our roads are being graveled to the church, which will have a great effect upon regular attendance at the services. Our church is one of the few in our section of the country that is still an open rural church.

The Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, has recently had a busy Pre-Easter and Easter season. Dr. E. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, Newton, Kansas, gave a series of special pre-Easter services. These services were very much enjoyed by large and appreciative congregations. On the following Sunday, Prof. I. R. Detweiler of Bluffton College preached morning and night.

Union Passion Week services were held in Pandora, in which all the churches of the town joined. The ministers took turns in preaching on some phase of the passion of our Lord. The services were held in each one of the churches in turn, and special music was furnished night after night by the several churches. On Good Friday afternoon a largely attended service was held which brought this period of united effort to a close.

On the morning of Palm Sunday a baptismal and admission-to-church membership service was held at the Grace Church. Several were also received into the membership of the church on later Sundays, bringing the present membership of the church to 371. On Easter Sunday morning the communion of the Lord's Supper was held at which time a large number showed their faith in their Lord by participating in the service. On Easter Sunday evening the Grace Church choir sang Maunder's "From Olivet to Calvary." This was heard by a large audience.

These seasons of special effort and activity are very beneficial to a church. They bring new interest and devotion to our Christ and the church, enlist new recruits to the cause, stimulate increased church attendance, and impart new life and more loyal service to the church and all its affiliated organizations. The months between Christmas and Easter are golden opportunities to our churches. We hope we are all improving these opportunities to the permanent good of the cause.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill., April 9, 1934. The following have suffered with the mumps, but are able to be out again: Mrs. Jos. Eichelberger, Kathryn, David, Glen, Morris, and Harold Kaufman, and Marvin Berkey.

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Anna Brenneman, Thursday, April 5. The ladies knotted a comforter.

Donald Keyes has been ill with measles.

Miss Minnie Brenneman of Normal is making an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. Geo. Jeskel.

Roy Donelson, who fractured his left arm while jumping, is again able to have it out of the sling.

Communion services were enjoyed Easter morning. William Donelson was baptized preceding the services.

A short Easter program was given Easter morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Julius Helwig have moved to the Ed. Brenneman farm.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Nafziger of Bloomington, worshipped with us Sunday morning, March 25.

Mrs. June Harbor and daughter, Mary Louise, of Normal, spent Easter vacation at the Ed. Brenneman home.

Miss Bernice Nafziger, who was suffering from a severe case of tonsilitis, is able to attend school again.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller entertained the following Sunday, April 8: Mr. and Mrs. Wm.

Litwiller and sons, Duane and Eugene, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Litwiller, all of Milledgeville, Ill.; Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Litwiller, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Litwiller, of Peoria; Howard Litwiller of Normal, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. John Nafziger and family, Mrs. Ed. Unzicker and family, all of Hopedale, and Miss Emma Litwiller of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Berne News. We have been enjoying some very blessed meetings, especially during the Easter season. A Union Sunrise Prayer Meeting was held Easter morning. Our evening meeting was a joint Intermediate-Senior affair. Much excellent Easter music was featured on this program, including solo, duet, trio, quartet, and chorus numbers. Our pastor, Rev. C. H. Suckau, Harry Sprunger, and Wilson Gilliom, gave helpful talks.

Each month this year we have had one meeting open for testimonies and discussions of the topic. These meetings have proved a great blessing and will probably be continued throughout the year.

It is our prayer, as a society, that we may not waver in this great work for Christ and the church, that we will remain steadfast until Jesus comes.

Naomi Neuenschwander, Reporter.

Comins Church. During the months of February and March the various Sunday School classes took charge of the Sunday morning worship services. They were very carefully planned by these classes, giving as many of the Sunday School students a chance to serve as possible. There has been very good attendance during these difficult months, showing interest in the new work.

The Easter service was a culmination of the work of the Sunday School. Eleven of the Resurrection stories were given by representative classes, interspersed with special numbers of music.

Several nice gifts have been presented to the church this Easter season. A set of three background pictures representing the Easter message was presented by "The Sunshine Scatterers" class, namely "The Three Marys at the Tomb," "The Walk to Emmaus," and "The Ascension." Also a new altar rail curtain and stain and varnish for the rostrum were presented by several individuals. These gifts are much appreciated.

The Sunday morning worship services for the month of April have been planned by a committee of three and the pastor.

The young married people's Sunday School class organized and plans to hold monthly meetings of a devotional and social nature.

A significant and inspirational service was held by the four County Council of Religious Education the evening of March 28, at the Luzerne Congregational Church. The service was planned to represent the idea of the Larger Upper Room communion service. It was rich in spiritual suggestion because of the careful plan embodying the three great symbols: "The Old Jewish Passover," "The Lord's Last Supper," and "The Communion Service Which He Instituted for the Church." The thirty-two present from several denominations left the service deeply stirred. Many regarded it the high point of the year spiritually for the work of the Four County Council.

THE MEASURE OF A MAN

Wallace Dunbar Vincent

How high are you? Where is your thinking done?
Close to the earth, or upward near the sun?
Do petty things absorb your every thought—
The game, the latest crime, what's sold and bought?
Do noble deeds and lives inspire your zeal?
Or are you more concerned about a meal?
How high, or low, is your most cherished plan?
The answer marks your stature as a man.

How broad are you? Where does your good will end?
Does race or creed determine who's your friend?
To your snap judgment do you cling with pride,
Or do you listen to the other side?
Quick to condemn are you, prompt with the rod,
Or do you leave the chastening to God?
How loyal is your heart to all mankind?
The answer marks the broadness of your mind.

How deep are you? Where does your honor start?
Is it embedded in your inmost heart?
Do you count virtue a convenient thing
To practice, or, sore tried, aside to fling?
Have you the courage by your code to bide,
And fight for right, though on the losing side?
'Tis thus God reckons, through life's little span
The veritable measure of a man!

AT SET OF SUN

If you sit down at set of sun
And count the acts that you have done,
And counting, find
One self-denying deed, one word
That eased the heart of him who heard
One glance most kind,
That fell like sunshine where it went,
Then you may count that day well spent.

But if through all the livelong day
You've cheered no heart, by yea or nay,
If, through it all
You've nothing done that you can trace
That brought the sunshine to one face,
No act most small
That helped some soul and nothing cost,
Then count that day as worse than lost.

—George Eliot.

BENEFITS DERIVED FROM JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

Anyone who has noticed a gardener working with his flowers will understand the place of growth in human life. The gardener does not create, enlarge, nor beautify the plant; neither is he its artist or builder. Though the mysterious power of development lies within the plant itself, it needs care from without. So it is with a child: as his life unfolds, like a flower, he is to be constantly nourished with the Word of God (Deut. 6:6, 7). The Junior Christian Endeavor is an excellent influence in promoting the spiritual development of the child, and is especially beneficial to him who comes from a home where Christian training is not upheld, for in this society:

The way is prepared for Christian life and service. It is written: "Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it." Prov. 22:6. One of the greatest benefits is the growth of the seed which is sown during Junior days. Precious truths about the Savior are now learned that later in childhood often leads him to decide for Christ; and a decision for Christ in childhood may inspire him, during his youth, to make decisions for Christian service, for which he still has time and opportunity to make adequate preparation.

A spiritual environment is furnished. Reverence for God and respect for His house were instilled into the hearts of us Juniors. Often, before singing our opening hymn, we would quietly bow our heads in prayer and repeat: "The Lord is in His Holy Temple; let all the earth keep silence before Him."

Bible study and Scripture memorizing are emphasized. This is the "golden memory period" of one's life. Spiritual truths and Bible passages stored in the mind of a Junior are recalled when needed later in life. Our Bible verse spelldowns or contests were incentives to learn many new passages.

Expression is profitable to the Junior. "One learns by doing." His taking active part in the society by leading the meeting, rendering a special musical number, offering prayer, giving talks or answering questions, etc., gives him courage to stand alone before an audience, and offers him an opportunity not only to give out what he has received, but also to make use of his talents.

Committee service is beneficial, too. Those who serve as officers or committee members learn how to introduce and to carry out plans, and thus become capable of assuming responsibility. Here the Junior learns to cooperate with others. Those trained in Christian Endeavor often become aggressive leaders and workers in the church.

As a Junior, the writer received more benefit from Christian Endeavor meetings than from the regular preaching services, because the church programs were primarily prepared for adults; whereas, the Junior meetings were our very own, for they were services of children and for children.

Fortunate is the child who has had an opportunity to be a member of a Junior Christian Endeavor Society.

EASTERN DISTRICT YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION CONVENTION

L. May Markley

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Eastern District Young People's Union, held recently in the Eden Church, Schwenksville, plans were made for the annual convention which will be held at the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, May 30.

The morning session will be devoted to business and conferences. Three conferences will be conducted, namely Service through Christian Endeavor; Missions; and Evangelism.

Plans are being made to organize an Intermediate Christian Endeavor Union that will have their own convention during the morning session. The Juniors will have their own sessions during the morning, as usual.

SOURCES OF HAPPINESS

Mrs. Joe G. Graber, Freeman, So. Dak.
Salem C. E. Society

Perhaps at no other time since the beginning of the world have people gone into such extremes in pursuit of happiness as at the present time. Especially youth with its fresh life and energy is continually seeking means and ways to become happy, oftimes not knowing the meaning of real happiness. To many people happiness is never where they are, but almost anywhere else. There is no way by which a person can be really happy without being good, clean, square, and true. Happiness is the simplest thing in the world. It evades pomp and show. In short, it is the simple joys and treasures of the heart and mind that make happiness. It knows neither rank, station, or color. All it demands is to live with contented mind and pure heart. Let us, therefore, briefly discuss some of the sources of happiness.

In Prov. 3:13-14 we read, "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the silver and the gain thereof than fine gold."

Many people think that they will find their greatest happiness in money and with what money will give them, power, influence, comforts and luxuries, but we find some of the most unhapply people among the rich. Happiness measured in dollars and cents usually ends in unhappiness. Solomon prayed for a wise and understanding heart and God gave him both wisdom and riches. One great happiness exists in choosing our paths and our daily work and ways wisely. Only with God's help can we mortals strive to do that. Therefore we must pray for wisdom. We must be willing to give our life into His keeping and to go where He leads, and to do what He directs. If He gives us a more understanding heart then can we more fully appreciate His word and His commandments.

Another source of real happiness is in having the fear of the Lord in our hearts. Happy is the man that feareth always, but he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief. Prov. 28:14.

We as little children have been taught by our Christian parents to fear the Lord. Not as an unloving God who loves to punish, but as a kind, heavenly Father who loves us and watches over us and guides us daily if we only ask Him for help and guidance. But so often we harden our hearts through selfishness, greed, jealousies, hatred, pride, and so many such simple things that lead into sin and unhappiness. Our proud natures often make us feel puffed up and vain when we ought to walk humbly with the Lord. Humbleness usually insures happiness, while pride causes downfall. In Prov. 14:21 we read, "He that despiseth his neighbor sinneth, but he that hath mercy on the poor, happy is he." It is impossible for a truly bad person to be happy, neither can selfish, envious, jealous, and revengeful people ever experience true happiness, but it can be found only in generous, kind, and charitable people who are honest, sincere, and truthful to every man.

Another very strong factor to insure happiness is our trust in God. "He that handleth a matter wisely shall find good, and whoso trusteth God, happy is he." Prov. 16:20. A little child places his trust in his parents and is happy in so doing. We, as God's children, should place our complete trust in Him, for by so doing He will guide us for our own good. Often through suffering and pain, through trials and tribulations a Christian first finds real happiness and peace.

Qualities That Make Good Mothers

Matthew 15:21-28

A Tribute To Mother

M is for the million things she gave me,
O means only that she's growing old;
T is for the tears she's shed to save me;
H is for the heart of perfect gold.
E is for her eyes with love light shining,
R means right, and right she'll always be;
Put them all together, they spell "MOTHER"
A word that means the world to me.
—Author Unknown.

Mother's Day is a day for poetry and the expression of one's love and appreciation for what she has done for us. It is a beautiful custom to thus adore the mothers of our land, those living, and those who are gone into the Beyond. But a worship service like this should result in more than the expressing of sentimental thoughts of mother; the greatest tributes we can pay to our mothers is to be finer, more beautiful, and more Christian personalities. Nothing could please our mothers more.

From outstanding men and women, we read in their biographies the deep debt of gratitude they owe to their mothers. Someone has said that the world moves on in proportion as there are great mothers in the land. Young womanhood of this generation should cultivate those qualities of personality that will make them worthy to be the mothers of the next generation.

In Our Lesson Text

We might expect the Scripture portion to be chosen for this meeting to be Proverbs 31:10-31, where we find a description of the virtuous woman with all of her housewifely and motherly qualities, but instead those preparing our topics and lesson-texts have chosen for us the portion dealing with the Canaanitish mother coming to Jesus imploring Him to heal her daughter. We find many motherly qualities in this mother of Canaan. She came to a foreigner and worshipped before Him. All nationalism was thrown to the winds, the life and welfare of her daughter was at stake. Mother-love is stronger than pride. Yes, she came to Jesus with her child and for her child. When mothers have sufficient concern to bring their children to the One who can save them, this land is in safe hands. This mother was willing to become a castaway, to become as a dog, in order that her daughter might be healed, such is the tenderness and depth of mother-love. She remained with Jesus until He granted her desire.

Tonight we will honor mothers who have gone on, those living, and those who will be blessings to unborn sons and daughters. But especially will we try to discuss some of the qualities that make mothers so noble and fine. A number of topics might be handed out asking members to discuss some of these fine qualities. Some of them are: Unselfishness, patience, courage, faith in Jesus Christ, faith in their children and an unfailing boundless measure of love.

Questions

1. Why are mothers of such vital importance in the early years of the child?
2. What do some great men and women say of their mothers?
3. What are some noble qualities of mothers?
4. To what extent is Christian civilization dependent upon good mothers?
5. How can we best repay our good mothers for what they have done for us?

What Is Right And What Is Wrong With Youth?

II Tim. 3:1-5; 14-17

A Prayer For Youth

"Give me, O God, clean hands, clean words, and clean thoughts. Help me to stand for the HARD right, against the EASY wrong. Save me from habits that harm. Teach me to work as hard and as fair in Thy sight alone as if the world saw. Forgive me when I am unkind, and help me to forgive those who are unkind to me. Keep me ready to help others at some cost to myself. Send me chances to do a little good every day, and to grow more like Christ."

—Quoted from American Church and Church School Hymnal.

This is an age-old question. There have always been some of the elders of the land who have forgotten the days of their youth and think that the new generation is so much worse than their generation. On the other hand, there are some of both youth and the elders who portray youth as flawless, nigh unto perfection. In a service with a topic like this it behooves everyone to be perfectly honest, give youth credit where credit is due, and also be frank with all adverse criticism.

Never before has there been a generation with as many temptations confronting them as today. We are still in the backwash of the World War. The older generation has disgraced our nation and themselves by choosing liquor for the sake of the revenue accruing therefrom rather than a decent environment for youth. Divorce, crime, moral laxity, and irreligion are all sins of the fathers. If youth indulges in these evils, they, of course, are partly to blame because they are free moral agents, and yet the fathers have set the example and are permitting these sins to seem respectable.

Youth can never be counted as all good or all evil, some are consecrated children of God, responsible to all duties, planning to make their lives a benediction to all men. Others are drifters, willing to live the life of the brute beast, concerned only that they have liberty to do as they please, not caring a whit for God or the welfare of their fellows. To the credit of youth be it said that young people are more open and frank today than they used to be. They are not angels by any means, but they will not do things on the sly as did their fathers. In some avenues of conduct youth of today would not think of doing the disreputable, dastardlly deeds committed by their fathers. And yet it is not uncommon to find cynicism, and shallow sophistication on every hand.

In Our Lesson Text:

Paul is speaking to a young man warning him of the dangers stalking around to devour whom they can. The list of dangers sounds quite modern, human nature aside from Jesus Christ does not change much through the ages. He says beware of becoming "lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection . . . despisers of those that are good . . ." In the last set of verses Timothy is exhorted to hold fast to the faith which had been taught him by godly parents and friends.

Questions

1. What are some of the good qualities of modern youth?
2. What are some outstanding weaknesses of modern youth?
3. To what extent are the elders responsible for evil in youth?
4. What are some tasks which might be attempted by youth to make this a more Christ-like world?
5. What will an active Christian life do to help youth?

INTERMEDIATE WORKSHOP

Mrs. Roy Yoder, 1300 Bond Ave., Peoria, Ill.

May 13, 1934

Appreciating Mother and Father
(Mother's Day)

Eph. 6:1-3; Prov. 13:1

"Mother has done more for you than you will ever be able to repay. Let's start now to balance the book."

A "Story" Meeting

Let this meeting be a real opportunity for all Intermediates to tell of some blessing or incident in their life that has caused them to appreciate their father and mother more. This should be a real, rich feast of memories. Some may wish to tell how the lives of their parents have influenced them in their life-decisions.

Do not wait until Sunday morning to announce this meeting, but give your members at least a week to pray and ponder over that which they are to say.

Problems for Discussion

1. We hear much more about mother than we do about father. No wonder fathers sometimes feel that after they have earned the money to furnish the material needs of the family their duty is done. Do you think that father's duty is completed after he has supplied food, clothing, and shelter for his family? What else should he do? How can we help our fathers to share our good times?

One reason why so much emphasis is placed upon a mother's relation to her children lies in the fact that mother is with the children more than father. For this reason we sometimes forget how much we owe to father. What are some of the things that father does for us? What do we owe him?

2. Very often children get the idea that it is the father's and mother's place to make the home in which they live. Is this a fair or Christian way to think? How can children share in home building? How will it help them in later life, if they share now in caring for the home?

3. Paul was very unhappy. He was always unhappy after the evening meal. "Dad never has a good word to say about me," he says over and over.

"Well, dad is older, and just doesn't understand us children," ventured his sister, trying to comfort him. "We just have to pay no attention to the things he says to us and let him rave on."

Mother says: "Try to be patient, Paul; don't get angry when dad scolds. He is tired at the end of the day and worried because of finances. We must all be patient."

Who is right, mother or sister? Why?

What can Paul do to make the supper hour a happier one? How would Paul profit by being friendly with his father?

Home Life Around the World

Luke 2:8-20

(World Good-Will Day)

Pre-Prayer

Pause for a few moments for Jesus to meet your souls in prayer.

This meeting will require at least some preparation for time to search books and magazines for the actual accounts of home life in the various countries of the world. Do not guess, but find out all you can, then present it in an understandable way so as to make the meeting educational, spiritual, instructive, and appreciated.

Visits to Homes in Other Lands

NORWAY—Parents are fond of their children aud try to make home pleasant for them. But parents have authority which children respect as they should. Is this the essential of real home life?

ESKIMO—The Eskimo's home is an igloo or snow hut. The entire family is huddled together in this small space. Here, too, the father is ruler, but he loves his children and teaches them all he knows himself, especially the arts of fishing, etc. Is this an ideal home life?

CHINA—In China the homes of the poor are poor indeed. Almost no furniture. But the rich dwell in luxury, ignoring others. A man may have several wives, but the first wife rules the others. Children are taught strict obedience through far. Is this obedience real and lasting? Why?

AFRICA—The tropical African homes are huts. The women not only do the home work, but they also are compelled to do the work in the fields. The man loafs and hunts. The women, whom God created to be a helpmate for the man, is but a slave in Africa.

EAST—Homes in the East are changing because women are changing. In Persia the women took a big part in national movements, and are no longer content to be homemakers. Is this profitable?

TURKEY—There is a new type of woman and home in Turkey. The veil is gone. Woman's rights are returning. What did it?

After you have talked about the homes of various countries come back to the American homes and have a few minutes of open discussion on them in the light of the Scripture.

Religious homes. Deut. 6:1-9.
An ancient custom. Deut. 24:5.
Oriental hospitality. Luke 10:38-42.
Christian homes. Titus 2:1-10.
Love in the home. Isa. 49:15.
Favoritism in the home. Gen. 27:1-17.

Close with prayer, asking God to make us better individual Christians in our own homes.

Topic—Lending a Hand at Home

2 Kings 5:1-5

(Mother's Day)

"Home, where each lives for the other, and all for God." It has been well said that a happy home is the most blessed place this side of heaven. Of course the happiest homes are those of which Jesus Christ is the head, where each member of the family loves Him and tries to please Him. In a real Christian home there is time every day to speak to God in prayer and to let Him speak through His Word.

No matter how good and kind mother and father may be, the boys and girls must do their part, too, if home is to be truly happy. Today, Mother's Day, many of you will give gifts to mother and perhaps do her work so she may have a real holiday. As you see how happy this makes her, why not decide to be just as kind every day? Then remember that father appreciates helpful boys and girls as much as mother does. He often gets so tired working hard for all of you. Think of things you may do to help him. You will be so happy as all of you work together.

Plans for the Meeting

You might honor the mothers by inviting them to be guests at this meeting. Have the children help you to make an outline something like the following, showing both helps and hindrances to a happy home. The thoughts given here are merely suggestive.

Happiness in the Home

Helps	Hindrances
Love	Self-Will
Obedience	Unkindness
Helpfulness	Selfishness
Thoughtfulness	Anger
Kindness	Jealousy
Politeness	Hate
Unselfishness	Cross Words
Good Temper

After the lists have been completed, draw a word picture of the opposite types of homes described. Show by these that one's happiness "consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15), and that each member of the family has a part in making a home.

Questions

1. Tell something of Jesus' home life.
2. Tell of a Bible girl who helped to make home happy.
3. Why should boys and girls help in the home?
4. How could we make every day "Mother's Day"?
5. Explain Ex. 20:12.

Daily Readings

Martha asks help. Luke 10:38-42.
Cold-hearted children. Prov. 28:24.
Jesus' obedience at home. Luke 2:51, 52.
Help at once. Matt. 21:28-32.

Topic—God's Wonder World: Nature's Dependable Laws

Psa. 19:1-7

One day a little girl was carrying some flower seed home to her mother. She thought that she carried it carefully and no one knew when she reached home that only a part of the seed was in the bag. The rest had trickled out as she walked. Imagine her surprise when a few weeks later a row of flowers was growing all along the way she had taken. We all know that the flowers were of exactly the same kind as the seed she had carried. Yet we sometimes forget that acts are seeds that grow as truly as flower seeds. God's law of sowing and reaping given in Gal. 6:7, is true. What are we sowing? Seeds of lying, cheating, unkindness, that make both us and others miserable, or are we sowing seeds of kindness, truth, love, and cheer, which will be a blessing to all around us? God is willing to help us to sow the right seed and He will bless it and cause it to grow.

Plans for the Meeting

A week before the meeting, assign the daily readings to six of the older Juniors asking them to write short articles on these assignments. Have the papers read in the meeting. If possible, have the Junior room decorated with plants or flowers and use these to illustrate the superintendent's talk.

Questions

1. What is a law?
2. What do we mean when we speak of God's law?
3. What do we mean when we speak of Nature's laws?
4. In what ways are Nature's laws dependable?
5. What kind of world would this be if Nature had no laws?

Daily Readings

An important law. Gal. 6:7, 8.
A law of prayer. 1 John 5:14,15.
A law of giving. Luke 6:38.
Law for rain. Matt. 5:43-45.
Law and order. Gen. 8:20-22.
Opposing God's law. Acts 9:5.

Christianity and Patriotism

(Temperance and Good Citizenship Lesson)

Lesson Text—Matt. 22:15-22, 34-40

Golden Text—Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment. And a second like unto it is this, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thy self. Matt. 22:37-39.

This is Tuesday of Passion Week. Jesus is in Jerusalem. It was the busiest day of the whole week for Him. The temple Jews were attempting to ensnare Him and get Him into difficulty. The Herodians were particularly anxious to get Jesus in bad with the Roman authorities thinking that it might bring to them greater favor from the government. They were of the house of Herod and their sole desire was to reign political authority for the Herodian family. They came to Jesus and asked Him whether it was lawful to pay tribute to Caesar. This tribute was a poll tax which the Roman government collected from the Jews. The publicans usually were the tax gatherers. A Jewish patriot hated this tax because it seemed like national disgrace. So if Jesus says yes, the patriotic Jews would be against Him. If He said no, the Roman government would arrest Him and undoubtedly put Him in prison. Jesus said, Show me some tribute money. They handed Him a denaries, which was worth about nineteen cents. These coins had on one side an image and superscription of the emperor, showing that it belonged to him. Jesus said, "Give to Caesar that which belongs to Caesar, and to God that which belongs to God." The questioners had not thought of the fact that there are responsibilities which are civic and social and those which we bear towards God. These responsibilities are not exclusive, but each has its proper place.

The Pharisees then came to Him and asked which was the great commandment in the law. This is a difficult question because there were about six hundred and thirteen commands and prohibitions to be observed. They thought Jesus would select one of these which would give them an opportunity to prove that He was wrong. But Jesus knew the eternal principles which served as a foundation for all their laws so He said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God and thy neighbor as thyself." On these two hang all the law and the prophets.

Jesus expresses here truth which is the foundation for all true patriotism. Any American citizen's life that is ruled by love for God and neighbor will render unto the government the things that are the government's and unto God the things that are God's. This would solve many of our national and international problems. There could be no war in the national program when its influential truly love God and their neighbors. It would also eliminate strong drink in our nation. May the study of this lesson be a great factor in the production of true American Christian citizens.

The Future of the Kingdom

Golden Text—The kingdom of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ and he shall reign for ever and ever. Rev. 11:15.

In this lesson we come to Jesus' warning concerning preparations for the future. He relates the story of the five wise and the five foolish virgins. The setting is an oriental wedding. Such a wedding in a small village was a community affair. The men and the friends of the bridegroom would meet with him in one part of the village, while the bride with her friends were waiting in another part. About two o'clock in the morning the bridegroom would start with his retinue for the bride's home. They usually took the long way around and came through the village with shouting and great hilarity. Maids would be waiting at the bride's home to announce the coming of the bridegroom. They would have small lamps burning. Jesus uses this setting to teach a great truth. Five of these girls not only had oil in their lamps but had a reserve supply so if the bridegroom might delay his coming they would still have sufficient oil. Five of the girls were prepared for what they expected, but had no reserve supply for the unexpected. The unexpected is what happened. The foolish virgins had no oil. It was impossible for the wise virgins to give them any because they needed all of theirs to meet the emergency. This beautiful parable is often spoiled by attempting to make out of it prophecies relating to the Jews or to the church. Jesus' great teaching in this parable is the meeting of the emergencies whether it is in the coming of our Lord or whether it is in our daily experiences in life. Many a church man or woman has lived along quite successfully as long as everything went smoothly, but when an emergency faced them they discovered that they had no reserve resources and the door was shut. Jesus would teach us to prepare day by day reserve power and reserve resources which need to be called on in an hour of great need and in an unexpected situation. Many church people who had a religion for prosperous days and got along fairly well did not have sufficient oil for their lamps for the supreme emergency in the depression and therefore spiritually failed. Watch, therefore, for in such an hour as ye thinks not the Son of Man cometh.

CORRESPONDENCE

Drake, Saskatchewan, April 19, 1934. Dear Editor and Readers:— In spite of April blizzards and sand storms, we are still happy and thankful for the many blessings we have received during the first three months of this year.

Sunday School has been well attended with an average number of sixty-six for the past quarter year. The birthday box is one of the things of interest in the Sunday School. As each member's birthday comes they put into the box as many pennies as they are years old. While the money is put into the box, the school sings the "Happy Birthday" song for them. Each member also receives a greeting card.

We were privileged to partake of the Lord's Supper twice, once on the 7th of January and once on Easter morning. We feel that we ought to be reminded again and again of Christ's broken body and His shed blood for the remission of our sins, and we look forward to His return.

About the middle of March Rev. G. Buhler visited us and preached some very inspiring sermons. He stressed the question, "Where will you spend eternity?" showing that a change of heart is necessary to gain everlasting life. We believe that the Spirit of God spoke through him.

Rev. Benj. Ewert also visited us about the same time and spoke to us after the Christian Endeavor meeting on the 18th of March. He took his text from the fifteenth chapter of John and told us to be fruitful branches of the true vine, Jesus Christ.

About a month ago our pastor, Rev. M. M. Lehmann, held a series of meetings in the Newnham district, near Leroy. He took two of our young boys with him to help with the singing. He reported great interest was shown.

The Christian Endeavor's Sunshine Committee, whose duty it is to look after the interests of the sick, has been quite busy lately, since there have been quite a number of sick people in our community, two of them being of our Sunday School.

The C. E. gave a special musical program and also an Easter program of interest to us all.

At several different times the United Choir of about thirty members sang a cantata entitled, "The Promise of Easter." It was refreshing to have the Easter message renewed. Sincerely, The Correspondent.

Inman, Kansas, April 10, 1934. Dear Editors and Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— Nature in all its splendor, the blossoming fruit trees, as well as the unusual lovely appearance of wheat, oats, and alfalfa fields, are glorifying God, our Creator. Truly, the same power which revives nature to new life and new splendor, also brings new life to the spiritual man from day to day, and it is the goodness and the mercy of God ever trying to lead man to repentance.

Hebron Church had the privilege of listening to an Easter cantata which was rendered by the mixed chorus of this church, under the direction of D. V. Unrau. It helped greatly to extol the Easter season.

Dr. J. H. Langenwalter of Wichita, Kansas, has just completed a series of meetings, from April 2 to April 8. We hope that the words spoken through the Good Spirit will be the means to a fruitful life. Brother Langenwalter has been a blessing to us.

Hebron has lately installed electric lights into its church building, which render splendid service in the night meetings.

The Bethel College Volunteer Band gave an interesting program in Hebron lately. We appreciate it when students like to study and teach the Word of God. J. G. Neufeldt.

Believe that life is worth living and your belief will help create the fact.—James.

JOTTINGS

Easter services were celebrated with special music in many Mennonite churches. Many of these services consisted in rendering some beautiful cantata. In the Second Church, Philadelphia, "Triumph" was beautifully rendered by the choir. The choir of the First Church, Newton, Kansas, presented "The Crucifixion" by Stainer. The choir of the Alexanderwohl church, Goessel, Kansas, rendered "The Thorn Crowned King."

Due to the fact that there has been considerable delay completing the new Catechisms, it has been necessary to print an additional supply of the old Catechism. The new Catechisms may not be ready until late in fall, so if ministers find that they will need Catechisms during the next few months it will be best for them to send their orders in now to the MENNONITE BOOK CONCERN, Berne, Indiana. Prices are as follows: Single copies 40c, postpaid; 12 or more @ $4.25 per dozen.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, of Berne, Indiana, who is traveling in the interest of Young People's Work and the Publications, is at present on a two months' trip through the Western District Conference. It is expected that he will visit approximately sixty churches in the states of Kansas, Nebraska, and Oklahoma. He expects to be home some time in June.

A temperance society was organized in Berne, Indiana, in 1886, in the Berne, Indiana, church. This society functioned for forty years and disbanded shortly after the country went dry. The work of this society attained considerable prominence, the cleaning up of the town of Berne being one of its achievements. Recently, this organization has again been called into life. The lax and make-shift administration countenanced by the state since repeal became effective is the reason for this new temperance effort.

More than 300 high school seniors from northern Ohio were entertained on the Bluffton College campus on its annual Visitation Day. Following registration, the visitors heard a short concert given by the a capella choir and made a tour of the campus and buildings and witnessed a baseball game. In the evening a free lunch was served in Ropp Hall. A concert by the college orchestra brought the visitation to an end.

The choir of the Kingman, Kansas, church, directed by Fred Voran, rendered a sacred concert in the Eden Mennonite church of Moundridge. The choir numbers forty, and its concert was appreciated by an exceptionally large crowd of listeners.

Kansas Mennonites had a conspicuous place in the Sunday radio program recently. Two programs were given over station KFBI, one being by a girls' quartet from the Zoar Academy at Inman, the other by a quartet from the Alexanderwohl church, Goessel. Station KMMJ broadcast a program offered by the Men's Quartet of Henderson, Neb. In Oklahoma a Men's Quartet from Fairview gave a program over KCRC, and later in the evening the Corn, Okla., Bible School gave another program over the same station.

Six Central Conference Mennonite Churches in the vicinity of Bloomington, Illinois, sponsored a Teachers' Training class at the Carlock Mennonite Church for ten weeks. The Life of Christ was studied. Rev. Wm. B. Weaver of Danvers, Illinois, was the teacher.

The Mission Board meeting of the Central Conference of Mennonites met at the Normal Mennonite Church, Normal, Illinois, for an all day session. The following day a meeting of ministers of the Central Conference was held at the same place. A program was given. This meeting meant much in helping to unify the work of the pastors of Central Conference.

The C. E. Society of the Salem Mennonite Church, Dalton, Ohio, recently enjoyed an old-fashioned sleighing party. They gathered at the church and journeyed via two bob sleds and six horses to the home of the pastor, where they enjoyed a social hour. — On Easter evening, the Community Choir, under the direction of Mr. Victor Gerber, presented "The Holy City" in the high school auditorium to an appreciative audience. There was a fine spirit of Christian fellowship in the Easter worship service. Special music was very ably rendered and an open Communion Service was participated in by the members and many friends.

The Topic prepared by the "Brotherhood" of the East District Conference for May study, is "Education." Unfortunately room does not permit the "Outline" prepared by the Brotherhood officers. It is splendidly worked out and deserves a wide distribution. Copies may be secured from the officers of the organization.

The Congo Inland Mission Board met at 26th St Mission, in Chicago, March 27, 1934. This was the annual meeting of the Board. The following officers were elected for the new year: President, A. Neuenschwander; vice president, Rev. E. Troyer; recording secretary, H. E. Bertsche; field secretary and treasurer, Rev. A. M. Eash. Two brethren were present from Minnesota, representing the Defenseless Conference of Mennonites of North America. The reports from the Belgian Congo showed that the Lord has been working marvelously in our field in the Congo. The ingathering has been large in spite of the depression in America.

Rev. and Mrs. Omar Sutton arrived home from the Belgian Congo the latter part of March. They were present at the C. I. M. Board Meeting.

Rev. J. E. Hartzler has been giving a series of Bible lectures in some of the Central Conference churches through March and April. From March 25 to April 1 he spoke at the North Danvers Mennonite Church; from April 1 to April 8 at the Calvary Mennonite Church, Washington, Illinois, and April 9 to 15 at the Eighth Street Mennonite Church, Goshen, Indiana.

Rev. E. Troyer conducted a series of meetings near Biglerville, Pa., the middle of March.

Training classes have been conducted at the Mennonite Gospel Mission, Peoria, Illinois, the last two years for the benefit of the workers at that place and also to provide training for several candidates for the mission field under the C. I. M. Board. The following courses have been given: Life of Jesus, Teachings of Jesus, Psychology, Church History, Book of Acts, Christian Ethics, The Pupil and the Teacher, and Sociology. Rev. Wm. B. Weaver of Danvers, Illinois, has been the instructor.

Dr. Harvey Bauman, medical missionary to India, under the General Conference, visited the group of churches in the vicinity of Freeman, S. D., giving addresses in the interest of Foreign Missions, April 12 to 15. He spoke in the Bethesda, North, and Bethel churches.

Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., plans to hold its Commencement exercises on the evening of May 22. Dr. E. J. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, will deliver the address. The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class will be given by Rev. Jacob A Tieszen, a graduate of Freeman College.

DEATHS

Reuben Rufus Amstutz died on the 20th day of March, 1934. For the past eighteen years he had been making his home in Pittsburg, Penna. His tragic death came as a result of burning, his clothes having caught fire from a gas heater. The deceased was the son of the late Abraham and Elizabeth Amstutz. He was baptized into the Salem Mennonite Church at Dalton, Ohio. He came to the age of 53 years, 1 month, and 19 days. He was preceded in death by his parents, two sisters, and one brother. He is survived by five brothers and sisters, also by a large number of other relatives and friends. He was laid to rest in the Salem Mennonite Church, services being in charge of Rev. A. R. Keiser, assisted by Rev. Per Mar of Orrville, Ohio.

Rev. John Toevs — Father Toevs was born July 30, 1865, in Germany, near the city of Danzig, and died February 16 at 8:20 P. M., after a lingering illness, at the age of 68 years, 6 months, and 17 days. At the age of four years his parents moved to Russia. After living in Russia for ten years, again his parents set out to find a land where they could have complete freedom in religious worship. This time they directed their footsteps toward Asia where their wishes were again granted. Many hardships were encountered while traveling through Asia with horse and wagon. Hostile Mohammedan tribes did not offer inducements to establish homes in this country. While sojourning in Asia. he was baptized upon his confession of faith. At the age of nineteen, he and his parents made their last long journey, this time directing their course to the United States, and settled on a farm near Newton, Kansas. In the year of 1888 he was joined in holy matrimony with Agatha Suderman. This marriage was blessed with eight children. In 1907 the family moved to Aberdeen, Idaho, and settled on the farm west of Aberdeen, and in 1917 moved to town, where he resided until his death.

He was ordained as minister of the Gospel in 1912 and after the death of Rev. L. Dirks, he was ordained as elder of the Emanuel Mennonite Church. In July, 1928, he was stricken with a severe attack of Angina Pectoris, from which he never fully recovered, the attacks recurring from time to time. Since November 5, 1933 (after another severe attack), his health gradually failed and on February 13 he suffered a stroke of paralysis, this with other complications causing his death.

He leaves to mourn: his beloved wife, two daughters, four daughters-in-law, three sons, and one son-in-law, seventeen grandchildren, and many relatives and friends.

Words of comfort were spoken by Rev. J. E. Kaufman of Aberdeen, Idaho, on Psalm 116:15, and Rev. M. J. Galle of Odessa, Washington, on John 14:2,3.

Mrs. Mary E. Graybill, aged 78 years, 5 months, and 22 days, widow of Rev. Solomon S. Graybill, died at the home of her daughter, Ursula Shelley, in Richfield, on Thursday, April 5th, 1934. She was the daughter of Amos and Barbaray (Graybill) Winey. Her maternal grandfather, Rev. John Graybill, was a son of the first settler in the vicinity, and was the first Bishop of the Mennonite Church in Juniata County. She was the last survivor of a family of thirteen, three sisters and nine In December, 1863, she was married to Solomon S. brothers, four of which were ministers of the Gospel. Graybill, to which union were born two children, Rev. Elmer W. Graybill, who died fifteen years ago, and Ursula Shelley, with whom she lived since the death of her husband, more than nineteen years ago. She was a faithful member of the Richfield Mennonite Church, for many years. "Aunt Mary," as she was known to so many, will be missed in the church, the home, and the community for her many deeds of kindness and love shown to every one. She is survived by her daughter, seven grandchildren, eleven greatgrandchildren, and three great-greatgrandchildren.

Brief funeral services were conducted at the home on Sunday morning, April 8, with the principal service in the Richfield Mennonite Church. Rev. B. S. Graybill, her pastor, officiated. Burial in the Richfield cemetery.

Daniel W. Sears, son of Christian and Phoebe Eigsti Sears, was born in Woodford Co., near Eureka, Ill., August 1, 1860, and departed this life at his home in Tiskilwa, Ill., April 5, 1934, aged 73 years, 8 months, and 4 days. He was a man of robust health until about five years ago. Since that time he had been gradually failing in health until a complication of diseases caused his death after a serious illness of only a few days.

When several years of age he moved with his family to Tazwell Co., near Morton Ill., and later at about the age of seven years he moved with them to Bureau Co., near Tiskilwa, in which community he spent most of his life. He was married to Elizabeth Springer of Hopedale, Ill., on January 17, 1886. To this union two sons were born—Arthur Lewis, who died April 2, 1912, and Homer C., of Moline, Ill. He leaves to mourn his departure, besides his devoted wife and one son, two grandchildren, Marjorie and Richard; two brothers, Christian A. of Tiskilwa and Samuel R. of Elkhart, Ind.; four sisters, Mrs. Mary Ropp of Tremont, Ill., Mrs. Lydia Springer of Princeton, Ill., Mrs. Fannie Forney of Graymont, Ill., and Mrs. Phoebe Culp of Sterling, Ill. Two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Bachman and Mrs. Magdalena Gerber, preceded him in death.

He accepted Christ as his Savior and united with the Mennonite Church in early youth, and remained true to the Mennonite faith until his death. He was a charter member of the Tiskilwa Mennonite Church. The sterling quality of his religion was revealed in a life of devotion to his Savior and loyalty to his church.

Funeral services were held April 7 at the Tiskilwa Mennonite Church by Rev. E. Troyer, Rev. H. E. Nunemaker, and Rev. Ericsson of Moline, Ill.

Daniel Charles Klein, passed away at midnight, April 4th, 1934, at his residence in Chenoa. He was born in Hicksville, Ohio, on the 27th day of June, 1852, the son of Philip C. and Mary Meyerling Klein. On January 6, 1876, he was united in marriage with Elizabeth Schertz of Gridley, Ill. To this union four children were born. He leaves to mourn his death, the widow and three children. Mrs. Nellie Engel of Bloomington, Ill., Fred A. Klein of Chenoa, Ill., and Grace K. Morpell of Chicago, Ill. One son, Floyd Philip Klein, passed away at the age of 2½ years. There are also two grandchildren, Richard F. Klein of Chenoa, Ill., and Jacqueline G. Morrell of Chicago, Ill., besides five brothers, John of Milford, Nebr., Chris of Denver, Colo., Philip of Madrid, Nebr., David of Eckley, Nebr., and Edward of Yuma, Colo., also a host of other relatives and friends.

He was one of the pioneers of this community, having spent the past 49 years here, and he was a patient sufferer during his long illness.

Funeral services were in charge of Rev. G. I. Gundy and Rev. H. E. Bertsche.

MARRIAGE

Fein-Litwiller.—Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fein announce the marriage of their daughter, Leta Mae, to Mr. Arthur J. Litwiller, of Milledgeville, Ill., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller of Hopedale. The marriage took place March 5 in Chicago, Ill.

The newlyweds both are graduates of the Hopedale Community High School class of 1929.

The bride following her graduation here was employed in the office of the State Farm Mutual Insurance office in Bloomington until a few months ago. Mr. Litwiller received his B. S. degree at I. S. N. U. last year and since has been employed in the grain business. at Milledgeville. They will make their home in Milledgeville.

TEACHERS' MANUALS

For

A DEPARTMENTAL GRADED SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL COURSE

The Summer Bible School Committee, under the direction of the General Sunday School Committee of the American (Old) Mennonite Church, has prepared an elementary curriculum of study for use in Summer Bible Schools. The curriculum covers a range of ages from four to thirteen years inclusive. A Teacher's Manual, covering in detail the work to be done and providing ample helps for teaching, is prepared for use in each grade. These ten Manuals are for the teachers only.

Each year's work is arranged for a three-week term of fifteen half days of school, but may readily be adapted to a shorter or, if desired, a longer term. These Teachers' Manuals are offered under the following titles:

1. Kindergarten I — For pupils, age 4
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series I
2. Kindergarten II — For pupils, age 5
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series II
3. Primary I — For pupils, age 6
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series III
4. Primary II — For pupils, age 7
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series IV
5. Primary III — For pupils, age 8
   Old Testament Character Studies: Creation to Saul
6. Primary IV — For pupils, age 9
   Old Testament Character Studies: David to Nehemiah
7. Junior I — For pupils, age 10
   New Testament Studies: The Life of Christ—First Half
8. Junior II — For pupils, age 11
   New Testament Studies: The Life of Christ—Second Half
9. Junior III — For pupils, age 12
   New Testament History and Leaders
10. Junior IV — For pupils, age 13
    New Testament Studies: The Life of Paul

MAY DAY GATHERINGS

May Day is an American invention, the late Samuel Gompers having been responsible for its beginning, he having suggested it as a day upon which labor organizations might make special demonstrations. Today and for some years past this day has been made an occasion for radical demonstrations in many of the countries of the world. The day was marked with rioting in several of the large centers of Europe this year. Radicals everywhere take this day as one upon which they can appropriately celebrate their cause with disorder. Men have yet to learn that such celebrations with their accompanying disorder, gain little and risk much for the cause of labor and the underprivileged classes. The really effective methods for gaining ends are orderly ones. The ballot offers the best opportunity for improvement. Violence only gets violence for an answer. There is no doubt that the underprivileged have a right to a hearing, but to hit a man first and then expect him to listen to reason is not in accord with human nature. After all, mobs have little chance in this day of machine guns. They invite merciless punishment when they resort to discorderly demonstrations.

It is fortunate that we, of this country, in this time of stress, have seen so little of mob demonstrations. The general good sense of the American people is the best protection against organized mob violence. Those May Day demonstrations in the large centers of our population which occurred last week are but feeble efforts. The writer of this article mingled with a May Day gathering in front of City Hall. There were at most only about three thousand in the parade which the radicals had made great efforts to make the biggest ever seen in this city. The crowd was composed chiefly of people who spoke foreign tongues and did not betray any American characteristics. Even the venders of foreign radical papers who mingled in the crowd did not seem to be finding customers for their wares. The police severely left the crowd alone. We noted only two in the gathering and they looked bored to death. The conclusion we came to in these surroundings was, that the gathering was promoted and patronized by a handful of persons who knew little or nothing of American life and thought. Hebrews and negroes, people in classes by themselves, who made up ninety percent of the gathering, did not even represent the attitude of the large majority of their own people.—G.

FORMER MINISTERS

The Gospel Herald, the (Old) Mennonite organ of Scottdale, is running a second series of articles covering the lives of the ministers who have, in a more or less prominent way, served the church. Interesting and valuable information concerning pioneers in the ministry is being uncovered which is not only appreciated by the present generation, but surely will be valuable history for those who follow. It would be well if church papers were to print more articles of the kind. The making of the church has been in the hands of those who were content to faithfully follow their tasks as God set them before them and often never thought so much as to write a record of them, but then the best record that any one may make is the record written by a life of love and service upon the hearts of those to whom he ministered. Ambitious lives are not always those that are remembered with gratitude. Indeed, the best reputation one may make for service is the one patterned after the one "Who made of himself no reputation."

The poet speaks of some lying silently in the graveyard as possible "Mute inglorius Miltons." Nevertheless, a personality that marked those in humble places may be a more blessed one than that of who sought high and distinguished places. It had been characteristic of our fathers to regard themselves as the "Quiet ones in the land," but they neither wasted their lives nor are forgotten. We call them blessed for what they have done and for the example of loyalty to our Lord which they set. It is our hope that in our other conferences something may be done to keep us in mind of what our heritage means and of what our humble but loyal fathers in the faith accomplished for us.

—G.

"TRANSLATION COMPLETED ON APRIL 11th"

So reports Brother R. Petter, Lame Deer, Montana. The printing will be done by the American Bible Society by the cheap "Offset Process," which does not require the setting of the whole manuscript type. But it has to be rewritten first by typewriter, which will require from one to two months.

We do not yet know the exact cost, but a few hundred dollars will have to be figured on, and special gifts for the purpose are welcome.

Thank the Lord for upholding Bro. Petter's health and strength long enough to finish the work. May the Lord now bless the whole New Testament in printed form to the whole Cheyenne tribe! P. H. Hichert, Secretary.

HOW DOES OUR MISSION TREASURY FARE?

During the first quarter of this year it fared well, so that we could make full payments, thank the Lord and the donors. This quarter we have so far been able to pay only 30%, but there are still two months ahead of us in which to provide the rest. We need, besides what is now in the treasury, $11,500.00 to make full payment. The great mission festival, Pentecost, is near, and so we are in good hopes that the Lord will provide all our needs through our mission friends. "A word to the wise is sufficient."

Who are the wise? According to Prov. 11:30 that title belongs especially to the soul winners: "He that winneth souls, is wise."

In the name of the Executive Committee,
P. H. Richert, Secretary.

REMINISCENSES OF THE WEST

For the first time in all my gospel ministry and school work have I been privileged thus to nose about a little in the vineyards of my many friends and co-workers and travelers to the land where they never grow old.

On the 16th of October last I went by stage from Bloomfield, Iowa, to Denver, Colorado, where I met former members of my church. A few hours of early morning worship and fellowship was ours to enjoy with them. Here at Denver I was met by a former pupil of mine, who took me to his home, many miles south, to be his guest for one week. Here it was my blessed privilege to help him, as best I could, by God's grace to once more embrace the high and noble ideals he once had, from which he had departed, doubtless through the dangers to which even legitimate prosperity may lead, for he was indeed successful in his business career, and perhaps needed this loving chastening of the Lord I told him about. This, dear reader, was one of the high spots of privilege and blessing that was mine to enjoy, for I know of nothing grander than to bask a bit in the sunshine of helpful Christian service. This little incident means so much to me I could not refrain from speaking of it. This was at Lamar, Colorado.

From here I was kindly permitted to share with him (an old-time friend and fellow teacher in Indiana, D. R. Yoder, a prominent business man, now of Goshen, Ind.), his seat all the way to Upland, Calif., landing me safely at the very door of Rev. J. C. Mehl. Rev. Mehl had long since said that, should I come to California, his home must be my hotel. And why not, for Bro. Mehl was once my teacher, of the first magnitude, and his loving companion was my schoolmate and classmate in days when our bodies were younger than now. While in Upland, I was much at home there, and pleasant memories of those early days were happily rekindled. It was through the kindness of Bro. Mehl's and Ira Scott's families that a company of Middlebury friends, now living in the West, at Los Angeles, Pomona, Pasadena, Upland, Yucaipa, etc., gathered in the Pomona Church of the Brethren. It was here that we, forty or fifty, gathered around a table spread with heaven's bounties, prepared by kind hearts and hands; there we ate and talked and sang and prayed and rejoiced—then we parted to meet again, oh yes, where they NEVER say goodbye. Another high spot!

Shortly before Christmas it was my privilege to meet with the people of the Upland Mennonite church in a series of twelve gospel meetings. Rev. Hostetler added much to the interest of the meetings by opening each series with Scripture quotations and prayer. On the whole I feel that showers of blessings were ours to enjoy, that, we trust, may bring forth abundant fruit. A Sunday morning and evening service I was pleased to conduct in the Emanuel Mennonite church in Los Angeles. Bro. Eitzen had just recently taken charge of the work there. I was agreeably surprised to look into the faces of such morning and evening gatherings, the final result and harvest of a little seed-sowing in one of the dismal parts of that great city, under the leadership of Rev. Elmer Grubb. There stands now a living monument to the credit of all concerned, both pastors and people. I predict for Bro. Eitzen and his people a real soul-saving station in the midst of the largest city on the Pacific Coast. It was my delight to spend a night with Bro. Grubb and his wife. He is still in the Lord's work. Through the kindness of friends I was brought face to face with a great many points of unusual interest, so that what David said of the heavens I can say of the mountains, valleys, canyons, deserts, and the beauty of nature everywhere. For more than three weeks I was in the vicinity of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles, a great gospel-spreading institution, yet not without its faults. "Watch and pray," a timely warning for any institution, however Christian. I was asked to go to the Angeles temple and given my impression of it. Here it is. I was at the temple on the evening of her homecoming reception, so that I saw her, perhaps, at her best. The seating capacity is 5000. It was crowded to the doors; many turned away. Two hundred in the white robed choir. A large orchestra; the singing uplifting. Wish you could have heard them sing "Silent Night, Holy Night." Perhaps from a merely mechanical point of view, none better this side of heaven. Aimee marched to the pulpit in a queenly fashion, encouraged by 5000 voices and the clapping of 10,000 hands. This was my impression: If all that beautiful demonstration was to the glory of God, Hallelujah, Praise His Name; if not, too bad. This I must say, however, fearless of successful contradiction that she excels in, over and above, many great leaders; in leadership; as an organizer; in having such a large following; and such marvelous love and esteem bestowed upon her by her people. And last, her unusual and attractive personality. Yet ALL depends upon the highest aim and motive. May she have just that, is our prayer. She said recently, "I face a new world, a wiser but a sadder woman." This has reference to the Hutton experience—betrayal.

Now to Reedley, a beautiful city in the heart of the raisin belt. There we found a very pleasing and attractive flock of God's children of many years' making, largely the work of Bro. J. H. Krehbiel, formerly of Trenton, O., up to the coming of Rev. J. M. Regier, of Pandora, Ohio. Bro. Regier is taking up the work gracefully where Bro. Krehbiel laid it down, and with his earnest endeavors and excellent pastoral qualities, both pastor and people will evidently be led into "pastures green and by waters still." Had several friendly calls at the home of Bro. Krehbiel. We learned to know each other as members of the Bluffton College Board of Trustees, when we prayed that it might live and become a fruit-bearing institution. Glad to find him still working for the Kingdom advancement; making Bro. Regier's work a little lighter by preaching twice a month in the German. He has not turned over everything to Bro. Regier, he may have turned over his salary, but not his life of personal responsibility. Work, brethren, for the night is coming. We had a very delightful series of meetings of nine evenings, with two ministers of experience, practical and experimental, to pray for and assist the H. S. in His leadings. I felt quite at home, under the Spirit's guidance, casting bread upon the waters to be gathered days hence.

Bidding goodbye to Bro. Regier and his wife at the bus station in Fresno, we motored to Salem, Oregon, where I met Martin Dieffenbach and wife, former members of my church. After an afternoon's social visit and partaking with them of the evening meal, I went with Bro. Lisse to a Junior and Senior choir practice in Rev. Franz's church. He being the leader, was present. After the practice, Bro. Frantz invited me to give an evening message, which I gladly did, especially to young people preparing to sing more efficiently for Him and His church. I had the opportunity of becoming better acquainted with Bro. Franz and his family, through his inviting me for the night. This brother has indeed a thrifty and growing work there in many ways. They are located in one of the most fertile districts in Oregon. The depression is not much of an obstacle there, for which they are certainly thankful.

Then I went on to Portland and Seattle in the rain. Was with Bro. Claassen and Missionary Niswander in the Portland mission, Sunday, January 14. To me it was an inspiring Sabbath day. From 9 A. M. to 9:30 P. M. we were teaching, giving messages, partaking of a basket dinner, praying, singing all the time, having blessed Christian fellowship. The meeting closed with a well prepared Gideonite program previously arranged.

You remember, at the wedding of Cana some said the best wine was left to the last. I was almost going to say that in this very delightful run through the Pacific coast country He came near repeating the circumstances concerning the best wine in Cana. The work is not a big one judged by world standards. The world is not saved by crowds, but one by one. If one soul has found Jesus Christ precious to Him experimentally, because of this mission, the value of such a work is inconceivable. Thank God for these life saving stations that honeycomb our cities and towns, and for those who have such a burning passion for souls which is worth more than ten thousand material worlds like this. I think that the Pacific Conference made no mistake in placing the Portland mission under the direction and Christian leadership of its founder and the one who comes to her assistance with his rich, ripe, and mature experience in the great work of the commission to the world. It was very noticeable that Miss Niswander has lost none of her former passion for souls, exhibiting the same untiring spiritual energy and fervor so characteristic of her in the difficult and trying days of the Chicago mission. May that spirit, born from above, continue to manifest itself in the lives of both of these God called ones till the evening shadows gather, is my prayer.

This closed my mission in the north, at least for the present. While at my daughter's home near Seattle, I contracted a severe cold, the first since leaving home, due, I think, to the almost incessant rains there this time of the year. I became quite hoarse, making it impossible to do any speaking in public, and also in view of the fact that the people were daily looking for a weather break. I felt justified in setting my face homeward, sorry that I could not be with the brethren at Monroe, Odessa, Colfax, Aberdeen, etc., at least for a short time, but I must forego that pleasure for the present.

At this writing I am at home, my cold about gone, and if my people can see their way clear to forgive me for staying away so long, where oranges are ripening and flowers are blooming, I think we can again move along up hill and down without any hurtful friction, believing "that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord."

In closing, I want to wish for our beloved editors of this paper and its readers, a happy New Year in Him. Yours for larger and better service, W. W. Miller.

BIOGRAPHY OF BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

Miss Minnie Brenneman, Normal, Ill.

Booker T. Washington was a negro born in Franklin County, Virginia, about 1858 or 1859. There was no record of the date of his birth and he did not even know who his father was. He died at Tuskegee, Alabama, November 14, 1915, only 56 years old. But during his life he became the leader of his race in this country.

He was born in a one-room log cabin, where his mother was a slave and a cook on a plantation. In his autobiography, "Up from Slavery," he mentions that he could not remember of sleeping in a bed until after the family was declared free by the Emancipation Proclamation.

There were three children and their pallet was a bundle of filthy rags laid upon a dirt floor. There were no schools for negro children, and he grew up in squalor and ignorance, as his mother had to work hard for these white people. She, of course, could not read. He does not remember of the family ever sitting to a table and having a meal together. Food was handed out to them as they got hungry.

He, however, learned to work. He remembers of having to shoo flies at the big house where the master lived, at eating time.

He made regular trips on a horse quite a distance away to get corn ground and had to do various other things.

After the slaves were set free his stepfather sent for them to come to Malden, West Virginia. They put all their possessions in a cart and the children walked most of the way, a distance of about 500 miles. His stepfather had secured work in the salt furnaces there and although Booker T. was only seven years old, he was put to work at this, too.

He wanted to learn to read, and had a consuming desire to learn. There were no free schools for colored children in Malden. They did find a colored boy who could read and he was always surrounded by the black people, old and young, to have him read the newspaper to them.

When they did get someone to teach, Booker T. was very much disappointed, as his stepfather wanted him to keep at work in the salt furnaces. He was afterwards allowed to go to school in the morning and so got a start. He had one resolve, and that was — a determination to secure an education.

He later had to work in a coal mine. While working there, he heard of a great school for colored people at Hampton, Va. He stopped working at this coal mine and began to work for a lady, Mrs. Ruffner, as a servant at $5.00 per month. He learned some very valuable lessons here. This lady was very exact. She wanted everything clean about her and wanted things done promptly and systematically, and at the bottom of everything she wanted absolute honesty and frankness.

In later years he knew that the lessons he had learned at the home during 1½ years were as valuable to him as he had gotten anywhere since. In 1872 he started for Hampton Institute, Va. He was then fourteen years old. He had many difficulties to overcome. He walked most of the way, as he did not have money enough to pay his way there. When he arrived he presented himself to the head teacher and did not make a very favorable impression, having been without proper food and clothing on this trip. At first it was doubtful if he would be allowed to enter. At last the head teacher said, "The adjoining reception room needs sweeping, take a broom and sweep it." Never before did he receive an order with more delight. He knew that he could sweep, as Mrs. Ruffner had taught him that. He swept the room three times and dusted everything four times, then he reported to this lady. She made a thorough inspection and soon said, "I guess you will do to enter this institution."

He was very happy, and the sweeping of this room was his college examination for entrance at Hampton Normal and Industrial Institute. The principal and, I think founder, of this school was Gen. Samuel C. Armstrong, a white man. In 1874, after being at Hampton two years, he returned to Malden, W. Va., to visit his home. During this summer his mother died.

That fall he entered his third year at Hampton and graduated in 1875, and made such a record that he was placed on the honor roll of Commencement speakers.

The next fall he again went to his home, Malden, and was elected to teach the colored school there. This was the beginning of one of the happiest periods of his life. He felt that he could now help the people of his home town to a higher life. His work began at eight in the morning and usually ended at ten at night. It was not mere book education that these people needed. In addition to the usual routine of teaching he taught the pupils to comb their hair and to keep their hands and faces clean, as well as their clothing. He gave special attention to teaching the proper use of the bath.

He soon began a night school for older boys and girls and men and women. He established a reading room and a debating society. On Sundays he taught two Sunday Schools, morning and afternoon, and he was supremely happy.

In 1878, after teaching at Malden two years, he studied eight months at Washington, D. C. About this time there was an agitation about moving the capital of West Virginia from Wheeling to Charleston. This latter place was only five miles from Malden. He was asked to canvas the state in the interest of that city.

During this time he got quite a reputation as a speaker, and Charleston was made the capital.

In 1879, only five years after he graduated from Hampton, he was asked to return there and deliver the commencement address. His subject was, "The Force That Wins." Soon after this he was asked by Gen. Armstrong, the principal, to come to Hampton to teach there and also pursue some elementary studies, which he did.

Two of his brothers whom he had taught at Malden, received their later education at Hampton and were so well prepared that they entered advanced classes, and for that reason Booker T. got his reputation as a teacher.

An experiment was now tried out at Hampton to teach Indians. Seventy-five Indian youths were housed in one building and he was to be a sort of housefather. The average Indian felt himself above the white man and much above the negro, largely because the negro had submitted to slavery which the Indian would not have consented to do. Nevertheless, Booker T. gained their love and respect and made the teaching of Indians a success. He also taught colored girls and boys at a night school there. These were people that had no means, but earned their tuition and board by working ten hours a day and attended two hours of school at night. This also was a success.

In May 1881, Gen. Armstrong received a letter from a gentleman in Alabama asking if he could recommend someone to take charge of a Normal school for colored people at Tuskegee, Alabama. Gen. Armstrong asked Booker T. Washington if he could fill the position, and he said he would try. He was accepted and continued there until the end of his life.

When he came to Tuskegee, he expected a building and apparatus ready for him to begin teaching, but nothing of the kind. The legislature had appropriated $2000.00 per year to be used for salaries for instructors, but nothing for buildings. He did find something, that no costly buildings or apparatus can supply, and that is hundreds of hungry souls who wanted to secure knowledge.

His first task was to find a building, and he found an old, dilapidated colored Methodist church and a shanty nearby. He traveled over the state to get acquainted and to advertise this school. When school opened, thirty students applied for admission, and he was the only teacher.

After six weeks a new teacher entered, Miss Olivia A. Davidson. She was born in Ohio, and a graduate of Hampton Institute and had also studied at Massachusetts State Normal School at Framingham. She brought many valuable and fresh ideas as to best methods in teaching. They soon found that to do the most good they must teach more than mere books. He adopted the same plan that he had carried out at Malden. He said: "We wanted to teach them how to take care of their clothing and what to eat and how to take care of their rooms. We wanted to give them such a practical knowledge of at least one industry, so that they would know how to make a living." The students largely came from agricultural districts and their chief ambition among a great proportion of them was to get an education so they did not have to work with their hands.

Three months after the opening of school, an old plantation was offered for sale, about a mile from Tuskegee, for $500.00. They did not know where the money was to come from, but the treasurer at Hampton Institute offered to gladly lend him $250.00 for the first payment, from his own personal funds.

Nearly all the work of getting the new location ready was done by the students after school hours. The buildings on it were a cabin, an old kitchen, a stable, and a hen house. Soon after he determined to clear up some land to put in some crops. When he explained his plan to the young men they did not take to it very kindly. They could not see the connection between clearing land and an education.

In paying the loan of $250.00, Miss Davidson devised plans to hold festivals or suppers and got the colored families to give something like a cake, chicken, bread, pies, etc., and he does not remember of a single white family that refused to help in this way, so it showed that both white and colored were interested. The remaining $250.00 was paid in the same way, and Miss Davidson also traveled north to secure funds.

In 1882 he was married to Fannie M. Smith of Malden, W. Va. She was also a graduate of Hampton Institute. She passed away in May, 1884. In 1885 he was married to Miss Olivia Davidson, who was such a devoted worker for the interests of the school from the beginning.

In 1889 she died. Two children, both boys, were born to them and he had one daughter from his first wife. In 1893 he was married to Miss Margaret James Murray, a native of Mississippi and a graduate of Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn. He was married three times and each wife was very helpful in the work at Tuskegee.

So the work grew. He was a forceful orator. Many people in the North and South became interested in his work. Throughout the country his rare abilities as a public speaker, his good will and wisdom won for him a repute and recognition equaled by no other negro, and he became known as the leader of his race. Frederic Douglass had that distinction up to the time of his death, which was February 2, 1895.

Booker T. Washington traveled much. He was known and honored here as well as abroad. He made it his life work to build up this school. At the time of his death, which occurred November 14, 1915, there were 1800 students enrolled; there was a corporate property value of two million dollars on more than 2000 acres of land, it had 100 buildings, and 47 trades were taught.

Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute is still in existence, and it and Hampton Institute take the lead in industrial education.

On April 12 to 14, 1931, the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Tuskegee Institute was celebrated. Maj. Moton was the principal then and, I think, still is.

At this time the enrollment was 2701, divided as follows: College courses 477, high school 683, Elementary 172, Children's House 389, Summer School 668, Macon Co. Teachers 21, Smith Lever Agents 34, Smith Hughes Agents 35, Short Course in Agriculture 228.

During this fiftieth anniversary celebration, President Hoover delivered a radio address which gave this school much publicity. He said, "The nation owes a debt of gratitude to the wisdom and constructive vision of Booker T. Washington, the founder of Tuskegee Institute."

I want to mention that I got most of this material from Booker T. Washington's autobiography, "Up From Slavery." He also wrote other books, "The Future of the Negro," "The Story of the Negro," "Working with the Hands," "Character Building," "The Negro in Business," "My Larger Education," and "The Man Farthest Down," eight in all that I know of.

In one chapter from "Up From Slavery" he mentions how this whole nation was enriched for more than two centuries by the labor of the negro, and it would have been no more than right that after they were freed, some provision should have been made for the general education of the negroes by the Federal Government.

In another place he mentions that perhaps if his race had not been brought to this country from Africa the way they were, they would still be in heathen darkness and would have no opportunity for knowledge or any education that leads to a higher life. So it may have been Divine Providence that led them here. But what a great blot it is on a Christian nation like this country to be instrumental of such a practice as slavery! M. B.

HOME AND HAPPINESS

Mrs. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill.

(Read at a Mother-Daughter Banquet at Meadows, Ill.)

"Whene'er you find a happy home
With smiling faces in it
Where loving hearts and busy hands
Are speeding every minute;
Where every one is quite content
With one thing or another,
You'll know there lives within that home,
A wise and loving mother."

"As are families, so is society. If well-ordered, well-instructed and well-governed, they are the springs from which go forth the streams of national greatness and prosperity—of civil order and public happiness."

"Just as the strength or weakness of a tree when it is full grown is often determined in its early days, so the happiness of a home is often determined by events that have transpired in the lives of the two people years before they have met each other."

"Some homes have small chance for happiness when they begin, because of the wrong foundation laid in the ideals of the two people even before they thought seriously of love."

For the girls it is a tremendous step from a home that is certain to one that is yet to be made. From those who have understood her, sheltered her for years, and provided for her want, she goes to a love that is comparatively new and an association that is yet unproven. She gives up her name and gives over to his name whatever reputation she may have achieved. She so links herself to another that if he does wrong she suffers with him. She promises to follow him to the ends of the earth; to depend upon him for support; to receive from him a love so great that for it she will leave father and mother, brother and sister, and this not for a short time, not for a day, or a week, but for life.

From a man's point of view it is a serious step simply as a financial proposition. He enters into a contract, not as he would elsewhere for six days a week, eight hours a day, but for all the week, and for all the hours of the day; not for a time that can be determined by a few days' notice, but "till death do us part." He offers her his name. He obligates himself to support her as long as he lives. She can spend his money, run him into debt, drive him to desperation. Much of his comfort and practically all that his home can mean to him depend on her. Into his hands she is to put the shaping of the ideals of his children. She determines in large measure whether he has two hells, or two heavens, one here and one hereafter.

Married life involves constantly the most intimate relationship of life. Day after day is filled with the closest associations. Without love this becomes an irritation. But with love it becomes a joy and these intimacies form the basis for the most marvelous comradeship of life. We rightly judge, therefore, that home life depends for its satisfaction upon the reality of love between husband and wife.

REAL LOVE is the only tie strong enough to stand the strain of married life. Paul says, "Love suffers long and keeps kind." No finer tribute to love could be paid than this. To be able to carry the load of the daily work, the burden of the care of little children, to meet the irritations of the day in the average home, and keep smiling and kind; to rise above life with a poise of soul, these require some great resource.

But love can do it, Paul says. Listen, "Love is very patient, very kind. Love knows no jealousy; love makes no parade, gives itself no airs, is never rude, never selfish, never irritated, never resentful. Love is never glad when others go wrong, love is gladdened by goodness, always slow to expose, always eager to believe the best, always hopeful, always patient. Love never disappears." 1 Cor. 13:4-8. (Moffatt translation.) Can anyone describe the kind of love that is needed in home life any better than this or set it forth in finer language?

Yes, real love can do it. But it must be REAL LOVE. All this but emphasizes the demand that young life puts upon us when it says, "Tell us, then, how we may know when we are really in love."

It is hard to answer this question with absolute exactness, and yet, if we were to attempt at making an answer we should speak of at least three elements, the physical, mental, and spiritual.

Sex attraction is a real quality of love. This is the physical mark of love.

But there is also the mental side of love. Love is a matter of judgment and choice. It is not blind at all in the sense of inability to utilize its judgment. Love that has no other mark except to be swept off its feet by physical attention comes dangerously near being something that can be more nearly described by a different word with the same number of letters. Love that is real must be based upon a certain amount of mental as well as physical harmony. Emotional attraction that attempts to link up two people who have directly opposite mental interests who do not like the same books or friends or entertainments, who have not at all the same tastes or culture, is offering a shaky foundation for permanent married life. It might be easy to convey the idea that people to be happy must be absolutely congenial in tastes. This, of course, can never be so; yet love must have a surer and broader foundation than mere friendship and certainly friendship, to last long, must have a real basis in mutuality of mental equipment and life interests.

There is a third mark of love. Just as in our natures there is a mixture of the physical, the mental, and spiritual, so real love has its roots in these three sections of our natures. In some ways spiritual harmony has more to do with the permanence of the love relationship than either of the other bases that have been mentioned. Love, so called, that involves repression of the highest spiritual expressions, is a love that is going to start under a tremendous handicap. Love should really set these finer spiritual possibilities free. Married life has for its greatest undertaking the readjustment of two separate personalities in relationship that will enable those lives to develop to the fullest, not as individuals but by mutual contributions. One of the great contributions of the Christian religion is its measure of success in making individuals submerge their selfish and individual peculiarities in such a way as to enable them to live peaceably and happily with others. And, finally, if the emotion that they feel drives each of them to seek, not the selfish ends to be gained by the individual, but the serving spirit which creates a sense of obligation and protection for the other, we may well say that most of the great marks of real love are in evidence.

If God is what we say He is and we in any real sense are His children, if He has placed within us such great gifts as love, the joy of companionship, and the urge of parenthood, and if, as we are led to believe, one of His chief concerns is that we shall come into the fullest realization of life here upon earth, and by entering here into the riches of the experiences of living together through our homes, be prepared for an even larger and more entrancing experience of fellowship hereafter, then where shall we turn except to Him, and His Revealer, Jesus Christ, to learn the spirit and methods by which we home-makers shall come into the fullest glory of the experience of love and family life? He should be its inspiration as it begins, its guide as it develops, and its glory at its consummation. Under His guidance for us all "it shall come to pass that at evening time it shall be light." God wants us to have the home we planned for, and the one He wishes for us is better than we can dream."

THE FAR SIGHT

A young man living in New York, whose eyes had been troubling him, consulted an oculist.

"What you want to do," said the specialist, "is to take a trip every day on the ferry, or in New Jersey, Long Island, — any place where you can see long distances. Look up and down the river, across the fields, or, if it comes to the worst, go to the top of a skyscraper and scan the horizon from that point. The idea is to get distance. You use your eyes a great deal and always at close range. You can't use them in any other way in town. Even when not reading and writing, the vision is limited by small rooms and narrow streets. No matter in what direction you look, there is a blank wall not far away to shut off sight."

Even so is it true in the matter of our spiritual vision. The reason so many of us do not understand the things of God better than we do is because we do not get distance. We confine truth; we limit the divine to what we know —to what is immediately about us. Get out and get "distance."

CORRESPONDENCE

Gnadenberg C. E. of Whitewater, Kans. We have but one C. E. Society which meets every other Sunday. Our programs have been excellent with scarcely an absentee number for several months. At a very recent program Miss Grace Unruh presented a paper on "The Jewish Method of Religious Education," of which I would like to pass on a few excerpts. "Every father was required to teach his children the sacred history of his nation, with the great deeds of his ancestors, and to talk of them while sitting in the house or walking by the way, when they retired to rest, and when they rose for the day. A devout Jew began his daily religious life with his first waking moments. He was taught that his first thoughts, as soon as he waked, should be directed to the worship of God," and "In a virtuous home no opportunity was lost at the table, at home or other places, evening or morning, of placing reverence for God's law into the minds of the family and of teaching them its words, till they knew them from memory." Corr.

Reedley, California, April 17, 1934. Since the consolidation of the Mennonite and Evangel into one publication, a move which seems to meet with universal approval, I realize that the space for correspondences from the different churches is limited, and yet, having been elected by my church as correspondent, I will endeavor to do my duty and try to be brief so as not to monopolize too much of your valuable space.

Prayer week was observed at the beginning of the year by a series of meetings conducted by Bro. W. W. Miller of Pulaski, Iowa. After that a woman evangelist, holding meetings in the Baptist church, supporting her husband in apparent idleness, spoke twice in our church.

Later on Rev. Pritchard gave a series of Bible studies on the letter to the Galatians. At the beginning of the year we set an enrollment of 400 as a goal for our Sunday School. Several weeks ago we reached and passed this goal.

On Good Friday the citizens of our town had a two hour union service in the Methodist church, and on Easter Sunday we had baptismal and communion service in our church. Thirteen young people, after having received biblical instructions, were baptized upon confession of their faith, and a husband and wife were received into the church by the hand of fellowship, after which we celebrated the Lord's Supper.

The Two County C. E. Convention took place at Fowler a week ago and it being only sixteen miles from here, many of our people attended.

Last Sunday our choir of fifty-two voices conducted by Bro. C. F. Mueller and accompanied on the piano by Sister Emma Ruth, sang the Holy City by Gaul. The church was packed full to the last seat in the Sunday School room and the whole audience was thrilled and delighted by the rendition. In two weeks they will sing it again in the Presbyterian church at Fresno.

This week-end the Mennonite Sunday School and C. E. will hold its convention at Upland, Calif. Five autos will go from here and I, too, should like to go, especially since the new highway over the Tehatchihi Mountains has been completed and people drive from here to S., California in six hours, as compared with a day and a half when I first made the trip 26 years ago. But circumstances tell me that the time has come when it is best for me to stay at home and in this time of depression one ought to be thankful if he has a home in which to stay.

On March 2nd, our youngest son, Arthur, was married and established his own home, so since then Mrs. Krehbiel and I have the large house to ourselves, but the house has served its day and generation in the past 24 years when the children were at home, and it is still serving a useful purpose in providing us with a home and a place of entertainment when the children and grandchildren come to visit us.

Last Sunday our granddaughter from Woodlake came with her parents and brought with her a little playmate. Upon arrival she showed her companion "My Grandma's House" from cellar to garret and the wood shed and chicken house, after which the two kept house unrestricted and unsupervised all afternoon in the garret. I wonder if you can visualize from a rainy afternoon of your childhood which you spent treasure hunting in the garret of your parent's home the delight of those two little girls last Sunday afternoon? How long we can keep the home, I do not know. The government is trying to help homeowners and farmers, but that help is wrapped up in too much red tape, that after you have made application for the same and answered 183 questions you just have to press your soul in patience and wait to see whether all the red tape can be unrolled without getting it into a knot. What a topsy turvy world we are living in! Here the government pays the farmers for reducing production. In Germany the government urges the farmers to produce more in order to support the population, and Senator Borah tells us in a recent speech that the international munition manufacturers are working like the devil himself to push humanity into another world war. It all goes to show that the petition of the Lord's Prayer, "Thy will be done on earth as in heaven," has not yet been fulfilled and that Christ's followers still have a great mission.

H. J. Krehbiel.

Coopersburg, Pa., April 17, 1934. Phil. 3:14. Fellow Christians of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— Greetings in the Lord! It is rather a long while since you saw even a jotting from Saucon Mennonite, Coopersburg, Pennsylvania.

We are prospering in the Lord under the faithful care of the Pastor Elwood S. Shelly of Pennsburg, Pa. His special Lenten services, including the Lord's Supper on April 15, were all well attended by members and friends of the surrounding community.

Our new deacon, Frank H. Kramer, of Bethlehem, Penna., assisted for the first time at the communion table.

Our mid-week prayer meetings are the pulse of our church and all who attend speak very highly of the spirit of these praise and prayer meetings. Opportunity is given for testimony. Recently a member of our Young Peoples Plus Ultra Bible Class was saved at our mid-week service. She has been very active in His service ever since. Recently she completed her fourth Christian scrap-book for homes and hospitals.

Our Bible school under the able leadership of Andrew R. Shelly, youngest son of Elwood S. Shelly and brother of Paul R. Shelly, now in training for the ministry at Ursinus College, is steadily increasing its membership.

A special feature is a German Bible class taught by our deacon, Frank H. Kramer.

Our Christian Endeavor Societies, Senior and Junior, are both gaining members. Our Juniors have their meetings every Lord's Day at 6:30 P. M., keeping the doors of our old sacred landmark open for evening worship. The attendance of our last Senior meeting toed near the hundred mark, with one of our newly elected trustees as leader, Racie Beam, of Coopersburg, Pa.

The sudden passing of one of our most faithful prayer meeting committee members, Flora M. Wimmer, was noted with deep regret. She was a loving, sincere member. It is a good thing to give thanks unto Jehovah for faithful souls and to continue to show forth God's faithfulness every morning, and His infinite kindness every night.

And now as we close, may we ask your continued prayers that we may be proven faithful in the task before us. We believe that God is working at Saucon as never before and we are eager to stand by our pastor and be used of God as He may lead. Yours in Christian fellowship, Laura Adams Nolf.

First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, April 28, 1934. Dear Editors and Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— Since in our congregation things are happening pretty fast, we will have to report to our paper or the correspondence will get too lengthy, and the editors do not like that.

On February 4, our missionary J. B. Frey spoke to the Sunday School and preached an interesting sermon. The Lord's Supper was celebrated on February 18. Dr. Lohrenz from Bethel College preaches now pretty regularly every alternate Sunday and sometimes in the evening. For about twelve weeks he conducted on Thurday evenings a teachers' training class, in which he gave an introduction into the books of the Bible in an interesting way. A short prayer meeting was held in connection with the class, and the attendance was good. A teachers' meeting was held for the Sunday School teachers before the prayer meeting and class, and the choir practiced after the training class. Prof. Anderson of Bethel College is the teacher.

The choir appears on Sundays in neat, black gowns, which looks well, and the choir gives us good, edifying songs. Our choir, in connection with the choir of the First Christian Church, rendered the cantata "The Crucifixion" on Sunday evening, March 25, in the First Christian church and on Good Friday evening in our church.

During the Passion Week there were services in our church in the evening, the pastors of different churches in the city preached.

Monday, April 9, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander preached and spoke on the work of the Publication Board and its importance. On Tuesday evening he preached and spoke on the work of the young peoples' societies.

On Saturday afternoon, April 14, Brother and Sister Abr. Richert celebrated in our church their golden wedding.

Sunday, April 15, Rev. Abr. Warkentin, former assistant pastor of our church, preached in the forenoon and evening. From Monday until Friday he conducted an interesting Bible class on the epistle to the Hebrews in the afternoon in German, and preached in the evening in English. The meetings were well attended, they were instructive and edifying. He left for Chicago Friday evening after the service.

Sunday, April 22, Rev. Paul Harris, Jr., spoke on Peace in a very interesting way. In the morning he spoke in Bethel College, in the afternoon and evening in the auditorium.

In the evening of April 22 the combined chorus of Bethel College sang in the First Mennonite Church. In the afternoon of that day Bro. Herman Claassen died and the funeral was Wednesday afternoon.

Of the young people attending the catechumenal instruction of our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz, a number have decided to give their hearts and lives to the Lord. May they be an honor to their Savior and to our congregation.

With brotherly greetings to the readers and friends, C. van der Smissen.

SOURCES OF HAPPINESS

Mrs. Joe G. Graber, Freeman, S. Dak.
Salem C. E. Society

(Conclusion from last issue.)

Jesus teaches us a beautiful way to receive happiness, and that is through service, when He washed the disciples' feet. None of us is too great nor too low to be of service for Christ's Kingdom. Our greatest happiness often lies in service. We do not have to go far out into the world to perform great deeds, but right in our own home, school, church, and community can we be of service by doing simple deeds of kindness and love. Doing to others as we should like to have them do to us. Jesus Himself, our greatest example, was always living for others, denying self, always cheerful and always in every way helpful to others. Idleness is the last place to look for happiness, for always an idle person is an unhappy person. There is no happiness greater than the satisfaction of having some noble work to do, and we as Christians have to let our lives be guided and lived for Christ. We must be willing to bring sacrifices, for often through these do we achieve happiness. Oftimes in trying to lead a godly life our friends shun us and Satan tries to lead us into sinful ways. "If ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye; if ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye, for the Spirit of God resteth upon you. On their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified." Peter 3:14; 4:14.

Finally, as our closing thought let us take the words of the Psalmist when he says, "Happy is the people whose God is the Lord." Ps. 144:15. For after all, Christ is our greatest source of happiness. Somebody said that all the crime and misery of the world rests upon the failure of human being to understand the principle that no man can be really happy until he harmonizes with the best thing in him: with the divine and not the brute. The God in him is the only possible thing that can make him happy."

Let us therefore ask God for a noble work to do, a purpose to live for, so that we may know and understand Him better. For if He is in us and we in Him, then He will give us a wise and understanding heart and our trust and faith will be daily growing stronger and truer. No service nor sacrifice will be too great and we shall receive the greatest happiness promised to all God's children.

THE PLACE OF JUNIOR CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR IN THE CHURCH

The church is an essential institution to help strengthen the life of the Christian. So Junior Christian Endeavor is an essential organization within the church to develop the child's spiritual and mental life.

The leading principles of Junior C. E. are pledged service for Christ, regular witness bearing for Christ, daily prayer and Bible reading, loyalty to the church, training in committee work and fellowship with those of other churches. With these principles, Junior Christian Endeavor is a regular training school for the children, preparing them for the older part of the church.

Each Junior can be given a little task to do which makes them feel that they are a part of the society and of the church. A child is always so eager to do something. If it is not directed in its actions through work as the Junior Christian Endeavor will give, it will use its energy somewhere else less profitably. If we can early give them something to do their interests are more liable to stay in the church.

To take part in programs gives the child a chance to express himself and in this way to be a witness for Christ. He will show others that he is trying to follow Christ and encourage another one to lead a Christian life. Christ is glad to have children show that they love Him and are trying to do His will. He can come nearer to them when thus they try to get close to Him.

The Junior pledge keeps before them their duties; we are far more likely to do our duty if we have promised to do it than if we do not promise. It will strengthen their wills which are so powerful in making them successful in life. Besides they are required to make many pledges in life and being true to the Junior pledge will help them to be true to other pledges.

It trains them to be leaders in our future church—their executive abiliities are developed as they are given a chance to exercise them in little offices that they are given.

One of the promises of the Junior pledge is that they try to do whatever Christ would have them do. It early brings them into the will of God and teaches them to surrender their lives to Him. Another promise in their pledge is to pray and read the Bible every day which helps them to learn His will for them.

Junior Christian Endeavor is also a missionary agency for the church. Juniors like to give and give for something definite. They enjoy missionary stories which is a great help in ocquainting them with mission work and with different countries in which the work is carried on.

So little time is given to the spiritual development of the child that it behooves us to take such an opportunity as the Junior Christian Endeavor Society. It makes them more successful to do a man's or woman's work in the world. It will strengthen their good purposes, and make them wiser and better members of our future church.

The Everyday Use And Abuse Of Money

Luke 19:12-17; 1 Timothy 6:10

Of course by our topic we will mean the Christian use and abuse of money. This is a timely topic. Money has been at the root of our last few years of trouble and misery. Before the depression, men put too much stress on things material and not enough on the values spiritual. They desired to selfishly accumulate much wealth and satisfy themselves with luxuries they could not afford. If we have learned a few lessons the past few years, it will have been worth all it cost. We should have learned that money is of no value worthy of our implicit trust. It can be swept away overnight, leaving us miserable beggars if we trust only in wealth. Human welfare for all men is of far greater importance than much material gain accumulated by the few. We question as to whether any one man can possibly earn a million dollars in one year while millions are on the border of starvation. We may also question in the future as to whether any one individual may have a social right to hold such vast sums. The state may hold that a larger burden of taxation should be placed on those who have means thus alleviating those who have a bare existence.

No, money in itself is no evil, but Paul spoke quite truly to young Timothy when he warned him that "the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil." Jesus looked upon the young man with great compassion when he went away sorrowfully, for he had great possessions, his money had overmastered him, he no longer had the money, but the money had him. That was the danger which Jesus saw in money when He spoke about the rich fool. Money is like a bad cancer sore, it eats into the very vitals and takes the best there is in a man.

Questions

1. What is money?
2. To what lengths shall we go to gain money? When does money cost too dearly?
3. What are some of the worst abuses of money?
4. How saving should we be with our money?
5. How may a Christian wisely apportion his money?
6. Do you believe that "God will bless a consecrated nine-tenth more than when the whole is spent on oneself?"
7. What lessons does Jesus wish to teach us in Luke 19:12-17?

It is difficult to find a middle way between the way of the miser and the spendthrift. Both are wrong. The miser, like Silas Marner, handles and worships his gold, it is lying idle while many of his brothers have not enough to eat and to wear. He could find real joy and service in putting that money to work, it would bring him untold joy if he could thus help human beings to become more comfortable and thus more hopeful. On the other hand, there are those who let money pass through their hands "like water." They do not appreciate a nickle or a dollar, perhaps because they have never found it necessary to earn money for themselves. The day will come to the spendthrift youth when he will desire to set up a home or a business and he will need money and he will then see what a fool he has been. Some people quite needy, do not seem to have the sense of proper proportions, namely, to use their money for things most essential to a full abundant life.

An interesting meeting could be had by assigning the daily readings as topics for discussion; this week they are as follows:

May 21 Benevolence. Deuteronomy 15:12-15.
May 22 Giving to God. Proverbs 3:9.
May 23 Selfish use of money. James 2:1-6.
May 24 Unwise display. 1 John 2:15-17.
May 25 The hoarder. Luke 12:13-21.
May 26 Selfish use of money. Luke 16:19-31.
May 27 Use and abuse of money. Luke 19:12-17; 1 Tim. 6:10.

The Christian Use of Sunday

Exodus 20:8; Mark 2:27-28

During the last year or two there has been a wave of moral laxity coming over our country. Instead of being more concerned with the spiritual and moral welfare of man we have legalized the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors, betting, the lottery and what not, all in order that more moneys may flow into the treasuries of states and selfish individuals and money-grasping organizations, irrespective of what harm it will do to sear the souls of men, women and children. Increasingly, all thinking and doing must be determined by the influence it will bring to bear upon men and women.

With the coming of summer there is the perennial problem of using the day which God has set apart of special spiritual refreshment, for mere commercial purposes and for pleasures which will not tend to build up the spiritual natures. God meant that the Sabbath day should be a gift to mankind in order that the body might find rest and the soul new strength. Sitting in one of our ball parks listening to the not too Christian language, or gathering each Sunday for some noisy game of tennis or baseball, disturbing the peace of others who desire to worship, is hardly using the Sabbath in the way God meant that it should.

The Sabbath should be the most joyful day of the week. It is a day when we joyfully worship a gracious loving God, we meet in Christian fellowship those like ourselves. Sunday should be family day. Every member of the family should plan to spend the afternoon with the other members of the home group. The parents may plan special privileges for that particular time, perchance it may be a good book or some other special diversion which is enjoyed by all, but always reserved for Sunday. There are many things which may be one on Sunday which are different from the other days of the week, and which will be beneficial and uplifting. It is the great opportunity of the home, to use that day to bind the family together with the bands of love and to direct the minds and hearts of all to a loving but righteous God.

We do not want to make the Sabbath a Puritanical day which will be hated by every one, but always make it a day of all the week the best, one that will minister to the fullest wellbeing of man. "The Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath." But unless we use this day to teach our children more of God's precious truths they will grow up and never know the most blessed gifts which should be the heritage of every child. Older people, too, need to feed their spiritual natures and become more fully attuned to God. O blessed Sabbath day, a day of all the best when we may rest from all our labors and do some of the fine, uplifting things we do not seem to find time for during the week. It is a day of refreshing, preparing us for the harder days of the week. We should so spend our Sundays that Monday morning will find us prepared to meet the tasks of the week. Sunday is God's day in a special way, blessed is the man who so uses it, and sorrows will follow him who uses it for his own hurt or to the harm of others.

Questions

1. How has God ordained that the Sabbath should be observed?
2. What has been the result when men have desecrated the Sabbath?

3. What are some of the worst abuses of Sunday?
4. What principles should determine our rightful use of the Sabbath?
5. What are some things the Sabbath can do for us?

A Christian's Duty Toward His Body

Daniel 1:15-16

What is your estimate of the body God has given to you? Someone has said to the undertaker it is just a carcass, to the athelete an efficient machine, and to the Christian the temple of the soul. P. R. Hayward has given

A Message From Within To Modern Youth

I Am Your Body.

Centuries ago, through the long history of men, it was being decided what I would be like—my size, my shape, my color, and the inward capacities that now bind or free your life—all these were being decided then.

Out of this long stream of your physical ancestry I came forth to be a vital part of that mysterious Something that the world calls You.

In ceaseless and unknown ministries I enrich and empower your life.

I am, as the wise man saw many centuries in the past, "fearfully and wonderfully made."

I live my life according to unseen but changeless laws—laws of food, and sleep, and exercise, and cleanliness, and wholesome self-control of my appetites.

O youth, obey these laws of mine and I will become wings on which your spirit can soar and achieve; break them, and I will blight, and blister, and blast your soul.

Slumbering within me are the physical foundations of those great passions that enrich or enslave the souls of men. Within me the childhood of tomorrow awaits its chance to carry onward and higher the torch of life.

I am in your hands, O youth, to become at your command, the hard master or the willing and happy slave of your spirit—and I await your word as to which it is to be.

I Am Your Body.

Our bodies are wonderfully made, consider any one part, the eye for instance, no machine has ever been made to equal it, or consider the heart, what an efficient machine it is. To most of us is given a strong body, but it is given to us as a trust, to be cared for, it is to serve us, but we should never become a slave to the body. "Whatsoever a man sows that shall he also reap." Many a man has sought to have liberty and enjoy a good time only to spend many long years in grieving over his past foolishness and in dreaming what he might have done had he used his body more wisely.

Questions

1. Tell about the great gift from God in giving us such wonderful bodies.
2. How careful should we be with our bodies; can we save them too much?
3. What are some of the ways in which we abuse our bodies?
4. How does the law of sowing and reaping pertain to our topic?
5. Is the spiritual welfare dependent on the physical well-being?

Playing the Game at Home

Eph. 4:26-32; Rom. 15:1-3

"O to your birthright and yourselves,
To your own souls be true,
A weary, wretched life is theirs
Who have no work to do."—Anon.

Pointogram

If we cannot serve those in our home, we cannot serve in a wider sphere. We serve our apprenticeship in the home.

Pre-Prayer

Let us ask God to help us "Brighten the corner where we are, in the Home." This will effect our social life and our religious life, as well.

Piano Prelude—Help Somebody Today.

Call to Worship—Reading in unison, Ephesians 4:26-32.

Sentence prayers by several members, asking God's guidance in the C. E. meetings here and everywhere as this individually important topic is discussed tonight.

Group Song.

Introduction to discussion by leader. — Last week we discussed home life around the world. We took notice of many injustices and unfair play in the problems of home life. Tonight let us look into our own homes and give and take some constructive actions on playing the game in our homes.

Special musical number.

Question 1. How does playing the game fairly or unfairly at home affect

a. The individual?
b. The home?
c. The religious life?
d. The nation?

Question 2. Why should home chores be evenly divided?

Question 3. What if one of the family refuses to do his share?

Question 4. How may the spirit of cooperation be developed in the home?

Question 5. Just how much should the parents dictate and how much should the children be allowed to think things through for themselves?

Question 6. How do words and tone of voice help to keep harmony and love in the home?

Question 7. How is home like a nursery? Explain this statement made by E. Jones.

Question 8. What does the happiness of a home depend upon?

Question 9. Suggest some ways of administering discipline.

Question 10. How should our playing the game at home remind us of our life in our heavenly home?

Rays of Sunshine

The very tone of your voice can be a curse or a benediction.

Burn your own smoke. If you feel bitter, be silent. And when others feel the same way, respect their silence.

Happiness does not depend on the kind of home we have so much as upon the kind of people that live there. We make them what they are.

They Gave The World A Song

Ps. 98:1-8

(Hymn-writers and their hymns.
Consecration Meeting.)

> "God is its author, and not man. He laid
> The keynote of all harmonies. He planned
> All perfect combinations, and He made
> Us so that we could hear and understand."
> —Brainard.

Pre-Prayer

Praise God for the expressions of the hearts and interpretations of the love of God and the needs of man, manifested in sacred hymns. Ask God for a heart and life out of which can flow the spirit of Praise and Victory.

Use the favorite hymns as group songs, special songs, musical readings, and poems to be given after the explanation of the thoughts which inspired the writer to so write.

Use as many other well known hymns as you can. It would be well to ask six or eight members to come prepared to tell about the authors of several well-known hymns.

1. "Abide With Me" was written by an English minister, Rev. Henry F. Lyte, who was ill and knew that he had not many years to live. His hymns have brought comfort to many who have faced the shadows.

2. "I Am Thine, O Lord," was written by Fanny Crosby, who wrote more hymns than any one else ever did. It is the expression of her own notable consecration.

3. "To the Work, to the Work," written by Fanny Crosby, who was blind, but whose stirring call in this hymn has aroused thousands to the greatness of their opportunities and the shortness of time.

4. "Give of Your Best to the Master," was written by Howard B. Grose, a young Christian Endeavor pastor, later editor. It was Dr. Grose who designed the Christian Endeavor pin.

5. "Just As I Am, Without One Plea," was written by Charlotte Elliott at the time she saw that to accept Christ she had nothing to do by way of preparation, but just accept Him. The hymn grew out of her heart-searching prayer to God.

Scripture Hymns

David and his shepherd psalm. Ps. 23:1-6.
An unknown author. Ps. 1:1-6.
John's great hymn. Rev. 7:9-17.
"No Night There." Rev. 21:21-27.
Paul's hymn of Love." 1 Cor. 13:1-13.
"Nearer My God, To Thee." Gen. 28:10-22.

Close with a prayer of praise and appreciation for the messages and spiritual life that we have found ANEW tonight in these hymns. "God, give us a greater appreciation of Thee and of Thy messages to us through these, thy servants."

Wisdom From the East

Prov. 1:1-6
(A Study of Proverbs)

Proverbs is a book especially for youth. Read it and see how often youth are spoken to directly. It is experience talking with inexperience.

Pre-Prayer

As Solomon, let us unitedly pray for spiritual wisdom, that we may "rightly divide the Word of Truth."

The Book of Proverbs

1. Proverbs is a book of life. It deals with situations that arise in daily life and points out the sensible course to follow. It is a spiritual, practical and intellectual chart.

2. The message of Proverbs is that religion is the highest wisdom. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom."

3. In the old days the book of Proverbs was a text-book in the Scottish schools, imparting a good deal of that shrewdness and practical wisdom for which Scots are famous.

Explain and Comment Upon the Following

1. How does Prov. 1:10-19 warn against gangsters.
2. Happy are the merciful. Prov. 3:3.
3. What is the law of giving and receiving as given in Prov. 3:9, 10.
4. Do we need wisdom to guide our thoughts? Prov. 4:23-27.
5. Is it wise to look ahead? Prov. 6:6-11.
6. What is the beauty of love? Prov. 10:12.
7. Why is Prov. 13:7 called a Biblical puzzle?
8. What is your favorite proverb?
9. What do Proverbs say about friendship?
10. What do Proverbs say about foolishness?

Challenge!

Have you ever read the Book of Proverbs? Let us read it, beginning tonight and reading at least one chapter a day. Let us all begin together. Then if we have any questions about it, let us ask our pastor about them during the first or last five or ten minutes of each I. C. E. meeting. Appoint someone to make a question box and urge questions (sensible and honest inquiry), which can or need not be signed by the one who wishes to know. The reading and the discussions will be helpful and inspirational to your group.

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn

Topic—God's Wonder World: Beautiful Things In Nature

Matt. 6:28-30

While visiting in Chicago a number of years ago, Dr. G. Campbell Morgan of England told this story to help folks understand Matt. 6:28, 29. While sitting at breakfast in a home where he was visiting, he noticed a rose that someone had made. It was so beautiful that it looked quite like a real flower. As Dr. Morgan admired it, the man who was entertaining him sent a servant to bring a real rose from the garden. The two, when placed side by side, looked almost alike. Then the man asked Dr. Morgan to look at them through a microscope. What a difference! The beauty seemed gone from the artificial flower when it was enlarged but the real one showed richness and beauty which could not be seen before. That is the way God makes things. The more we see of His handiwork, the more beautiful it seems. With a microscope one sees great beauty and order even in a tiny snow flake or a blade of grass.

Plans for the Meeting

If possible, bring a microscope to the meeting and have the Juniors examine leaves and flowers through it. Seeing the perfection of even the minutest detail should help them to appreciate God and His wisdom and goodness.

Questions

1. How is God's love shown in nature?
2. Mention things in nature which show God's wisdom?
3. Where is God's power shown in nature?
4. Tell of God's careful planning for the things He has created.
5. How may we show our appreciation of the beautiful things God has made?

Topic—Being Like Christ In His Forgiving

Matt. 18:21, 22; Luke 23:34.
(Consecration Meeting.)

There is a story told of a brother and sister who often quarreled. It seemed the brother was especially to blame, and at last the sister felt something must be done. Mother had told the children that Jesus had said folks should forgive until seventy times seven. The girl wanted to do what was right, so decided to make a list of the times she forgave her brother and stop forgiving when she had reached four hundred and ninety. That went well for a time, then she did something he didn't like, and he forgave her. He must have credit for this, so the sister decided to check off one for each time he forgave. She found soon that they were so nearly even that she knew she must stop counting and just keep on forgiving. I wonder if that isn't what Jesus meant when He said, "Until seventy times seven."

Plans for the Meeting

As this is Consecration meeting, why not have the Juniors quote verses on forgiveness in response to roll call. The Daily Readings may be used as a basis of study in the meeting.

Questions

1. What does it mean to forgive?
2. How does Christ forgive?
3. How may we become like Him in forgiving?
4. Why should we forgive others?
5. How can we prove that we have really forgiven one who has wronged us?

Topic—God's Wonder Book: How It Came To Us

2 Tim. 3:15-17

In 2 Pet. 2:20,21 and 2 Tim. 3:16 we learn that the Bible is the Word of God. He spoke to many men at different times and they wrote as He spoke. Almost all of the Old Testament was written in Hebrew, a very small part in Aramaic. The New Testament was written in Greek. Many translations have been made into other languages. The Bible that most of us use, the King James Version, was translated into English in 1611. The Bible is a wonderful Book because of the way it was written, the way God has taken care of it all these years, and because of the messages it brings. There has never been another book to compare with it.

Questions

1. How was the Bible written?
2. Why did God give us this wonderful Book?
3. Name some of the writers.
4. Why do we call the Bible a wonderful Book?
5. How has the Bible come to us?

Daily Readings

How the Book was written. Heb. 1:1,2.
Men wrote their visions. Ezek. 1:4; 2:1.
Men moved to write. Jer. 1:4-10.
Preserved by scribes. Neh. 8:1-4.
Held sacred. Acts 17:2, 11.
Many authors. Isa. 1:1, Hos. 1:1.

Use thy youth so that thou mayest have comfort to remember it when it hath forsaken thee, and not sigh and grieve at the account thereof. Use it as a springtime which soon departeth, and wherein thou oughtest to plant and sow all provisions for a long and happy life.—Walter Raleigh.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

May 27, 1934

The Last Judgment

Lesson Text—Matt. 25: 31-46

Golden Text—We must all be made manifest before the judgment seat of Christ. II Cor. 5:10.

We are still studying Jesus' warnings concerning preparations for the future. In this same chapter He told the story of the wise and foolish virgins which we studied last Sunday, then He told the story of the talents. The ten virgins taught the lesson of watching, the talents the lesson of working while you watch. Jesus was extremely practical in all of His teachings. Although He emphasized the future He always had in mind its effect upon the present. He was not interested when the world should come to an end, but rather what effect its coming to an end would have upon the daily walk and conduct of the disciples in the present. In the parable which we have before us today He deals with the question of judgment. The truth of this lesson can be applied to our lives not only as we look forward to a future judgment but to that judgment which comes to us day by day. Life is made up of activities which become habits. These habits determine our character and destiny. Day by day we make a link in that chain of habits which either binds us into slavery or serves as a protection against the enemies of life.

This parable of the sheep and the goats is a story with a moral. The outstanding difference between sheep and goats in Syria was that the sheep were white and the goats black. So Jesus compares the judgment when all people shall be gathered before Him to a separation of sheep and goats. This is not an arbitrary division because the goats were goats determined by goat habits and goat life. The same was true of the sheep. The loving Father will not be arbitrary in His judgment of life, but each life determines by its attitudes and experiences whether it shall be on the right or the left side. This decision will not even be made on the basis of our form of worship, our ceremonies or our orthodoxy of belief. According to this parable it is based upon man's attitude towards the needs that faced Him. What a great truth this is in our present day civilization. Those that were placed on the right side were those who had rendered service in the name and spirit of Jesus Christ. These righteous had not even stopped to ask who the objects of their solicitude were. They saw a need and met it with no thought of reward. They asked, "When did we do these things?" and the King said, "As often as ye did it to one of the least of these," undoubtedly referring to the common mass of humanity. Those on the left side were turned away and punished, not because it was the Father's will or that He had withdrawn His love, but because their own selfishness and indifference they had created the hell in which they must suffer. I heard a man say a few days ago publicly that the time will come when God will no more love humanity. I do not believe that God will ever change His attitude or nature as far as man is concerned. Man determines his own destiny. He makes the gap between Lazarus in Abraham's bosom and the man in hell. Many people have difficulty in harmonizing the idea of a loving Father with the punishment of the wicked. Every man day by day as he faces opportunity and accepts or rejects responsibility determines his future destiny.

Jesus in the Shadow of the Cross

Lesson Text—Matt. 26:31-46

Golden Text—He went forward a little, and fell on his face, and prayed saying, My Father, if it be possible let this cup pass away from me; nevertheless not as I will but as thou wilt. Matt. 26:39.

We are approaching nearer and nearer to the time when Jesus goes to the cross. Too often we study Jesus' life and death as two entirely separate events, some placing more emphasis on His life, others on His death, but His life was as His robe of one piece without any seam. His life without His death is incomplete in its meaning to the world, and His death without His life is meaningless. Jesus begins to feel very much the weight of the experience which He shall have in a few hours. He goes to His accustomed place, the Garden of Gethsemane, to commune with His Father. He is human. The loneliest hour is upon Him, and He needs strength and courage to go through with it. His disciples were with Him, but they were not able to share with Him His experience or help Him. They stood in the midst of evaporating good intentions, but when the test came they forsook Him and fled. Jesus leaves them and goes forward a little farther to be alone with God. It has always been necessary for great leaders to go a little farther and to agonize as lonely men in order to lead others to higher heights. Jesus undoubtedly suffered more here in the garden than He did on the cross. Mental agony is more severe than physical agony. He has been facing the cross ever since the day of His baptism and now He has come to the last and supreme test of His faith. In the garden He gained the victory. This is the greatest battle that was ever fought in the history of the world. He left the garden with a firmness in His step and a brightness in His eye which showed that He had gained the victory. The truth of this lesson comes to us in the question: What does it mean to follow Him? We say, I will be Christian. Are we ready to go with Him into Gethsemane as well as on the mount of transfiguration? Too often with Peter we will say, I will go with you all the way and then when the first test comes which would effect our position or material gains or pleasure, we deny Him. So often our reliance on Jesus is a passing ecstasy rather than a firm conviction. Let us now be going facing forward with Christ as our leader.

CORRESPONDENCE

West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas. Mennonite and Christian Evangel Readers:—Have we ever paused long enough to count some of our blessings or make note of the many things for which we are thankful? Or have we ever said from the depth of our heart: "Grateful, O Lord, am I?" Those of our readers who have read Bro. Petter's twenty-two reasons for thankfulness will have been truly inspired and perhaps found new reasons for thankfulness.

My report is rather a tardy one for the first quarter, as the New Year has already left in its wake many weeks, however I shall report briefly of a few important dates.

On December 10, Dr. E. G. Kaufman of Bethel College, was with us for two services, after the evening address a Bethel Fellowship was organized, with Mr. Dale Galle as president.

The Christmas holidays passed in the usual way, with the Sunday School and White Gift program on Christmas eve, the annual cantata on Christmas night. "The Christmas King," by Fred B. Holton, was given by our church chorus. The cantata was also given in the Buhler church and they, in turn, gave their cantata in our church.

Prayer week was again observed the second week in January, with a goodly number attending the three meetings.

On February 11, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. D. Fast of our congregation were privileged to celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The entire morning worship service was dedicated to them.

West Zion enjoyed very much the sacred concert given by the Bethel College chorus, under the direction of Prof. Hohman, on the night of March 11.

Union services were conducted during Passion Week, which were well attended, the theme for the week being, "The Seven Last Words of Christ." The following ministers brought inspirational messages: Rev. E. E. Erfmeyer (Newton) and Rev. H. Wiens (Moundridge), Evangelical; Rev. P. E. Frantz, Buhler, Rev. H. T. Unruh, Halstead, Rev. P. P. Wedel, and Rev. P. K. Regier of Moundridge (Mennonite).

At the present time the joint choirs of the Mennonite churches in and near Moundridge are rehearsing for the annual song festival, which will be held this year on the Bethel College campus. Prof. Hohman is the director.

Last Sunday evening, April 15, the three young refugee women from Russia, who are attending Bethel College, gave a very interesting program under the auspices of the Mission Workers' Society. After hearing the talks by these ladies, many left the church saying, "How thankful WE should be!"

Mrs. D. O. Rupp, Corr.

Corn, Oklahoma. The boys of the Corn Bible School, Corn, Okla., visited us on the Sunday night of March 25, 1934, and rendered an inspiring program composed of singing, readings, and music.

Members of the Ebenezer church met the afternoon of Easter Sunday to celebrate the birthday of both our pastor, Mr. Hege, and Bro. C. F. Duerksen. It is interesting to note that on this date Mr. Duerksen was twice the age of Mr. Hege—the ages being eighty and forty respectively.

JOTTINGS

At the time of this writing, the Eastern Conference is in session at Schwenksville, Pa. Representatives from churches in ten counties are attending. This is the oldest local conference in the General Conference, having been organized in October 1847. For years the conference held semi-annual meetings, but in the beginning of the century the meetings were held yearly. The use of the German language in this Conference has disappeared long ago and services in the conference churches are conducted wholly in English. The first session of this body met and organized in the Skippack church. The most prominent early leaders were the ministers Abraham Hunsicker, John Oberholtzer, Joseph Schantz, and a number of deacons connected with the churches they represented. The Eastern District Conference is the most fully organized of all the General Conference conferences. Several ministers from the East met in Iowa to organize the General Conference which will hold its seventy-fifth anniversary in connection with the meeting of General Conference in Los Angeles, Calif., next year.

A letter to the editor from Dr. J. J. Isaak, of Harbin, Manchuria, brings the information that the remaining group of Mennonite refugees in that city, comprising 175 persons of whom 75 are children, left by transport for Brazil on April 2. Before sailing, two children were born to the group. Two years ago a group of 370 persons was transported to Paraguay. The present group will follow the same route taken by the former group. They stop at Shanghai, proceed to Marseilles, and then overland to Havre, and from there across the Atlantic to their destination in the southern part of Brazil where already many Mennonite refugees are settled in a section of the country in which there are a great many German inhabitants. Arrangements for this great journey were made by Herr Keno, a representative of the League of Nations, assisted by Dr. Isaak, who is a Mennonite physician practicing in Harbin. Mennonites and other friends in various parts of the world have financed this undertaking. The leader of the group is Herr Froese. A picture of the group, taken before sailing, shows people of various ages, from infants in arms to grandmothers and grandfathers. With the group are Herr Keno of the League of Nations, the German counsel and his wife, and secretary, Dr. Isaak and Herr Froese, who will lead on this long thip.

The Mennonite Settlement in Paraguay has for some time been experimenting with various crops in order to find the kind best suited to their conditions. Some of the crops with which they are familiar, are not suited to the country and so they must find something that they are able to handle and for which there is a demand. Their efforts are now in the direction of cotton. They have found that American seed suits their conditions best, and are therefore planting Cleveland Big Boll Cotton. As it was in Russia and America that the use of proper and improved seed was the secret of their later prosperity, so it is to be hoped that their selection of seed will result in their economic advance in the country under the Southern Cross.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, made a trip to Nebraska visiting the churches at Beatrice where he was active in organizing Bethel College Fellowship chapters. He was accompanied by Rev. Kettlekamp. On April 22, the Mennonite churches of Kansas remembered Bethel College in special services. In Kansas the month of April was set aside to stress Christian education.

Last week Rev. A. Warkentin came from Chicago to conduct special evangelistic services in the First Church, Newton, Kansas. Good attendances are reported. The afternoon meetings were in German and the evening services in English.

The fiftieth anniversary of the Leisy Orphan Aid Society was celebrated by a special meeting in the Halstead, Kansas, Mennonite church some days ago. There was a large attendance and the program given was full of historic interest to the friends of the organization. A number of interesting addresses were given. An organization devoted to Orphan interests also exists in the Eastern District Conference. This one is sponsored by the women of this district and has a place on the conference program.

The annual meeting of the Union Women's Society comprising members of the First Church and Ebenezer churches of Bluffton and the Grace and St. John's churches of Pandora, O., was held April 12. The program included selections of music and matters of missionary interest. The guest speaker was Miss Elda Amstutz, a missionary on furlough. She gave a brief report of her many interesting experiences while laboring seven years in Panita, Ramabai, India. It is expected that she will return to her field in August.

The Second Church, Beatrice Nebraska, enjoyed a visit from Dr. E. G. Kaufman. He also spoke in the Beatrice church and his messages were stirring. He made special pleas for the cause of education and specially for Bethel College. of which he is president. A rare treat in the shape of the Singing Crusaders, a High School organization from Buhler, Kansas, was offered on April 15. A general luncheon was given, after which a sacred concert was presented. They were to be with the Second Church for the morning service, but motor trouble and muddy roads interfered.

Rev. Elwood Shelly, pastor of the historic Saucon, Pa., church delivered a series of special sermons which met with the appreciation of a good audience. The subjects were: "What is Life?"; "Repentance"; "Humility"; "Forgiveness"; "Self-Denial"; "The Triumph"; "The Lamb of God"; "The Significance of Easter"; "Searching the Heart"; "Christ our Passover."

Dr. J. M. Anders of Philadelphia, a life member of the Schwenkfelder church and one of the few surviving students of the Mennonite School of Wadsworth, Ohio, who is one of the most noted professors of Medicine, in the University of Pennsylvania, and a well known author on his subject, was being commented on always being promptly in his place at the services of his church. He replied, "I always keep my appointments with my patients, I surely ought to keep my appointments with my Lord."

DEATHS

Mrs. Mary Welty, the daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Dettweiler, was born in Fichtenbrum, Bavaria, Germany, March 24, 1862, and came to this country with her parents at the age of nine years. They settled first at Summerfield, Illinois, and later moved to Halstead, Kansas, where she was married to John W. Welty on March 13, 1881. Mr. Welty preceded her in death on June 17, 1922.

They moved to Oregon in 1886 and have always lived in the vicinity of Salem and Silverton, and were active in civic, Christian, and social life of the community.

Mrs. Welty accepted the Christian faith and united with the Mennonite church in 1878. She was the organizer and first president of the Ladies' Missionary Sewing Society of the Emmanuel Mennonite Church at Pratum, and has always taken an active part in the work of this society.

She became bedfast on the 8th of July and was a patient sufferer until Sunday, April 15, at 9:06 A. M., when her much desired wish was fulfilled, to depart and go to be with the Lord.

She was 72 years old on March 24, and leaves to mourn her departure, four daughters, four sons, two sisters, two brothers, seven grandchildren, two great-grandchildren, and many other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held on April 17, and were in charge of J. M. Franz. A mixed quartet sang two songs, "My Anchor Holds" and "It Is Well With My Soul," which had been selected by the departed sister shortly before her departure. The attendance was very large.

Mrs. Bertha Detweiler.—Funeral services for Mrs. Bertha Detweiler, 59, wife of the Rev. Irvin R. Detweiler, of Bluffton, Ohio, will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Eighth Street Mennonite church. Services will be held in Bluffton Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Detweiler died Monday after a lingering illness. Bertha Zook Detweiler was born in LaGrange county, January 22, 1875.

She was a student in Elkhart Institute and graduated from the two year course in 1902. June 4, 1902, she was married to I. R. Detweiler, also a graduate of the Institute and student in the Garret Biblical Institute of Evanston, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Detweiler sailed for India in 1902 as foreign missionaries of the American Mennonite Mission at Dhamtari Central Provinces, India. In the second year Mrs. Detweiler succumbed to the severities of the Indian climate and in August 1904 they had to return home. After a few years she partially regained her health. Never, however, did she fully recover.

She was the mother of two children, James and Emma, and an adopted son, Mark. They, with Mr. Detweiler, survive.

The Rev. and Mrs. Detweiler lived for many years in Goshen, where they were connected with Goshen College and he for eight years served as pastor of the Eighth Street Mennonite church. Only two and a half years ago they moved to Bluffton, where the Rev. Detweiler accepted a position in the Bible department at Bluffton College.

Christian Mosiman, son of Christian Mosiman and Barbara P. Smith Mosiman, who emigrated from Herbevilier, France, and Colmar, Alsace, respectively, was born near Oxford, Ohio, on March 11, 1840. He died on his home farm at 10:30 P. M., Friday, March 30, 1934, having reached the age of 94 years and 20 days.

He was married to Anna Kinsinger of Collinsville, Ohio, on November 16, 1865, who preceded him in death by three years, four and one-half months, after having lived together for 65 years, lacking but a few days. Fourteen children were born to them, all of whom survive but one, a son Ezra, who died at the age of 3½ years, in 1884. Five sons and eight daughters survive. They are Samuel K., President of Bluffton College, John R., DeKalb, Ill. Edison of Newark, New Jersey, William of Bredenbury, Saskatchewan, Canada, Elmer E. of Oxford, Pa. The daughters are: Mrs. Herman Martin, Middletown, Salvena, at home, Mrs. T. J. Kennel, and Mrs. A. S. Augspurger, Trenton, Ohio, Mrs. D. K. Roth, Gibson City, Ill., Mrs. Louisa Yoder, Bluffton, Ida., nurse at the Armco, Middletown, and Mrs. Estelle Howe, on the home farm. There also survive him thirty-two grandchildren and forty-five greatgrandchildren.

Father Mosiman united with the Amish-Mennonite Church in early life. He served for a number of years as Sunday School Superintendent and for many years as Sunday School teacher. Occasionally he led the singing. Later, when the two churches united, he served as deacon and trustee for many years and was frequently chosen to sit on church councils.

Father Mosiman was known as a progressive farmer; he was interested in the public schools, serving for many years on the Board of Education of his district, and later on the Township Board.

Father Mosiman was a man of few words, but of kindly disposition. He hated shams, and foul language aggravated him. He never allowed any one working for him to swear.

Except for minor ills, Father Mosiman enjoyed good health all his life. He greatly missed his life-partner after her departure, and his longing to be with her grew stronger as his days declined. A life well lived, honored and respected in his community, has come to its close. "The hoary head shall be a crown of glory when found in the path of righteousness."

Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the funeral services Tuesday afternoon from the Mennonite Church, Trenton. Burial in the Mennonite cemetery. Rev. Amstutz based his remarks on Psalm 91:16.

JUST A DADDY

I've a feelin' in my heart
(It's one object of my life)
To be Daddy to my children
And a husband to my wife.
I don't ever want to weaken
In a cause I set about
I just want them all to know me
As a good old willin' scout.
There may be storms a brewin'
That are apt to rock the boat
But I pray for love and judgment
That will keep the craft afloat
Jest the little acts of kindness
That we pass along in life
Makes you Daddy to your children
And a Husband to your wife.

I don't want to be a crab nor a
Sorehead or a grouch
And if I live to be a hundred
I will never be a slouch.
I may get old in body, but I
Want my heart to stay
Always young and happy 'till
They lay my bones away.
I may get bald and wrinkled
In the daily grind of life
(For the way is not all roses)
There is more or less of strife.
But I'm trustin' and a prayin'
As I live my humble life
Jest to be a Daddy to my kiddies
And a husband to my wife.

I want to stand with those who stand
For ideals clean and high
A country ruled by Christian men
Whose honor cash won't buy.
For God and home and native land
I'm workin' every day
And I want to cast my lot with those Whose hearts are tuned that way.
Too long we've left the job to "George,"
(He's jest about all in),
It's time we took a hand in things
To swat the graft and sin
Let all good men who love their own
Give them the best in life.
Be a Daddy to your children
And a husband to your wife.

—Milt G. Patrick.

DONT'S FOR THE PULPIT

Don't imitate others. Better be a poor original than a fine copy.

Don't mumble your words. Chew your food but not your language.

Don't preach too long. Better leave the people longing than loathing.

Don't preach old sermons without revision. Grown men look awkward in boys' clothes.

Don't indulge in mannerisms. Simplicity is desirable in high places—the pulpit especially.

Don't speak in a monotone. The voice has numerous keys; play on as many as possible.

Don't catch the pulpit twang. Talk to men in as natural a tone as you talk with them.

Don't indulge in long pulpit prayers. Always remember the stranger.

Don't introduce politics into the pulpit.

Don't neglect closet prayer. The finest pipes can give forth no music till filled with the divine breath.

Don't scold your congregation. Attack measures and hit people only when they stand between you and the devil.

Don't harp too much on one string. Variety is pleasing, and God's Word has given ample choice of themes.

Don't drop your voice at the close of a sentence. Men have as much need to hear the end as the beginning.

ARMS AND THE NATIONS

The recent action in England and the message of our President to Congress relative to prohibiting the selling of munitions of war to nations engaged in hostilities is one of the new developments of modern attitude toward war. The present action is aimed at Bolivia and Paraguay, who have been supplied entirely from the outside with war materials with which to continue their senseless struggle that has already cost many thousands of lives and which can in the end bring no advantage to the victors. Among the richest people in several of the most powerful nations are the munition workers who find it to their interest to resort to various underhand methods to start wars and keep them going and defeat sensible efforts toward making wars impossible. In the munition business the more opposition a maker has in other countries the more profitable it will be for himself. The matter of blood money makes no impression on his conscience. Lives mean nothing to him. It is the munition maker who would sell his own children and other children to any kind of torture, no matter how horrid it may be. Take the DuPonts, our own munition makers. Not only are they makers of killing instruments that bring money into their hands in streams, but we recall that they were the large contributors toward making this country wet and so opening up the flood gates of every kind of misery for which the liquor business is responsible. No doubt by this time their agents are actively at work trying to defeat the plan for preventing the sale of munitions to warring countries, as the agents of munition makers were at the peace conferences. Take war and booze out of the world and much of its misery will disappear, but this will not be done if the makers of booze and war material have their way.

MAKING BEER CUSTOMERS

Surely we have not forgotten the promises made by our political parties that the saloon must not come back and that the income from the sale of strong drink, upon which taxes would be paid, would solve the financial problems of our government and put great numbers back to work. Indications are that "booze" has neither solved the labor nor financial problems. Neither has it put the bootleggers out of business. As for the saloon, it is back and back with a vengeance. In the old days the saloon was a place where men gathered and drank. Today it is a resort for men and women—principally young men and women—who think it smart to patronize the institution. With the saloon there has developed in many places extra entertainment that, to say the least, is suggestive of immorality and often the place where virtue and decency are not to be seen. Yet with this bid for the satisfaction of desires that are not named in company, the liquor people have found that business is not so good as they had hoped. Young people who grew up in prohibition days are not all flocking to the saloon. They have not learned how to drink. The business must be stimulated. Much of this stimulation is expected to come through moving picture publicity. We are not movie patrons, but we have it from reliable sources that to find a film without a drinking scene, or many of them, is as rare as to find a chicken with teeth. Under the guise there are so-called educational films, ways for mixing drinks are demonstrated. Sex stuff and drink stuff have captured the movies altogether. Someone must make it profitable for the movies to give booze shows with all the decency that goes with them. The Roman Catholic church through Cardinal Hayes has issued a warning that twenty million Catholics would be called upon to insist that indecency be cut out of the whole movie business. Have the Protestants been as vigorous in protesting the booze shows? The only voice that the movie people will listen to must come through its box offices. If things don't pay they will reform, and only then.

There are tap rooms where no one may sit down at a table unless he is accompanied by a woman. There is no other way of seeing the shows that are put over except from one of the tables. The purpose of this rule is to induce women to give greater patronage to the tap rooms. The shows put over in such places often consist of indecent and suggestive dialogues and dances. Men, so gotten up that the superficial observer will take them for women, dance in the most indecent and suggestive way. Were they women, the places would be raided, but being only impersonations the police let them alone. What father or mother would want sons or daughters of High School age to patronize such places? Yet this is the class that these dens appeal to and from whom they expect to get continuous patronage in the future. In the old saloon age the victims were just drunks, now they make of them rakes as well as drunks. What are the parents of America doing about it? — G.

BIBLES AND HYMN BOOKS

One who buys a Bible or Hymn Book for personal use should naturally insist that it be one of good appearance and lasting quality. Cheapness is always poor economy in anything that is intended to be in constant use. We have seen splendid books, magnificent in printing, paper, binding, and workmanship generally, on the shelves of book lovers, but it is always a satisfaction to note that the Bible and Hymnal in the collection are just as good, if not superior, in workmanship and elegance, as the best in the collection. A book well made and artistic in its execution becomes a joy to the user and a treasured heirloom to those to whom it is passed in later years.

In the collection of the writer of this article are a number of the earliest hymn books used by the Mennonites in this country. They are substantially made because they come from a period when good material was to be obtained and great mass production had not spoiled the marks of good hand made workmanship in the interest of cheapness. The leather was whole leather and not the leather of a sheep stretched to the size of the skin of an ox before using it on the book. The paper was good, wearable rag paper and not made from wood, which would have crumbled by this time. The ink was as clear as it was the day it was laid on. Time has stained the pages but not destroyed their usefulness. The beautiful and illuminated inscriptions that the original owners had the Fractur place in them are evidences of how they cherished them. Many such copies are to be found among the descendants of those who first used them and are cheerfully preserved. However, the chief purpose of a Bible or Hymnal is not to foster sentiment. It is to be a vital factor in the spiritual life of the possessor. Personally, the writer knows of no treasure he holds more dear than the beautiful Bible and the finely executed Hymnal that were his mother's constant companions.

In recognition of a feeling such as is expressed above, the Mennonite Book Concern has just brought out two styles of the Mennonite Hymn Book. The purpose was not the production of something artistic alone, but something that combines utility with elegance. There are two types, one with a Record Buckram (Maroon) binding and the other in Spanish Fabricoid. Both represent the best efforts of the binder's art. The buckram book is the finest that can be used for general congregational purposes. Its lasting qualities are hard to surpass. The fabricoid model, because of its attractiveness, might well be used in the best of taste as a gift book that would last indefinitely. Father, Mother, Sunday School Teacher, Pastor, and Friends generally would be happy in receiving such a token of affection from their closest friends and well wishers.

It has been possible to produce such a beautiful and wearable volume at a cost well within the reach of any one. The new editions are not costly. By consulting the advertising columns of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel one will note that they may be purchased at a price no higher than one would pay for another good book.

The American Bible Society in a recent report gives out the information that, since the invention of printing, 882,000,000 Bibles have come from the press. The number is staggering. Few of us have any conception of what a million means, let alone nearly nine hundred millions. Every Christian wants his own personal Bible. He or she should insist upon having one that looks well and wears well. The finest kind of a gift to any one is a good Bible. The Mennonite Book Concern is prepared to sell Bibles that range from absurdly low prices up, but it prefers to sell the best Bibles. Our readers who are in the market for Bibles should buy them from the Mennonite Book Concern. In doing so they will be assured of a good article at a fair price. —G.

LOVE AS A CREED

That sounds good, and it is good, provided the scriptural definition of love is included: "This is the love of God that we keep his commandments," I John 5:3. Jesus also says, "He that keepeth my commandments, he it is that loveth me." John 14:15. Some of these commandments are regarding the Scripture, which "cannot be broken." That is the official creedal statement of our General Conference, given in a nutshell, though not in the same words. (See the constitution.) The authority of the Scriptures is absolute, that of the conscience is relative. P. H. Richert.

FLOOD RELIEF IN CHINA

Dear Fellow-Christians:—

We thank God that notwithstanding the depressive times and many other obligations that you people have, you still have found it possible to help in the flood relief. To speak frankly, we really had expected larger amounts from America, but God knows your conditions best, and we praise His name, that He did make it possible for you to bring some noble sacrifices. The Chinese organizations and the people of means have responded nobly. Most of the very severe suffering was either prevented or relieved. The breach has now been closed and the water goes down rapidly. The refugees are returning in large numbers. We still have some people here whom we must help. We also have 120 refugee children in the Mission until harvest — June. The China Int. Famine Relief Commission organizes cooperative societies and gives loans. Our field gets $60,000.00 in loans. Again we thank you. God bless you for all your love!

Sincerely yours,
H. T. Brown.

THE STATUS OF MENNONITE HIGHER EDUCATION

Young people of the General Conference are attending three Mennonite colleges. Together Bethel College, Bluffton College, and Freeman Junior College have about five hundred college students, the majority being Mennonites.

These schools are offering our young people a Christian education and should have our heartiest support. As a definite example of the value of our schools, we quote from a report of Bluffton College concerning its graduates, "Of the 578 graduates of Bluffton College and 81 Academy and Junior College graduates before 1915, there are 30 present or former missionaries, 27 are or have been ministers, 12 are or have been Y. M. C. A. workers, 3 are or have been relief workers with Quakers in Europe, 296 are or have been high school teachers, 23 are or have been elementary teachers, 47 are or have been college and university teachers. Of th 578 graduates, 397 or 68.7% held membership in the Mennonite church during the college career."

These schools are now at a crisis in these days of financial depression. They are making every effort, and great sacrifices in order to survive. They have earned the right to live, and the church needs them. The question of their future is a challenge to every Mennonite. There are two very definite ways in which we can help.

(1) Our schools need our prayers. They have been founded and built up on prayer and faith.

Let us pray for the presidents, the faculty, the students and the constituency.

(2) The colleges need our financial support, and especially our interest in the send-a-student campaign. Our colleges can all accommodate more students, and since they are depending upon tuition money to pay salaries at present, every student not only gets the benefit of a Christian education, but also aids definitely in the maintenance of our schools.

The Board of Trustees of Witmarsum Seminary is considering ways and means of resuming the work of this institution, but so far no definite announcement has been made.

JESUS—THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD—THE WATER OF LIFE

Recently a man being asked why he wished to become a Christian, gave this reply, "All around me there is darkness, but with Jesus I see light." This truth and more comes out in the following story.

Years ago in the village of Bhotia, where a Christian evangelist was stationed, there lived a weaver whose name was Nirbhay, which means the fearless one. He heard the Gospel and was favorably impressed. Later he moved to Champa and built his hut not far from the mission station. I remember well how a year ago he was so affected by the story of the suffering of Christ on the cross that he said: "This message is worth believing." After that he and his friends came to visit me frequently. Meanwhile asthma and tuberculosis were undermining his strength and he became so weak that he could no longer work.

It was just three months ago that one day he sent for me, saying that he was very sick. I went to him and found him so far gone that only with great difficulty could he talk a little between severe coughing spells. He said: "I am about to die — and I want to become a Christian before I go. Baptize me without delay, and pray that God may take me unto Himself speedily, thus delivering me from my intense suffering." I assured him that if he fully trusted in Jesus, God had forgiven his sins and even if he died tonight the Lord would take him to Himself. Regarding his bodily affliction I said that I would not pray that the Lord Jesus should take him without delay, but that He might do with him and for him whatever He knew to be best. Then we had prayer.

After that I did not see him for at least two weeks, but Mrs. Isaac went there at least twice and Indian brethren also visited him and prayed with him. I heard through others that he seemed better. When I visited him next I could hardly believe my eyes. He smiled happily, appeared well and strong, and was working at his loom. Asked how he was getting along, he gave the following testimony: "After you were here, during the night it became light round about me and I felt in my inmost being that Christ was with me and had forgiven my sins. Also I felt new life in my body and have gained strength daily. The Lord has healed me. I belong to Him. I am a Christian." And again he insisted that he should be baptized soon. His wife and fourteen-year-old son, realizing what the Lord Jesus had so visibly done for them in restoring the husband and father, wholeheartedly gave themselves to Christ also. The whole family thereupon received instruction and was baptized on Easter morning. After the service Nirbhay said: "Now my thirst is quenched."

CALIFORNIA CONFERENCE

The Fourteenth Annual California C. E. and S. S. Convention was held at the First Mennonite Church of Upland, California, April 20-22, 1934. A total of 227 registered as delegates. Many of the guests arrived early in the afternoon from Reedley, Paso Robles, Los Angeles, and Escondido. They were all entertained in the homes of the members of the local church.

The evening session, preceded by a pre-prayer service, was well attended. The president of the conference, Miss Helen Lichti of Upland, presided. After a song service, led by Aaron Jantzen of Paso Robles, Rev. Lester Hostetler, pastor of the Upland church, led in the devotional service, his scripture reading was taken from Col. 1:1-13 and 25-27, fitting into the convention theme, "Filled with the knowledge of His will." The Rev. Herschel Griffin of the Ontario Baptist Church, gave the stirring opening address. He filled the hearts and minds of his audience with a real desire to know and do the will of God. Among other things he emphasized that when we are filled with a desire to know God's will, we will also be filled with a desire to act upon this knowledge and carry out His will in our daily lives. Knowledge without action is not carrying out the will of God. The business of the Christian religion is to give you power to conquer, and also to demonstrate the power of God, and we should be filled with joy if we are Christians. If we have the light we will shine forth.

Saturday morning the program opened with a pre-prayer group and song service, followed by a Bible Study conducted by Rev. Henry Dirks, of Los Angeles. A very comprehensive exposition was given on the Scripture Eph. 1 and 2, and the interest of the group was held the full study hour. After this class the delegates divided into three groups for conferences on Our Mennonite Heritage, led by L. J. Horsch of Upland; Personal Work, Rev. D. D. Eitzen of Los Angeles, and Music Within the Church, led by Miss Emma Ruth of Reedley. A fourth group was to have met with Mr. C. F. Mueller of Reedley, but it was impossible for him to attend because of the sudden illness of his wife, all of which was regretted very much by the group. Commissions were appointed from each of these classes which were to report to a meeting of all the delegates, giving the high spots of each discussion. These reports were given after the continued hour of discussion on the same subject in the afternoon.

The business meeting was held at eleven o'clock. Mr. Reinhold Ewy of Reedley led in prayer, the usual business following. Reports from the various S. S. and C. E. groups were given, which proved the activity of the churches was worth while. The nominating committee reported and election occurred as follows:

President	Aron Jantzen, Paso Robles
First Vice President	Wallace Hiebert, Upland
Second Vice Pres.	Reuben Berthold, Reedley
Secretary	Leona Kliewer, Los Angeles
Treasurer	A. J. Richert, Los Angeles

After a cafeteria lunch, the morning conferences were continued for one hour. The recreation committee planned a ball game which was well attended and enjoyed.

The evening banquet was a happy occasion; about 225 attended and enjoyed the fellowship of one another as well as a delicious dinner. Ted Kaufman of Porterville entertained with moving pictures of the retreat, which influenced many in making a decision to try to attend in August from the 6th to the 11th at Lake Sequoia in Mr. C. F. Mueller's camp, which is to be dedicated April 29th.

The banquet was followed by a musical program and chalk talk given by members of the various churches and planned by the Young People's Superintendent, Miss Leona Kliewer of Los Angeles. The evening's address was given by Rev. D. D. Eitzen of the Los Angeles church, his subject being, "Wanted, Two Thousand Young Mennonites," challenging youth to services for the Kingdom of God.

Sunday morning, pre-prayer service and the Sunday School was held at the regular hour of 9:30, the Bible Study was continued from Saturday by Rev. Dirks. Mr. Reinhold Ewy, Superintendent of the Reedley S. S., addressed the children during the children's story time. An impressive but brief installation service for the new officers was conducted by Miss Emma Ruth.

The morning sermon was given by Rev. J. J. Jantzen of Paso Robles, his subject being, "Three Crucifixions on One Cross." This service officially closed the convention, giving guests time to drive the long distances without too much night travel.

The first resolution submitted by the Resolutions Committee voices the desire of all those who attended the conference. It reads as follows:

That we express our gratitude to the Lord for the opportunity to hold another convention in which we could gather and fellowship one with another; and that we thank Him for the many blessings received during this time.

Signed,

Gertrude Eyman, Secretary.

MOENCOPI MENNONITE MISSION

Tuba City, Arizona,

April 10, 1934.

Dear Friends of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:—

We wish to share with you the blessings of the Lord for the past year of 1933 and for the beginnings of this new year. The Lord had a great blessing for all of us on these Hopi fields that we want to pass it on to you, dear friends, who have long stood behind this mission work among our people.

It was perhaps most of the month of December 1933, that our special meetings for the Hopis were going on. In these special meetings both of our Baptist mission friends from Polacca and from the Sunlight Mission at Toreva had joined us for the one purpose of making the gospel of Jesus Christ known to our Moencopi people.

These Baptist missions are about sixty miles from our Moencopi Mission, which, as you all may likely know, is that of our Moencopi mission located on the Western Navajo Indian Reservation, and is, therefore, the farthest from all other Hopi villages in the country.

During these meetings for Moencopi we were fortunate enough to have at this time a friend, Rev. J. H. Epp of Hillsboro, Kansas, with us to bring the gospel message to our Moencopi people. It was our pleasure then to meet a number of our dear mission friends from the distant Hopi villages, both among the missionaries and also among the native Christians whom we have learned to love.

While these special meetings for Moencopi were going on our worker, Rev. J. P. Suderman, with another young man entertained our audiences with the picture machine, showing mostly religious pictures of Christ and Him crucified. We believe every child in our village was greatly interested in all these things in connection with our evening services. The singing, both in Hopi and English, was also very helpful to all the people who attended our meetings.

Our open air services on our village streets were also attended very closely, with listening ears from every side of the village, and one cannot help but take notice of the changed attitude of our Indians toward the gospel, which was never so seen in other meetings that we have had for this village in years gone by, in that the more friendly class of our Hopis have been drawn into our church services, and we wish to say here that the prayers of God's people have accomplished this much advanced among our Moencopi people.

What the Moencopi village needs at this time is that some leading man in our village take Christ at His Word and be the first man to break up the heathen village for Christ. If that can be done, we believe it will then be more easy for our young people to follow the Lord without much fear. We would ask that you pray for this outbreaking among our older generation of our village Hopis at this place.

After the meetings for Moencopi had closed, we took up song practice with a number of our young people for our Christmas program. What little time we had left from these meetings we put that part in with our Christmas service. And we are glad to report that for the first time since our coming to this mission our Indians seem to have enjoyed every bit of our Christmas program. The singing of our young people sounds so good and encouraging! And, too, our Sunday School girls all rendered their Christmas pieces very nicely. Above everything else, there was not one person in our whole audience disappointed with a Christmas present. There were a lot of Christmas presents sent over to our church from our village to be given to those for whom they were intended. Our Indians have learned to give to one another and in this way have been able to make their friends very happy at Christmas. Our mission was able to give candy and oranges in bags to each child and to those who attended our service. A dear friend from Chicago sent two boxes of toys for our Sunday School children and with the few things we were able to get for those who were regular at each Sunday School service, not a child had to leave our church service with disappointment. And I want to say in this connection that we do appreciate all the help that you good friends gave to us for these Christmas services. For some reason, our Indians seem to expect something from the mission, and when they do not get anything, they are usually greatly disappointed. This is especially true of the children, and we would ask that you remember our work with your gifts as well as prayer.

Shortly after January I left my mission at Moencopi for California and other places in Arizona, for the purpose of making my visit to the government school where we have a great many of our Hopi Indian students, attending these non-reservation government schools. I made my first stop at Peach Springs, Arizona, among the Wallapi Indians. The missionaries at that place invited me to stop off to preach the gospel to these Indians of a different tribe. I must say that I so enjoyed my visit to these interesting people that I stayed among them for three days, speaking both in their churches, schools, and homes. May God bless the work of his mission among these Indians of the different tribe who need the gospel.

My next visit was at Kingman, where a dear friend is at work among the white people. After filling my speaking date at this place, I finally headed for Los Angeles. Perhaps some of you know that in the city of Los Angeles we have two of the Christian Indians from Oraibi and Hotevilla, who are studying at the Bible Institute, preparing to take up Christian work among our people. These are Daniel Schirmer and Amy Talas. They are both doing well, but need to be encouraged and backed up by the mission friends who love the Indians. After leaving Los Angeles, my next stop was at Riverside, California, at the government school, and at this place I spent the whole day with the young people from our Hopi villages.

After making my visit at Riverside among the Hopis, my next stop was in Phoenix, Arizona, where we also have some Hopis in the government school. Now, after having visited these places of interest, I am once more settled down to my work at Moencopi.

Just at this writing there are two of our Christian women from other Hopi villages visiting here at Moencopi. One of them is a blind Christian woman from Hotevilla. She will probably be here all summer with her relatives who live in our village. The other woman is from Oraibi. She is especially visiting us and some of her grandchildren in our village. Both of these are very sincere, earnest Christians, and we are enjoying our Christian fellowship together, especially in our prayer meetings. Pray for every native Christian on the Hopi reservation who is serving the Lord faithfully. May the blessing of God rest upon His work everywhere among those who love the Lord.

We remain yours in His service,
Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Johnson.

MEMORY LANE

Rev. Elmer Graft
Pastor Danvers Baptist Church, Danvers, Ill.

In one of his most beautiful poems, James Whitcomb Riley has a line, "Memory now is on her knees." In reverential attitude, memory is often on her knees to the most sacred of life's past experiences. These experiences are deserving of such an attitude. When at "the end of a perfect day" you sat "alone with your thoughts," and those very thoughts have carried you back to some little house — your childhood home, and to some little woman — your own mother, — you have been down "memory lane." It is not the same lane, yours and mine, it does not lead back to the same house nor to the same mother. You have a lane that is yours and not another's. It is peculiarly sacred to yourself. Walt Mason probably had something like that in mind when he wrote:

" 'I'll buy a little farm somewhere,' the old man says, 'and tinker there until it's time to go to sleep down where the bending willows weep. I know a farm I'd like to buy; it's where I lived when three feet high. It's where my father used to strive to keep the family alive. 'Twas there, in bygone, golden days, I hoed the beans and husked the maize, and dreamed of triumphs I'd achieve, when I that dreary farm could leave. To dwell in cities was my aim, to cut a swath and conquer fame, and that old sandy, rocky farm was quite devoid of charm. The dreams I dreamed have all come true, I've done the things I meant to do, but I am old and worn and tired, and for a long time I've desired, above all other things, to go back to the scenes I used to know.' Thousands of old men talk that way; when they are bent by the years, and gray, feeble of step and weak of arm, they turn their eye to the old home farm."

We may go on journeys far and costly, but when all is said and done, isn't it true that our fanciful journeys are the most satisfying and thrilling of all? — Just a little trip down "memory lane" to "the road that leads back home." The greatest place in all the world is home. Several years ago a London magazine asked its subscribers what home IS, and received over eight hundred answers, out of which six were selected as best. Here they are:

Home—A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

Home—A place where the small are great, and the great are small.

Home—The father's kingdom, the mother's world, and the child's paradise.

Home—A place where we grumble the most and are treated the best.

Home—The center of our affection, round which our heart's best wishes twine.

Home—The place where our stomachs get three square meals a day, and our hearts a thousand.

Edgar A. Guest gave us what is perhaps the most beautiful and deeply meaningful home poem ever written when he wrote:

It takes a heap o' livin' in a house to make it home,
A heap o' sun an' shadder, an' ye sometimes have t' roam
Afore ye really 'preciate the things ye lef' behind,
An' hunger fer 'em somehow, with 'em allus on yer mind.
It don't make any difference how rich ye get 't be,
How much yer chairs an' tables cost, how great yer luxury;
It ain't home t' ye, though it be the palace of a king,
Until somehow yer soul is sort o' wrapped 'round everything.

Home ain't a place that gold can buy or get up in a minute;
Afore it's home there's got t' be a heap' o' livin' in it;
Within the walls there's got t' be some babies born, and then
Right there ye've got t' bring 'em up t' women good, an' men;
And gradjerly, as time goes on, ye find ye wouldn't part
With anything they ever used—they've grown into yer heart:
The old high chairs, the playthings, too, the little shoes they wore
Ye hoard; an' if ye could ye'd keep the thumbmarks on the door.

Ye've got t' weep t' make it home, ye've got t' sit an' sigh
An watch beside a loved one's bed, an' know that death is nigh;
An' in the stillness o' the night t' see death's angel come,
An' close the eyes o' her that smiled, an' leave her sweet voice dumb.
Fer these are scenes that grip the heart, an' when yer tears are dried,
Ye find the home is dearer than it was, an' sanctified;
An' tuggin' at ye always are the pleasant memories
O' her that was an' is no more — ye cant' escape from these.

Ye've got t' sing an' dance fer years, ye've got t' romp an' play,
An' learn t' love the things ye have by usin' 'em each day;
Even the roses 'round the porch must blossom year by year
Afore they 'come a part o' ye, suggestin' someone dear
Who used to love 'em long ago, an' trained 'em jest t' run
The way they do, so's they would get the early mornin' sun;
Ye've got to love each brick an' stone from cellar up t' dome:
It takes a heap o' livin' in a house t' make it home."

If some men are ever to be redeemed spiritually, it's going to be on some little trip down memory lane where the light of a mother's love is shining on the pathway. Perhaps it will be a remembered word spoken, or her consistant Christ-like conduct. It is in honor of such mothers that we remember this day. "Mother's Day has no tribute to the cigarette-smoking, wine-drinking, child-neglecting, home-destroying mother, but rather to the old-fashioned mother whose worth is measured in noble deeds, high character, and Christ-like personality." Some men have not been able to understand their minister's preaching of the cross of Jesus Christ, but catching the significance of the sermon preached in the simple, Christ-like living of their mothers, have been able to understandingly sing:

"O mother, when I think of thee,
'Tis but a step to Calvary,
Thy gentle hand upon my brow
Is guiding me to Jesus now."

During my first year in the theological seminary my practical work assignment was at the well known Pacific Garden Rescue Mission. One is able at that place to observe manhood at its very lowest; sin at its greatest depth, and the effect of the preaching of the Gospel upon such lives. I have seen some men there apparently untouched by the sermon, who have come seeking the way of salvation or to definitely yield their lives to the Lord Jesus Christ when someone stood to sing:

"I wonder how the old folks are at home;
I wonder if they miss me while I roam;
I wonder if they pray for the boy who went away,
And left his kind old parents all alone;
I hear the cattle lowing in the lane,
And see again the fields of golden grain;
I almost hear them sigh as they bade their boy 'Goodbye.'
I wonder how they are at home, sweet home?"
—H. S. S.

Memory Lane takes many of us back to the first stories we ever heard of God and the Bible. I well remember my own first lessons, given me before I had reached the age of five years. They were usually in response to my own questions. Over and over again I asked my mother to tell me how Jesus was crucified. and just as often as I asked, she willingly told me the simple but tragic story of Calvary. So interested was I that upon my first visit to school, I asked the teacher to tell me how Jesus was crucified. At recess the teacher took me in her lap and drew upon the blackboard a picture of the cross. This was the first time I ever heard from the lips of another the story my mother so often willingly and interestingly told me.

"Sometimes in the hush of the evening hour,
When shadows creep from the west,
I think of the twilight songs you sang
And the boy you lulled to rest;
The wee little boy with tousled head,
That long, long ago was thine,
I wonder if sometimes you long for that boy,
O little mother of mine!

And now he has come to man's estate,
Grown stalwart in body and strong,
You'd hardly know that he was the lad
You lulled with your slumber song;
The years have altered the form and the life,
But the heart is unchanged by time,
And still he is only your boy as of old,
O little mother of mine!"
—W. H. B.

If I were asked to give a reason for the joy we find in our journeys down memory lane, I could not tell. I only know that any attempt to analyze home and mother is like "putting a rose under a microscope or tearing apart a blossom in an effort to find out the secret of its fragrance." In mother there is a trinity of virtues, faith, love, and purity. But the dynamic of these virtues are to be felt and experienced; I doubt if they can ever be explained.

When Kipling tried to measure mothers' love, the outline he traced was like the dimensions of the cross:

"If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
I know whose tears would come down to me;
Mother o' mine!
Mother o' mine!
If I were hanged on the highest hill,
I know whose prayers would follow me still;
Mother o' mine!
Mother o' mine!
If I were damned o' body and soul,
I know whose love would make me whole;
Mother o' mine!
Mother o' mine!

A journey down memory lane is not without profit. But memory is not all of life; dreams and sentiments are not enough. These should prompt us to an action that is practical, and to a tribute that is finer and nobler than words, and more abiding and beautiful than flowers.

"I did not have cut flowers today,
Or plants to set upon her mound,
As I took there last year in May,
And placed them on the sacred ground.
And, yet, today I carried her
More precious gifts than roses white:
The kinds I knew she would prefer,
In which her soul would find delight.

"I bore to her a cleanly heart,
Unsullied by the sin of hate,
And though we long have dwelt apart,
I did one thing to consecrate
The spot where she in quiet lies:
I took a life all pure and clean
With thoughts that out of justice rise
And laid them on the precious scene.

MISSIONARIES DEPART FROM NEW YORK ENROUTE TO AFRICA

On February 22, Rev. and Mrs. John Moseman, Jr., and Elizabeth Stauffer, missionaries under appointment by the American Mennonite Mission Board, sailed from New York to begin work on the new mission station established by that board on the African continent. Immediately preceding their departure a number of farewell services were held for the missionaries by congregations and friends, the last of which took place in a large restaurant in New York City. Regarding this service the Gospel Herald, Scottdale, Pa., gives the following report:

"What was the most inspiring and most far-reaching missionary meeting ever held by the Lancaster Conference was held in New York City, when 471 friends of the outgoing missionaries assembled in devotional meetings and the final wave of the hand as the Deutschland track was closed behind them. Reconsecration, zeal for greater loyalty and service were indelibly impressed upon all as the consecrated departed to glorify God in Tanganyika. The missionaries sailed for Africa at midnight, February 22, and the friends returned soon after to their homes, most of them in Lancaster Co., Pa. May the Lord direct and overrule in all things."

In the press of the nation this extraordinary service in the New York restaurant was reported from a variety of viewpoints. Typical of the many different reports given is the following taken from News-Week Magazine, New York:

"Mennonites: Faithful Launch Missionaries At An Automat

"Four hundred godly men and women from Lancaster County, Pa., filed into an Automat restaurant on Fifth Avenue in New York late one afternoon last week. While New Yorkers who had come to drop nickels in slots for pies, doughnuts, and coffee, paused in bewilderment, the visitors began singing "I am sinking deep in sin, far from the peaceful shore."

"They were Mennonites, and they had left their snow-covered farms to say farewell to three missionaries about to sail for Africa. There Brother John H. Moseman and his wife and sister, Elizabeth Stauffer, will bring the light of Menno Simon's teachings to blacks of the Dark Continent.

"The group was dressed in solemn black, the men without lapels on their coats or neckties around their collars, the women in unadorned dresses and caps on their heads. Stationing himself beneath the restaurant's sign, 'Please Check Your Hats, Coats, and Parcels,' Brother Ira Landes delivered a sermon.

"Then relaxing, the Mennonites experimented with the mysteries of the Automat's gleaming gadgets. 'Apple cobbler is a nickel,' one of the brethren announced.

"The Mennonite faith springs from an Anabaptist sect founded in Zuerich in 1525. Their greatest leader was Menno Simon, a Dutch priest who did much to aid the movement in Holland and Germany. They are extremely fundamental in doctrine and have always been stanch pacifists. There are about 100,000 in North America today, divided into more than a dozen churches."

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Baccalaureate services for the graduating class of 1934 of the Topeka High School were held at this church Sunday evening, April 15th. Nadine Miller and Evelyn Steele were among the graduates. Another of our number, Helen Peterson, is among those graduating from Ligonier High School.

Sunday evening, April 22, there were no services, as a group of young people from Goshen presented the religious drama, "Quo Vadis" (Whither Goest Thou) at the Sycamore Literary Hall.

A number from here attended the funeral services for Mrs. I. R. Detwiler, which were held at the 8th St. Mennonite Church of Galen, Wednesday afternoon, April 25th.

One of the oldest members, Perry N. Bobeck, passed away at the home of his niece, Mrs. Gus Gloor, on April 30th, at the age of 78 years. Funeral services were held at the church, Wednesday forenoon, May 2, conducted by Rev. Salzman.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, May 3, at the church.

Wednesday, May 9, death removed another of the older members, John J. Troyer, at the Sturgis Memorial Hospital, after a number of weeks of suffering of blood poisoning. Funeral services were held at the church Saturday afternoon, May 12, conducted by Rev. Lehman and Rev. Salzman. Bro. Troyer was 64 years of age.

On Mother's Day, Sunday, May 13, a playlet entitled, "Mother's Dream," was given during the morning worship hour. The oldest taking part was over seventy years of age, and the youngest less than a year old.

Congerville Church Notes, Congerville, Ill. On May 13, our church observed the Communion Ordinance, with Rev. J. H. King in charge.

Our church is quite fortunate in having the cooperative services of two able men, Rev. J. H. King of Carlock and Rev. J. F. Smith of Eureka, to alternate Sundays in preaching for us.

Our Ladies Aid will hold the monthly meetings in the church basement during the summer months. They have completed their quota of sewing for the African mission.

The Fidelis Band of the Sunday School is devoting its time at class meetings to sewing for new babies in the community.

The Junior C. E. held a wiener roast recently, which the group enjoyed very much. This society is quite active under the leadership of Miss Susie Kauffman and Mrs. Ivan Zook.

Mrs. Emma Reeser, who spent the winter months with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hyde, in Lincoln, Nebraska, has returned to her home here. Her many friends are glad to have her back again.

Rev. and Mrs. Lee Lantz and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Karte of Middlebury, Indiana, visited with friends here recently.

Commencement exercises of the Congerville High School were held in the church, May 18. Dr. Lyons, president of Eureka College, was the speaker for the occasion.

Calvary Church Notes, Washington, Ill. Miss Frieda Streid and Mrs. Ben Streid visited last week in Chicago with Mrs. Julia Swift.

Joseph Strubhar while working at the T. R. and W. railroad, fell quite a distance from a ladder. He was rendered unconscious and taken to the hospital in Peoria. He recovered from the fall quite rapidly, and was able to return to work several days afterward.

Mr. J. C. Guth of Wadsworth, Ohio, gave a talk on May 6 at our church.

Mr. C. W. Vercler and family spent Sunday, May 13, at the Peter Sommer home in Lexington.

Our church joined the other churches in Washington in a union meeting held at the local Evangelical church. The sermon was given as a closing for the religious training given in our elementary school.

Miss Mildred Smith of Metamora entertained the Kum-Joy-Nus Sunday School class, May 1.

Communion was observed April 29. A large number of the congregation attended on that day.

The Senior C. E. was entertained by Bessie Heiser on Tuesday evening, May 15.

Zion Mennonite Church, Donnellson, Iowa, May 14, 1934. Greetings to the Editors and Readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel! In looking back over the last few months we find that the Lord has wondrously blessed us. Our church is active all the time in all the different departments. We have been having a very good attendance in Sunday School each Sunday and in both the morning and evening worship services.

For the evening of February 11, our congregation was invited to the local Presbyterian church, where the Donnellson Boy Scouts gave an interesting program. Quite a number of the Scouts are members of our Sunday School and church.

February 18, the High School Glee Clubs gave a musical program to a large and appreciative audience.

At noon, February 25, our members enjoyed a basket dinner in the church basement. In the afternoon a program was carried out as a surprise both to Rev. Welty, who was celebrating his birthday, and as a farewell to the B. J. Neff family, who have moved to Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. The Sunday School presented Mr. Neff with a Bible as a token of appreciation of the untiring work he did in our Sunday School for many years.

Our church united with the other churches in the community in two weeks of Lenten services, closing with the Easter Sunrise service. These services were all very impressive and a great spiritual benefit to those who attended.

On Easter Sunday morning the communion of the Lord's Supper was held, at which a large number participated in the service. Easter Sunday evening the young people gave two pageants, "And There Was Light" and "Pilgrims of the Way," assisted by the mixed choir. This was heard by a large crowd.

We had Dr. H. A. Bauman with us April 20. He spoke very interestingly about conditions in India.

During our evening service on April 29, Rev. Welty and our Sunday School Superintendent, Mr. Howard Raid, gave very interesting reports of the State Sunday School Convention which they had attended the previous week. The theme of the convention was "Christ Supreme in the Social Order." We are all to feel that we have a part in making God's world Christian and to make our social order better Christ must reign supreme in the hearts of men.

Yesterday the children of the Junior Department of the Sunday School gave a short Mother's Day program during the S. S. hour. We also had a special Mother's Day church service and three babies were consecrated to the Lord.

Several committees are at work planning for the activities of the summer. We will have a Community Daily Vacation Bible School for four weeks again this year, beginning May 28. We expect a large attendance. We are planning a Children's Day pageant entitled, "The Children's Hour," to be given June 10.

June 14th is the day set for our annual Mennonite Get-Together Picnic, to be held at Noble, Ia., this year. We are planning for our Young People's Retreat here at Donnellson, July 14 and 15.

At present our pastor has a group of young people under instruction in the catechetical class. May the blessing of the Lord rest on the work which we endeavor to do in His honor and to His glory.

Odessa, Washington. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— We are having rainy weather this week, and the prospects for a crop this year are better than they have been for years. Because of our mild winter the farmers are also blessed with wonderful volunteer wheat. We had real warm weather the other week, but because of the rain we are experiencing cooler weather this week.

The Menno choir of 35 voices rendered the cantata, "Morn of Victory," by Heyser, at Menno on April 8th. The choir was under the direction of Rev. M. J. Galle.

The choir of the English Congregational church in Odessa also rendered a musical program on Easter Sunday. Communion services, in charge of Rev. Galle, were also held at this time. Rev. Galle is still acting as minister of this church also.

The Menno church held a Workers' Conference on April 22nd. Questions dealing with C. E. and S. S. problems were discussed. Everyone present received a blessing from the meeting and helpful hints for improving our societies.

Rev. and Mrs. Galle entertained all the members of the Menno and English Congregational church choirs at a spring social, given in the Congregational church parlors in Odessa, April 20th. The social was closed with an impressive candle light service, in charge of Rev. Galle.

The executive committee of our Washington State C. E. and S. S. Convention will meet at the Menno church next Sunday. We are making plans to hold the convention at Colfax this year, and hope it will not have to be postponed for another year. The officers are: President, Henry Ensley of Odessa; Vice President, Arthur Franz of Menno; Secretary-Treasurer, Esther Jantz of Odessa.

May the Lord bless us and help us in all our efforts to further the work of His Kingdom.

Sincerely,

Esther Jantz, Corr.

First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa. Your correspondent received a resume of the important events, in the life of our local Brotherhood, during the past year. While some of these items may have lost their news value, yet they are suggestive of what the men of the church may do to stimulate the social and spiritual life of the church.

During the year a father and son banquet was enjoyed. Rev. Whittemore, of Lansdale, a returned missionary from Africa, was the principal speaker. He showed some lantern slides of the African mission field in which he labored. His message was impressive, challenging, and deeply inspirational.

At one of the regular meetings it was decided to send a letter of commendation to State Senator Snyder for his firm stand against liberalizing the so-called Blue Laws and Sunday sports.

On account of high taxes and excessive budgets in cities, states, and nation, there is a determined move on foot to legalize all forms of gambling for money raising purposes. Such moves are pushed with all their power by those who love and want the European Sunday. The popularization of card games, baseball pools, and all forms of petty gambling, have broken down the mass resistance against this sort of thing. Recent hearings, to legalize various forms of gambling, in legislative halls have brought practically no protests. A few years ago only a brief mention would have brought floods of protests. Now is the time for our men to express themselves and wire their convictions to their representatives. We are facing just as rapid a disintegration of our anti-gambling laws as we have had on our 18th Amendment, if we do not get busy. Here, men, is a job.

The local chapter invited the men of the Zionsville congregation to join our chapter since they had no such organization. Several took advantage of the invitation.

At one of the regular meetings the topic of Christian education and family worship was discussed.

A corn and doggie roast was enjoyed at the home of Horace Heller. The writer attended one of those delightful affairs at Brother Heller's home several years ago and will not soon forget the wonderful time that was had by all. It was one of the hottest evenings of a very hot summer. Doggies, and such corn; iced orangeade and lemonade, as only Mrs. Heller could make. Yum, yum! Ah! the memory lingers.

During the year Rev. Whittemore of Lansdale was secured for a week of Bible lectures His ministry was much enjoyed and appreciated. He always has a message that reaches the heart, thoroughly devotional. He has made for himself many friends in our midst.

Last but not least, the Brotherhood undertook to raise one share of the $1500 to be raised in our Conference to transport the Mennonite families from Harbin, China, to Paraguay. A canvass was made of various members of the church, and the Sunday School offering on a set day was designated as the Mennonite Refugee offering. The amount raised was $112.30. Our appointment was $82.00.

Some weeks ago our Junior Deacon, M. S. Sell, had an auto accident. It happened on an evening when driving conditions were most hazardous. He was taken to the hospital suffering from eight broken ribs and body bruises. He is rapidly recovering at this time and we hope to have him with us again soon, fully restored.

During March our people had a wonderful treat when Rev. Jas. R. Clinton, pastor of the Central Congregational Church, Philadelphia, was with us. He is also a member of the faculty of the Bible Institute of Philadelphia, teaching Gospel Music and Sunday School Organization. Rev. Clinton has a contagiously happy personality — and is deeply spiritual. He brought us two messages on Sunday and Monday evening. They were real Bible sermons, not simply intellectual lectures. We liked him so well that we requested our pastor to invite him again for a series of expository sermons on May 27, 28, 29. Everyone is welcome to these meetings.

Pratum, Oregon. Dear Readers of the Mennonite:— The beautiful spring days are here and how good and kind God has been to His own. So far this year we surely had lovely weather. All winter long we had more or less sunshine with rain and storm, but no snow or cold. The season here is at least four weeks earlier than other years.

There is very little sickness in our community at present. Mrs. John Hofstetter who had been ailing for some time, is much improved for which we are glad. It has pleased our Great Physician to release Mrs. Mary Welty from her sufferings and He has taken her home to be with Him, April 15. She was bedfast over eight months. She was the founder of the missionary society of our church.

On Good Friday evening we had our Pre-Easter service, and on Easter morning we had our communion service. Three souls were added to our large group by letter. There were 256 for Sunday School, and many came later.

In the evening we had a splendid song service and the church was filled to capacity.

On March 18, Rev. Harley King gave us an inspiring message. This servant of God truly lives his every day life on the same basis as he preaches — or in other words, he practices what he preaches. How fortunate a church is to have such a leader.

We indeed are happy to have new Sunday School song books. These are the best song books our Sunday School ever had. We purchased them from the Moody Bible Institute. It never is an honor for any Sunday School to have ragged song books. It is through careless- and irreverence that song books become ragged in Sunday School.

Our lowest attendance so far this year was 200. We have many visitors and strangers in our group, and we know that their souls are fed with the pure Bread of Life.

At present Rev. J. M. Franz has a baptism class of twenty-four young souls, instructing them the true Way of Life.

Lydia Stauffer, Corr.

Lima, Ohio, Cor. Scott & Eureka Sts., May 9, 1934. Dear Readers:— 2 Cor. 9:8, "And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work."

In looking back over the short history of the Lima Mennonite Chapel, we are not discouraged for we have definitely felt God's help and blessing. Knowing Christ and His power to save, we want others to know Him, no matter where we live. For that which does not count for eternity, counts for nothing.

The church is well organized with Sunday School, Ladies Missionary Society, Children's Services, Bible Study, and Prayer Meeting. Rev. Esau preaches the word in power and demonstration of the Spirit both Sunday morning and evening. The neighboring Mennonite churches come in and assist with the work from time to time, which is greatly appreciated.

The children have been faithful in attending Sunday School and Wednesday Children's Services. Most of these children come from non-Christian homes.

The Missionary Society, which has been very active, is in charge of Mrs. Esau. They have distributed many pairs of shoes and clothing to the poor and needy in this community. Certainly one cannot help but feel more keenly than ever before their individual responsibility in meeting these spiritual and material needs. We need not lose heart before the greatness of the task, for God has set no limit to His power, and our part is to live each day as He leads us.

Rev. Kliewer, pastor of the Ebenezer church and organizer of this mission, held evangelistic services here from April 2nd to 15th. The services were quite well attended and we praise Him for the manifestation of His Spirit and drawing power. Rev. Esau and Rev. Kliewer have been active in home visitation and personal work, which is greatly needed in this community.

The church is planning to have its Daily Vacation Bible School during the month of June. Prayer is the important part in this work, as "Prayer Changes Things." So pray for this work in Lima, Ohio.

Rev. and Mrs. Esau will leave us for a month, to hold evangelistic meetings in Minnesota. They will be held in his home town church, Mountain Lake, Minn. During their absence, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Lehman of Berne, Indiana, and Mr. John Tosh of Bluffton will have charge of the work.

With best wishes to the readers of the Mennonite, Barbara Bucher.

The First Mennonite Church, Sugar Creek, Ohio, May 1, 1934. Greetings! Our Communion services will be held on Sunday morning, May 13. We wish that all the members might be present to take part in this service.

The class of catechetical instruction will have their first meeting on Sunday, June 10. Rev. Smucker will instruct this class during the Sunday School hour. There are a number who are planning to join this class and any others who desire to join, will please be present at this time.

Rev. J. E. Hartzler, of Bluffton, Ohio, will be with us on Sunday, May 27. He will deliver both the morning and evening sermons.

Arlene Hostetler and Maurice Gerber were married on April 1, by Rev. W. W. Miller.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miller of Shanesville on April 29.

GOD'S GIFTS

God has His best things for the few
Who dare to stand the test.
He has His second best for those who will not have His best.
He knows, He loves, He cares; and nothing this truth can din,
And always gives His best to those who leave the choice with Him.

Duty is a power which rises with us in the morning, and goes to rest with us at night. It is co-extensive with the action of our intelligence. It is the shadow which cleaves to us, go where we will, and which only leaves us when we leave the light of life.—Gladstone.

THE INEVITABLE

"I like the man who faces what he must
With step triumphant and a heart of cheer;
Who fights the daily battle without fear,
Sees his hopes fail, yet keeps unfaltering trust
That God is God, that somehow, true and just,
His plans work out for mortals; not a tear
Is shed when fortune, which the world holds dear,
Falls from his grasp — better with love a crust
Than living in dishonor; envies not,
Nor loses faith in man; but does his best,
Nor ever murmurs at his humbler lot;
But with a smile and words of hope gives zest
To every toiler. He alone is great
Who by a life heroic conquers fate."

STIR UP THE GIFT

By Emma Ruth

A young woman was invited to spend some weeks of a summer vacation with friends in the back country of Yosemite Valley. She did not accept the generous invitation, but instead attend a young people's summer conference. She said, "I knew their company would not provide an atmosphere conducive to spiritual growth and I felt that God would have me put myself where my life could be enriched spiritually."

Paul says to young Timothy, "Stir up the gift of God, which is in thee." We dislike being stirred up. It is human nature to wish to be left alone. What was good enough for my father is good enough for me. We grow self-satisfied with our aims and achievements, yes, and with our Christian life and our devotion to Christ. So the ears grow deaf to the voice of God calling to larger opportunities and responsibilities. The eyes are blind to the vision of doing greater things for God.

As WORKERS with children, young people or adults, we need the rekindling of the fire of devotion to Jesus Christ. We need to be stirred out of our complacency with things as they are to a realization of the great possibilities that are ours as co-laborers with Him.

Let the opportunity for spiritual advancement be the determining factor in making your plans for the summer. Include a convention, conference, or Young People's Retreat.

YOUTH AND PEACE

The General Conference Peace Committee has been at work. Plans are under way to bring to our Denomination and to such others who may be interested, helpful as well as timely material on Peace and Non-Resistance.

Sunday, July 1st, 1934, has been designated as a very fitting time for a study of this subject. The Peace Committee has prepared The Christian Endeavor Topics for Sunday, July 1st, for the Senior, Intermediate, and Junior Societies. The regular Scripture for that date has been used.

The preparation and presentation of this Peace Material has been made possible by the fine cooperation of the regular staff who prepares and presents the weekly C. E. topics.

The Peace Committee hopes that every Christian Endeavor Society will plan to use the Peace material.

In peace time we need to quicken our convictions on the great question of War and Peace.

A. J. Neuenschwander,
Secretary Peace Committee.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

What Do We Mean By Having The Mind Of Christ?

Philippians 2:5-7

For the next few weeks we will base our discussion on a theme which may sound doctrinal but it will be well for every Endeavorer to think rather clearly on what it means by having the mind of Christ, and what is involved for those of us who call ourselves followers of His. First of all let us consider what it means to have the mind of Christ. Paul has been exhorting the Christian brethren to have a oneness in sentiment and aim, cherishing a reciprocal love which can be prompted only by a knowledge of Jesus Christ and the Gospel story. This should so grip a man that he will be born again and the Spirit of God will work in and through him. So the mind of Christ signifies a mystical union with Him, John's Gospel puts it thus: "Abide in me and I in you." It means the proper Christian way of thinking. It can come only by being properly grounded in Him. There are two outstanding ways in which we may do this. The first is by studying the Gospels quite thoroughly, and the second is by experiencing His power in our lives, but that is something which we cannot put on or off like a coat. A man cannot say some morning, "From now on I will have the mind of Christ in all things." That would help, but there must come a power directly from God into his life so that this man will have become a new creature, old things will have passed away. Men will see a difference in his life, his motives and attitudes will be different All of his thinking will be inspired by Jesus Christ, His life, His teachings, and His sacrificial death.

Consider the humiliation and obedience of Christ, and let us remember that He did it for us, yea for you and for me. Although the nature of Christ was from the very beginning divine, yet when the call came to make the nature and being of God more manifest to men, when the call came to serve others, this divine Son of God did not hold fast in self-assertion His Godlike state, but added to this the form of a servant adding to the divine the form of a human being. Jesus lived an earthly life such as our own, but He went lower still, He stooped lower than any of us will ever be asked when He traversed all the stages of obedience down to the humiliation of a shameful death on the cross. Such was His devotion to men, showing thereby that God loves each man like that, sufficient to make a supreme sacrifice that man might be like that, sufficient to make a supreme sacrifice that man might be redeemed. This knowledge of such a Christ and God should compel us by all the powers that lie in us—intellect, emotion, and will — to accept Christ as our Savior and in all of life's activities to try to discover what the Christian attitude is and how we may share this mind with Jesus Christ.

In planning for this meeting it would be very beneficial to assign to four active endeavorers the assignment of reading prayerfully through one of the gospels having an open eye to what can be found in respect to the mind of Christ—His manner of life, His attitudes and motives. And then in the C. E. service have these four people bring brief talks on their four respective gospels in showing forth the mind of Christ.

Questions

1. How does Christ show forth the nature of God?
2. What is meant by Christ "humbling Himself"?
3. In what ways may we know the mind of Christ?
5. What does the world have a right to expect from a person who has the mind of Christ?

The Mind Of Christ On Fear And Worry

Matthew 6:31-34

In the service for this week, it might be helpful to put more than the usual emphasis upon a devotional fifteen or twenty minutes. Plan to have a soft prelude on the piano, organ or violin. Have the congregation sing a hymn or two which speaks of trust and confidence. A number of scriptural readings might be given by able readers. Appropriate portions would be Psalm 23; 55:1-7; portions of or the whole of the Sermon on the Mount, and John 14. The following prayer by Samuel McComb may be found helpful.

"O God, we remember with sadness our want of faith in Thee. What might have been a garden we have turned into a desert by our sin and wilfulness. This beautiful life which Thou hast given us we have wasted in futile worries and vain regrets and empty fears. Instead of opening our eyes to the joy of life, the joy that shines in the leaf, the flower, the face of an innocent child, and rejoicing in it as in a sacrament, we have sunk back into the complainings of our narrow and blinded souls. O deliver us from the bondage of unchastened desires and unwholesome thoughts. Help us to conquer hopeless brooding and faithless reflection, and the impatience of irritable weakness. To this end increase our faith, O Lord. Fill us with a completer trust in Thee, and the desire for a more whole-hearted surrender to Thy will. Then every sorrow will become a joy. Then shall we say to the mountains that lie heavy on our souls, "Remove and be cast hence," and they shall remove, and nothing shall be impossible unto us. Then shall we renew our strength, and mount up with the wings as eagles; we shall run and not be weary; we shall walk and not faint. We offer this prayer in the name of Jesus Christ our Lord."

What a wonderful place this old world would be if we would not permit ourselves to be cast about by those demons of fear and worry. If we could drive out of the lives of both old and young those habits which enslave us to the moods of fearfulness and trembling. Many fear to die and dread to live. Common tasks are dreaded and for some a piece of work must be done three times—in previous worry, in anxious performance, and in regretful retrospect.

Fear does many things to a Christian personality. In the first place it imprisons the soul. Faith is our great liberator. What has a man to fear except to do evil. Neither the lack or loss of money are just causes for fear and yet so many of us do fear. Sickness or misfortune or unavoidable accidents are not made less serious by any fretting we can do, they may come as angels to discipline us, at least we may know that a Father who sees the sparrows falling will also know about our mishaps and will hold us in the hollow of His hand.

In the second place fear disheartens. Life lived to the full is rarely easy, it is often overwhelmingly difficult, and the individual who has the fear temperament will be so harassed and will hold the thing to be feared so close that he can see nothing else. He will see only the mountain of fear and will not be able to see the beauties of the sun, moon, stars and bright colored clouds. Even a copper penny may hide the sun if you hold it close enough to the eye. The poet Whittier lived in an age of turmoil and his private life was a continual struggle, yet he wrote:

"Yet sometimes glimpses on my sight
Through present wrong, the eternal right;
And, step by step, since time began
I see the steady gain of man."

In the third place fear depresses vitality and is a fruitful cause of nervous disorders with all their disastrous reactions on man's health. Modern investigation shows us that there is a close relation between mental worries and bodily sickness, the latter often results from the former. That is the reason why some people never are well. They fear illness, they fear unhappiness, they fear danger and they fear the passion of sacrifice. Many people play at living but never really live. Here is the gospel of psychiatry. It breathes the spirit of the Master who always was a minister of health. That is the reason why Jesus always demanded faith. Its consequences will be physical as well as moral and spiritual.

The only room for fear in the life of a Christian is to permit the presence of evil and that can best be overcome not by brooding but by an active faith. We do, of course, need to have concern for things which need to be done. During the past years we have nurtured a multitude of men and women who are perfectly satisfied to be fed and taken care of without any worry or effort on their own part. Faith demands work, only to such will God assure His loving care. "God helps them who help themselves."

Questions

1. What was Jesus' attitude in respect to fear in His own life?
2. What does Jesus teach about the futility of fear?
3. What is the cure of fear, and how can it be administered?
4. What are some of the most common fears?
5. What is the relation between bodily sickness and faith?
6. How can the Christian live a continual life of faith and be master over all fear and worry?

Harmfulness of Gossip

James 3:1-6

"It would be well if we would ask three questions before we tell anything about another person: 1. Is it true? 2. Is it kind? 3. Is it necessary?

Pre-Prayer

Pause Here! Lead There!

Program

Praise Service.

Devotionals.

Leader's introduction of the topic with remarks: Tonight we will discuss a subject well known to most of us, "Harmfulness of Gossip." Someone has said gossip is like a snowball. What you tell to others is repeated and magnified. Gossip grows worse. Once started you can never stop the evil of it.

Poem—"Scandal"

A breath can start it,
Blowing into flame
A quick, hot fire
To ruin the name.

O lips, be careful,
O tongue, keep still,
There are many ways
To maim and kill.

Far more cruel
Than a gun or game
Is the breath of scandal
Blown on your name.

By Grace Nall Crowell.

First question: Just what is gossip?

Second question: Is gossip always harmful?

Third question: How does gossip hurt the life of the gossiper?

Fourth question: What does the scripture say about the sinfulness of gossip? Luke 23:1-7.

Fifth question: How do gossip stories grow?

Sixth question: How may gossip "steal a man's reputation?"

Seventh question: What is a sure cure for gossip?

For leader:— Since Jesus met the attacks of Satan in the wilderness with "It is written," let us look into the Book of Books and see what is written here on our topic tonight.

1) 2 Thess. 3:7-18; 2) Prov. 11:13; 3) Prov. 21:23; 4) 2 Sam. 10:1-5; 5) Ps. 41:4-13; 6) James 3:1-6; 14.

Getting The Most Out Of My Summer Vacation

Eph. 5:16-21

Pointogram

"What you are when you are doing nothing determines what kind of a man or woman you are."

Pre-Prayer

The place and time to generate group-power for your Endeavor.

Summer Vacation

Vacation is usually referred to as a time when we do something different than the ordinary everyday routine. It does not imply a time of laziness and absentmindedness. Vacation time can be a time of refreshing our souls on the Greatness of God and His goodness to us through the following ways:

Topic 1. Getting the most out of my summer vacation through traveling. Heb. 11: 8, 9.

Topic 2. Getting the most out of my summer vacation through friends you meet. Titus 1:8.

Topic 3. My summer vacation a blessing by visiting other churches. 3 John 1:1-11.

Topic 4. Preaching Christ during my summer vacation. Acts 8:1-8.

Topic 5. Getting the most out of my summer vacation by reading good and helpful books or investigating certain subjects which are of peculiar interest to me. 1 Tim. 4:13-16.

Question 1. How may our vacation be spoiled?

Question 2. What plans have we for this summer?

Question 3. How may we help others while we are on vacation?

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn

Organizing A Junior C. E. Society

In recent issues of this paper, articles have appeared on "Privileges of Junior Workers," "Benefits Derived from Junior Christian Endeavor," and "The Place of the Junior Society in the Church." These were written because of the number of churches in our conferences which have no Junior Society. We are convinced that Christian leaders desire to do their best for the boys and girls and welcome information concerning methods of teaching the Word and training children for Christian service.

No doubt there are those who have seen the need of work of this kind but are still hesitating. The question which naturally comes to the minds of such is "Just how shall we begin and what kind of organization do we need?"

In answering this question, one must bear in mind the purpose of Junior C. E. While it is an organization in which worship and teaching have a large part, its primary purpose is training for service, "for Christ and the Church." It is, therefore, necessary to give each member something to do for "we learn to do by doing."

To be efficient in Christian service one must know the Word and know how to give it out. This demands Bible study and participation in meetings. He must also see the need of giving the gospel to those outside his own circle. To meet this need the ideal Junior Society gives time to mission study and mission work.

An efficient worker for the church is not only able to teach the Word but he must also know something of church organization. He needs to know how to take care of finances, how business meetings are conducted, how to work with others, etc. Training along this line is given in Junior Christian Endeavor through regular business meetings and work on committees.

Since Junior C. E. is also a training school for Christian Endeavor, it is best to have the organization as nearly the same as possible. There should be the Junior president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer, and all necessary committees. All of these work under the supervision of an interested adult called the superintendent.

The superintendent is the most important of dependent upon her. She may, in fact should have, other adults to assist, yet the Junior society can not be expected to rise above its superintendent either spiritually or from a standpoint of organization.

In choosing a superintendent there are a number of outstanding requirements to consider:

1. She must love children. No one else will have sufficient patience or influence to make the work worth while.
2. She must understand them, be able to look at things from their standpoint. One who loves children can learn to understand them by associating with them.
3. She must see the need of Christian Training for children.
4. She must believe in Junior C. E. as a worth-while training agency—must be an enthusiast. Otherwise she will not give herself to the work wholeheartedly.
5. She must be a true Christian. This is all-important. No amount of service will make up for a lack of love for Christ. Only one who really knows and loves the Lord can lead boys and girls to Him.

Topic—God's Wonder Book: Abraham, Who Believed God

Heb. 11:8-10

Our topic for June 10 was the first of several subjects on God's Wonder Book. We thought then of how wonderfully the Book had been written and kept for us. God Himself told men years ago what to write, and even though they wrote in a language we can not understand, He helped other men translate it into our own and many other languages, so that today we still have His Word. In this Book He tells of many men who did special things for which they are remembered. Today we think of Abraham. We know a number of things about him, but that with which God was especially pleased was that he believed God. See Romans 4:3. It must have seemed strange when God asked him to leave his home and go to a new country, but he believed that God knew best, and went. God told him other things hard to understand, but still he was sure God knew best and he believed.

Do we believe God as Abraham did? I am afraid many of us do not, for if we did, I am sure we should not complain each time He lets something happen that we do not like. God would have us believe Him even as Abraham did. There are some things in His Word not easily understood, but since He has said them we should believe. He is so much wiser than we that He can easily write things that we may think strange, but as we study and ask Him to help us He teaches us what we should know. Let us be like Abraham and believe even when we do not understand. Such faith pleases God.

Plans for the Meeting

The work of the men whose names are mentioned under the heading "God's Wonder Book" should be carefully studied. Find why God considered them worthy a place in His Word. There are so many things of note recorded concerning Abraham that you will find a blackboard helpful in your study. Make a list of events of special importance and use this list in studying his life together.

Questions

1. What is Abraham called in Gal. 3:9?
2. How did Abraham show that he believed God?
3. How did God show that He was pleased with Abraham?
4. Why should we believe God?
5. How may we prove that we believe God?

Daily Readings

Work followed faith. James 2:21-26.
Abraham's obedience. Gen. 12:1-5.
Abraham's worships. Gen. 13:1-4.
Abraham listens to God. Gen. 17:1-8.
Abraham's faith tested. Gen. 22:1, 2.
Abraham's generosity. Gen. 13:5-13.

Topic—God's Wonder Book: Joseph, Whose Dreams Came True

Gen. 41:41-44

How many of you have thought of something great you hoped to do some day? Did somebody laugh when you told them? If they did, you may not have mentioned your plans again, but I dare say you kept on dreaming. We really hate to tell some of our hopes to folks that we think may laugh, don't we? If this has happened to you, you will know how Joseph must have felt, because this is just what happened to him. He had dreamed that he would some day have the chief place in his family, but his big brothers were so sure he could never be greater than they. God must have given him these dreams, for they did come true. Even though the brothers did their best to keep Joseph from becoming great, the time came when they were glad to have his help. Read all you can about him and see how wonderfully God took care of him. He, too, believed God and pleased Him. That is why he became such a great man.

Plans for the Meeting

Draw or bring to the meeting a picture illustrating one of Joseph's dreams. Two of the Juniors may tell these dreams. The line of thought suggested by the Daily Readings should be followed leading up to the scripture lesson for the day. If there is time, more may be told of Joseph's dealings with his brothers.

Questions

1. Why did Joseph's brothers laugh at his dreams?
2. Why did they sell him?
3. What kind of man did he become?
4. Why did Pharaoh trust Joseph as he did?
5. How did Joseph's dreams come true?

Daily Readings

A father's favorite. Gen. 37:3.
Dreams of success. Gen. 37:5-10.
A big calamity. Gen. 37:12-28.
Imprisoned. Gen. 39:21-23.
Pharaoh's dreams. Gen. 41:1-14.
Joseph exalted. Gen. 41:35-41.

Childlike Faith

A friend tells of overhearing two little girls, playmates, who were counting over their pennies together. One said, "I have five cents." The other said, "I have ten cents." "No," said the first little girl, "you have just five cents, the same that I have"; but the second child replied quickly, "My papa said that when he came home tonight he would give me five cents, and so I have ten cents."

The child's faith gave her proof of that which she did not as yet see, and she counted it as being already hers because it had been promised by her father. So are we to trust the promises of our heavenly Father, and we, too, can count among our possessions the things which He has promised to give us.—Moody Monthly.

Jesus on the Cross

Lesson Text—Matt. 27:33-50

Golden Text.—Looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross despising the shame and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God. Heb. 12:2.

We have now come to the close of Jesus' life and to that hour of crisis towards which He moved through all His ministry. His life becomes meaningful only as we see it in the light of the cross. On the other hand, the cross only becomes meaningful as we see it in the light of His life.

Jesus came to reveal the Father so that through that revelation in incarnation we study His life, death and resurrection. There are two phases of Jesus' death which are significant in this lesson. In the first place He was killed and in the second place He died for us. The factors that combined to bring about His death are the age old factors that have always killed leaders and prophets. First was that of blindness. Even the disciples misunderstood Him and misinterpreted His teachings so that they quarrelled as to which should have the seat of honor. When Jesus talked to them of His suffering and death they thought He was out of His mind. Much less could the Scribes and Pharisees understand Him. Bitterness and hostility always are a barrier to true understanding. When men are prejudiced you can not teach them.

The second factor is bigotry. The Scribes and Pharisees thought that God's revelation to them was complete and final and that no young carpenter could add anything to their knowledge of the truth. The third factor which killed Him was fear. They were afraid of His attitude and His teachings on Peace.

The fourth factor that killed Him was a matter of positions. The Jewish religious leaders knew that if Jesus' teachings would become effective they would lose their positions. Finally, the fifth factor that killed Him was the indifference of the people. Jesus was extremely lonely the last few days of His life. No one was willing to stand by Him.

On the other hand, what is the meaning of the cross as He gave His life for us? In the first place it revealed, as nothing else had, the awfulness of sin. In the second place it revealed the redemptive sacrificial love of God through Christ, and finally it opened the way for a life of self-denial and sacrifice on the part of His followers.

The Risen Lord and the Great Commission

Lesson Text—Matt. 28:1-10; 16-20

Golden Text—Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world. Matt. 28:19-20.

The three days in which Jesus was in the tomb were days of great disappointment to those who had followed Him. Peter said, "I go a-fishing." The two disciples that met the risen Christ said, "We had hoped that He would restore Israel." Out of this disappoinment and despair came great rejoicing and victory. For when the women and the disciples came to the tomb early on Sunday morning they found an empty tomb. "He is not here, He is risen as He said. He goes before you into Galilee." The risen Christ made a number of appearances to the disciples confirming His resurrection. The great significance of His resurrection lies in the fact that He who had been limited in space and time because He was human was now unlimited. He could now be anywhere at any time. The resurrection teaches us the true nature of personality. It is eternal, because He lives we too shall live. In the second place Jesus' resurrection is the sign of power. The disciples who had been weak and stumbling and had denied Him and doubted Him now became lions of power and men of great courage. So in our lives the resurrected Christ means courage and power.

"O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever" (Ps. 136:1).

JOTTINGS

Members of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of the Bluffton, Ohio, church had charge of the services on the evening of May 21. The program offered consisted of a talk, solos, readings, and instrumental music.

Late in June, six missionaries under the (Old) Mennonite Board will sail for India. They are Sarah Lapp, Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Graber and son Donald, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Brenneman and daughter Juaniata. Dr. and Mrs. Brenneman are going out for their first term.

Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, will spend the summer in New York doing research work in Columbia University.

Dr. Peter Epp, director of language and literature in Bluffton College, has severed his connection with Bluffton to accept a place on the faculty of the Ohio State University at Columbus. Dr. Epp, who is a native of Russia, taught in the institutions of that country before coming to America. Since 1925 he has served on the Bluffton faculty. He is the author of a book, "Eine Mutter," which gives an excellent description of Mennonite life in Russia at the beginning of the revolution.

Brother Charles H. Moyer of Philadelphia, one of the former students of the Wadsworth, Ohio, school, has just celebrated his 84th birthday. Some years ago he was the recipient of an award from the Pennsylvania Sunday School Association for fifty years of distinguished Sunday School work. For years he superintended the Sunday School of the First Church and during all the period he has been associated with the school he has been a teacher.

Mennonites of the Pacific District Conference have a full program for the summer. The Pacific District Conference meets at Aberdeen, June 7, the Mt. Hermon Summer Conference, July 27, and the California Retreat at Lake Sequoia, August 5-11.

Esther Jantz, the secretary of the Washington Mennonite and C. E. Convention, announces that the Thirteenth Open Door Convention will be held at Onecho, Washington, June 2 and 3. The program provides for a Fellowship Meeting, Quiet Hour, Discussions, Special Music. Addresses will be given by Rev. M. J. Galle, Rev. P. R. Aeschliman, Dwight Ensley. The topics to be considered are: "What DOES Christ Mean to the Christian in this Modern World? " "What CAN Christ Mean in this Modern World?" "What Attitude Should A Christian Take Toward War?" "Why Should I Accept Christ As A Partner in This Business of Living?"

Missionary Linscheid of the Cantonment Mission has a correction to make with reference to a recent article appearing in this paper. He says "In the Brotherhood Topic" for April, where it speaks of Oklahoma, Cantonment and Fonda, the distance between the two churches should be 14 miles, but the extent of the field is 28 miles in one direction and 15 in the other. Whiteshield is not really the native helper, but assists in the services on Sunday. So the spiritual care of the Indians is not his, but ours, and their number is not 350, but some 500.

There were 170 persons in the party of Mennonite refugees who sailed from Harbin, Manchuria, for Brazil. They left Shanghai, China, April 7, via Marseilles and Bordeaux, stopping at Antwerp to take on boxes of clothing and other materials contributed by friends in Europe.

Many of the farming districts in the West where Mennonites are located have been concerned about the dry weather which threatened the crops. From several sources we learn that a recent rain has assured them the prospect of at least a fair crop.

In order to be nearer his present charge, Rev. J. B. Epp has changed his address from Meno, Okla., to Fairview, Oklahoma.

The Secretary of the Peace Committee, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, under a recent communication, says, "Serving God Makes Peace," calls special attention to the fact that this is the subject for the Peace Lessons for the third quarter in our Sunday Schools. The lesson comes July 8. Sunday Schools desiring to use the English Peace Lessons should send their orders to the Mennonite Book Concern early, so that the leaflets may be sent in good time. The Peace Committee is gratified that all the leaflets printed for May 13 were ordered. The entire supply was exhausted.

The pastor of the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, which is to entertain the Western District Conference at its meeting, gives the following as an Announcement and Invitation: "A hearty invitation is extended to delegates and friends to come to the Pacific District Conference which is to convene in the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, beginning Thursday, June 7th, and ending Sunday, June 10th. Every effort will be made to provide for comfort and convenience of all. An inspiring program has been prepared and we believe the Conference will be a blessing to all who may attend. Our local church assures a cordial welcome. Should any plan to come to American Falls by train, please notify the undersigned as soon as possible.—J. E. Kaufman."

The Men's Glee Club of the Pretty Prairie Church, of which Rev. S. M. Musselman is pastor, rendered two sacred concerts on Sunday, April 29th. In the afternoon they appeared in the Christian Mennonite Church of Moundridge, and in the evening they rendered their concert in the Halstead Mennonite Church. Rudy Wiens, High School instructor at Pretty Prairie and son of Rev. and Mrs. P. J. Wiens, missionaries in India, is the leader.

The Home Mission Committee of the Western District Conference has made the necessary arrangements that Rev. T. A. van der Smissen is to take full charge of the work at Hanston, Kansas. During the past winter Brother van der Smissen has been teaching school and serving the two charges, Ransom and Hanston, at alternate Sundays.

People do support Summer Bible Schools. The members of the Bergtal Mennonite Church, Rev. J. B. Schmidt, pastor, Pawnee Rock, Kansas, believe definitely in the worth of Bible teaching for their boys and girls. The children attend seven or eight district schools in the winter. In the summer they maintain one high grade Bible School with two teachers. Some of the parents have to bring their children in the morning and also get them again in the evening after school. It has been found that one man makes a total of 42 miles per day to bring his and his neighbor's children to this Bible School. The school runs for four weeks, and starts at 9:00 A. M and closes at 4:00 P. M.. Rev. and Mrs. T. A. van der Smissen are the teachers of the Bergtal Summer Bible School.

DEATHS

Katherine M. Regier, daughter of David J. and Katherine Unruh Regier, was born November 21, 1892, at Moundridge, Kansas. On June 8, 1913, she was baptized upon the confession of her faith by the Rev. Heinrich Banman and received into the membership of the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church of Goessel, Kansas. Later she transferred her membership in May, 1925, to the West Zion Mennonite Church of Moundridge, Kansas, of which she remained a faithful member until the time of her death. She was active in the church as a teacher of the Sunday School and as a member of the Mission Workers and the Christian Endeavor Society.

In the early morning of April 19th, returning from a brief visit with her mother, she met her tragic and unexpected death in an automobile accident a few miles north of Halstead. She has thus reached the age of 41 years, 5 months, and 28 days.

Katherine was a modest, sincere Christian, loved and respected by all who knew her intimately. She was unassuming, yet ever ready and willing to serve her fellowmen and her Lord and Savior in whatever manner and opportunity opened up to her.

She leaves to mourn her early departure her deeply grieving mother, three brothers, three sisters, and a large host of relatives and friends.

Funeral services were conducted in the Alexanderwohl Mennonite Church near Goessel, Kans. Rev. H. T. Unruh read appropriate selections of comfort and led in prayer. Rev. P. H. Unruh spoke words of consolation in the German language, while Rev. P. K. Regier was in charge and preached the English sermon.

Elizabeth Schmidt nee Harms, daughter of Gerhard Harms and Anna Nickel Harms, was born July 18, 1855, in Michalin, Little Russia. On May 7, 1871, she was admitted to church membership through baptism. In 1874 she came to America with her parents and the greater part of the congregation at Michalin. Soon after the founding of this settlement her parents also settled here and she has since lived in this community. On March 1, 1885, she joined widower Jacob Schmidt in marriage and shared life's joys and sorrows with him 42 years. Three children were born to this union.

She died Sunday, April 15, at the age of 78 years, 8 months, and 28 days.

Funeral services were conducted April 18, Rev. G. N. Harms and Rev. A. A. Schmidt officiating.

Mr. Christian Sommer, son of Christian and Barbara Schrock Sommer, was born December 25, 1846, in France. He passed away May 13, 1934, at the age of 87 years. He was united in marriage to Barbara Claudon, March 16, 1869. They came to America in the year of 1892 and settled at Belleflower, Ill., and in the year 1916 they moved to Pontiac, Ill. His wife preceded him in death, May 3, 1928, and since then his daughter, Marie, has taken care of him. He leaves to mourn his departure one son and one daughter, J. C. Sommer of Fisher, Ill., and Marie Beller of Pontiac, Ill. Also four grandchildren and seven greatgrandchildren, and a host of friends. He united with the Mennonite Church in youth and was a faithful member.

The funeral services were in charge of Rev. Geo. T. Gundy at the Meadows Mennonite Church.

When we think of all the sins we have committed in thought, word, and deed, we have reason enough to be ashamed to look up to Heaven. But when we remember that the Lord Jesus died for the very reason of putting away our sins, we can freely look into the face of the Lord and thank Him that He now does not see our sins—that is, if we have believed on the Lord Jesus as our Savior from sin. He has taken our shame, so we may be rid of that as well as of our sins.—H.

TEACHERS' MANUALS

For

A DEPARTMENTAL GRADED SUMMER BIBLE SCHOOL COURSE

The Summer Bible School Committee, under the direction of the General Sunday School Committee of the American (Old) Mennonite Church, has prepared an elementary curriculum of study for use in Summer Bible Schools. The curriculum covers a range of ages from four to thirteen years inclusive. A Teacher's Manual, covering in detail the work to be done and providing ample helps for teaching, is prepared for use in each grade. These ten Manuals are for the teachers only.

Each year's work is arranged for a three-week term of fifteen half days of school, but may readily be adapted to a shorter or, if desired, a longer term. These Teachers' Manuals are offered under the following titles:

1. Kindergarten I — For pupils, age 4
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series I
2. Kindergarten II — For pupils, age 5
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series II
3. Primary I — For pupils, age 6
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series III
4. Primary II — For pupils, age 7
   Topical Studies from the Scriptures—Series IV
5. Primary III — For pupils, age 8
   Old Testament Character Studies: Creation to Saul
6. Primary IV — For pupils, age 9
   Old Testament Character Studies: David to Nehemiah
7. Junior I — For pupils, age 10
   New Testament Studies: The Life of Christ—First Half
8. Junior II — For pupils, age 11
   New Testament Studies: The Life of Christ—Second Half
9. Junior III — For pupils, age 12
   New Testament History and Leaders
10. Junior IV — For pupils, age 13
    New Testament Studies: The Life of Paul

3 Outstanding New Books

"The Conflict of the Ages"

BY DR. ARNO C. GAEBELEIN

Here is a book with a prophetic message that should challenge every sincere Christian to view present-day events in the United States and in the world as a whole in the light of God's Word.

Many conservative preachers are ordering the book in quantities and urge their members to read and to study it. Almost one hundred copies were sold in one congregation. It is arousing nation-wide attention. Several thousand copies are already in circulation.

In beautiful binding, 171 pages. Printed on good paper.

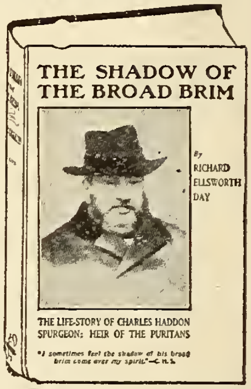
The Shadow of the Broad Brim

The Life-Story of Charles Hadden Spurgeon: Heir of the Puritans

By Richard Ellsworth Day



THE SHADOW OF THE BROAD BRIM
By RICHARD ELLSWORTH DAY
THE LIFE-STORY OF CHARLES HADDON SPURGEON: HEIR OF THE PURITANS
"I sometimes feel the shadow of his broad brim come over my spirit."—C. H. S.

The religious world of today is celebrating the hundredth anniversary of Spurgeon's birth, and it is appropriate that such a popular, intimate, sympathetic account of his life and work as this should appear just now. The church needs again to come in touch with his sturdy, homely, reasonable evangelical teaching, and ministers should endeavor to learn the secret of the power that made Spurgeon one of the greatest preachers of all time. Doctor Day has lived and studied himself thoroughly into his subject, and out of his admiration and research has made a most readable book. His style is Spurgeonesque, and on the whole it is exactly the kind of book that Spurgeon would have wanted written about him.

READING THE HYMN

A Chinaman once interrupted a missionary to ask why he wore buttons on the sleeves of his coat. Neither he nor the Chinaman knew that such ornaments go back to the time when a military garment decorated with buttons was the smart thing to follow even in civil life. Today we simply buy a coat and do not concern ourselves about the usefulness or lack of and useful need that enters into sewing buttons on the coat. Some of the words we use have a history which we may conveniently ignore. Anciently a villain simply meant a man from a village and not specially a rascal. An idiot was a person not holding public office. Perhaps it was implied that he was a fool for not feeding on public gravy. Today an idiot is a person who is mentally abnormal and we don't bother about what the word once meant. Many of our everyday customs come to us and we follow them without a thought of their original meaning. The military salute, for instance, was intended as a friendly gesture to show that the guns were not loaded. Today it is a recognition of dignity.

In the way of conducting services we find some things which are but fossils of the past. Once there was a special reason for their use but now they are just followed as a matter of course. A child once asked why the minister read hymns before the people sang them. This custom of reading the hymns is still followed by some ministers. The beginning of this custom goes back to the time when few of the worshippers were fortunate enough to own hymn books of their own and many of them would have been able to read them had they possessed them. It was an important part of the service for the minister to repeat the songs whenever they were used; and at that time when they did not turn out devotional music in great quantities by machine, it happened that with the continued singing of a comparatively few hymns the people came to know them by heart. That time is now past. It is safe that the members of the congregation are able to read. Books are cheap and plentiful, and so there is no real value in reading hymns to the congregation before singing them. Preachers no more line the hymn they use, though that was once the better way for teaching them to the congregation. When they read the whole hymn they give too big a dose at one time to expect that it will stick. Perhaps as an exercise in pulpit elocution there may be some excuse for first reading the hymn, but the minister is seldom enough of an elocutionist to make the practice effective. Just because it was always done in a particular church service is no particularly strong reason for continuing it. Time may be more profitably occupied. We have heard the late Russell Conwell read hymns, but then Dr. Conwell was one of ten thousand on the pulpit. Again, we have heard some read their hymn and, because of the unskillful way of doing it, we wondered what it was all about. It may be suggested that the more one emphasized the song, the more impressive it will be. True! But the best emphasis consists in singing it heartily and correctly without first taking the edge off of it by mumbling through it or rattling it off like a school boy reciting the multiplication tables. —G.

LEARNING TO KNOW ONE ANOTHER

Some years ago a young man and a young woman living in a western city met one another and became engaged to marry. As the day approached the young people discussed both their past and future, and naturally the matter of their religious connections were mentioned. Said the young man, "I was brought up in a church of which you probably have never heard, I come from Mennonite stock." Said the young woman, "I surely have heard of Mennonites, my uncle is the pastor of a Mennonite church in Germany." So it happens that in this world of varied interests people sometimes get out of touch with the church of their childhood and youth and come to the conclusion that, after all, their religious affiliations are confined to a very small corner of the world. Mennonites have never been strong on publicity and from olden times they have been content to regard themselves the "Quiet ones of the land." We wonder sometimes what would be the state of our church today if our people had been more energetic in asserting the principles for which they stand and being prepared to defend them? Our age is one of aggression. Things must keep going or they will decline. We feel that the task of our church today is not only one of maintaining itself locally, but of spreading information concerning itself. Some things, we believe and teach, are today becoming things that are largely accepted in other quarters. Separation of church and state is an American principle. Peace testimony is becoming more general than ever. Ideas of congregational self-government are becoming stronger and stronger, even in churches that have autocratic politics. All these things are not new. In our church they have been the rule since the Reformation and before. We do not aspire to the leadership of people who agree with us in these matters, but we feel that the world should know of our stand on such things. I believe that had Mennonites generally been advanced to a greater degree our fathers would have given more attention to proclaiming their stand. The first Mennonite book printed in this country was a small English pamphlet prepared in 1727 for the express purpose of telling the world what Mennonites were and for what they stood. Too bad that this was not followed up with other literature of the kind. However, since Mennonite communities were separated by language and other peculiarities from their English speaking neighbors, the thought that others might be interested in their affairs did not continue to develop and the result has been that, even in this time, the amount of misinformation and ignorance concerning our church and our people is appalling.

Bad as is this lack of information from the outside it is almost as bad in the various branches of the church itself. We wish Prof. Ewert, in Canada, who is to address a conference on how we might come to know one another better, might have a larger hearing than his local field offers. The several All-Mennonite Conferences which have been held brought out a marvel of information concerning our interests and fields, but even with such gatherings there have not come the results that might have been attained; largely because of the small patronage given to them. The united relief undertakings into which Mennonites entered since the World War have gone far toward laying the foundation of continued relations. There are other interests in which we might speak unitedly, such as non-resistance. It is something that in this time of uncertainty needs to be emphasized in the strongest possible manner.

Even local conferences are in a position to increase mutual acquaintance and understanding. As an example we may mention the Eastern District Conference. Time was when a semi-annual meeting of the Conference, which was hardly attended by any but ministers and deacons, was all that indicated that there was any life in this community of churches. When Sunday School conventions, Young People's gatherings, Women's Societies, Orphan Society meetings and Brotherhood gatherings and other special interests came to the fore the Eastern Conference came to be noted as a very progressive one, not because of special talents, but because the people of the several congregations came to know and understand each other and learn not only that they could work together but that they had a field in which to work and that with experience efficiency increased.

THE 136th SESSION OF THE EASTERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The 136th session of the Eastern District Conference was held in the Eden Mennonite meeting house, May 3-6. The session began on Thursday afternoon and continued until Sunday afternoon. The mornings and afternoons from Thursday until Saturday noon were devoted to business, the evenings to inspirational messages. Saturday afternoon, the Ladies' Auxiliary held its meeting. The Brotherhood had the evening program. Sunday morning Conference Communion was observed and Sunday afternoon the Young Peoples' organizations held a Rally.

The messages presented at these meetings were of an unusually strong spiritual and evangelical quality. Two helpful Bible lectures were given. Rev. W. S. Gottshall gave an exposition on "The Significance of Paul's Conversion." Rev. Daniel J. Unruh presented the theme: "Regeneration or Reformation." Dr. Harvey Bauman read a very interesting missionary paper. Rev. P. J. Boehr stirringly spoke on the mission cause. The wives of these two missionaries spoke at the Ladies' Auxiliary meeting. Dr. William Mudge, Executive Secretary of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, addressed the gathering on "The Lost Revival." Dr. Lew Wade Gosnell, Dean of the Bible Institute of Pennsylvania, addressed the Young Peoples' Rally on "The Story of a Preacher Who Found His Bible." The Conference sermon on "Abiding Values" was given by the outgoing president, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger. It was timely and forceful. The communion sermon was at two. The messages were brief expositions by Rev. George G. Buehler and Rev. Howard T. Landes, respectively, on "The Body and the Blood of Our Lord Jesus Christ."

There were no outstanding actions at the Conference. A strong, though silent, testimony of the presence of the Spirit of God was evidenced in the quiet and harmonious manner in which all business matters were transacted and in the accompanying power that seemed to pervade the presentation of all of the Conference messages. The Conference theme which aptly was, "Building for Christ," was also truly realized.

The officers elected to lead the group for the coming interim were:

President: Rev. E. J. Bohn, Souderton, Pa.

Vice-President: Rev. Carl J. Landes, Philadelphia, P.

Secretary: Rev. Freeman H. Swartz, Norristown, Pa.

Treasurer: Mr. Alvin C. Alderfer, Harleysville, Pa.

The delegates of the Conference were entertained by the members of the Schwenksville congregations. Lodging was provided by the congregation at the Mayfair, a summer hotel, near the meeting place. The meals were furnished in the basement of the meeting house.

A book display placed in the vestibule of the building attracted a great deal of attention and brought to the Conference in a visual form the opportunity of The Mennonite Book Concern. Mr. F. J. Wiens, the manager, made many friends by his pleasing and attractive personality and the Publication Board should profit by the effort.

Gleanings from the testimonies of the delegates and members of the Conference warrant the feeling that like Samuel we raised an Ebenezer, "Hitherto the Lord Hath Led Us!"

Freeman H. Swartz, Secretary.

HAPPY DAYS AT CHANG YUAN

These "happy days" were the days of the Week of Evangelism, a week set apart for special evangelistic effort all over China. This time of the Chinese New Year season is chosen for this because it is the time when most people are at leisure and have time to listen to preaching. The first day of the Chinese New Year this year fell on February fourteenth. It was the first Chinese New Year season that has seen foreign missionaries stationed here at Chang Yuan. Being here for a five month's stay for Refugee School and clinic work, it was my privilege to partake in these New Year activities, together with Rev. and Mrs. Ewert, who are stationed here, and with the Chinese coworkers.

The first few days of this festive season were not exceptionally happy ones for us, as they brought disappointments. We saw how, here and there, professed Christians had put up in their homes paper gods and were burning incense, much the same as their heathen neighbors. This idol worship is so closely linked with New Year's celebrations and the habit instilled in them so strong that they can hardly imagine going into the new year without this phase of "celebration." One of the most worshipped idols is the kitchen god, "Tsao Yeh," who is supposed to control all the affairs that pertain to the different members of the family. Some Christians tell us how in their childhood days they would gleefully point to the colorful picture above the kitchen stove at New Year's time and call it a "picture." "No, no," they were told, "you must not say 'picture,'—say 'Yeh.'" After that the childhood prattle would make much of the "Yeh Yeh" at New Year's time. We did not allow discouragement to get the best of us. We saw in it a challenge for more earnest effort in prayer and work, for we felt that these sins were due largely to the fact that the church members were ungrounded and undernourished, spiritually. In discussing this matter, Brother Ewert once mentioned this phase of how much the deepening of our own Christian lives depends on being fed, hearing good messages, being admonished, much reading and Bible study, and how little these church members had had such opportunities.

The following days were days of great blessing and encouragement. The workers had strongly invited from the pulpit and otherwise, for as many as possible to take part in the coming Gospel campaign during the week of evangelism. Many responded, even some of the inquirers handing in their names. These people, together with all the workers, were divided into three groups, and a leader appointed for each group. Mr. Ewert, Mr. Chao, the evangelist, and Mr. Chang, our language teacher, served as leaders, though the last named, who usually served as announcer, insisted on giving my name as that of the leader of his group. I happened to be in his group.

A few days previous to this, a number of workers and Christians had divided into two groups and had visited a number of the homes of the Christians holding gospel services in the yards. As a result of this, Bro. Ewert felt the need of more unity in the work, especially in singing. He had us meet at their home on the Sunday evening previous to the Week of Evangelism for an evening of preparation. It was not long before the crowded room resounded with some lively singing with piano accompaniment, the kind which the whole mission knows Mrs. Ewert to be so capable to give. The main streets and suburbs were to resound again and again with these songs and choruses during the following days. Some of the most prominent ones used were the following: "At the Cross, at the Cross," "There is Life for a Look," "I need Jesus," "Come to Jesus," etc. Perhaps the following was sung more than any other one:

"Wo men tou yao tsou
Tao wo T'ien -Fu chia
(Repeat three times.)
Tsai na li ch'ang ch'ang k'uai lo."

Loosely translated it says, "Let us all go to my Heavenly Father's home, there we shall be happy always." Other verses that we would add sometimes say, "You too, all, may go," "Jesus leads us there," etc. This chorus was often followed by the rousing couplet,

"Chen hrih hao, chen shih hao,
Pu hsin Yesu tao pu liao."

This, in turn, means: "Truly 'tis good, truly 'tis good, if you don't believe in Jesus you can't get there."

Before going out, we would all meet in church for a prayer service. It was good to see the crowd that gathered for this, often quite a long time before it was time to start, and this extra time was usually spent in singing. The service consisted in an inspirational message, the workers taking turns in leading. This was followed by a season of prayer.

Each group usually stopped at about three places during one trip, holding a service at each place, either on the street or in some yard. The groups consisted of from twenty to thirty people and each one seemed willing to help in some way. The workers and some of the Christians gave messages, some truly good, worthwhile ones. It was good to see how here and there a timid, not very strong Christian would venture out with a testimony, haltingly at first, but more courageous as they went on. We feel this experience was of immense value to these Christians. Others helped by carrying things: posters, Gospel portions, tracts, books by controling crowds especially children, holding up posters while some one would speak, helping with the singing and the giving out of tracts and selling Gospel portions. On several days the older pupils of the Refugee School went along with the different groups and helped by repeating Bible verses in concert and by singing songs they had learned in school. We usually had large crowds who for the most part listened well. Over seven hundred Gospel portions were sold, and thousands of tracts given out. "My Word shall not return void," is the Lord's promise, and we beg of you to pray that the seed thus sown may indeed bear MUCH ruit, that the Lord might here, too, "see of the ravail of His soul and BE SATISFIED."

BIRA VIA JANJGIR, C. P. INDIA,

January 4, 1934.

A brief sweep of the year's work. As a whole the work went on without much hindrance. A shock came to our teaching staff when they could not have their July allowance. Funds simply did not reach. However, they managed somehow to decrease their needs, or made a few debts, and went on with their work. Great joy came to them the other day when I told them that it now looked favorable that their back allowance could be paid. As a whole we have been getting along somehow with a low level of funds, though some things which seemed very necessary, could not be done. Yet we want to trust our heavenly Father to show us always ways and means to do the most essential things even though funds are not as they used to be.

Our work with the young people (especially boys at this station) has progressed. Even government inspectors say that they think we are doing something permanent for India. Our first interest is to build up a Christian church whose members can face the world, both spiritually and economically. True, such church members will also be a real permanent benefit to India as a whole.

As you will recall, besides the regular school work up to the end of the seventh standard (about like the eighth grade in the United States) we have also had a private eighth standard class of twelve boys this year. The meaning of "private" is that our class is not registered by the government, and the students have to go to a government school to take the final examinations. Otherwise we do the same work as government registered schools. In order to have that eighth class registered, it is necessary to deposit 600 rupees in the government treasury, and those 600 rupees (a little over 200 dollars) we do not have at this time. From the industrial point of view our school has also grown in importance, though not in expenses. Besides the three lines of work of sewing, weaving, and carpentry, we are also doing some agricultural work on a small scale. We farmed 2 acres with the school boys this year. Our main purpose here is to show how poor and unproductive soil can be made useful. One little point we have learned here is that if we sow hemp seed (which is cheap here) real thick and let it grow to about 18 inches high and then plow it under, it serves as good as the best known fertilizers. All this has the end purpose to help our Christians to have their own bread and to give to the needy.

Our Christmas season was not as joyful this year as it often has been because already a few days before Christmas the "flu" started to make its round, plus measles. Though we had programs and other joyful occasions, yet because of ill health it was all a bit lame.

But during the holidays we had the great occasion and opportunity to bring the Gospel news to the Ramramiyas at their mela, where some twelve thousand or more were gathered. Just one point more about that. The leader, Ratiram, put me to shame. Early in the morning I went to his tent again. I asked him: "Did you sleep here in this open tent?" He said that he had. I asked him then whether he had been able to sleep because of all the noise around. (In a Hindu mela people dance around and make noise all night long.) He said: "I slept only one hour. Who can afford to sleep when the opportunity is so good to sing Ram's praises?" I confess, I felt rebuked. About a half mile from the mela grounds I had slept at least six hours very peacefully in a closed tent in spite of the opportunity to sing Christ's praise before the thousands gathered there.

ANSWERED PRAYER CALLS FOR MORE PRAYER

This is the third time during the last three years that we have our camp in this village named Chhuri. Last year we were here earlier in the season and it was not so hot as it is now. Every day during the noon hour we went into different parts of the village preaching and teaching those who sat in groups resting from their work of the morning. That was in February, but now it is the middle of April and so we prefer our tents in the shade of mango trees in the middle of the day. The six young men who are with me go out in pairs early in the morning and I go along with either one or the other of these parties of two. At 3 P. M. we all go out together in one group to this or to some other nearby village. During the week we have visited fourteen villages and to most of them we have been more than once, thus trying to take the message of salvation through Christ to them.

Last year the people of this place asked us to open an outstation here so that they might have a Christian family in their midst all the time. When they made this request they were told in reply that if it was Christians they wanted they themselves should become Christians. They smiled at this suggestion and did not seem to be quite ready to accept it, but, praise God, they did not deny that some day they might really become Christians. In all sincerety they asked that we might send them a Christian family to live among them. We had to tell them that because of lack of funds it was impossible to keep the outstations we already had occupied and so there was no hope that the mission would open another outstation there. But then we also told them that the Lord Jesus had said, "Pray ye the Lord of the harvest that he might send forth laborers into the harvest." And so we prayed.

Today there are two Christian families living in Chhuri and we enjoy their fellowship as we meet with them every morning and every evening. Six months after we had prayed, the first Christian family moved to Chhuri. "How did it happen? Did the mission send them?" "No." Neither the missionary nor the mission had anything to do with it. The Lord of the harvest, we believe, sent them. "Does the mission support them?" "No." The Zemindar (landlord) has employed one man as an assistant in the office and the other as a carpenter. He has also given a house to each family so that they can live conveniently.

After all, how did they get their jobs? Before we prayed, one of our teachers, unwilling to accept a drastic cut in salary, left without even telling us. A few days after his departure we accidentally heard that he had left our village school, which is eight miles from Korba. This was rather humiliating for us. Soon afterwards he wrote a letter stating that he had a good job in a cloth factory some hundred miles away. He and his family seemed to be happy and he wrote, probably to show us his independence, that they were in no difficulty whatever. In the same letter he asked whether we would please send a service certificate for himself and one for his wife as well. His wife's appointment to a teaching position was to be made, he said, as soon as that certificate from us would arrive. We sent them both certificates as quickly as possible and wished them well. The future for them looked bright at the time. But sickness came and the new job was soon gone and the teaching position never materialized. After a short time this couple and their children were back at Korba, penniless and without work.

First they asked for a loan, but we had no money to loan them. Then they asked for work, but we had no work to give them. So this poor brother was forced to find work somewhere, somehow, and that all by himself and on his own merit. He is now confident that the Lord led him to this place. His name is Joseph, and once again the hardships that Joseph encountered turned out to be the fulfillment of God's good plan.

But now the Devil argues thus: "Do I hear you say God has answered prayer?" "Yes," we answer, "and He, as usual, has given double measure. We asked for one Christian family for this place, but He sent two." "Oh, is that so!" is the enemy's taunting reply, "Do you know what kind of Christians they are? You certainly have a surprisingly short memory. Don't you see that the one who left his teaching position in your mission school will also leave this place after the slightest little difficulty? He'll not be here long."

We must admit that that part of his argument is true, to say the least, but as far as this man leaving his present opportunity is concerned we say that there is no need for accusing a man of a bad deed before he does it.

"Yes," the enemy continues, "don't you remember that one of the officers told you only two days ago that these two Christian households in this village hated each other and were digging pits for each other, and he prophesied that they themselves would fall into them?"

Again we have to admit that this is true, but still there is no proof that they will keep on digging, and certainly they have not yet fallen in beyond hope.

"Do you know," the tempter begins again, "that the carpenter and his wife, when they moved here, did not even bring a Bible with them?"

"Yes," we reply, "we know that, but they have a Bible now."

"Oh, yes, and here is this envelope on your desk — and its contents — why, it is a complaint and a warning from one of the superior officers against your Christian carpenter. He is a thief! When the keys to the storeroom were entrusted to him he stole some wood and sent it to his father-in-law at Korba."

"Yes," we admit, "this also is true, and furthermore, he had a nice board in his house concerning which we questioned him last night and he admitted that he had stolen that, too. But since we bent our knees in his behalf that same Christian carpenter has confessed all before his non-Christian superiors and he has started to make restitution." We are glad to add that the officer under whom he works has pardoned our brother. He came to my tent in the heat of midday, saying they had granted pardon for the offense and were giving our Christian carpenter another chance.

"But," the destroyer says, "don't call such a man a Christian. You say it is God who sent these Christians, but you are mistaken. I sent them. Not only they but your whole Christian community will receive a bad name because of their living here. No one will ever believe that the Christ whom you preach and concerning whom you testify that He keeps you from falling and presents you faultless, is living at all."

This, however, is as far as the enemy can go, no advance beyond this for him! Our Savior Jesus Christ is a living Savior and He shall have the victory complete. Already we see signs of triumph. The two families who supposedly dig pits for each other unite with the rest of us every morning and every evening for the study of the Bible and for prayer. One of them testified this evening that, "The Lord has not dealt with me according to my works but occording to His loving kindness and tender mercy. He has wiped out my sins." Tomorrow night the penitent, pardoned carpenter has consented to lead prayer meeting.

Abraham "against hope believed in hope"—"He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God," and so should we. Why should thousands perish in a night of ignorance and sin just because some of us Christians have a "form of godliness but deny the power thereof?"

"Greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world." In spite of all difficulties with us poor weak ones God sends out His light and He will continue to do so. We are conscious of the Lord's presence and power more than ever before. Whatever our weakness may be, God is able. He who in answer to prayer provided a place and an opportunity for some of our Christians at Chhuri is able, even so, in answer to prayer to use them there for His own glory. He who has already taken the first step will He not take the second? I can hear the Lord Jesus asking as He once asked two blind men (Mt. 9:28), "Believe ye that I am able to do this?" "Yea, Lord!" "WHAT INSPIRATION IS"

(By Valdo Petter)

The question has been asked whether the inspired writers of Scripture were mere mechanical agents in the hand of God, because in a former article God was spoken of as "dictating" the Bible to various writers. The term "dictating" was used to bring out the fact that GOD and not man is the author of the Bible.

Of course, each writer wrote in his own style and manner as a man. And yet each writer was certainly directed minutely by God. This could not be otherwise, considering the marvelous, yea miraculous, harmony and oneness of the entire Bible and the unerring accuracy of each part — though written over a period of many centuries by writers that never knew each other or compared notes together.

The unmistakable stamp of One Author for the whole Bible is so pronounced as to make it permissible to say that God dictated to the various writers, though we know that each one was a free moral agent and used his own style. They were not mere mechanical agents, but they were holy men of God, fully submitted to His will, and under direct control of the Holy Spirit (II Peter 1:21). If they had not thus been under direct control of God, through His Holy Spirit, the Bible could not harmonize nor be one continuous divine message such as it is.

That the Bible IS the Word of God in a literal sense is proven by such passages as II Peter 1:21 and II Tim. 3:16. Also by such a fact as this: More than two thousand times the writers of the Old Testament introduce their messages with the phrase, "Thus saith the Holy Spirit," or its equivalent. Therefore, if the writers themselves admit that the Holy Spirit speaks through them, then surely the Bible cannot be anything less than the verbally inspired Word of God.

There are those who are not clear as to what is meant by the verbal inspiration of Scripture. For instance they say, "When Satan or evil and foolish men speak or act in the Bible, how can it be the Word of God?" However, what is meant by verbal inspiration is simply that the record from Genesis 1:1 to Revelation 22:21 is a God-inspired record. God, in the Bible, has accurately and unerringly recorded for us all the details found therein, whether they be Satan's words and doings or Christ's words and deeds.

Then there are always some who insist that the Bible cannot be inspired from cover to cover because they think they see contradictions and errors in it. But if only these good people would go more deeply into the matter, they would joyously discover that these supposed errors melt away into added proof that the Bible IS the unerring Word of God. When all the facts bearing on any alleged contradiction are brought out, they form a key that easily unlocks the complicated lock that was too quickly called an error.

It is very true that numerous errors SEEM to occur in the Bible. But they are all merely on the surface, and do not in reality exist. A careful and continued study of any apparent contradiction causes the real agreement of any and every part of the Bible to shine forth in every state. Thus the supposed contradictions and errors have to disappear like snow on a red hot stove. Many conclusive examples of this could be given if space permitted.

Christian brothers and sisters, many a man has sought to discredit the Bible. But none has ever permanently succeeded, and none ever will! Some of the alleged errors have puzzled even the greatest Bible scholars for a time. But eventually, through study, through searching in old manuscripts, through archaeological findings, etc., the supposed errors have disappeared like the shadows must before the rising sun.

However, we who are truly born again do not have to wait for every problem to be solved before we can accept the Bible as God's unerring Word. By faith we KNOW it IS His Word! As common people, we cannot always explain everything satisfactorily to those who discredit the Bible. But we ourselves do accept every bit of it as the inerrant Word of God. We accept it as being Christ Himself, for "His name is called THE WORD OF GOD," Rev. 19:13.

No stronger proof of Divine verbal inspiration can ever be given in heaven or on earth than these very words: "His name is called THE WORD OF GOD."

Christ Himself being the Word of God, it can never be anything less than divinely inspired from cover to cover. It can never be anything less than perfect and accurate in every single microscopic detail. By faith we know this to be true now, and by sigh we shall know it when we reach that other shore.

CHURCH AND CREEDS

G. A. Linscheid

Just very recently I had occasion to speak with two different parties about creeds and conscience. One of these parties is a stock heathen, a worshipper of the peyote, the other one is a professing Christian, with special emphasis upon the profession.

The peyote worshipper took me to task for saying things in my sermons which has kept some from coming to church — notably himself. He made it very clear to me that love is his creed, and that a person should not be "kicking" about this and about that, but efforts should be to draw everybody to ourselves by loving them and not by "kicking." I asked him if his love were so all-inclusive as to love the devil himself. He considered my question ridiculous and laughed about it, but for obvious reasons gave me no answer. — Thou sayest thou hast love for thy creed, thou doest very well; but the heathen have the same creed and will actually give up their last morsel of bread in order to comply with it. God is love, yet we are told that it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. My creed must be based upon these two facts, and to be effective it must express itself in my life.

The other one, who is a professing Christian, boasted of his liberality which does not keep him bound to any church nor to any creed. To him man's conscience is the highest authority and the safest guide. I called his attention to the fact that all peoples, heathen and some even otherwise, follow the dictates of conscience in their manner of worship and yet it is a known fact that some of them — guided by their conscience — commit some of the grossest crimes, even actual murder. I contended that conscience must be guided by some immutable standard which is supreme or else it is very unreliable. We have such a standard, it is the immutable Word of the eternal God, and our conception of its obvious and fundamental teachings directs our conscience and constitutes our creed.

Practical Christianity Applied To Business

AIM—To review the use of Christian

Principles in Modern Business

Scripture References—Prov. 22; Eph. 6:5-9

Topics for Discussion

1. THE PROFIT MOTIVE IN BUSINESS

This subject is widely discussed in this day of questioning and change. If the question were asked of a representative number of business men, "Why did you engage in business," the reply of probably 75% of them would be, "To make a profit." And as business is organized today, profit cannot be ruled out. A business continually conducted at a loss, must fail, and failure means loss to labor, investor and community. Can we not translate the parable of the talents in Matt. 25:14-30 to indicate the Master's approval of a profit for industry?

However, we know that if the profit motive is the sole and dominating motive in conducting a business, it leads to unfair practices, exploiting of labor, dishonesty, and class warfare. Therefore, the profit motive must be subordinated to a higher and more Christian aim, and this we find in the motive of SERVICE. In modern business it is this word SERVICE that is stressed above all others. Is this not a practical application to business of the teaching found in Gal. 5:13, 14. And can we not see in this application, a faint but recognizable response to Christ's promise as contained in Matt. 6:33?

2. IS UNCONTROLLED COMPETITION IN BUSINESS CHRISTIAN?

One of the lessons of the depression seems to be the surprising discovery that all is not well with the generally accepted slogan "Free competition is the life of trade." Uncontrolled competition brought many deserving business enterprises to the verge of, and in many cases, to actual bankruptcy. Before the so-called New Deal got under way, it appeared that only the strongest and largest units of industry, and not necessarily the most efficient, would be able to "ride out the storm." The competition prevailing in those dark days was variously designated by such terms as "cut throat," "vicious," "unscrupulous," and "suicidal." It drove the wage scale down mercilessly to a level that was below a decent living wage.

But a new day has dawned. And the spirit of this new day is to "Live and let live." It recognizes the fact that competitors are not necessarily enemies, but friends and neighbors. Is it too much to claim that business is making a beginning in putting into practice the Christian teaching found in Romans 15:1, "We then that are strong, ought to bear the infirmities of the weak," and that found in Gal. 6:2, "Bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ?"

This does not mean that poorly managed, dishonest, and inefficient business enterprises have a right to existence. The Bible certainly does not teach that. On the contrary, it upholds the virtue of hard work and industry. Read again Prov. 11:1; Prov. 6:6; Prov. 20:13; Prov. 13:4; Prov. 22:20; Ec. 10:18; Matt. 25:26; and Rom. 12:11.

3. WHAT IS THE CHRISTIAN CONCEPTION OF CAPITAL AND LABOR?

The spirit that brings about lockouts and strikes reveals an apparent antagonism of interests of Capital and Labor. It is this conception of contrary interests that has been responsible for so much of our industrial warfare. In this age of modern business it is rapidly becoming recognized that the interests of these two classes are common interests, and that cooperation, forbearance, mutual trust and respect and fair dealing one with the other, spells success for business, and promoted peace, progress, and prosperity. Here again we see the practical application of such Bible teachings as are found in Col. 4:1, "Masters, give unto your servants that which is just and equal, knowing that ye also have a Master in Heaven," and in Col. 3:22, "Servants, obey in all things your masters in the flesh; not with eye service, as men pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God." In the relationship of Capital and Labor, there is apparent more and more the actual application of the Golden Rule as found in Matt. 7:12. "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that man should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets."

SUGGESTION:— Have practical business men give concrete examples of incidents which would throw additional light on the extent to which Christian principles are practical in business.

CHARLESVILLE, CONGO BELGE,

April 7, 1934.

My Dear Friends:—

"Not by might nor by power but my Spirit saith the Lord." We have been burdened for some time about the Christians who are living in sin, and hardly knew how to handle the situation, they seemed so shameless and defiant in their sin. We were praying that the Lord would give conviction and real godly sorrow for sin, but we hardly expected the Lord to answer as He did, He always does for us "abundantly above all that we ask or think."

We had mentioned having revival meetings when the moon is just right, for it is hard to get these people out at night when there is no moonlight. Some of us thought we would have meetings a week and I for one wondered if that would be long enough, for I had never seen these people really sorry for sin. The revival had already started in the hearts of the people, as we were praying the Lord was answering and we did not suspect it. The very first night of the meetings when "the mupende" — Billy Sunday (Rev. Moser) called for all the Christians who knew that their sins were forgiven, only a few responded, but when he called for those who had sin in their hearts there were many, there were even more the following evenings. I have been here almost ten years, and I have never seen such conviction of sin. Men six feet tall confessed sin that they had hidden for seven years, coming like little children confessing sin that no one suspected them of, caring for nothing only that they might be forgiven and cleansed from their sin. Now that the Lord has done such wonderful things for His redeemed we are praying that His work will continue in the hearts of the people in the villages in the district.

The adversary is always on the job, his work was very much in evidence during the meetings . . . . When the people in the villages are asked to accept the Lord they often answer that they will wait until they are about to die then will call the priest or one of his teachers and they will sprinkle holy water on them and save them, also that the priests will pray them out of punishment if they pay them (purgatory). We have four white priests near us promulgating that sort of theory. Our hearts yearn for these people who are twice deceived. Some of us ought to be in the district all the time, but because of shortage of funds, traveling has been out of the question most of the time. Rev. and Mrs. Sprunger started out this morning on an itinerary trip (not in the car). Mrs. Sprunger and Charles went in hammocks and Rev. Sprunger on the bicycle. I wonder how he is standing the trip, the sun is terribly hot today, and part of the path is across a plain without a shade tree for relief.

Rev. Moser is building the three room stone house for the doctor's medical work when he comes to Mukedi in June. We are praying that the money for completing the building will be here when we need it. The village people are carrying some of the stones, but we can hardly expect the masons, sawyers, carpenters, etc., to do all their work gratis.

We covet your prayers. "The harvest is white" and the adversary knows that the time is short. O! that many might come to the knowledge of our Wonderful Redeemer and may be ready to meet Him when He comes to take His own to Himself. Sincerely,

Erma Birky.

THE MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT

The Seventh Annual Young People's Retreat of Central Conference of Mennonites was held at Meadows, Illinois, June 9 and 10.

The registration on Saturday was seventy-five, doubling the registration of a year ago. On Sunday there were one hundred and ten registered. The young people entered into the work of the Retreat with a fine spirit and loyally supported the program throughout.

Dr. C. Henry Smith gave a series of addresses on Mennonites and Peace which were enjoyed by the young people. The instructors and courses were as follows: Prof. I. R. Detweiler, Social Problems; Rev. E. A. Sommer, Early Christian Church;; Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Book of Amos. Rev. A. M. Eash gave the addresses at the sunset services. Rev. H. E. Munemaker discussed the Bible School lesson on Sunday morning. Then on Sunday evening Dr. J. E. Hartzler gave the closing address which was also the opening address of a series of Bible lectures at the meadows.

A number of young people felt this was the best Retreat that had been held.

HALL OF RELIGION AT CENTURY OF PROGRESS

Visitors to A Century of Progress are being shown one of the largest and most costly collections of religious art ever assembled, in the Hall of Religion, located on Lief Ericson Drive, just south of the Hall of Science. Direct approach to this World's Fair feature is by way of the Twenty-third Street entrance to the grounds.

Painting, sculpture, carving, architecture, raiment, and works in precious metals are among the mediums used to symbolize episodes and developments of the Christian age. Each subject in the exhibit is a masterpiece of its kind. Some pieces are attributed to artists whose names are immortal. Others are works of obscure artists known only by the individual creations shown in this exhibit. And there are many other exquisite objects so ancient that time has hidden their creators' identity forever.

Turning to the right after entering the Hall of Religion, a model of the Cathedral of Ulm may be seen. The original edifice is in Wuerttemberg, Germany. It was begun in 1377 and took 513 years to build. The miniature replica on display is hand-carved from maple and holly wood, and required seven years to build. Accurately made to scale, the model is complete with lights, art glass windows, chimes and other minute details to be found in its full-sized counterpart. Questions about the model are answered by Gust Mrosek, its designer and builder.

An immense bas-relief symbolizing "Eternal Progress" is the central motif of the next display, sponsored by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. The beautifully sculptured human figures depict the steps which mortals take in their march upward. This work is supplemented by a series of mural paintings which show important episodes of the great Mormon march from Illinois to Utah, during the bitter winter of 1846. A model of the famous Salt Lake Tabernacle, complete with its gigantic organ and famous "whispering gallery" is also included in this section.

Religious art that spans four centuries and includes works attributed to such immortal artists as Rubens, Velasquez, Rembrandt, Gainsborough and others attract the visitor to the next exhibit. This display is the work of the technical staff of Columbia Museum, a department of Columbia College, Dubuque, Iowa. In addition to paintings, there are beautiful carvings in wood, mother of pearl and metals; enameled work and needlepoint tapestries. General interest in the display is further assured by another group that includes treasures said to have been owned by European royalty.

Only two objects are shown in the following display, but these are among the most beautiful and historic pieces in the Hall of Religion. The first is titled "The Lord's Last Supper." It is a carving of Jesus and His disciples gathered about the table and is done in a rare type of mother of pearl. The carving was begun nearly 200 years ago by a young Armenian artist, as a gift to his mother. Twenty-seven years were required for the task, but tragedy marked its completion, for the eye strain suffered by the artist in executing its fine detail resulted in total blindness for him, two months later. Strong lighting and a powerful magnifying glass are provided so that the visitor can view the details of this remarkable work.

The second piece in the above exhibit is the famous "Liberty Bell" or "Wishing" rug. The rug was originally woven by a Persian maiden and offered by her as a ransom to free her lover, held captive by a neighboring tribal chief. The rug was accepted and years later was brought to America. Since 1915, every president of the United States has trod upon it; it was present when the World War was ended by the Versailles Treaty in France and at the dedication ceremonies of the American Unknown Soldier's grave. Famous statesmen, soldiers, aviators, kings, queens and princes are all associated with the ancient "Liberty Bell" rug.

A restaurant adjoins the previous exhibit, where guests may lunch at moderate prices before going on through the many exhibits that follow.

The Lutheran Church section presents a group of Austrian wood carvings, subjects being the Last Supper, St. Peter, St. Paul and Calvary group. Tracts and souvenirs identified with his faith are also available to the visitor.

Art and handicraft of native pupils are exhibited by the Near East foundation, a philanthropic organization devoted to educational and social activities in the Near East countries. The Foundation is the outgrowth of the Near East Relief organization which functioned during fourteen years of the war emergency period.

Work of the Seventh Day Adventists in 275 different countries of the world is shown by the next section. At the north end of the exhibit is a large revolving globe, illuminated by green, white and red lamps, which show locations of the colleges, administrative and hospital centers maintained by this denomination. A part of the exhibit is given over to the Braille books published for the blind and in this section visitors may have their names printed in Braille upon a souvenir card at no charge.

Crossing the entrance lobby of the Hall of Religion, an exhibit by the National Council, the Episcopal Church, is seen on the northern side. One of the features is a model of St. Luke's Cathedral, Evanston, Ill., built by a children's group of that church. Another interesting unit is the beautiful chalice and paten, presented to St. Ansgarius Church, Chicago, by the world-famed singer, Jenny Lind . Various church vestments are also displayed and captioned for the information of visitors.

The north wing of the Hall of Religion is in the form of a large open room wherein is grouped a collection of impressive mural paintings, centering about a bas-relief representation of Christ and His disciples, done in heroic proportions.

Passing down a half-flight of stairs at the left, the visitor next reaches one of the outstanding exhibits of the building. A small admittance charge is paid when entering. Here, the sacred Chalice of Antioch may be viewed. Experts concede this beautifully wrought silver cup to date from the First Century and some recognize it as the famed Holy Grail, sought in three Crusades by Christian knights of old. In addition to the Chalice, there are other price-

OBEDIENCE

I said: "Let me walk in the fields."
He said: "No, walk in the town."
I said: "There are no flowers there."
He said: "No flowers, but a crown."

I said: "But the skies are black;
There is nothing but noise and din."
And He wept as He sent me back—
"There is more," He said; "there is sin."

I said: "But the air is thick,
And fogs are veiling the sun."
He answered: "Yet souls are sick,
And souls in the dark undone."

I said: "I shall miss the light,
And friends will miss me, they say."
He answered, "Choose tonight
If I am to miss you or they."

I pleaded for time to be given.
He said: "Is it hard to decide?
It will not seem so hard in heaven
To have followed the steps of your Guide."

I cast one look at the fields
Then set my face to the town;
He said, "My child, do you yield?
Will you leave the flowers for the crown?"

Then into His hand went mine;
And into my heart came He;
And I walked in a light divine,
The path I had feared to see.

THE VALUE OF A PLEDGE

The work of the Junior Christian Endeavor is just getting a start in many churches. As the name suggests, these Endeavorers are merely beginners in the field of spreading Christianity. The movement is for the purpose of giving Christian experience to the very young. Junior Endeavor includes all children from six to thirteen years of age, and a church training which starts with six-year-olds should mean much to a living church.

Many leaders of these societies are very anxious and interested in a pledge. Many are afraid of a pledge because they do not know the meaning or the promises it contains. So they are anxious to work out a pledge and find the real helpfulness and deep meaning which most pledges contain. Without a pledge is like being without an earnest purpose. Without a pledge suggests groups of people striving, but not dedicating themselves; trying, but not trying fully; expecting, and yet not knowing what to expect.

There are many values to be gained from a pledge. A pledge is a solemn promise to obey the standards and principles of an organization. It is offered as a security for service by its members; a surety of their interests. Business, factories, churches, clubs, schools and colleges ask a pledge from those who care to participate in the affairs they offer. To them it is a goal. Without a pledge that goal is unattainable. They recognize the value of knowing what and why, they realize that service must come from the soul interest of those serving. Therefore, since a pledge is beneficial to many concerns of the world, why should it not be used in the work of the Junior Christian Endeavor? Here we find these young boys and girls realize a worthwhileness if they promise something they can strive to fulfill. Junior Endeavorers need early to learn to give to the work and worship of a worthwhile organization. A young Junior who attends the meetings of the Endeavor weekly, listening and participating in the program, is stirred to a deeper devotion for the fulfilling of a purpose of helpfulness to his church, his society and his friends. It serves as a constant reminder of the reason for Christian Endeavor, it creates a tendency to strive to do and to do well. A group effort far exceeds an individual's effort if the group effort is united. A pledge unites the efforts of many within a group.

The results from a pledge for Endeavorers would be a direct benefit to the child first by stimulating his desires toward reaching for a real purpose, secondly to the church by training the child early to learn to serve the church, by giving of his best to its services. Children who know that a church calls for their actions and deeds will not be apt to grow up against the principles of their church. And thirdly, a pledge would benefit the Junior society by strengthening and widening its active endeavors.

With a pledge, the future outlook for Junior Christian Endeavor speaks victory. Then the Juniors shall go forth united to serve wholeheartedly. Mae Belle Amstutz.

ANNOUNCEMENT

In this issue will be found special Peace Programs planned and written by the Peace Committee of the General Conference of Mennonites. They appear for Juniors, Intermediates, and Seniors. Since the Senior topic is of a peace nature, the July 1 topic by the Senior editor is replaced by this Peace Program. The other two departments appear as usual. It is strongly urged that all societies and all departments will plan to use this material which is suggested by the Peace Committee. Mr. Luke Horsch, of Upland, California, a member of the Peace Committee, wrote these Peace Programs. May all of our young people, and older ones too, become more peace-minded in these days of disturbances; it is sincerely hoped that this venture may help to bring this about. We, as Mennonites, should more actively contribute to the peace sentiment of the world. Who knoweth but that we Mennonites may have been placed in the world for such a time as this?

I. Adults and Young People

"The Mind of Christ in International Relations."
Isaiah 9:4-7

1. Mad Nations.—As long ago as Jeremiah nations lost their heads and literally did crazy things, Jeremiah not only arraigns Babylon for her sins, but expresses the conviction that other nations have gone mad because "they have drunk of the wine of Babylon" (Jer. 51:7). The suggestion is not only unique, but striking.

Mad Nations! Drunk with the wine of Babylon! Mad nations — trusting in horses and chariots when as never before they need to put their trust in the God of Righteousness and His Son the Prince of Peace. Mad nations — read the headlines of any issue of a metropolitan daily. Revolution and carnage in France (this is being written March 28, 1934), Cuba in revolt, war in Manchuria, all Europe in anxiety, powers vote colossal sums for armaments, new naval bases projected. Unless nations are mad how could they go on century after century, heedless of lessons from past carnage, how can they go on planning to spread death and destruction, misery and suffering for generations? How can they permit sickness and starvation, bitterness and hatred if they are not mad? "Drunk with the wine of Babylon."

2. The Appeal of Jesus.—"Follow me," not a request — a challenge, "Follow me!" Yet Peter wanted a religion without a cross. But Jesus set His face steadfastly toward Jerusalem. His followers must be just as steadfast, just as determined. The religion of Jesus is not to soothe and comfort. 'Tis true, there shall come "rest for the weary." But this is a world in which we must face a struggle, face it heroically. St. Paul speaking from experience said, "We fight not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against the rulers of darkness, against spiritual wickedness in high places."

No great cause has ever come to ultimate triumph for which someone did not pay a heavy price. The world is not yet a paradise. The man who fights the war machine must be a hero. It takes a Christlike spirit of love and devotion to point out the wickedness, the wastefulness, the folly, the sin of building up great armies and navies by nations which are called Christian. Christ or Mars? The followers of Christ alone can supply the answer.

3. "What Price Pearls?"
Mary Jenness

Three pearls upon the counter—
Three lives that I might live
"And if I choose the smallest
What shall I have to give?"

"Nothing," said the angel,
Ironic as an elf,

"Except your daily labor
Can buy the pearl of Self."

"And this?"—the next was fairer.
"That one is Sacrifice,
Yourself will so enjoy it,
We discount half the price."

"The last, how lovely gleaming!"
I thrilled. He shook his head:
"Beware the pearl of Brotherhood,
It costs your life," he said.

4. Suggestions.—
   1. What is the meaning of Christian brotherhood?
   2. The significance of the attitude of the Mennonite Church. Are we condemned for doing nothing?
   3. How win the world to the cause of Peace?
   4. Can we escape individual responsibility?
   5. Short talks might profitably be given on such subjects as:
      The New Internationalism.
      Economic nationalism and peace.
      The position of the United States.
      Education for Peace.
      Forces making for world peace.

II. Intermediates

1. Instrumental Prelude—Quiet Music.
2. Call to worship—The Beatitudes, in unison (if possible from memory).
3. Silent prayer period, followed by the reading, softly, by the Leader or the first verse of "Dear Lord and Father of Mankind" (No. 65, Mennonite Hymnal). Immediately after the reading the melody is softly played at the piano or organ. (All heads should be bowed during this entire period.)
4. Scripture reading, Isaiah 9:4-7. By leader or a member.
5. Remarks by Leader — The Christian and World Peace.
6. The Golden Rule (Matt. 7:12) and Peace. By one of the members.
7. Heroes of Peace
   William Penn; Biship Benavente of Chile
   by one of the members.
8. What can I do for the cause of World Peace? By several of the members.
9. Pledge—in unison:
   On this day we pledge our lives to the building of Peace, in the name of Jesus, the Prince of Peace. We will not hate, but love—we will not destroy, but serve—for God has made all the nations to live in peace. "Blessed are the Peacemakers for they shall be called children of God."
10. C. E. Benediction.
   (Above program is offered only as a suggestion. Local leaders and superintendents will find ways to improve and adapt to local needs and conditions.)

A) It is necesseary that we learn to respect the homes, persons, and achievements of other races. The differences between races and nations are only skin deep. We should never call other races and nationalities by such slurring names as "Chink," "Dago," "Sheeny," "Wop," "Nigger."

B) Building a great Peace is the highest patriotism. Humanity is greater than any single nation.

C) The World War cost the United States something like 35 billion dollars. It has brought on world-wide poverty, suffering and distress, unemployment and lawlessness. The United States spent of its national budget for 1932 72 cents of every dollar for war, past, present, and future. Consider the broken homes, the millions of dead, needlessly sacrificed; the lies, the hate, the suffering. Yet the world is preparing for war at a pace greater than in the days before 1914.

D) "Every war is a national calamity whether victorious or not."—von Moltke.

E) "Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven." Is war God's will?

F) Helpful Scripture Passages: Isaiah 2:2-4; Psalm 67; Psalm 72; Matt. 28:16-20; Eph. 2:13-22.

III. Juniors

1. Opening song service:"Follow the Gleam," "Living for Jesus."
2. Prayer by Leader.
3. Scripture reading, Isaiah 9:4-7. (Seventh verse to be the memory verse.)
4. What Hate Does. Gen. 4:1-13. (If a member of the group is good at telling stories, this story is adapted to such an assignment. At its conclusion the Leader or Superintendent can make applications.)
5. "I would be true," repeated from memory by a Junior. (Perhaps a more fitting poem will suggest itself to local leaders.)
6. Jesus and War. Have a Junior or older person read or repeat Luke 6:27-31 from memory. Other similar quotations will readily suggest themselves. Perhaps each member of the group could come prepared to read or recite from memory a scripture verse quoting Jesus as apposed to war, hatred, ill-will, and similar subjects. This exercise will be the more valuable if the Juniors will find such verses for themselves, prior to the rendition of the program, and present them as their contribution to the program.

7. Closing remarks, Leader or Superintendent.
8. Hymn, followed by all repeating the C. E. Benediction.

What Makes A Vacation Worth While?

Mark 6:31-32

Increasingly workers of all kinds plan for a vacation during the summer months. The word vacation suggests arduous labor during the other weeks and months of the year. Many would choose to have all the wakeful hours be a time of leisure and the year around be one long, glorious vacation. Christianity calls for a program of work. Jesus said, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." Many of life's satisfactions come from tasks well performed. Character is developed by children learning to honestly toil and struggle plus a life motivated by Jesus Christ.

Vacation means an intermission of employment, a period of rest and leisure. So if we are to have a worthwhile vacation, it will mean doing something different from our regular routine of work. It may be strenuous or it may be quiet and restful. It should develop those muscles which ordinarily are not being used. To merely carouse around possibly to return from our vacation more fatigued than we were in the beginning of it, that is not resting.

In our Scripture portion, Jesus bade His disciples to go with Him for a much needed vacation. The disciples had just returned from a rather strenuous campaign, and on this particular day the multitude had been fed, so they were physically fatigued. Added to this bodily fatigue was a mental weariness which came about as a result of the news concerning the tragic death of John the Baptist. Notice and try to experience the feeling of rest which comes from those words of Jesus, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest awhile." If you are discouraged it may help to go apart and rest, for with bodily rest comes new moral and spiritual strength. If our bodies are tired it will be a good investment to take a vacation and tackle our tasks with a new enthusiasm and new strength.

Jesus and His disciples went apart for their vacation, they did not go to a resort, but into a desert place, where they could rest undisturbed. We wonder what they did when they went apart by themselves, we may safely guess that they rested their fatigued bodies and spoke of matters spiritual. How different from many vacations which are being spent today!

Questions

1. What is meant by vacation—should everybody have a yearly vacation?
2. What should a vacation do for us?
3. What determines the kind of vacation a person should plan?
4. What is your ideal vacation?
5. What are some things which a vacation might consist of?
6. What lessons can we find in Mark. 6:31-32 in planning for a vacation?

How Can A Nation Be Friendly?

Gen. 12:1-8 (Consecration Meeting)

Last verse of Moyer's "National Hymn"

Great God, we cry to Thee—
Love, wisdom, liberty,
To us be given;
Help us to see the right
Thy children all unite,
Lead in victorious fight,
Till earth be heaven.

Pre-Prayer

Let us here become greater friends with Christ, thus individually helping to make our nation friendly.

Call to Worship—Acts 3:19-21 (read in unison.)

Hymn—"What A Friend We Have In Jesus."

Silent prayer followed by a number of sentence prayers.

Announcements.

Introduction of topic and discussions by the leader, after which scripture text can be read.

(Present these problems for open discussion):

Problem 1—Since the beginning of time men have fought for food. This motive lies behind wars today. World war was fought for markets. Japan needed room for expansion, so she takes Manchuria. Is this right or wrong?

Problem 2.—Foreign policy depends almost wholly on state officials. They are the key persons in world friendship. How can they help or hinder international friendship?

(These discussions will probably help in the answering of these questions):

1. How will practicing the Golden Rule create friendliness between nations?
2. What destroys friendship between nations?
3. Can you give some examples of how cruelty makes bitter enemies? Luke 13:1-3.
4. How will my friendliness to foreign tourists help to establish friendship between countries?

(Let us pause for a few minutes of consecration as we each give our favorite scripture verse in answer to our names as roll call, pledging ourselves anew in being more friendly to those of other nations.) — Roll Call.

Offering—(Give that other nations may hear the Gospel before Christ returns.)

Prayer—for home and foreign missionary work everywhere.

How Much Work And How Much Play?

Exodus 20:9-11; Lev. 23:39-43

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy."

Pre-Prayer

Pause for a moment of united prayer at Jesus' feet to praise Him and ask His guidance in I. C. E.'s all over the world.

Team Leaders

We would suggest two leaders for our meeting tonight. One stressing benefits and weaknesses of WORK and the other, benefits and weaknesses of PLAY.

A Problem

Mac was a demon for work. He gave himself to it night and day. No vacations, no relaxation. Mac became a rich man, but he was a slave to his business. Finally he retired and died. What did his success profit him?

Questions

(Play) leader—

1. Should I consider my hobby play?
2. What do you term "play" for young people your age?

(Work) leader

3. Should I consider my hobby work?
4. Just how much "work" is included in "play?"

Special musical numbers in duets, quartets, mixed quartets or octets are suggested, keeping in mind our team leadership for tonight.

(Play Leader) Search the Scriptures.

5. Too much play. Eccles. 2:1-11.
6. Ruinous pleasure. Prov. 21:17.
7. How can we make our work, play?
8. Why is play good for us?

(Work Leader)

9. Too much work. Eccles. 2:18-23.
10. The joy of work. John 4:31-38.
11. Aversion to work. Prov. 19:15.
12. Our need of rest. Exodus 20:8-11.

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

July 1, 1934

Topic—How People Serve Their Country

I Sam. 12:1-5 (Consecration Meeting)

Away back in 1620, a small group of people came to this land to find a place where they might worship God as they felt they should. Life was not easy for them, but God blessed them and helped them to build homes here. Year after year others came to find freedom. Finally we became a nation with our own rulers, our own laws, and our Constitution, which gives us the right that these people did not have in the countries from which they came. How often have we thanked God for all this? He has taken care of us so kindly. Have we thought of thanking Him for placing us in a country where we may have our Bibles, our churches, our schools, and our homes? Many people do not live in so happy a place. How may we show our appreciation both to God and to our country? Rom. 15:1 tells us that we should obey our rulers. In Mark 12:14-17 Jesus teaches that taxes should be paid. We are told to pray for our leaders, 1 Tim. 2:1, 2. The last part of Rom. 13 tells how any boy or girl as well as grown person may serve — by living a real Christian life. Those who really love God and other people will want to live rightly and be good citizens of their country.

Plans for the Meeting

Since this is Consecration Meeting, the Juniors may be asked to carry the thought of patriotism into their response to roll call. Have them find Bible verses that tell of love for or duty to one's country. The Daily Readings may be discussed as they tell of various ways in which men of old served.

Questions

1. Why did people first come to this country?
2. Tell something of the life of the early settlers.
3. What are some rules the Bible gives for becoming good citizens?
4. Why should we try to be good citizens?
5. How may Juniors serve their country?

Daily Readings

David served his day. Acts 13:36.
Served as king. 2 Sam. 7:1-3.
Serving as teacher. Luke 6:46-49.

Topic—Being like Christ in His Serving

John 13:1, 4, 5

Jesus said, "Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister." "I must work the works of Him that sent Me." There were times when people wanted to make Christ king, but He proved that "the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister." He not only taught that His followers should serve, but His whole life was one of service. He went about doing good. I feel sure that many of our boys and girls truly love Him and would like to be as like Him in serving as you can. Just how did He serve? Get your Bibles and together we shall see what they have to tell us.

Turn first to John 6:38. That tells us that He thought of others rather than Himself. Then Luke 2:49 shows that He was in earnest and eager to please His Father in heaven. Even His enemies knew that He worked faithfully and rightly. We find this in Matt. 22:16. Then Jesus was brave. A coward would never have dared face enemies as He did many times and especially when He knew that they had come to kill Him. We see by Luke 2:40 and Matt. 13:54, that He was wise in His serving. Then, too, He was noble, kingly! Matt. 21:9. And with it all He was always kind, loving, and gentle. We like especially to think of His kindness as shown in Mark 10:16. You may find many more verses about His serving. May not we who love Him follow Him in service? Read these verses again and ask God to show you how He would have you serve.

"Others, Lord, yes, others,
Let this my motto be,
Help me to live for others,
That I may live like Thee."

Plans for the Meeting

An acrostic based on the scripture suggested in the discussion will help to fix the thought in the minds of the Juniors. The words forming the acrostic may be placed on the blackboard as the scriptures accompanying them are read. Jesus, in His serving was Selfforgetful. John 6:38.

Eager. Luke 2:49.
Right. Matt. 22:16.
Valorous. John 18:5.
Intelligent. Luke 2:40; Matt. 13:54.
Noble. Matt. 21:9.
Gentle. Mark 10:16.

Questions

1. Why did Jesus go about doing good?
2. Mention some of the things Jesus did for others.
3. What does Jesus tell us is the way to become truly great?
4. Name some Bible folks who were like Christ in serving.
5. Why must we give our hearts to Jesus before we can serve rightly?

Daily Readings

How Jesus served. Matt. 20:25-28.
Serving as healer. Matt. 12:10-13.
Serving as example. 1 Peter 2:21.
Serving as guide. 1 Peter 2:25.
Serving as friend. John 15:13, 14.
Serving as comforter. John 14:1-3.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSONS

Lesson Review

Lesson Text—Micah 4:1-5

Golden Text—Of His Kingdom there shall be no end. Luke 1:33.

We have now come not only to the close of this quarter's lesson, but to the close of the study of the life of Jesus according to the Gospel of Matthew. We have had a splendid opportunity to survey the comprehensive program of Jesus.

Time should be taken in the study of this lesson to discover the real life and mission of Jesus. There are several outstanding facts which make their appeal after having studied His life for six months. In the first place it is His fellowship with the Father. Again and again we find Him going off to the mountainside to be alone with God. As you read His life you feel the power of the presence of God in Him. He said "I and my Father are one." Without Him I can do nothing. It is from such a divine impowered life that His motive for service comes.

In the second place His consciousness of a divine mission. From the age of twelve when He was in the temple and said, "I must be about my Father's business," to the time when He hung on the cross He was very conscious that God had called Him for a particular purpose. He said to Pilate, "To this end was I born and for this cause came I into the world that I might witness to the truth." Out of this consciousness grew His whole program of service.

In the third place He went about doing good. Out of His good life produced by His relationship to the Father came deeds of mercy and sympathy. He wept with others not as a matter of profession because He entered sympathetically into their experiences. This attitude can only be produced through the power of love.

And finally, He was not only willing to live a good life and go about doing good, but He was also willing to give His life on the cross for the sins of the world. May the study of these six months' lessons bring new inspiration and deeper conviction concerning the life and teachings of Jesus.

Ahijah and the Divided Kingdom

Lesson Text—I Kings 11:26-14:31

Golden Text.—Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall. Prov. 16:18.

As we begin the third quarter of our Sunday School lesson we turn our attention from the New Testament to that of the Old. We begin with the divided kingdom. It is important in this first lesson to go back and get the general historical background and also the place of the prophet in the life of Israel.

The history of Israel begins with Abraham in Genesis 12 and follows through the book of Genesis in the study of Isaac, Jacob and Joseph. We then find the children of Israel in Egypt in bondage. Moses is raised as a leader and deliverer and brings the Children of Israel to Mount Sinai where the law is given to Israel and it is born as a nation. Moses leads them on to the land of Canaan to the river Jordan. Joshua then takes up the leadership in the conquest of Canaan and in the settlement of the tribes. We then have the period of Judges in which we find the period of unification of the tribes of Israel. The tribes then demand a king. Saul is chosen and becomes the first king of a united Israel. After Saul loses out David is chosen and becomes the greatest king of all Israel. Solomon, his son, becomes king, but he is autocratic. He rules as an oriental despot. Under his reign there is confusion and a spirit of rebellion. Finally this rebellion breaks out and the kingdom is divided into the northern and southern division. Jeroboam becomes king of the ten tribes of the north and Rehoboam, son of Solomon, becomes king of the south. It is at this time in the history of Israel, in 937 B. C., that our lesson takes place.

The second thing of importance in this lesson is the work of the prophets, for Ahijah was a prophet. The Hebrew prophets were unique in the history of the world. They were men of divine insight, who foretold boldly the truth of God. The true prophet lived in the presence of God and also was very observant in relation to the condition of the times. So many look on a prophet as a predicter, a fortune teller, one who could tell the future. They could predict, but their predictions grew out of the past experience of the Hebrew people.

The prophet usually gathered the facts, studied the situation, then brooded over these facts until they became deep convictions. Then he received an illumination or vision which to him was a call to go forth and preach. Their influence in the kingdom of Judah and Israel was felt many a time in the policies of kings for their nations.

To be a Christian, the Bible says, is to be "saved." To be saved is far more than to be assured of heaven when we die; it is an experience which fits us for life here and now. Salvation is a process which is not completed in an instant, though it definitely begins at the moment when the control of one's intellect, will, and affections, and the direction of one's relations to others are surrendered to Jesus Christ as Lord and Master. It was said of the early church that "there were added to it daily such as were being saved." They who have taken Christ as their Master are being saved from selfishness, to a Christlike character, by faith or trust in Him.—Dr. R. A. A., Editor, Baptist.

JOTTINGS

Newspaper reports in the Northwest have it that since the migration of the Hutterite Colony near Freeman, S. D., to Canada, there are only 99 Mennonites remaining in South Dakota. This is incorrect and only shows how confused some people are concerning Mennonite affairs. The Hutterite colonies are not and never were connected with Mennonite conferences. The Freeman Courier, quoting from a census taken in 1925, makes this statement: South Dakota has 4088 Mennonites, and none of these lived in the Colony. The colony people were not included in the 4088. Since the taking of this census there are several hundred more. Turner County has close to 1400, Hutchinson close to 1400, and Beadle and Spink have about 850.

Mrs. C. H. A. van der Smissen, wife of the former editor of the Bundesbote, passed away at her home in Newton, Kansas, and was buried May 28 from her home. Mrs. van der Smissen had been sick for a long time and was a patient sufferer. The sympathy of all who knew her is offered to the family. For many years the van der Smissen family resided in Berne, Ind.

Prof. H. H. Ewert, of the Gretna Institute, Gretna, Man. will discuss the very interesting question: "How Might A More Brotherly Relation Be Established Among The Various Mennonite Bodies?" at the Conference of the Canadian Mennonite ministers, to be held at Altona, June 19th.

Miss Martha Burkhalter, of the General Conference Mission in India, graduated from the Biblical Seminary in New York receiving the degree Master of Religious Education. The subject of her thesis was, "Higher Education of Women in India Under Christian Agencies."

The 13th Open Door S. S. and C. E. Convention of the Pacific Conference was held in Onecho, Wash., June 2-3. Practical, devotional, and doctrinal subjects were under discussion. The Convention Theme was, "What Do I Think of Christ?"

Children's Day is to be observed in many of the churches this year. This is a popular service and serves to emphasize the need of interest on the part of the church. The time when children were to be seen and not heard is a thing of the past. Children should be continually seen in the house of God, but their presence should be recognized by giving them opportunity for expresion and participation. Not only once a year, but every Sunday during the year should be children's day in the sense that children have special recognition. In some places special addresses are made for the sake of the children, in others they have a place on the musical program, and in others again a separate service is held for their benefit in some part of the building. The timid mother who hesitates about bringing little ones with her into the services for fear that they annoy others is perhaps the only one of the earnest worshippers to feel annoyance when children are restless and she should not allow herself to get into that frame of mind. No real church would think of desiring that the children be kept from any of its services.

The Mennonite Weekly Review calls attention to another evidence of the amount of misinformation about Mennonites that gets into circulation through the press. The particular item upon which it comments is one which says that since the oil boom in Kansas, which is bringing wealth to the fortunate owners of some of the farms, Mennonites are moving away to other states where they can continue farming without the interruption of such a thing as an oil boom. Mennonite farmers of today would believe themselves in clover were oil to be discovered on their holdings and the likelyhood of their running away from it would be as remote as anything one might imagine.

The Mennonite Song Festival, held on the Bethel College campus, was participated in by 700 singers. The mass chorus was directed by Prof. W. H. Hohman. There were also various separate units on the program. This festival has become very popular in recent years and the attendances number thousands.

Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, of Quakertown, Pa., was the Commencement speaker at Bluffton College, June 6th. Dr. S. K. Mosiman, the president delivered the baccalaureate sermon on the evening of June 3.

The Commencement address was given at Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., by Dr. E. G. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, Newton, Kans. Freeman College is a Junior College supported by the Mennonites of the Northern Conference.

The Mennonite colony in Paraguay is in need of religious literature, especially German catechisms. Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, editor of the Bundesbote, Newton, Kansas, is collecting used German catechisms issued by the General Conference, to be sent to the brethren in Paraguay. Should any of our readers possess copies which they wish to contribute for this cause, Bro. Krehbiel will be glad to receive and forward them.

A Bluffton College Rally and Reunion Rally was held in Zion church, Souderton, Pa. June 9. The purpose of the recently organized Alumni Loyalty Foundation is to stand back of the College and in particular to enlist new students. Addresses were made by Dr. Mosiman and others.

Arrangements have been made for the holding of the Minister's Conference in the Bertolet's Meeting House, Frederick, Pa., on June 25. Bertolets Meeting House was erected on an ancient burial plot in early days of this Conference. Revs. Moses Gottshall and John Oberholtzer were the active persons in establishing worship in this place. Since the advent of automobiles the congregation has been absorbed by the Eden church at Schwenksville. Regular services are no more held here. It is interesting to note that one of the first ministers of the Germantown church, Hans Neues, having a quarrel with the brethren, moved to this locality in order that he might get away as far as possible from Mennonites. But by a turn of fate this Mennonite place of worship came to be erected on the plot in which he lies buried.

The Green Lane Retreat Program, June 22-24, will offer the following items: "The Christian Attitude Toward War and Peace," Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander; "History of the New Testament," Dr. E. E. S. Johnson; "A Study of the Parables of Jesus," Rev. A. S. Rosenberger; "Missions," Dr. Ella Bauman; "Learning How to Die," Rev. Carl Landes; "The Meaning of Communion," Rev. D. J. Unruh. A group of Souderton young people will render the Drama, "Simon the Leper." The total cost of the week-end stay at the Retreat will be $5.50.

Dr. Ella Bauman spoke to the members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Herfors Mennonite Church on "Women's Work in India," May 23. The Herfors church celebrated Communion on June 3. Preparatory services, June 2.

DEATHS

Anna Rempel Dyck was born in the little village Gnadenfeld, South Russia, February 11, 1853. She died at Glendale, California, May 24, 1934. Of her four sisters and three brothers only one member survives, a brother in Germany.

In 1873 she married Peter Dyck from a nearby village, Pordenau. A few years after their marriage they left the mother colony to make their home in the valley of the Caucasus Mountains, the home of the Tartar tribes. Wohldemfuerst, their new home, was situated in the fertile valley of the Kuban River.

They came to Kansas in 1893 and bought a small farm near Bethel College. Here for nine years they enjoyed the fellowship of the College Church, its friends, and students.

Sister Dyck was a member of the Immanuel Mennonite Church. In spite of her impaired eyesight she kept a keen interest in life. She was untiring in her efforts in behalf of the suffering relatives in Russia. Four sons and one daughter mourn her passing.—Her last words before she fell into her last sleep were, "Safe in the Arm of Jesus."

Mary Bixler Schutz was born in the Pandora-Bluffton, Ohio, community June 22, 1860, and died May 26, 1934, at her late home in Pandora, Ohio. She had attained the age of 73 years, 11 months, and 4 days. On May 24, 1887, she was united in marriage with John A. Schutz, with whom she lived in happy wedded life for forty-seven years. Her husband and four children survive. In April of 1879 she was baptized and received into the Mennonite Church on confession of her faith in Christ as her Savior. She was a faithful and active member of the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, and attended practically all the services, both weekday and Sunday as long as health permitted. Funeral services were conducted at the Grace Mennonite Church by her pastor, Rev. Paul E. Whitmer, on the afternoon of May 28, 1934.

MARRIAGE

Buchert-Moser.—Lewis Orlando Buchert and Esther Catherine Moser were married in the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa., on Saturday evening, May 19, 1934, at 7:00 o'clock. The single ring ceremony was performed by the pastor, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson. The organist, Miss Anna Moyer, played Mendelssohn's Wedding March and "I Love You Truly" during the ceremony.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Buchert and the bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Moser. They were attended by Miss Helen Clemmer and Lawrence Huber.

McAvoy-Duerksen.—Miss Frieda Duerksen, daughter of Brother C. F. Duerksen, and Mr. Marvin McAvoy were married Sunday, April 29, 1934, at the home of the bride. Rev. J. J. Evans, Gotebo Baptist minister, performed the marriage ceremony.

Zehr-Kremer. — A lovely church wedding took place Sunday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, when Miss Leta Zehr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Zehr, became the bride of Ezra Kremer, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Kremer.

The ceremony, performed before a large white arch entwined with fern and sweet peas in the Pleasant View Mennonite Church, was solemnized by Rev. E. R. Augspurger. Tall baskets of pink and white peonies on either side and in front of white lattice work, formed the altar, and large ferns stood on either side of the piano. Dainty pink and white streamers formed a background for the arch and lattice work and a canopy above the piano made a charming setting.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Velva Titman sang, "The Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Miss Gladys Rediger, who also played Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a floor length gown of white wedding ring satin, trimmed with Chantilly lace. The dress was made with a bodice effect at the waist. The costume was completed with a turban of tulle and long veil to match, trimmed with Chantilly lace. The bride carried an arm bouquet of talisman roses and swansonia.

Miss Doris Zehr was her sister's maid of honor. Her frock was of shell pink taffeta and her jacket was made with puffed sleeves. The costume was completed with a tulle bridesmaid hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of Johanna Hill roses.

Glen Troyer served as the groom's best man. Both were attired in oxford gray suits.

Martha June Titman, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. She wore a green organdie dress and carried a basket of daisies and sweet peas. Joe Rediger, Jr., cousin of the groom, carried the ring on a small white satin pillow.

At the close of the ceremony, Miss Titman sang two verses of "Savior, Like A Shepherd Lead Us."

A reception at the home of the bride followed the ceremony for only those of the immediate families and the attendants. The guests were seated at a beautifully appointed table by Miss Louise Otto. An attractive, large white wedding cake centered the table. A two-course dinner was served by the Misses Roberta Moore and Ila Hannah.

Immediately following the dinner the bride and groom left on a short wedding trip.

The bride is a graduate of the Aurora High School class of 1929. The groom has attended the School of Agriculture at Lincoln.

The couple will be at home on the S. B. Zehr farm, three and one-half miles east of Aurora.

less antiques on display in numerous cases set about the large gallery. One small statue dates from seventeen centuries B. C.; another, the Minoan Treasure, is of 1650 B. C. The latter includes a vase of pure sheet gold, wonderfully adorned with figures symbolizing war and sports. Only two others are known to exist in the world. Other cases display Egyptian, Greek, and Syrian art and sculpture from the Sixth to First Centuries, B. C.; ancient Etruscan "beauty mirrors" and glazed pieces dating from the time of Christ's life on earth. All of these rare pieces are labeled and, if more detailed information is wanted, an attendant is present to answer questions that visitors may ask.

It is a well known fact that the finest works of art have, in many instances been inspired by religious motives on the part of great artists. In the Hall of Religion, A Century of Progress visitor sees scores of material examples to confirm this belief—and carries away with him a deepened sense of spiritual understanding.

CALVARY AND PENTECOST

Calvary and Pentecost are inseparable in the plan of God; these twin powers are indispensable for the achievement of the object of grace. Without Christ as Saviour, the Christian life has not begun. Without the Holy Spirit infilling the believer the Christian life must fail; and "a powerless Christian is a misnomer." The presence of the Holy Spirit in the life of the redeemed man, as the practical Worker-out of the principles of God, is conditioned by a yieldedness of will. The power, which He alone can impart for character and service, is confirmed in its constancy and effectiveness through obedience to every divine dictate. Through that presence and power alone can the spirit of holiness become manifest, and success in work be assured. "The weakest living creature," wrote Carlyle, "by concentrating his power can on a single object, accomplish something."

Center the power of mind, the gifts of intellect, the desires of the heart, and the opportunities of each hour on Christ, His work and purposes, and there will be no failure. Life glows with splendid possibilities, when the Holy Spirit is in full command of it.

Jesus Christ is winsome and wonderful! He is everything. He has everything. He offers us everything. —Gordon B. Watt.

OLD PEOPLE NOT USELESS

An old man sitting in an arm-chair, feeble and helpless, may be the most useful member of the household. Let me say three things:

1. Old people are a blessing, because of their accumulated wisdom. You have made the journey of life. You have the rich experience. That boy is a bright boy who forms the acquaintance of some aged person.

2. Old people supply a necessary conservative force. You make society more stable. You bring reverence to it. The age that is wise rises before the hoary head.

3. Old people link us to heaven. You remind us of the future life. "My old mother knows how to pray," said a merchant recently to me. You bind us to the throne of God.

The earth would be positively poor without you. I am not sure but that you are the most useful member of society.—Sel.

I do not know how soon 'twill be
Ere I cross life's darkest sea;;
But when on earth my life shall end
I hope in Heaven to meet a friend
That I did help, by act or word,
To follow Christ, the Risen Lord.
No greater joy to man can come
Than just to know he's helped some one.

A BOOK REVIEW

The Conflict of the Ages

BY ARNO C. GAEBELEIN, D. D.

Publication Office "Our Hope," 456 Fourth Ave.
New York

We are thankful to the author for this, another valuable contribution from his pen. This book, as indicated in the sub-title, deals with the timely subject of Lawlessness. The author very ably traces its origin to Satan and his seed. The development of lawlessness is shown to have been gradual but persistent from Satan's first appearance in Eden. Through the long ages it has grown to alarming proportions until we are led to believe that it is nearing its culmination in the personal Antichrist and his brief, but terrible reign here upon earth. Not man with all his best endeavors will succeed in binding Satan. This, as the author shows, will be accomplished at the time of Christ's return.

Every Mennonite will be interested to read this book. When dealing with the development of lawlessness in Russia, the author makes mention of the sufferings the Mennonites have passed through under communistic rule. The question as to how preachers or educators can link themselves to the communistic idea and work for it when Communism is anti-God, anti-religion, anti-Christ, and anti-Church, is clearly answered.

The book will help to clear up many erroneous ideas about world conditions as they exist today.

"The Conflict of the Ages"

BY DR. ARNO C. GAEBELEIN

Here is a book with a prophetic message that should challenge every sincere Christian to view present-day events in the United States and in the world as a whole in the light of God's Word.

Many conservative preachers are ordering the book in quantities and urge their members to read and to study it. Almost one hundred copies were sold in one congregation. It is arousing nationwide attention. Several thousand copies are already in circulation.

In beautiful binding, 171 pages. Printed on good paper.

EDITORIAL

APPROVAL AND DISAPPROVAL

A paper, be it a secular or a religious one, seeks to present matter that interests the reader or has some special significance to him. Not all that appears in a paper represents the particular position of the editor. He is frequently not in accord with what is presented. The reader has the right to hear all sides and it is presumed that he is sufficiently intelligent to draw his own conclusions. It is the business of the editor to act as sort of an umpire to see that the proper rules are observed and that the writer keeps within the limits of what is good publicity. We do agree with much, perhaps most, of what is contributed, yet we believe that the readers and the people of our church have a perfect right to know just what others in our fellowship are thinking and teaching. This does not mean, of course, that pages of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel are to be thrown open to all sorts of isms and fads, or that it is to be an instrument for spreading opinions that the church as a whole cannot approve, but it does mean that a healthy exchange of opinions within the limit of orthodoxy is not to be suppressed. —G.

DISGRACEFUL SPORT

The other night thousands of fight fans paid many thousands of dollars in New York to see two giants pummel one another until one of them was battered into near unconsciousness and the referee stopped them in order to avoid more brutality. That some people call sport! It is pure brutality for which there is no excuse except a willingness on the part of some thousands of cheap sports to pay high prices in order to see the disgraceful exhibition. However, the event was considered of such importance that it was broadcast over a national network and by short wave into foreign countries. If two farmer boys were to take their pet roosters back of some barn and let them fight it out they would be hauled up and stiffly fined if not actually sent to jail. We are not pleading for the right of farmer boys to have their roosters fight, but if it is a crime to permit such a show why should it not be a crime for men to enter into such combats? Human nature has a funny twist that leads into all kinds of inconsistencies, but a sense of decency should dictate that if chicken fights are immoral it is certainly immoral for men to fight in the same way. The waste of money in such exhibitions, in such a time as this, is appalling. Yet men who want to see brutality are hardly affected with the spirit of benevolence that would move them to give of their means for the relief of suffering. With them suffering is an entertainment for selfish gratification, the matter of tenderheartedness never affects them. They are monsters. —G.

THE MOVIES GET A JOLT

That the "Movies" have been one of the greatest curses of the age no one with a grain of common sense will deny. They have debased art, they have exploited crime, they have glorified lawlessness, they have fostered immorality, and done effective work in popularizing the damnable drink habit. All this for the profit there is in such stuff. Time and again ministers and religious bodies have protested vigorously against them, but were unheeded. With the boldest hypocrisy they have made a showing at reforming and then deliberately gone on from bad to worse. Now the Catholic church has spoken and that in no uncertain terms. The officials of the church, stating that the movie interests would listen to no arguments save those that come from the box office, have called upon their people to stay away from the movies so long as they continue in their indecencies and without mincing words their people have been told that to give support to indecent movies is a sin. Speaking with authority for twenty-five million people this should mean something to the Hollywood crowd who has been capitalizing crime, immorality, and indecency. There is not a Protestant who stands for decency and morality who will not commend the Catholic officials for their stand. Every other church should be just as determined and just as aggressive in this fight for righteousness, the sanctity of the home, and public morality.

JUST MISSED THE FLOOR

The local church and its ordained Indian elder is supported entirely by local funds. Within the building are five benches on the men's side, and five on the women's side. When the church raises the necessary money, it may get more benches. In front of the benches are roughly hewn and roughly squared logs. These have no back rests and are about six to eight inches wide. They are raised so that one sits about twelve inches above the floor. The floor of the building is tamped puddled mud, dry and hard.

Yesterday was the hottest day yet of this hot season. The building was crowded to capacity. The little boys were all shooed off the roughly hewn logs, to sit on the platform. The local elder was in charge. I arrived five minutes before the beginning of the meeting. There was no special meeting on. The benches were filled, — but by crowding I succeeded in getting onto one end of a roughly hewn log. A brother coming in two minutes later had to sit on the floor. Though there was no back rest, I was happy for the log seat six inches wide. I just missed the floor by two minutes!

TIMELY PROBLEMS OF THE CHURCH

A. J. Dyck

What ought a timely sermon to include?

Preaching has from the very early days of mankind been the means of disseminating the message of God among man. In Genesis 5:26 at about 235 years after the creation of man, we read these words: "Then began man to call upon" or as the Luther translation of the German Bible has it — "to preach the name of the Lord." The wise Solomon seems to have been a preacher in his days. The prophets of old did more or less of preaching in their days. Of John the Baptist we read in Luke 3:3, "And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptism of repentance for the remission of sin."

Even our Lord and Master Himself believed in the work of the preacher not as one of the chief methods of disseminating the gospel, but as the chief method. By Him it was never undervalued as something secondary. He went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues and preaching. When he sent forth His disciples He said: "As ye go, preach." And after His resurrection they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word. Even Paul rejoices in the fact that he was ordained a preacher.

Realizing then the importance of this office, when we study the question of what to preach, when to preach, how to preach, what to say at different occasions, to different classes of people, knowing their different needs and longings, we should take the great Master Teacher and Preacher, Christ, as our model. And as we turn to study our great model, we find ourselves at first discouraged, because that which impresses us most strongly is the dissimilarity between the discourses of Him who "spake as never man spake" and that which we may ever hope to produce. We must study and frame our sentences beforehand, and many times sit down afterwards and wonder that so great a truth could be so poorly told. Or is this only one of my weak points in my ministry? Do none of you ever have this experience?

The most striking element in Christ's discourses is the marvelous spontaneity. His words were real lightning — they flashed. With us and our perhaps necessary elaborate methods they too often lack this. But even here, in this at first discouraging attribute of our Lord's preaching we may find ourselves both an idea and an ideal. The ideal timely Christian sermon will be that which in manner and in spirit as nearly as possible resembles Christ. It may be so very different in degree, yet the result should be the same with us as it was with Him.

Our preaching today as well as at all times should be Christcentered. Jesus Christ yesterday, today, and the same forever should be our main theme. God's plan of salvation should be the keynote of all preaching and he who cannot proclaim this has no right to step into the pulpit, he is not called of God to preach. Christ is the center in the eternal plan of God and all our preaching should center on Him. By this I do not wish to say that in every sermon we must present to our hearers the whole plan of God's salvation. It may even be possible to not mention the name of Christ in the sermon and yet the sermon be Christ-centered. We have one book in the Bible, namely the book of Esther which does not contain the name of God, not even once, and yet we would not say that the writing is not of God or disowns God. I believe it is God-centered, yea, even Christ-centered, for it shows to us that deliverance lies not in a thing, but in a person devoted to God and His cause. So it may be in our sermons today. The social side of the Gospel should have its proper place in our sermons. To stress grace and love at the expense of rightful life and living may in the end be detrimental. Our moral problems should not be overlooked in our preaching. Paul writes to Timothy (2 Tim. 4:2), "Preach the word, be instant in season, out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. In these words the social and moral side of the gospel apparently receive mention and I believe they have their place in the sermon today, even though some are aroused when they hear social in connection with preaching. It is true we have no social salvation, but we may, we should preach on the social side of the gospel at times, however, the salvation of man through Jesus Christ and His shed blood should be number one.

The facts which constitute the theme of preaching are four: God, Man, Sin, Salvation. When we speak of GOD, we should show Him to our hearers in His entirety as much as this lies in our power to present. We should show Him as the triune God who reveals Himself in His trinity—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. When we speak of MAN we must not forget that he is created of God in His own likeness and in His own image for His eternal praise and glory to be co-ruler with Him. We should see him also in his fallen state utterly helpless to save himself and come back to God, therefore needing the hand of God to lead him back to be in union with Him. When we speak of SIN we must look at it as the opposition of our will against the righteous will of God. We should speak of salvation as God's plan of redeeming lost sinners and bringing them back as sons and daughters to be His beloved children.

And when we preach these great facts as eternal truths, we must not forget that the church is the House of God, is a Sanctuary where men and women assemble for Divine Worship, and we should hold fast to this age-old conception. The church is a temple to which all men and women — weary, burdened, baffled, sorrowing, sinning, etc., may turn for spiritual guidance, comfort, consolation, and refuge. It must also be remembered that we as ministers are more than ordinary men, more than mere citizens, more than public speakers. We are heaven's messengers, interpreters of the will of God, of the things of God, heart easers, peace makers, promoters of good will toward men. And when our hearers come to this sanctuary of God, to His holy temple to worship, we should not only permit them to worship, but worship with them in spirit and in truth.

"A sower went forth to sow" — thus does the Master describe the important and delicate work of the pastor. The Christian ministry is a seed- sowing process. The pastor's relation to his parishoners is that of a tender shepherd leading his flock to green pastures and beside still waters, watching constantly, lest some may be lost in the mountainous wild. His vocation makes him a promoter of harmony, understanding, and good will among men. It is his business to encourage, hearten, comfort, cheer, and inspire. He must seek to bring harmony out of discord — and by this I do not mean merely discord of one brother with another — but discord of his own mind, of his own belief. He must seek to bring hope out of despair, joy out of sorrow, and understanding out of confusion.

You may say this is more personal work of the minister and does not relate to preaching, therefore it does not touch our topic. I believe much of the above said may be accomplished through proper preaching, through instructive preaching.

Some years ago there was without my knowledge a little discord among two brethren. I preached my sermon on Sunday morning, as usual. The result was that the discord was settled the coming days without any personal work on my part done. I was afterward told that the one brother said, "It seemed as though every word struck me straight and I made up my mind that I was wrong and wanted the matter settled." It was the work of the Spirit of God working through the words of His servant. Our sermons should be convincing, should be instructive.

Our Lord's sermons were doctrinal, if we remember that docere means to teach. When he spake, he spake as though something were settled; and this is dogma, is truth crystalized. "The letter of the law says thus, but I say unto you that the spirit of the law is this"; is a quotation he would often make. He taught when he preached. The very name of His followers was disciples — learners, so He must be their teacher. He had something to teach, we should have the same. His discourses were not guesses at truth. There was nothing in them which would remind one of debating societies, where everything was an open question. In preparing our sermons we probably read what this expositor or that author or the third or seventeenth says on the subject, but not all of these different views should be brought in the pulpit. We must cling to the truth as presented in God's word. "Do you know," said the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, "I don't like these everlasting negations that some ministers bring in the pulpit." Our ministry, which should be a teaching ministry, should be instructive. Let us follow our Lord and Master and quote with Him: "Thus it is written," and we will not baffle our hearers or cause them to loose that spirit of real worship.

Our instructive preaching should be persuasive. Our Lord and Master knew why He taught a truth. There is no Christian sermon preached which does not directly or indirectly contain this element of persuasion to a nobler Christian life. This is in reality which differentiates a Christian sermon from other pieces of literature. A drama is always pictorial and sometimes may be instructive; a lecture should be both, but the distinctive mark of a Christian sermon is that it is a discourse aimed at the will, for the purpose of inducing or strengthening the Christian life. A truth presented in the sermon should not stop with the mere truth, but should be leading farther on. Every instructive sermon should at the same time be edyfying. A truth should be presented in such a way that it will be really uplifting the spirit, and that the hearers will be desirous of hearing and getting a blessing from the truth heard. A pictorial presentation may be of this nature. Spicing the talk with a story or illustration is generally pleasing. A verse of poetry inserted properly is uplifting. Christ's eye swept the heavens and the earth for metaphors, and parables, and similes. He spoke of the shepherd of the hills, of the sower of the plains, of the fisherman on the waters. When he presented the lost condition of man, He pictured it in a lost son, a lost coin, or a lost sheep in the mountainous wild; and thus His sermons were uplifting and instructive at the same time, and the people heard Him willingly. They came to Him with their desires and longings, and went away strengthened. A timely sermon should also aim at this.

Further, a sermon should be exhortive, admonishing. The exhortation should not be brought in an offending manner, nevertheless in a convincing and heartsearching manner. If the minister has the gift that it will cause a searching of heart by the one needing it, he has succeeded in his effort. This should be our aim. A brother once came to me after I had preached my sermon, and said: "Well, I guess today you aimed at me personally in your sermon." I replied I had not thought of him personally in the preparation nor presentation of my sermon, but if he felt that the shoe was pressing his corn, he had better change his shoes. It is said of an army chaplain that he spoke on the wrong of the army, and one day the officer came to him and said: "Well, in your sermon this morning you were brushing my clothes quite briskly, you better be a little more careful what you preach." In a calm manner the chaplain replied: "I am very sorry that I brushed your clothes too briskly, I did not aim to do this, I had aimed to brush your heart." The officer went away meditating on the words of the chaplain.

We should call a sin a sin and nothing else, but do it not in an offending way. Do as I once heard in the office of an attorney, where one person said to another: "I told him that he lied." The attorney said, "You should not have said to him that he lied, but merely have told him that he did not remain with facts." Let us call attention in our sermons to the evils of the time and do this with all earnestness without trying to offend our hearers, and the sermon will bear fruit.

Further, should a timely sermon include politics? This is a vital question because it has to do with religion, the church, the state, and the personal influence of the individual minister, says Rev. Philip Cone Fletcher of San Antonio, Texas. He further quotes: "The average voter is very sensitive about his or her ballot and should be. No one has the right to dictate to any voter in matter of suffrage. The voter is also very touchy about being told from the pulpit for whom he or she should vote. Hence the preacher who uses his pulpit to laud one candidate or bemean the other, is turning his pulpit into a rifle pit and is playing with dynamite, and need not be surprised when he gets blown up." He goes on and gives seven reasons for not using the pulpit for politics, namely:

1. "He injures the cause he seeks to help."
2. "He impairs his spiritual leadership."
3. "He turns his pulpit into a riflepit."
4. "He strikes wounds he will never be able to heal."
5. "He offends people who are as honest as himself."
6. "He brings about hurtful divisions in the church."
7. "He violates the constitution of the U. S."

(Rev. Cone Fletcher, San Antonio, Texas, in Homeletic Review, March 1930.)

However, it is the duty of every minister to urge upon his parishioners the importance of political purity. He should call attention to the fact that the hope of the nation lies largely in the ability and integrity of those who are chosen to administer the affairs of the nation, the state or the municipal. The minister demanding this much cannot be charged with political interference and I believe is his duty to do. The pulpit is and should be the spiritual guardian of the people along this line, and should hold up before his people the fact "that righteousness exalteth a nation."

We could go on and on upon what to include in our sermons, namely: Humor in the sermons; the sermon at wedding occasions; the funeral sermon, etc., etc., but I shall conclude with this and leave the rest for open discussion.

SOUND DOCTRINE

P. A. Kliewer, Bluffton, Ohio

"The sound words and 'That Good Thing' committed unto the church." II Tim. 1-2:2.

We have salvation by faith on the Lord Jesus Christ; sealed by the Holy Spirit unto that day. We are in God's heart for safety, hide with Christ in God, in His hands for service; at His feet worshiping Him, and drinking in the Word of Life.

That wonderful truth, the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. This wonderful truth was preached to us, we heard, believed, passed from death unto life, were sealed by the Holy Spirit, and now we rejoice in assurance of salvation and in the Freedom of God's fellowship.

Justification set us free from the guilt of sin; in sanctification we have been set free from the bondage and corruption of sin; in the wonderful future (Col. 3:1-4) of glorification, we shall be set free from the presence of sin. Now we rejoice, for that truth has set us free from the service of Satan and the world and the flesh and transplanted us into the glorious service of God and men. It has made us free from doubts and fear and given us that blessed assurance of salvation (I John 3:1-4) and the blessed hope of His coming again.

What is that truth that has and is setting men thus free? In John 8:30-36 Jesus puts the test of true descipleship: "If ye continue in my words, then are ye my disciples indeed." This is still the test today. Not that we become disciples by continuing in His word, but the continuing is the proof. Here that truth is His word. Jesus makes it very plain that he who serves sin is not free, and that it is Jesus that makes men thus free. Thus He tells or shows them that they must first take the place of a sinner, not children of God because Abraham was their father. "Ye must be born again." Take the place of a condemned sinner as we see in the first three chapters of Romans, then only can we say, "Jesus Christ died for me." Then when we accept the price Jesus paid for our sins, that wonderful miracle of the New Birth will take place. Then we are free.

In II Tim. 1:9-10 the grace given by Jesus Christ before the world began and now made manifest by the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, who abolishes death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel. Then in verse 11: "Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an apostle and a teacher unto the Gentiles." Verse 12 speaks of the suffering he has had to endure in the performance of that duty, but rejoices: "I know whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." Paul was not ashamed of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, for he had Rom. 5:5 in his heart. He had Eph. 1:13-14.

Now he comes to Timothy and tells him in verses 13-14 to hold fast the form of sound words, that good thing committed unto him, to keep by the Holy Ghost that dwelleth in him. Then in 2:2 he admonishes him further, not only to hold and keep, but to commit to faithful, who shall be able to teach."

Matt. 28, that great commission of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to go, preach and teach — did He leave it up to the messenger to preach and teach as he should decide? Did God, when He sent Moses to Pharaoh, send him without a definite message." No, when a messenger is sent, then also a message is given to him. Jesus says, "Search ye the Scriptures for they testify of me."

In I John 5:10 it says that he who does not believe the record that God has given of His Son makes God a liar.

Did Paul and John believe in religious tolerance? I may not understand what is meant by that word, nor may I understand what is meant by "No official creed which is supposed to stagnate the religion of the Living Christ." But as I understand it, it means that anyone may preach and teach what he wishes. A free lance ministry. Is our government tolerant with John Dillinger? And he only robs people of their money and their physical life! How can the church of the living God with a positive fundamental truth that alone sets men free, be tolerant with those who come into our churches and place doubt and unbelief in the hearts of our young people, thus leaving them in bondage of the guilt and power of sin. The enemy always pleads for tolerance, but does Paul here to Timothy teach that?

But he must take the consequence. Nor is anyone forced to preach that wonderful truth or to believe the fundamental truth of Christianity—the inspiration of the Bible; but we raise a protest against men who want to do this in the churches, denying this truth that sets men free. The fundamental doctrine of "THE CHURCH" has always been the same and never will change, no matter how wise men may become in their own minds.

The omitting and substituting of that truth, the only power of God unto salvation, has filled and is filling the denominations with members who have never been born again, leaving men and women in darkness and in bondage. God's messengers, both in the pulpit and the pew, should have such a positive and definite message which will force men and women to choose either for or against God. Only the word of God can cut like a two edged sword — can make men and women wise unto salvation by faith in Jesus Christ.

Matt. 28:17, we find the two camps, those who believe and those who do not believe. Two camps always have been and always will be until Jesus comes again. The modernistic and the fundamentalistic camps, or whatever name you want to give them, these two camps have always been. The word Modernist may soon go, I do not care for the name, but at present it describes that camp of doubters and unbelievers. The battle can not be denied.

Back to II Timothy and the Sound Words. I believe they are as in German "Heilsame Worte"—"oder Lehre." This is the remedy for this sin-sick world. Many omit this wonderful power of God, life-giving message. The sound doctrine of Titus 2:1 is literally "healthful teaching." Healthful teaching will produce healthful living. Sickly teaching will bear fruit in sickly living. Character creed and conduct are closely related and interdependent. Character is what man is. Creed is what he believes, conduct is what he does. Doctrinal preaching is sometimes disparaged and ethical preaching preferred. Doctrinal is simply teaching and people are always suffering and perishing for lack of knowledge of that truth that sets man free. Ethics is simply the logical result in conduct of believing certain doctrines. Doctrine is the root and conduct the fruit. We can have no tree and fruit without the root.

The relation between creed and conduct is as that of cause and effect. It has been said that Christian morality is a fruit that grows only on the tree of Christian doctrine. No man can be better than his creed. Error in creed produces incalculable harm in life. James 5:19-20 speaks of erring from the truth and where it leads to: Spiritual death.

In the article in The Mennonite and Christian Evangel of April 17, "The Church and Her Creeds," we read: "Wherever men found fellowship with God the Father, there a creed is born and religion expresses itself." Or, "When reformation comes, our creeds must change to conform to new insights, purer love, a greater God." Both make the imperfect experience of men that basis of creeds or truths. Experience will come when we take God by His Word. Experience is a positive result of believing "THE TRUTH." Deny these fundamental truths once for all, revealed in God's Word, and men will have no experience of sins forgiven — of that wonderful fellowship with God, here and now.

What we need is not reformation, but revival which will only come when "That POWER" of God again is preached, that sword of the Holy Spirit is used by the Ministry. Same article: "It is being said: 'If you believe correctly you are saved.'" Is that not what John 3:16, and many other passages of God's word, says? How could man be saved — by his works? Not saved by doing, but by believing. Saved by the Gospel of Grace that will produce a Gospel of works. But no works are possible without that Gospel of Grace.

These great fundamental doctrines — Truths — that have set and are setting men free will abide forever. I said to my church that those Articles of Faith suggested by our Conference, were nothing new to me. These wonderful truths set me free — these Articles of Faith would only lock the door to keep the enemy out. Who is trying to come into our pulpits, putting doubts and unbeliefs in people's minds, thus keeping them from the saving truth? As the Apostolic Creed was needed to counteract heresies of Marcion and Gnostics, so we need today these Articles of Faith for the same reason. In early church doctrine was made the test of fellowship.

Some say that Articles of Faith rob men of their freedom. Does true truth ever rob men of freedom? No one is forced to accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their Savior, the truth that will set them free.

Read II John 9:11, "Whosoever transgresseth, and abideth in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God. He that abideth in the doctrine of Christ, he hath both the Father and the Son. If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him God speed. For he that biddeth him Godspeed is partaker of his evil deed." Thus scriptural method is to have pure doctrine first and then life in full accord therewith as becometh godliness.

The cry is, "Away with dogma, creed, and back to Jesus." This is misleading. Go back to the beginning of the church, examine the preaching of the apostles, and you will find that it consisted wholly of doctrine, certain fundamental truth, which believed, would be the power to set men free. On the day of Pentecost Peter proclaimed the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ. Paul began his ministry by confounding the Jews in doctrinal discussions. He kept it up for 25 years and with lasting result. With our last view of him in Rome he is doing the same. One cannot preach the Gospel without preaching doctrine, because every phase and feature of the Gospel has been formulated into doctrine. Read I Tim. 3:16 — what would we call this? Again I want to say: Doctrine believed will produce conduct. One is the proof of the other. For right relationship to God only can produce right relationship to men — world and sin. And the only way that men can get into right relationship with God is by believing just these fundamental truths —the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

There is a great gulf between the two camps —always has been and will be. We need Davids who are not afraid to go out against these "giants." We need men like Paul who at Athens was stirred when he saw what the philosophy of men had done and was doing to men. Men who will be stirred to action against the men who are coming into our churches placing doubt and unbelief into the minds of people. They can never destroy these great fundamental truths —they will stand and have stood the onslaught of "LITTLE" men—but they can get men and women to build upon wrong foundations, which will not stand at the day of judgement. Nor can young people today build on any other foundation so they may be able to stand against the enemy surrounding them.

II Tim. 4:3-4, The time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, etc. Indications are not lacking that we have fallen upon these evil days. The shadow of apostasy is creeping over the land in an eclipse of the truth. Read Isa. 30:9-10 and Jer. 5:30-31.

We see today as never before, great missionary movements, but also as never before apostasy. The old lies, in new garments. II Thess. 2:11. — What lie? In Gen. 3 we see that lie— no other so far reaching in effect. Today the same lie,— only in new dresses. Today, doubt as to God's word among those who profess to be His messengers. Denying the written word will result in denying the Incarnate Word. Also all of the "Isms" of today are one in denying the doom of the unbelieving. Read II Thess. 1:7-10. Then the other lie: Be like God or all are divine. Yet it is Bible plain, that only by faith in Jesus Christ's atoning work men may now become the sons of God. Then I John 3:1-2. The "thus sayeth the Lord" is a much surer foundation than all the airy philosophy of men.

What shall we do with the sound words— that good thing committed unto us? Shall we seek to modernize them? No, we cannot do this —for danger of losing our essential message. Also in danger of lowering the inspiration and authority of the Scripture in things essential to salvation; danger of thus inviting doubt, obscuring the supreme object of the church: "saving souls." Shall we take a compromising attitude? Many are doing it. Woe is me if I preach not the whole council of God as revealed in His word. Let us embrace it, preach it, contend and defend it.

I hope to see the day when churches will lock the door, making as in II John 9-11 doctrine the test of fellowship, and I hope to see that colleges will have the same test for teachers.

Who will thus believe the Fundamental Doctrines of the Church of Jesus Christ — so that young men and women will become grounded and rooted in that "TRUTH" — God's Word.

The sound words — that good thing commended unto us — may we commit it just as we received them unto the next generation. New truth? There is only one TRUTH — Jesus: "I am the Truth, the Way, and the Life." Let us give that message He gave us, which is revealed in His Word, the Bible. Then men and women will pass from death unto life. "He that hath Christ hath life; he that hath not Christ hath not life."

OREGON SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The Annual Oregon Mennonite Sunday School Convention was held May 27th at Dallas, Oregon.

The morning session was opened by singing, "Stepping on the Promises of God." Opening prayer and devotionals, Rev. A. Classen, Portland. Song, "Dwelling in Beulah Land." Talk to the children, Rev. J. M. Franz, Pratum. "Our hearts are deceitful and desperately wicked" (Jeremiah 17:9) before we give our hearts to God. God is pleading, "give me thine heart." We should not be hard hearted. "Behold, I stand at the door and knock," Rev. 3:20. God knocks at men's heart through songs, preacher, and Sunday School teachers, and in other various ways. A very fitting illustration was also given of Grace Darling, how she saved those men. Jesus not only saves nine or ninety, but He died to save us all.

Song Albany group. Song, "Wash in That Beautiful Stream," Raymond Gerig, Pratum.

"What Constitutes A Successful Sunday School?" Homer Leisy, Pratum. 1. A Sunday School is not a social place. 2. A Sunday School is not a place for entertainment. Sunday School is a teaching department of the church of Christ, it is a Bible school. Sunday School needs a parental care of the church, same as a child needs his parents. The Sunday School's purpose is to win souls, and not only that, but should train and teach those to reach out and win others.

Essentials for a successful Sunday School: 1. Saved workers. (Blind cannot lead blind.) 2. We need workers that are sound in the faith. 3. We must be students of the work. (The work is the Bible.) 4. Sound lesson helps. 5. We need surrendered workers. Rom. 6:13. 6. Separated workers. (Separated from the world to God.) 7. Workers must be Spirit filled. To be filled with the Spirit is the normal condition of a Christian.

Song, "Tell the story of the Gospel as it is." Double quartet, Pratum.

Recitation, Viola Nawfeld, Dallas.

"Sunday School Evangelism in and out of Sunday School," Rev. Wilkinson, Albany. The value of human souls. We should have a burning passion to bring souls to Christ. The purpose of the Sunday School is to bring and instruct the individual. In the Sunday School the individual should be brought closer to God. We need teachers that are close to God. If the teachers have the spirit of evangelism they will work outside of the Sunday School. Make it plain to the indiviudal that they ought to be in Sunday School.

Instrumental Music, Dallas. Reading: "Life Bearing Christian," Dora Jantzen, Albany.

"How to teach a Sunday School class" Rev. Herbert Widmer, Dallas. II Chron. 6:27. The teacher must have her or his lesson well prepared. If a teacher knows, he will also help another to know and grow. Then he will be a successful teacher. A successful teacher: 1. Will make progress as a teacher. 2. The Sunday School will grow. 3. The Sunday School class will like their teacher. 4. Your class will be drinking from a running stream.

Four points to keep in mind in teaching a class: 1. Approach of lesson. 2. Presentation of lesson. 3. Application. 4. Conclusion.

Song by a group of girls from Portland, led by Miss C. Niswander. Recitation: "My Confidence," Audrey Carlson, Portland.

"How can the proper cooperation between the home and church be brought about?" Miss C. Niswander, Portland. 1. Visiting homes. The Sunday School superintendent ought to visit the homes. It is also necessary for the teachers to visit the homes so they may know the condition of the home. 2. The Sunday School should be interesting. 3. It is important to be friendly, especially to the non-Christian. Some are very cold and distant instead of friendly. 4. We should make them feel we are their friend and are interested in them. 5. Prayer. (Prayer changes things.) 6. By evangelism. Go into the home and win them for Christ. Through children we can many times win parents. We can win many souls through prayer.

Closing prayer, Rev. J. M. Franz, Pratum.

The afternoon session was opened with a song service, led by W. Bartel, Portland. Reading of John 17:14-26 by Rev. A. Classen, Portland. Prayer, Elmer Widmer, Albany. Song, "Blessed is he that readeth," Young Men's Quartet, Pratum. Reports from the Sunday Schools. Song, "Is it the Crowning Day?" Song, Double Quartet, Albany. Piano duet, Dallas. Song, "I gave my life for thee."

Testimony meeting, led by Rev. A. Classen. Many took part and testified for their Lord and Master.

Duet, Ed. Leisy and W. Bartel, Portland.

Inspirational message, Rev. J. J. Ray, American Sunday School Union. John 11:38-44; John 5:25. Face appearance: We must have the napkin removed before we can speak for Christ. Feet: Christian walk. The grave cloth must be removed before we can walk with God. Our walk must be Christ like. Hands: Service, soul winning. The fruit of a Christian is winning souls for Christ. If we have our hands wrapped up with the grave cloth, we can do no service for Him. 1 Peter 2:9, God expects every Christian to be a show window for Him. Heb. 4:12 can cut us loose from the grave cloth, the fleshly desires. We must allow the word of God to criticize our life. The word of God will correct our life and the grave cloth will fall off.

Song, "Blest be the Tie." Closing prayer, Rev. A. Classen. —E. G. S.

CORRESPONDENCE

East Freedom, Pa., May 31, 1934. Dear Readers and Editors of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel: Greetings in Jesus' name! It is rather a long time since any news whatever have appeared in these columns from our church, thus a few lines seem to be in order.

On January 7th and 10th, Brother A. J. Neuenschwander was with us and presented the needs of the Publication Board and also spoke in regard to the Young People's Work of the General Conference. Very helpful and inspiring messages were also delivered by him. March 1 and 2, Brother Harvey Bauman, missionary to India, was in our midst and gave us two helpful and challenging messages.

Ascension Thursday, May 10, our church entertained the Eighth District Sunday School Convention. A good program was given and much inspiration received by all in attendance.

The outstanding event of the season is without a doubt the Mennonite Sunday School Rally held afternoon and evening in our meeting house Saturday, May 19, 1934. A good representation from the eastern part of the state, the various schools of the community, and many friends were in attendance.

At two o'clock Brother Jacob Unruh of the Napier charge led us in a spirited song service. Mr. John Swarr of Quarryville, Pa., president of the Eastern District Sunday School Union, presided during the afternoon meeting. Brother L. H. Glass led the devotional service, basing his remarks on Nehemiah, chapter four. A male quartet from the Altoona Sunday School favored us with some special music for the afternoon. Following this, Mr. Samuel P. Snyder, superintendent of the Roaring Spring School spoke on the topic: "How can we get the Sunday School to Feel the Need and Duty of Church Attendance?" An interesting discussion followed the presentation of the above mentioned topic.

Mr. Walter H. Temple, Field Secretary of the Sunday School Union, was called upon to make some remarks, bringing greetings and speaking briefly of his activities in regard to his work. While Mr. Temple had the floor, he asked the assemblage whether they desired another meeting of this kind, the result being a unanimous vote to hold another rally next year.

The second topic of the afternoon was presented by Mr. Grover Dull of the Napier Sunday School, his topic being: "The Value of Careful Preparation of the Sunday School Lesson." After the presentation of this topic, a discussion followed by a number of brethren in attendance. The service was dismissed by a closing hymn and benediction.

Between the sessions, supper was served, cafeteria style, at the church from many well filled baskets.

The song director opened the evening service promptly at 7:30 with Brother Sylvan Lehman presiding. Brother John S. Rough from the Roaring Spring Sunday School, led in the devotional period, basing his remarks on II Cor. 4:2. A male quartet furnished two numbers, a solo by Miss Snyder and a selection by the Roaring Spring young people, respectively. The address of the evening was given by Rev. Vernon D. Grubb, pastor of the St. Paul's Reformed Church, Juniata, Penn., his subject being: "The Preparation and Call of the Bride." After hearing such a masterful address all felt keenly the need of a closer walk with our Lord and Master, Jesus Christ. The service closed by singing "Blest be the tie that binds," and benediction by Brother S. D. Yoder.

Those in attendance speak well of inspiration and help received, strengthening the bond of fellowship among our people. The brethren and sisters from the East in various groups visited the different schools on the following Lord's Day morning.

As we close may we ask an interest in your prayers that we may prove faithful in His service? We desire to be used of God in whatever way He may lead us. With brotherly greetings to all. Sylvan Lehman.

Calvary Church Notes, Washington, Ill. A good many of our young people attended the retreat at Meadows June 9-10. They enjoyed it very much.

Election of officers for the Sunday School for the coming year was held June 10. The following were elected: Emil Rediger, Superintendent; Earl Stuckey, Assistant; Harry Nafziger, Secretary and Treasurer; Ralph Gross, Assistant; Bryson Roth, Chorister; Irvin Nofsinger, Assistant; Viola Nofsinger, Pianist; Mary Lee Guth, Assistant.

Gladys Imhoff, who has been in nurses' training at the Methodist Hospital in Peoria, came home June 15 for a two weeks' vacation.

Mrs. Irvin Slonneger of Peoria entertained the Kum-Joy-Nus Sunday School class, June 12, in the form of a sunrise miscellaneous shower for Miss Dorothy Imhoff.

Gladden Esch has received his Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Illinois and was also given a commission as a lieutenant in the Reserve Officers Training Corps.

The following officers were elected at the Senior C. E. annual picnic, held at the Washington Park, June 13. Cyrus Broadstone, President; Barbara Imhoff, Vice President; Bessie Heiser, Recording Secretary; Thelma Roth Corresponding Secretary; Ralph Vercler, Chorister; Irvin Nofsinger, Assistant; Viola Nofsinger, Pianist; Irvin Nofsinger, Assistant.

THE "OLD RABBI" SPEAKS

"Then welcome each rebuff
That turns earth's smoothness rough,
Each sting that bids nor sit nor stand but go,
Be our joys three parts pain
Strive, and hold cheap the strain;
Learn nor account the pain;
Dare, never grudge the throe.

"For thence — a paradox
Which comforts while it mocks,
Shall life succeed in that it seems to fail:
What I aspired to be,
And what not comforts me:
A brute I might have been
But would not sink i' the scale."

The Sacredness of Marriage and Home

Gen. 2:24; Acts 10:1-2

Summer time, roses, lilies, and weddings all seem to go together. This summer seems to be blessed with an extraordinarily large number of weddings, so this is a timely topic. It should be our endeavor to strengthen the home, to reemphasize the sacredness of marriage and examine the reason and purpose of marriage.

The home is the bulwark of every civilization, as goes the home, so goes the nation. May it not be true that the reason for our widespread unrest may be found in the unsettled condition of the home? We are permitting movie stars and those idlers in high society to set the standard. They marry because of the lure of the bodily attraction, for social prestige or commercial gain. Marriage as an institution means but little to them, to them it holds no sacredness; the fact that God ordained that one man and one woman should be joined in matrimony until death do them part, means nothing to them. When they are married they do not expect to remain married if it will not prove entirely satisfactory. Rise up, O Church of the Living God, rouse yourselves, ye youth and those who are called parents. Let us read the handwriting on the wall; we are being weighed in the balances and are found wanting.

The Church of Jesus Christ needs to teach the sacredness of the marriage vow and of the home. Jesus teaches that only fornication is a sufficient excuse for divorce. Young people should expect the marriage vow to be a bond holding for life. Nothing but true love is a sufficient reason for marriage.

Young people should look round about them and see all the wreckage of broken homes, especially as seen in children who are not privileged to enjoy "mother's love and daddy's care." Let them think seriously and pray earnestly before they pledge themselves to a better home life than they see round about them. May they endeavor to be both God-fearing parents and understanding, loving chums to their children still unborn.

Parents are perhaps more to blame for the "mess we are in" than anybody else. Their home life is one continuous series of bickering and wrangling. Their example does not set forth a beautiful picture of the married state. And then, too, they are weak and cowardly in their discipline of their children, permitting them to be out late at night, running through streets and alleys, unchaperoned, when they ought to be at home in bed under the benediction of the family prayers and a loving father's care. These same "wishywashy" parents still call anyone who refers to this problem mere spreaders of gloom and old-fogey preachers, but just as surely as there is any law of cause and effect in this universe, and there is, just so surely they will arise some morning to find their children in the army of debauchery and crime.

When the parents grow old these same children will turn against them and leave them to struggle in their old age. Before it is too late, you, who under the grace of God are called parents, rise up and demand obedience, live worthily of the respect of your children, spend your evenings with your children, pray with them and put them to bed, and then when Sunday morning comes around have them go with you to Sunday School and worship services where they will be under the direction of godly teachers who will direct them to the true way of life.

Marriage should not be entered into too quickly und unadvisedly. Time is a great revealer. Love at first sight and married almost over night rarely results in a happy lasting union. There should exist something of a similar background in the parties concerned. It is difficult enough under the most ideal conditions for a man and wife to live together happily at all times. For it means that here are two people who have lived their own individual lives for perhaps twenty-five years and then all of a sudden they are asked to live in very close contact with another who had varying habits and customs. It requires a large portion of love to pass through these differences without having an outbreak, but where true love exists no day should come to a close until there has been given and received a sincere goodnight kiss before the eyes close in sleep.

Questions

1. Describe some of the unideal home situations today.
2. Depict the growing menace of the divorce problem.
3. What is the Christian ideal of a home?
4. What constitutes a justification of marriage?
5. What are some ways in which we may raise the ideals of marriage and the home?
6. Plan to have two successful lovers and parents tell about the trials and joys of happy married life.

The Best Book I Have Read This Year

Eccl. 12:12; Acts 19: 19

"Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them."

Youth is the time for the formation of character, and the things we read, like our thoughts and associations help to formulate that character. We read for pleasure, but we should also read for information and for the development of those principles and ideals which are so essential to a happy, abundant life.

We may not be rich as this world's material goods are counted wealth, but if we can sit down and read some of the choice books in literature we may have true abiding wealth. If we cannot afford to build up our own library, there will be opportunities near at hand where books can be obtained at very little or no rental cost. In the last few years our public libraries report having given out more reading matter than ever before and they also state that the interest has turned to more serious and worth-while reading matter.

In many quarters youth more than wastes time by reading much of that trash which is called literature. It has been written by men and women who are willing to sell out their talents and higher idealism merely because an evil-minded public delights in reading this salubrious trash. It is the task of Christian Endeavor to educate such people in order that they may enjoy reading the better type of books. There is also that class of people who do not read anything, they just sit around twiddling thumbs and loaf with other loafers like themselves. How poverty-stricken they are!

Reading material should consist of a balanced diet. It should include history, biography, books on science, poetry, fiction of a more serious nature, but above all a goodly portion of sacred and devotional literature. A Christian should also read about people of other lands and work in our mission stations.

Our best educated leaders have invariably been lovers of the Bible and knew what its pages contain. All of our best writers have been steeped with its message and spirit, study the writings of men like Shakespeare, Browning, Milton, Dante, etc., and you will be surprised by the many times they use direct quotations from the Bible or inferences from it. The Bible helps us first of all to become wise unto salvation, but it also holds a large fund of information and inspiration concerning the great problems of life.

In making the plans for this meeting it might be well to ask a number of people to bring a brief book review of their favorite book or the best book they read during the year. These books might be of a varying nature, one review a devotional book, another in the field of serious fiction, another in history or a magazine of current history, etc. Another interesting feature might be to procure from some able member or from a library a list of fifty of the best books available and hand a mimeographed list to everybody present. If no library facilities are available, the Society might plan to have different members contribute a few books and have a secretary to keep record of those taking out the books. In other communities it is possible to procure circulating libraries from the State Library. This is a very acceptable plan. Above all give your people a chance to get good books so they can improve their spare time and thus develop their character so they may live the more abundant Christian life.

In preparing the topics you may desire to use the daily readings in suggesting preparation for your speakers. Try this plan some time.

Resolved, That Paul Had A Greater Influence On History Than Moses

Heb. 11:23-29;; II Cor. 11:22-28

"Both Obeyed When God Spoke To Them"

Pre-Prayer

Where Jesus gives you strength which binds your group together in joys and difficulties.

Suggestive Program

Conduct your meeting tonight in form of a mock debate including all members in the discussion, pro and con for Moses and Paul in the light of these suggestions. (If proper coaching can be had a real debate would perhaps be very interesting and helpful.

1. Who was Moses? Give a brief history of his life.
2. Who was Paul? Give a brief account of his life.
3. Does Moses as a law-giver have any historical value?
4. Which is greatest, Moses as a founder of a great nation, or Paul as the establisher of Christian churches? Why? Are both necessary?
5. What makes Paul's writings much richer and greater masterpieces than those of Moses?
6. What made Paul and Moses great men?
7. Why could Paul not have worked as he did in the time of Moses?
8. Would Moses have fit in God's program in Paul's time? Why?
9. Compare Moses' Ten Commandments with Paul's I Cor. 13:—
10. Are any two of God's messengers perfectly alike in this day and age? Is it not true that God is able to use our talents only as we consecrate them to Him and yielding ourselves, permit Him to use us as He did Moses and Paul?
11. Which one of these two men do you believe, make the greatest contribution to History?
12. Which of these two men have the greatest effect upon our lives today?

The Duty Of Maintaining Our Health

I Cor. 6:12-20

"Know ye not that your body is the Temple of the Holy Ghost?

Pre-Prayer

Pause for a few moments of prayer

Health Notes

Good health in all cases but inheritances, is the result of right habits. It is easier to keep your health when you have it, than regain it when it is lost.

Good Health Rules

1. Get plenty fresh air.
2. Eat moderately.
3. Many raw vegetables.
4. Less meat and eggs.
5. Eat bulky foods.
6. Drink plenty of water.
7. Get plenty of sleep.
8. Breathe deeply.
9. Refrain from narcotics (dope) in medicines.
10. Pray much.
11. Eat upon God's Word.
12. Keep sweet under all circumstances.

Questions

1. How does "over-doing" of anything affect my health? Examples.
2. How does my health affect my spiritual conduct?
3. How does the lack of proper eating or loss of sleep affect my prayer life?
4. Do the proper indulgences of life affect my power to think clearly and definitely on my work? How does this affect the Kingdom?
5. Why is it my duty to be at my best physically?
6. How does ill health affect not only individuals but groups?
7. What are the effects of good health upon the life of society and our attitudes toward Christ?
8. What effect does your health have on the coming generation of children?
9. Does worry and fretting affect our health?
10. Is the "peace that passeth all understanding" dependent upon God or upon us?

INTERMEDIATE C. E. NEWS

The Illinois C. E. Rally was held at the North Danvers church on June 3, 1934. The motto for the Rally was, "I Will Be Christian." In the Intermediate conference the following topics were well discussed: "I will be Christian in my individual life," by Lyle Guth, Washington, Ill. "I will be Christian in my church," by Robert Sommer, Normal, Ill. "I will be Christian in my social life," by Hazel Hendricks, Danvers, Ill. "I will be Christian in my attitude toward others," by Lory Stahly, North Danvers.

A duet, "Precious Hiding Place," by Edna Rosehart and Donald Gundy created a spiritual climax for the program which was arranged by the Meadows I. C. E. Society.

A large shield was awarded the society having the largest percentage of active members present at the Rally I. C. E. Conference. The Washington Calvary Mennonite Society earned the shield, which they will keep until 1935. This shield was presented by Mrs. Roy Yoder, the superintendent of Intermediate Conference work.

We are awaiting results of this spiritual time of learning, in active work in the various societies until we meet again in 1935.

Prayer is an acknowledgement of faith; worry is a denial of faith. Prayer is putting my hand in God's trusting to His loving guidance; worry is withdrawing my hand, and denying His power to lead me.

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

Several Junior superintendents have promised to write short articles in coming issues of this paper on different clauses of the Junior C. E. pledge. We trust that these will be a blessing to older Endeavorers as well as Juniors. The pledges for the different societies contain practically the same promises and embrace the principles for which Christian Endeavor stands.

"Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ"

Have you boys and girls ever been worried or fearful that your parents might not take such good care of you as they have been? Were you ever afraid that mother might forget that you get hungry or that you need clean clothes? Of course not; "How ridiculous!" you say. You have never even had to think of such things. You have had good care and you KNOW that you will continue to have everything that you need because your father and mother are caring for you. You trust them.

In playing with your father has he ever held out his arms for you to jump into them and when you jumped he closed his arms about you and caught you? Were you not afraid to jump? No, because you knew your Daddy was holding out his arms to catch you.

Do you not think that it would have made your Daddy sad if you would have been afraid to jump into his arms because you thought he might not catch you? And if he still could not get you to trust him even though he said again and again that you would not fall — would he not be grieved to have his child doubt him? It would also grieve our parents if we started to worry and fret about whether or not they would always love us and care for us.

As we can not please our parents if we do not trust them, just so we cannot please our Heavenly Father unless we trust Him. "Without faith it is impossible to please Him." If we do not trust Christ, He can not even do for us some of the things that He would. Some of the things told in the Bible that Jesus did for others were done because of their faith in Him. In His Word God asks us many times to trust in Him and He gives us many precious promises. God never says anything that He can not do, so these promises become real experiences if we take Him at His word. Can we not take a lesson in God's care from the grass, the flowers, and the birds? They do not fret, but God takes care of them. Will He not much more take care of us?

Often not only boys and girls but grown people, too, are afraid when it storms. When I was a small girl, I remember, I awoke one night when it was storming and became very much frightened as it thundered and lightened. I went over to mother's room and said I was afraid. She said, "You need not be afraid. Just think of that song 'God Will Take Care of You' and go back to bed." I went to bed again and slept peacefully.

When Livingstone returned to England after one of his experiences, the people asked, "How did you dare to do it?"

"It didn't take daring, it took FAITH," was the answer. "I made sure it was the right thing to do. I did my best and trusted the rest to God."

That is a good rule for all of us. Do your best and trust God.

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: Moses, Who Led His People

Heb. 11:24-27

Many years ago God's people were in Egypt, a land not their own, where life was indeed unpleasant. Things were getting worse and worse. The king was afraid that some day these people might become so tired of his cruelty that they would fight against him. Instead of being kind and teaching them to love him, he became more unkind. He kept them very busy and gave them little pay, thinking that then they would have neither time nor money to trouble him. Then, as if that was not enough, he determined that soon there should be no more men among God's people. He would have all baby boys killed. Things did look dark, but the king had forgotten one thing and I am afraid that some of God's people may have forgotten, too. God still loved them and He is great and good enough to save His people from any king. When Moses was a wee baby in his little basket, God had already chosen him to lead these people away from the wicked king to their own land. He caused the princess to be kind to Moses and to give him back to his mother. As Moses grew up, God kept caring for him and finally at just the right time told Moses of His plan. Moses loved God and loved the people and often talked to God about them. Moses not only led the people within sight of their new home, but passed on to them the laws God gave him and had them build a tabernacle in which they might worship God.

Plans for the Meeting

The boys and girls will find pleasure as I did in making a list of especial note concerning Moses. In a very short time my list numbered ten. Here I decided to stop and suggest that the Juniors finish it. Have each Junior supplied with paper and pencil with which to write outstanding characteristics or experiences of Moses. When their lists are completed, transfer to the blackboard the items which seem of the greatest importance and discuss them together. No doubt your list will resemble mine although they will surely differ.

Moses was—1. Miraculously saved. 2. Trained by his mother. 3. Trained in Pharaoh's court. 4. A lover of God. 5. Especially called. 6. Obedient to God. 7. A man of prayer. 8. A man of faith. 9. Brave. 10. Meek.

Questions

1. What was unusual concerning Moses' birth and early childhood?
2. How did God call him to be a leader?
3. Why did God's people need Moses?
4. Name some of the things that made Moses a good leader.
5. Tell of Moses' faith in God.

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: David, Who Trusted God. — Acts 13:21, 22

There is no better place to learn of David's trust than in the Psalms. Many of these were written by David. He not only spoke of trust but showed by his life that he trusted God. We all know of the time he killed Goliath. He knew that Goliath was much stronger than he, but he knew too, that God was stronger than Goliath and God would fight for His people. You remember that David, when a boy, took care of his father's sheep. There, too, he trusted God for he said it was the Lord who saved him from the lion and the bear when they came to him in the field. He also trusted God to take care of him when King Saul was angry and tried to harm him. God would have us trust Him to help in our everyday work as David trusted Him.

Plans for the Meeting

You might profitably spend a good deal of time today in finding from the Psalms what David said concerning His trust in God.

Questions

1. What was David's work when a boy? When a man?
2. How does the 23rd Psalm prove that David trusted God?
3. Tell a story from David's life showing his trust in God.
4. How did God reward David's faith?
5. What does God say of David in Acts 13:22.

JESUS CAN

The Savior can lift every burden,
The heavy as well as the light,
His strength is made perfect in weakness,
In Him there is power and might.
The Savior can solve ev'ry problem,
The tangles of life can undo;
There is nothing too hard for Jesus,
There is nothing that He cannot do.
The Savior can strengthen the weary,
His Grace is sufficient for all;
He knows every step of the pathway,
And listens to hear when we call.
The Savior can break sin's dominion
The vict'ry He won long ago;
In Him there is freedom from bondage,
He's able to conquer the foe.
The Savior can satisfy fully
The heart that the world cannot fill; ;
His presence will sanctify wholly
The soul that is yielded and still.

Asa Relies On God

Lesson Text—II Chron. 15:1-12

Golden Text—The Lord is my helper and I will not fear what men shall do unto me. Heb. 13:6.

In our last Sunday's lesson we learned that the united kingdom of Solomon ended in 937 B. C. at his death and that the kingdom was divided between the north with its ten tribes and the south with its two tribes. Jeroboam I, a man of unusual ability, whom Solomon had placed in charge of the laboring men, became the first king of the north. Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, became the king of the south. There never had been any real unity between the two kingdoms at any time. A chain of Canaanite cities had separated them through the reigns of Saul and David.

There were great natural differences between the two kingdoms which are continually reflected in their history. Israel was three times as large as Judah and had twice as many people. The land of Israel was fertile which led to prosperity and finally prosperity led to luxury, deterioration and final destruction. Judah was hilly and barren. The people had to struggle for a living and this tended to keep them hardy and simple in their way of life. Thus Judah lasted from 937 to 586, while Israel only lasted from 937 to 722. Judah also had the holy city, the temple and the Davidic dynasty. The fifty unhappy years that followed the division show the results of disunion. Mutual suspicions, rivalries, wars, civil and foreign, sapped the resources of both kingdoms. There was however, one ruler in Judah who changed the conditions of Judah. This was Asa, the grandson of Rehoboam. He was an able ruler and in his long reign—914-874—he brought peace and wealth to the kingdom of Judah.

The outstanding act, however, of his reign was his reform in religion. Ever since the days of Solomon the people had been worshipping idols which naturally brought religious and moral degradation. But Asa, through the suggestion of the prophet Oded, took courage, put away the idols and reestablished the work of true Jehovah, or, as our lesson says, they entered into a covenant to seek the Lord God of their fathers with all their heart and with all their soul.

The lesson which comes very strikingly to us today is the place of religion in the life of a nation. We are interested today in national recovery. This can only come to our nation as we come back to God in a penitent spirit and reestablish the altar of faith, consecration and service. Repentance must always precede effective reform. May this lesson, studied by thousands of people in our country, be the beginning of a revival which will lead us back to God.

God Cares For Elijah

Lesson Text—I Kings 17:1-7; 19:1-8

Golden Text. — For your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. Matt. 6:32.

It is very important in the study of these lessons to always locate ourselves in relation of the two kingdoms. In the next two lessons we are studying the life and work of Elijah, the prophet. In the kingdom of Judah we leave the reign of Asa and find ourselves in the reign of Jehoshaphat 874-850. During this same time five kings have ruled in Israel and we are now in the reign of Ahab (876-854), the son of Omri. Omri, during his reign had looked around for alliances with other nations in order to strengthen himself against Syria and Assyria. He made an alliance with Phoenicia by marrying his son Ahab to the king of Tyre's daughter Jezebel. Jezebel brought with her not only her masterful qualities of energy, intellect and dominating personality, but also her zeal for her religion which was the Baal cult. So we find in the kingdom of Israel during the reign of Ahab two religions, the one that of Baal who was worshipped with immoral rites which eventually would have its effect on the morality of the Hebrews and the other Jehovah worship which was pure and moral. Israel can not serve two masters, she must make a choice.

One day there came from the desert east of the Jordan like a flash of lightning a valiant and fitting champion of Jehovah called Elijah. He appeared to Ahab and predicted a drought as a curse upon Israel. And then after three years he appeared to Ahab and demanded that he assemble all Israel on Mount Carmel to demonstrate which had the greater power, Baal or Jehovah. We all remember the interesting account of how Jehovah proved Himself superior to Baal, and the Baal prophets were killed. Jezebal, of course, would not allow this revolution to go on without her opposition. So she sent a threat to Elijah which frightened him, and he fled from the kingdom of Israel down south to Beersheba. There he found himself spiritually depressed after his great exaltation on Mount Carmel. He lost confidence in himself and in his mission, and wished that he might die. It was in this condition that we find him in our lesson today. The Lord came to him as he lay and slept under a juniper tree and cared for him tenderly. His regaining of physical strength also brought back his hope and courage and spiritual strength. The great truth of this lesson is the fact that God never forgets us nor forsakes us. We often allow our environment and surrounding circumstances to defeat us and bring us into spiritual despair, but we should always remember that God is loving and kind and cares for his own.

His daughter, Mrs. Charles Schrock of Elkhart, Indiana, has been spending a week here with Mrs. Pletcher and Roxie, returning to her home last week-end.

Rev. H. E. Ramseyer of the Northern Bible Society of Duluth, Minnesota, was here Sunday evening, June 3, to give us a message on the Bible and Bible Society work. His message was received by a full house.

Last Monday, June 4, Mr. O. L. Stutesman moved to Fairview with his family to be close to his work. He is operating a service station there.

The Young Married People's Sunday School class held their monthly meeting at the Mitchell home last week, making plans for some new work with the class.

The Four County Council of Religious Education held its annual convention at the Episcopal church in West Branch June 6th. A very inspiring service for everyone present. Seventeen of the people of our vicinity attended the all-day service.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Barnes took their son Buddy to the hospital in Owosso for a medical treatment for his side. Mrs. Barnes remained there with her daughter for a week, returning home last Sunday.

We held our Children's Day service Sunday morning, June 10th. The program was divided into three parts; the Children's Day service first, then a promotion service of the Sunday School students to be promoted, and closing with a decision service. It was a very impressive service well carried with the help of the children.

The baccalaureate service for the Mio High School graduating class was held Sunday evening, June 10th, at the Mio Methodist church. The largest class in the history of the school. Forty-one members are graduating this year. Helen Schmid and Glenn Tanner, members of the Comins church, are among the graduates. Rev. Frank R. Mitchell delivered the address.

Weather conditions here have been quite favorable for the growing season of the gardens, for the last few days we have been having showers to keep them well watered. We are hoping that it may continue through the summer that way.

JOTTINGS

Most Mennonites are familiar with the "Hutterites," a Christian commune that in all but its communism is closely related to the Mennonites. At the meeting of the General Conference held in Freeman, S. D., some ten years ago many of the delegates had opportunity to see this unusual body of Christians at close range when they visited the Wolf Creek Colony. The following extract from the Freeman Courier gives some interesting information concerning a similar group in Europe:

Rev. Joseph Stahl of the Lake Byron colony received a letter from Dr. Arnold Eberhard and he says among other things they went through all kinds of trouble lately. Germany gets so militaristic that they are forced to move. In January, 1934, their school was closed. Nobody is allowed to join the colony anymore so they looked for a new place. Switzerland did not allow them to come unless military service is promised. In Switzerland there are seven colonies that helped them much with food, but they are so much different. They are more like the Roppish colony in Pennsylvania, do not have married members. The Eberhard colony finally found a little country that invited them, it is the little Principality of Lichtenstein not far from them. Hans Hut and Jacob Huter worked here and Frank the First rules it now. He has not a soldier. Forty-five persons of the Eberhard colony moved on a rent farm in Lichtenstein, and seventy-five are still at the old place. All the young folks moved on the new place because of the school.

Sister Frieda Kaufman, the supervisor of the Bethel Deaconess Home and Hospital, Newton, Kansas, plans to carry out a long cherished desire and visit Europe this summer. Sister Frieda and her party will visit friends and relatives in Europe and she will have opportunity of observing how work in her line is carried on in several parts of the Continent.

The Christian Endeavorers of the Wadsworth, Ohio, church of which Rev. Wilmer Shelly is pastor, visited and gave a program in the Dalton, Ohio, church of which Rev. Austin Keiser is pastor. This program was followed by a sermon by Rev. Shelly.

The problems of the Mennonite Sunday Schools in Kansas were given by a number of speakers at the Fiftieth Anniversary celebration of Mennonite Sunday Schools in Kansas, held in the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kansas, Rev. G. N. Harms spoke of the type of music used in the Sunday Schools of the early days. Rev. P. P. Wedel told of Sunday School programs during the past twenty-five years, Rev. S. M. Musselman spoke of Present Problems, and Dr. J. H. Langenwalter's theme was "A look into the Future."

Readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel will join in expressing our sympathy to Rev. J. E. Entz of the First Mennonite Church of Newton, Kans. They will also express sympathy to Rev. C. H. van der Smissen of Newton; both of these brethren have suffered the loss of their beloved wives through death.

Easter brought an unusual sight to the Mennonite colonists in Paraguay when a thousand Bolivian prisoners were escorted through the Colony by their Paraguayan guards. During the war between these countries Paraguayan soldiers have been passing through this territory and at times the colonists have been subjected to various kinds of annoyances, such as are common with troops in many places.

Twenty-five graduates were granted diplomas at the commencement of Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., May 22. Freeman College is a Junior College, supported by the Mennonites of South Dakota and neighboring states.

Berne, Indiana, reports a hail storm in which the hail stones were so large and so numerous that farmers were able to scoop up enough of them to freeze a making of ice cream for the family dinner. However, the storm is said to have been a good thing since a soaking rain accompanied the hail.

The Mennonite colonists in Paraguay recently were made happy because of the importation of a considerable number of horses into the colony. With horses or mules it is possible to transport goods to market in four to five days. With ox cart, the usual means of transportation, the same journey required seven to eight days.

It is reported that Tabor College, a Mennonite institution at Hillsboro, Kans., does not expect to open its doors next fall. This is another evidence of the hardships that go with the depression which, we are told, is rapidly fading. Many of the institutions throughout the country that have been unselfishly ministering to the educational and benevolent needs of the people are in the same situation of uncertainty and the prospect of their recovery is gloomy, to say the least.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler, former president of Witmarsum Theological Seminary of Bluffton, Ohio, who spent a year teaching in the Orient, will again return to become a member of the teaching staff of the Near East School of Theology at Beirut, Syria. He expects to leave Bluffton in August. Mrs. Hartzler and their daughter Helen will accompany him.

Twenty-six seniors received degrees at the commencement of Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio. Rev. A. S. Rosenberger of Quakertown and president of the Eastern District Conference, was the commencemet speaker. The exercises were held in the First Mennonite church of that place. There were many commencement visitors from several states.

Professors Smucker and Herschler of Bluffton College are in the eastern part of Pennsylvania on college business. Both were able to attend the meeting of Bluffton College students and former students, held in Zion Mennonite church, Souderton, Pa.

Eighteen members of the graduating class of Bethel College, Newton, Kansas, were granted degrees at the commencement this year. The commencement address was given by Rev. Albert Penner, a former student and graduate of Bethel College and at present pastor of the Jonathan Edwards Congregational Church at Northampton, Mass. Former president Calvin Coolidge was a member of this church during Rev. Penner's pastorate.

The Ministers' Meeting of the Eastern District Conference will be held at Bertolet's Meeting House, Frederick, Pa., on June 25. The gathering will take the nature of an outing for the ministers and their families. The program will consist of a recreational period arranged by Paul Shelly. Rev. Carl Landes will review the book: "Ministers Present Arms." Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander will conduct the Evening Meditation.

A CHRISTIAN MOTHER

Anna Rempel Dyck

Mother had many friends, now scattered throughout various parts of the United States and foreign countries who, I believe, will appreciate a brief sketch of her life. As her son I consider it a privilege to pay tribute to her outstanding life of unselfish Christian service.

Our mother was born in Gnadenfeld, South Russia, 1853. Her father was a trusted village counsel and had charge of the charity and orphans' funds. Her mother was very active as a social worker and enjoyed much singing with her five daughters.

At the age of twenty she married Peter A. Dyck, the son of a merchant in Pordenau, a village not far distant. Two years later they moved to Wohldemfuerst, a village situated between the Black and the Caspian seas near the Kuban river. It was father's desire to become a farmer, since mercantile business was distasteful to him. Here mother was very active in her family.

Five boys were born in this new home, including the writer. Although twelve years of age when our parents left the old country, I nevertheless still can clearly visualize the large house tinted in white with a thatched roof and high gables, a large barn which was connected with the house by means of an enclosed hallway and kitchen. There were towering poplar trees shading the buildings and the playground where we boys spent many happy hours.

The front yard orchard and the village road were separated by a home-made wooden fence (geflochtener Zaun). The family orchard contained an unusual variety of fruits and berries. Father also raised some excellent table grapes.

Here father and mother joined the Mennonite Brethren Church. There were many fine men and women, including the village teachers, ministers, evangelists, and others who frequently came to our home. Without much commotion or hesitation it was mother's custom to speedily and cheerfully serve luncheons to friends and callers. These refreshments were seasoned by her with words of encouragement and Christian advice. On several occasions converted Russians who were persecuted by the government on account of their faith gathered in our home at midnight in secret prayer meetings. Since my earliest recollections mother's faith, conviction and Christian love included men and women not only of her church but of any denomination.

In 1893 father realized that he had five sons who might become subjected to military service. He therefore sold his home in order to leave for America. The trip was so full of experiences and thrills that a long chapter would be required to tell the story. There was the tricky Jew in Warsaw who called in the police at midnight to frighten us, forcing father to pay him 25 Roubles. Mother had a traveling bag, home-made, for each of the five boys, ranging from three to seventeen years old, the size and load according to the physical strength. Each was responsible for his part and we moved in military order, mother in command. She, of course, had her share, including some flower plants, which she carried to the new world. To her end she much appreciated flowers. During her last three months when she could hardly see her flowers on account of failing eye-sight, she still attended to them with touching tenderness.

The beautiful city of Berlin; twelve days quarantine in Hamburg; eleven days on a rough ocean; the thrill of the New World; the green immigrant in Kansas, how clearly we remember all these experiences.

Dietrich Claassen of Hillsboro, a friend of our family, gave us a most cordial welcome.

Very memorable years were spent near Bethel College, Newton, Kansas. Here father purchased a modest farm of eighty acres without a tree or building. With very little money reserve it required much faith and hard work on the part of our parents to support the family.

Here again relatives and friends, professors and students from Bethel College were friends of our home. Such men as President David Goerz of Bethel College, Prof. C. H. Wedel, P. A. Penner, and others joined our family circle. There are former students scattered in all parts of the world whom mother not only served with a home-made "Zwieback," but also inspired him for higher Christian ideals.

An elderly Mennonite mother called at our home with the advice that a few pennies be saved and that our parents should guard against any of the boys running away from home. There has never been the remotest indication that any of the boys had a leaning in that direction at any time. The unfailing love and devotion of our mother, the home atmosphere, and the interest in many social and Christian activities was a bond which always held us together.

One of her greatest sorrows in life was the drowning of her oldest son, Abraham, twenty-one years of age. Since coming to America he was the pride and the moral and financial support of his parents. Every Saturday he brought his earnings to mother, at which time he encouraged the younger brothers to be good and obedient to the parents. On one occasion he even promised each one a watch if we were found worthy.

In 1902 father saw an opportunity to improve his financial status by selling his little farm and settling on a larger one near Gotebo, Oklahoma. This venture was full of grief and financially a set-back. During our three-year experience our crops were destroyed by hail one year; there was a drought the next year, and the third crop was lost through ground hogs and an unscrupulous tenant. However, here again we had a fine circle of friends, although belonging to different churches, our home was a common meeting ground.

A young evangelist came to our church and our home. One day mother told him that to her observation he was not using the word "Jesus" enough in his sermons. This suggestion was appreciated by him and a marked improvement in his preaching was the result.

In 1905 mother was seriously ill and a trip to California was contemplated as the only chance for her recovery. Although she was very sick during the trip, she immediately began to improve in health after we landed in Los Angeles. In California our parents enjoyed in many ways the twilight of their life.

In 1914 mother had the unusual joy of going to Europe and visiting her brothers and sisters, in company with father, John, and Martha. This was probably one of the crowning events of her eventful life. In her appreciation she wrote a booklet entitled "Our trip to Europe in 1914," in German.

All her brothers and sisters from a family of eight children have gone to their reward with the exception of a younger brother. Johannes Rempel, in Germany. This brother has been unusually true to her and has written the kindest letters breathing love and devotion.

Our dear father died shortly after returning from Europe. During a three-week period of serious illness mother sat by his bedside night after night, singing to him with her clear voice, making use of some of the 200 or more German chorals and songs she knew from memory.

Since father's death mother and sister Martha have lived together in the happiest relationship that can possibly exist between mother and daughter. Martha from her early youth was afflicted with some ear trouble. After her high-school training Martha was urged by mother to prepare for teaching, trusting God to restore her hearing. During her study her condition was much improved. Again mother urged to move to Glendale to obtain a school appointment. Also in this there was success. In Glendale she spent the ten last years, happy and always active.

Every Christmas was a memorable event in her home with all children and grandchildren. Her eighty-first birthday was observed in February with some of her friends. She was unusually happy and thankful. It is my impression that she was never more radiant in her joy, not knowing it would be her last on earth.

Mother was very sympathetic with lonesome, sick, and destitute people. She was instrumental in sending considerable sums of money to starving relatives and other Mennonites in Russia. Although she was at all times prepared to meet her Lord, she wanted to stay with us a little longer, especially on account of Martha; this was evidenced by the very keen interest she had in every worthy activity.

In spite of her limited eyesight she wrote an autobiography of several hundred pages during the last few years which has not been finished. She firmly believed and trusted that her condition would be improved in order to finish this work.

Her last illness had its inception immediately following Easter. She suffered from almost complete insomnia and circulatory failure. During the last four days she was unconscious. A few days before her death she called all members to her bed and offered a most fervent prayer. Her last words were "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

She went to her heavenly home on May 23rd, at the age of 81 years, 3 months, and 12 days. She is survived by one daughter, four sons, and six grandchildren, all of whom live in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles and Glendale.

Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Rev. D. D. Eitzen, and Rev. Hunter officiated at the funeral which was held in Glendale, May 26th.

Her life has been my greatest inspiration and her memory shall remain my dearest possession.

P. R. Dyck.

Mrs. Henry Freidinger died at her home on West Peoria Street, Washington, last Thursday afternoon, after a several weeks' illness, at the age of 75 years, 3 months, and 28 days.

Mrs. Phoebe Rediger Freidinger, daughter of Benjamin and Barbara Rediger, was born February 9, 1859, west of Washington. On March 20, 1894, she was united in marriage to Henry Freidinger. There were no children born to this union. Her husband preceded her in death on August 5, 1918. On June 2, 1907, she united with the Calvary Mennonite church and was always faithful and active in Christian service. She was especially interested in mission work and gave very liberally toward its support. She leaves nephews, nieces, and many friends to mourn her departure, all of whom have been inspired and enriched by the influence of her life.

The funeral was held from the Freidinger family home at 2 p. m., Sunday, with the Rev. Ben Esch and the Rev. Valentine Strubhar of Calvary Mennonite church officiating. Burial was in Glen Dale cemetery.

Willis Seaman.—Mr. Seaman died at his residence with his son in Washington, on Tuesday morning. Mr. Seaman had been in failing health for some time.

Mr. Seaman was born near Farmdale, December 14, 1865, the son of Thomas and Lucinda McNutt Seaman, He was married to Emma C. Nelson in 1892. The family made their home in various cities throughout Illinois until ten years ago, when he moved back to Washington. He is survived by his widow and five children: Mrs. Leva Saye of Claremont; Mrs. Edith Ray of Chandlerville; Julius Seaman of Metamora, and Clarence and Harold Seaman of Washington. Two children preceded him in death. He is also survived by a brother, James, in Parsons, Kansas.

Mr. Seaman was a member of the Calvary Mennonite church.

Funeral was conducted from the Habecker funeral home at 1:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and at two o'clock from the church. Rev. Valentine Strubhar and Rev. Ben N. Esch officiated. Burial in Glen Dale cemetery.

Joseph J. Pletcher, the eighth member of a family of eleven children, was born in Whitley County, Indiana, on January 8, 1853, and died May 29, 1934, at the age of 81 years, 4 months and 21 days. While in his youth he with his parents moved to Elkhart County, Indiana. There he grew to manhood and during this time he accepted Christ as his Savior and united with the Mennonite church, to which he was always a loyal member. While in middle life he traveled much in the central and western part of the United States which helped to give him a wide and varied experience. He with his wife and son moved to Oscoda County, Michigan, in the summer of 1904 and bought an unimproved piece of land from which, through hard work and pioneering, they developed their present home. He always took much interest in the welfare of the community. When the township in which he lived, was organized he named it Clinton.

Those who survive him are his wife, Nora, and three children, Mrs. Charles Schrock of Elkhart, Indiana, Frank of Fairview, and Roxie at home. He also leaves two brothers, Abraham of Goshen, Samuel of Lowell, Indiana, and one sister, Mary Kauffman of New Carlisle, Indiana, five grandchildren, and four greatgrandchildren.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon at the home and at the Fairview church. Rev. Menno Esch officiated, assisted by Rev. Frank Mitchell. Interment was made at the Fairview cemetery.

Gone! and left us, O so lonely!
But we know your pain is past,

We would wish you with us, only
That you suffered so at last.

Brave and quiet to face the knowledge
'Twas the end of life for you,
With the same undaunted courage
You faced new problems all life through.

Keen and steady, man of honor,
Is the tribute neighbors pay.
We who loved you so, would offer
Undying faith and love today.

Gone! But you have left us only
For a better world above;
There to wait our coming over,
Resting safely in God's love.

THE CONFERENCE OF THE CENTRAL CONFERENCE OF MENNONITES

The 1934 Conference of the Central Conference of Mennonites will be held August 24-27 in Danvers, Illinois. The meetings will be held in the new community hall in Danvers. The six Mennonite churches in the district are entertaining the conference. The program committee met on Friday, June 15, at the Carlock Mennonite church to arrange the program. The general plan of the program followed is to represent the Conference activities and institutions at the different sessions. These conferences usually are not only an inspiration, but also a great encouragement to the workers of the conference.

MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT FOR 1934

Goshen, Indiana, June 21, 1934.

Dear Pastors, Sunday School Superintendents, and Leaders:

The 1934 Mennonite Young People's Retreat will be held at Shipshewana Lake near Shipshewana, Ind., beginning Monday evening August 13, and closing Tuesday noon, August 21.

A strong faculty is being secured to lead the young people in their annual Retreat. Opportunity will be afforded them for definite Bible study, and for careful study of present-day problems and life as the younger generation meets it. Consecrated Christian life and service on the part of each Retreater is the desired goal from the 1934 Retreat.

The sunset services will be given by Rev. Jesse N. Smucker, Smithville, Ohio, on the general theme "Meeting The Master." A course of study in the Psalms will also be given by Rev. Smucker.

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill., will give two courses. Retreaters will be divided into older and younger groups. The older group may choose the course "The Kingdom of God in the New Testament." The younger group will receive a course introducing the Bible as a whole; how we got our Bible; how to study the Bible, etc.

Dr. H. C. Lehman, Goshen, Ind., will offer a course in World Missions to the older group, and a course in New Testament study to the younger group.

Dr. E. L. Harshbarger Newton, Kans., will offer a course in Modern Social and Political Movements: Communism, Fascism, Socialism, with a study of the Peace Problem for the older group, and a course in Christian Citizenship for the younger group.

Prof. H. W. Berky, Bluffton, Ohio, will offer a course related to the subject of Science and Religion for the older group, and a course in Nature Lore for the younger group, bringing out God's care of his world.

The registration fee will remain at $2.50 per person, including the ground privileges. Cottages can be secured through the Retreat Chairman. Other details will be given shortly in a bulletin.

Kindly announce this Retreat, and have a large group of your young people present to benefit from this fellowship and study.

Rev. Earl Salzman, Treasurer.
1934 Mennonite Retreat Committee.
Rev. G. T. Soldner, Chairman.

CHRISTIAN BELIEF

After a study of the international Sunday School lessons on the life of Jesus according to the gospel of Matthew, the writer is impressed with the question as to what will be the ultimate effect of the study of these lessons upon Christian life. We hear a great deal of emphasis placed upon what we believe. What is our Christian belief after having carefully studied again the life and teachings of Jesus? Have we simply informed our minds concerning the historical Jesus, so that we might now give a more detailed account of His life, or have the facts concerning His life developed deep convictions which will guide our lives? Some one has suggested a process which should go on in the life of the individual in the study of any subject. I should like to suggest this process as we have now studied the life of Jesus.

First is to gather the facts. It is very important that an individual should know the life and teachings of Jesus so that we might speak of it intelligently. He should be able to take an ordinary examination on the subject studied. But something should be done with these facts. The second step in the process is to brood over these facts. This can now be done by every Sunday School pupil that studied the life of Jesus the last six months. We should think over these facts and brood over them until they become deep convictions of our lives. This is true Christian belief. We only believe what Jesus said and did and was. When we have brooded over the facts sufficiently that they have become our own deep convictions, then the next step will necessarily follow. There will come to us as there came to the prophets and to Paul and even to Jesus an illumination, a consciousness of a call, the preparation for which lies in the facts gathered and in the deep convictions formed. Our belief shall then be practical, for it shall push us out into a life of consecration and unselfish service. The last step will then naturally follow, the verifying of our belief in actual life. Jesus said, "He that willeth to do my will shall know the teachings." We have now studied six months. We are thinking seriously over these facts of Jesus' life and teachings, we shall receive a very definite call to a larger consecration and service. May we then go forth to verify in life and experience so we might say with Paul, "Nevertheless I live, yet not I, Christ liveth in me." —W.

DENOMINATIONAL MERGERS

The recent merging of the Evangelical and Reformed churches under the name Evangelical Reformed means the combination of two important bodies of Christians who will function with greater effectiveness in the future. It is one of the signs of the times indicating that denominations are beginning to realize that a great deal of strength in men, means and interests may be made more effective when under one great body. Such unions have been in the air for some time. The union of the Disciples and the Congregationalists, some months ago, seems to have worked out satisfactorily. Here we have examples of several bodies with slight historical relation finding it to their advantage to merge. The pity is that the lesser separated bodies, those who bear the same name and have the same historical ancestry, are the less ready to find ways by which they can forget minor differences and work together as one great body. The many duplications in churches and institutions of the same family only keep up things that should have been forgotten years ago and result in the waste of time, money, and effort that might be spent to greater effect were they to work together. Small bodies are jealous of their identity and continue to sacrifice the possibility of greater results in the building up of the kingdom of God in the interest of their own independence which, after all, is their greatest handicap. —G.

BOOKS FOR PARAGUAY

Several issues ago we noted that Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, editor of the Bundesbote, Newton, Kansas, was collecting catechisms of the General Conference to be sent to the brethren in Paraguay who are in need of such literature. Let us remember that those of our brethren who have lately come from Russia and settled in the desolate wilderness have all the hardships of a pioneer life to face and opportunities for securing printed matters are limited. These people have been accustomed to culture and many of them have had the advantage of higher education before unfortunate circumstances overtook them in their native country. No doubt anything in the line of good reading in the German language would be very welcome to them. Rev. Krehbiel reports having received a considerable number of catechisms which are to be forwarded. It occurs to us that other literature of a Christian nature would be gratefully received by these brethren in South America. Why not enlarge the selection and send them other surplus literature we may happen to have? In the transition that has taken place in many of our churches the German books in the Sunday School libraries are not used now. Might not these discarded Sunday School libraries, now only catching dust, be put to the best possible use by sending them to the Mennonite colony in Paraguay? We, of this country, have opportunities to read everywhere. Scarcely a home that does not possess its quota of books and in every city and town there are great libraries open to whoever cares to use them. Imagine a life of hard work struggling for a living in a country in which about the only things for use are those carried there in a hand pack by the settlers. Surely books, in such cases, would be few and yet the yearning for them would be strong. Why not, then, find a way by which unused books that these people might use could be brought to them? —G.

CAESAR'S DUES; GOD'S DUES

Mrs. S. P. Preheim

This is Memorial Day. On the main street, in front of every business place and professional office, a large flag is flying. Cars and pedestrians are constantly passing our home, which is only one block from main street, hastening to obtain a good position from which to view the parade which will pass down main street to the college auditorium, where a program will be given, including a speech, memorializing, eulogizing, and heroizing all who willingly fought for their country. And in five weeks there will be a similar, or even greater, demonstration of patriotism.

"Render therefore to Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's." Matt. 22:21. All morning the above passage has been ringing through my subconsciousness, and I shall celebrate Memorial Day by writing this short meditation.

"Render therefore," these are the words of Jesus Himself, spoken to His disciples and especially to His enemies who would "catch Him in His words," by requiring an answer to their question: "Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesor, or not?"

Christ's answer reveals unto us two things. First: That man has a two-fold duty. A duty toward the state, and a duty toward his God; and second, that "tribute" includes more than money paid as taxes,; Webster substantiates this statement, for we read: "Tribute — a contribution made in token of service rendered, or as that which is due or deserved." The first has long since ceased to be a question for debate; but the second thought is very vital. Just what things belong to Caesar (the government), and what to God?

I. What should we as Christians render to Caesar?

1. TAXES? Yes. Christ as our example paid the tribute money required by the Roman government of His day, "Lest he should offend them" (Matt. 17:27). But some one may protest: "The taxes are too high; they are unjustly apportioned; they are unwisely spent," etc. We are responsible for the justice or injustice of the apportionment and spending of the money only in so far as we have a voice in such matters. Christ had no pangs of conscience in paying His tribute money, though He knew the Roman government maintained vast armies.

2. SUBJECTION — OBEDIENCE. Romans 13:1 we read, "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers"; and 1 Peter 2:13, "Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake." Although the powers that be are ordained by God," they are not all controlled by Him, and I'll admit there are laws which, according to the judgement of many people, are vastly unjust, as the financial condition of our country today proves. This injustice has aroused and is arousing people to defiance of the law, as shown in "The Farmers' Holiday Movement," "Milk Wars," "The Halting of Foreclosures," etc., causing people to take the law into their own hands. Many ask themselves: "Are we Christians required to submit to such injustice?" We are. There is only one exception, "We should obey God rather than man" (Acts 5:29). When man-made laws interfere with our relationship with God, or prevent our carrying out God's plan for us, we should obey God rather than man. I have especially in mind conscription, our being forced to participate in war. We shall deal with this later.

3. SERVICE — or moral support in voting and office holding. I think there is no question on which there is such a wide range of differences of opinion among Christians as this one. Some consider it a solemn duty that dare not be refused or neglected, others consider it an opportunity to improve or ignore, as it suits their pleasure or purpose, while there are still some Christians who consider government "the world," and as such shun every contact with it. I shall refrain from commenting on each one separately and state only the conclusion of my meditation on this subject. Christians are the salt (preservative) of the earth (Matt. 5:13). All governments need the moral support which only Christians can supply. Many offices offer an opportunity for witnessing for Christ and for the serving of humanity. But there is the grave danger of neglecting these opportunities and using the position for selfish ends. "In all things He (Christ) should have the preeminence." If our political aspirations and obligations become preeminent, and Christ has to take second or third place in our lives, we have rendered to Caesar the things which do not belong to him but to God.

4. SUPPLICATIONS — or spiritual support for those in authority. In I Timothy 2: 2 we are exhorted to pray and intercede for those in authority. This is not only a privilege, but a duty. A duty which we as Christians so often neglect. It is so much easier to find the mistakes of those in authority than to pray intelligently. Yet we are commanded to bring this tribute to Caesar.

II. What shall we as Christians render to God?

1. TRIBUTE MONEY. Jehovah demanded of the Jews the tithe. Shall we, to whom "grace did much more abound," render less? But we argue: The ten tenths of our present income is insufficient to supply the "necessities" we were accustomed to. We need to read again Mal. 3: 10 and Matt. 6:33. We have no more right to withhold God's tribute money, than Caesar's, though the one is a free will offering and the other a requirement.

2. SUBJECTION or Obedience. Absolute and without exception. Obedience to the moral laws of God; the commandments of Christ, and the promptings of the Holy Spirit. This is the only way in which we can fulfill the plan of God for our lives. For His ways and thoughts are much higher than ours. (Isa. 55:9). A deliberate disobedience is the most dangerous, sometimes even disastrous, experience a Christian can have, and one which no real Christian will ever repeat. Complete consecration, and a knowledge of the promises Christ has left to those who keep His commandments, help to make obedience a pleasure instead of a burden.

3. SERVICE. — "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." Rom. 12: 1. The reasonableness of this demand is easily perceived when we consider the fact that our bodies belong to God by right of creation. The government that demands the bodies of its citizens (our boys) in order to mutilate them for life, or make of them dead sacrifices for the glory of the State, demands that to which it has no right. War not only destroys the bodies, but also the souls of its victims, by making of them murderers. The souls belong to Christ by right of redemption. The body, the soul, the life come from God and belong to Him. Conscription is absolutely wrong. The choise must be left to the individuals as to whether they would present their bodies a living sacrifice to God's service, or a dead or dying sacrifice to Caesar's.

5. WORSHIP, born by the union of gratitude and love. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind," Matt. 22:37. "Speaking to yourselves in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord; giving thanks always for all things unto God," Eph. 5:19-20. Thanks be to God for His unspeakable gift (Christ). To God and His Christ and His Kingdom belongs the first place in our affections, in our whole being. Oh, worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness!

"Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."

TEMPTATION (III) HOW OVERCOME

Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock, Ill.

After all, the really important thing in relation to temptation is to overcome it. It is well that we should consider, as we have previously done in this series of discussions, the nature of temptation, its physical and spiritual basis, and the various forms of temptations which assail us. But these considerations are chiefly significant and helpful in so far as they enable us, by better understanding our temptations, to more effectively cope with them. Paul's exhortation to the Roman Christians and to us is, "Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good" (Rom. 12:21). That is the crux of the matter, — "overcome, conquer, prevail." But how? That is the question which must needs engage our attention. In offering the following suggestions as helps in overcoming, the effort will be made to be entirely practical.

(1) Positive Christian Living

The first thing in which we can all exercise ourselves is positive Christian living. Paul said, "This one thing I DO" (Ph. 3:13). There were many things Paul knew he should not do, but he speaks rather of the other side of the case, in terms of positive rather than negative living. There is great virtue in so doing. We have recently been subjected to the contention that the repression of desires and impulses is contrary to nature and consequently is unhealthful. The fallacy of such reasoning is now being rendered apparent in the experience of many who succumbed to it. But, while repression and self-restraint are not necessarily unhealthful, they are nevertheless difficult. It is so much easier to live a good life by exercising one's self in the things that are good than it is to live virtuously by continually struggling against the things that are wrong. Negative living represses the will in the face of evil, while the other releases the will in the field of good.

Positive living means filling one's heart and life so full of good that the things of evil are crowded out. There are two ways of so doing, the first of which is constant communion with God. A prayer life which is one of regular communion with God and not merely a continual asking things of Him, is a potent factor in positive living. We have doubtless all realized the power of the presence of some virtuous person in helping us to be at our best. How much more the conscious presence of our Heavenly Father in His infinite purity and righteousness can fortify us against the attack of evil.

"There is a place of quiet rest,
Near to the heart of God;
A place where sin can ne'er molest,
Near to the heart of God."

For this reason we should daily subject our spirits to the conscious presence of the Most High, and this had best be done in the morning. It has well been said that "a half hour of communion in the morning will save an hour of confession at night." The Psalmist must have realized this; for he said, "In the morning will I direct my prayer unto Thee, and will look up" (Ps. 5:3).

In the second place, positive living means faithful and earnest activity in worthy enterprises. Loyalty to a cause and enthusiasm for its promotion are a great moral and spiritual safeguard. The answer of Nehemiah to those who tried to divert him from his purpose is both an example and an exhortation to anyone who would resist the allurements from the course of virtue, or of duty, — "I am doing a great work, and I cannot come down" (Neh. 6:3). In the light of this truth, what must be the measure of the tragedy of purposeless living which is forced upon millions of folks in these trying times!

Positive Christian living, which is the result of constant communion and high endeavor, accomplishes two ends. For one thing, the person who so lives escapes many temptations which befall others. We noted in a former meditation in this series, that increase of power, even spiritual power, brings an increase of temptations. Let it be noted now that this increase is in point of intensity, rather than in number. Positive living does not reduce the force of the temptations one meets, but it does reduce the multiplicity of them. Any one who travels fast and loose upon the highways of life is beset with many, many more temptations than the one who seeks to live in close fellowship with God, and in faithful cooperation with Him in the cause of His Kingdom. The safest place for any one to live is close to the heart of God and in the center of His will.

"Shut in with Thee, O Lord, forever,
My wayward feet no longer roam;
What power from Thee my soul can sever?
The center of God's will my home."

Moreover, such communion and earnest endeavor provide an emotional empowerment for right living. The basis of such communion and cooperation with God must be a deep and abiding affection, and love is a great constraining and restraining force. It incites to aspiration and activity along certain lines, and restrains from others; it is a great motive power. It is the ambition of one who loves to please the one who is loved. There also devolves upon the one who is loved a certain moral compulsion to please the one who does the loving. Thus love operates as an inducement to do what is agreeable to the object of its affection, and as a determent from such things as would cause pain. Paul felt the love which Christ so abundantly bestowed upon him and which he reciprocated with all his soul, as a great magnetic and dynamic power in his life (2 Cor. 5:14). It drew him away from evil to good, and drove him forward in the service of Christ.

Even in human relationships love exercises this peculiar function. Many a man has been kept from evil, or has been won back from it, by the constant, fervent love of a devoted wife or mother. If it lies within the compass of human love to thus operate toward right living, how much more the love of God, when one through constant communion and faithful cooperation with Him in His cause, learns to appreciate "the great love wherewith He hath loved us" (Eph. 2:4). It was this kind of living which helped Joseph in the time of his great testing; for he said, "How can I do this great wickedness, and sin against God?" (Gen. 39:9.)

A MOTHER'S VALUE AND LOVE

(A Paper read at a Mother's Day Program at Meadows Mennonite Church, Meadows, Ill.)

A Christian mother's value is priceless. Though unassuming, by her influence, example, prayers, and instructions she impresses on the hearts and minds of her children foundation principles upon which she erects the framework of the temple of character.

To analyze the Christian mother's value is to disclose an imitation of the Christlike life — a constant growing into His likeness. None like mother is touched with the problems of her children. That which affects her child is of intense interest to her. All their ailments, whether of body, mind or soul, do not escape her vigilance or care. Others may laugh at a child's whims and notions, his conceits, and shortcomings, but mother observes in silence and meditates upon the most helpful and corrective treatment.

Mother's value to yield its highest efficiency depends upon the cultivation and development of her personality and her physical, mental, and spiritual powers. Physically she must guard her health, conserve her strength, continue industriously, and maintain neatness, personally as well as in her home surroundings. She has to provide us with nourishment and clothing and give us a good environment.

Mentally, she must be observant, exercise her reasoning faculties, be careful in her judgements, fertile in her memory and possess a good imagination. Spiritually, she sets an example, revealing to us the mother-heart of God and the sacredness of divine ministries. She teaches us to pray and to know God's promises are true; when we can find a refuge free from sorrow and pain.

Never has the Creator given to any creature so high a mission as that of motherhood.

1. It is a heroic mission. The heroism of the brave who die upon the battlefield is incomparable with the heroism of the mother under life's trying circumstances.

2. It is a mission of self-sacrifice. She knows nothing about the eight-hour day. Her day is twenty-four hours, with three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

3. It is a mission of love. Others love us when we are lovable, but she loves us because it is her nature.

4. It is a supreme mission of crowning her sons and daughters with a crown of character. A character based on faith in God, a character based upon respect for and obedience to God's laws. And it is a character based upon reverence for holy things — the home, the Bible, the Sabbath, and the church.

The law of true motherhood is the law of love, for the greatest thing that any human being can do is to love, and labor, and sacrifice, and hope, and have faith in one another.

There are seven perfect parts of mother-love. They are qualities that are blended in the life of mother.

1. Intuition. She has a sense of future events. Pilate listened to the crowds of overwhelming sin, but he would have been much happier if he had listened to the love voice of his wife, a divining woman.

2. Courage. She is braver than the bravest of the brave. She has taken the lonely path more fearsome than any man in questing of the continents or the seas.

3. Comfort. Who ran to help me when I fell, who would some pretty story tell, or kiss the place to make it well? My mother!

4. Sacrifice. She gives her all, body, mind, and spirit; gives all gladly, and then weeps after giving all that she has nothing left to give.

5. Patience. She is the only one who ever really learns to "labor and to wait."

6. Forgiveness. This quality is identical with God. She is the same yesterday, today, and forever." Heaven and earth may pass away for you, but your mother will never move. She will be waiting for you, when you are hungry and naked, and come whimpering back. All others may condemn you for your weakness and curse you for your sin, but she will piece together your broken life and call it beautiful, and with her naked hands she will lift your bleeding heart again to God and claim you for His healing.

7. Faith. She has faith when all else fails and all others flee; faith that sees a way through life's darkest Gethsemanes.

Henry Grady, a brilliant journalist of Atlanta, Georgia, who in a single speech leaped into national fame, closed his desk one morning and without an explanation to his business associates, hurried back to the little city of Athens, where he was born and where his soldier father slept in a grave of honor upon a central hill. Swiftly he passed up the well-familiar walk to find his grayhaired mother waiting for him by the shining pillars in her easy chair. He stooped for her kiss, then quickly knelt and pillowed his face in her lap, and with a deep agony of relief whispered, "Mother, I have come to feel again your hands upon my head. I have come to say again the simple prayer you taught me first. I have come to find once more the faith of a little boy." And that which had been obscured for him by the heavy clouds of a sometimes brutal, and of an always busy, world, that which the man had lost somewhere in his crowded way with men, and that which he hungered for and needed now more than all things else, he found again, — where he found it first — at his mother's knee. Intuition, courage, comfort, sacrifice, patience, forgiveness, and faith, these are the seven perfect parts of mother love— mother love, which, next to the love of Christ, is most sublime.

The motherhood that counts in the uplifting of Christian civilization is that which is of so deeply spiritual a character that it reflects the great heart of love—the heart of God Himself.

Henceforth all progress depends upon the power of a spiritual thrust. Every force must be enlisted to attain this spirituality. Let the mother-heart once sense its wide relationship and inspire its divine passion. Mothers, what think ye of Christ?

Let it be a challenge to all womanhood. Mother's Day is not simply a memorial day to that which we have known, but a day of challenge, of dedication, for motherhood.

Each person in the world owes a debt of gratitude to the love that all mothers wear, like a halo, about their hearts. A debt of gratitude that can not be paid off by the wearing of a white flower, once a year. It is a debt that should be remembered every month, every day, every hour, with little acts of kindliness and gentleness and thoughtfulness. It is a debt that should — and must — be paid.

In closing I have a poem I should like to read, written by Bary Beckwith:

There's much of joy and much of peace
For mothers!
There's many a trouble made to cease
By mothers.
It's the mother that kisses the pain away,
It's mother that guides from day to day;
Yes, noble's the work of being, we say ,
A mother.

There's much of sorrow and much of grief
For mothers.
But God always seems to send relief
To mothers.
No matter how hard her burden to bear,
She finds her solace in quiet prayer,
And the darkest day is clear and fair
To mother.

We take the burden that's on our heart
To mother,
And seem to drift with the world apart
With mother.
For no matter weary, worn and sad,
There's one who always makes us glad;
A friend — the best we ever had—
'Tis mother.

WHAT DO OUR FATHERS MEAN TO US?

What do our fathers mean to us? The immediate answer to that question is that they mean very much to every one of us. Fathers play an important role in any household, and their position is at the head of every family circle.

When we are small children we look up to our fathers as great men who have a great knowledge of things pertaining to the outside world. It is also at this time, that we see our fathers following their regular occupations and do things that to our small minds look impossible. Again we think of father as our ideal man. As we grow older and begin to take over some of the minor details of our father's work we look to him for guidance. If there is an important decision to be made we do not go to a stranger for advice. We come to father and ask him what we should do concerning whatever our troubles may be.

At this time we should ask the question: Why is it that our fathers mean so much to us? It is not what we do for them, it is what they do for us that makes them so important in our lives. It is our duty to love and respect our fathers, obeying and serving them willingly. Our fathers offer us many things. They give us protection, provide our wants and necessities, and give us every chance so that our future life may be a successful one.

Protection, by this I do not mean necessarily protection against the elements, but protection against such danger that we with our limited experiences do not see until it is too late. In their effort to protect us they may as fathers sometimes do, forbid us to have or do the things that we very much desire. To us it may seem that they have forgotten that they themselves were once young, but let us not take the advice of our fathers lightly. Let us learn to profit by their experiences.

Provide our wants and necessities. Every father provides for his family the best he knows how. Nothing is too good for those he loves. When we are young we do not realize the sacrifices that our fathers make for us. We do not see the many things father gives up so that we may have that new bicycle or pony that we have been wanting so long. It is not until we are past the age of wanting such things, that we realize that father has grown grayhaired serving us; giving us the best years of his life so that we might have our wants and desires filled.

He gives us every change, so that our lives may be successful. Every father, I believe, has visions of what he wants his child to be. His one hope in life is that his child shall fill a bigger and better place in this world than he himself has filled. It is with this hope in mind that our fathers guide and shape our lives so that it will be easier for us to take our places in whatever line of work we choose to follow. Let us take care that we do not shatter with our careless acts the vision of the man who means so much to us.

Let us, therefore, thank God that we have Christian fathers, who not only have provided for us a physical home, but also made every effort to help us prepare for our heavenly home.

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA VOTES TO ABOLISH COMPULSORY R. O. T. C.

A Land Grant Institution, Minnesota, is Second to Place Drill on Elective Basis, Following Wisconsin, Which Made Change in 1923

Well Organized Local Agitation and Olson Appointees Credited for Development

Minneapolis, Minn., June 18. The compulsory feature of the R. O. T. C. at the University of Minnesota was abolished today by action of the University Board of Regents which adopted, by a vote of six to five, a resolution favoring such action introduced by Mrs. Anna O. Determan of Litchfield (Minnesota).

By adopting Mrs. Determan's resolution the University of Minnesota becomes the second land grant institution to change from compulsory to optional military training, following the University of Wisconsin which over a decade ago, in 1923, made the change.

The R. O. T. C. at Minnesota has been the object of intense controversy for several years. The first organized opposition to compulsory military training at Minnesota was initiated by the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom in 1923. Their program was supplemented by an aggressive student campaign against required drill promoted by the Optional Drill League which was organized in 1926 and which has been militantly active ever since, despite the handicaps of oft-changing student leadership. In 1926 also the Minnesota Committee on Militarism in Education was organized for the purpose of launching a legislative campaign which sought to place the R. O. T. C. upon an optional basis. Each time the optional military training bill was defeated in the State Legislature largely because of the active opposition sponsored by the American Legion and other super-patriotic groups. All the anti-drill forces in Minnesota have received the consistent editorial support of The Minnesota Daily—"The World's Largest College Daily."

Another factor which hastened the abolition of the military requirements at Minnesota was Governor Floyd B. Olson's known opposition to compulsory drill. Mrs. Determan, who introduced the resolution just adopted by the Board of Regents, is a recent Governor Olson appointee.

When informed of the Minnesota action, Edwin Johnson, Secretary of the national Committee on Militarism in Education, commended the opponents of compulsory R. O. T. C. in Minneapolis. He said: "While much credit must go to Governor Olson, the Minnesota action is a significant victory for the organized and persistent efforts of local opponents of compulsory drill. This Minnesota change ought to encourage similar action in ten or a dozen land grant institutions where the abolition of compulsory military training is long overdue."

AN APPEAL

Pressing Bible Needs

Recently the Secretary of the Northwestern Bible Society was engaged in work through Montana and the Dakotas — rather a sad sight to see the spring seedings in many districts blown out by strong winds and piled high along the fences.

The Government is now moving 4000 families which means with women and children about 20,000 souls, from the extreme dry sections into more favorable districts. For years many of these families have endured great privations and hardships always looking forward to a better day which has never come.

Many of these needy ones are coming into a conscious need of the help which God alone can give them and with this awakening comes a great desire to possess a Bible so they may read with their own eyes the Word of God.

The Northern Bible Society is in need of funds to carry on this work, throughout our northern states, of supplying the needy with the Word of God. We appeal to God's children to take a share in this work out of love to God and for the sake of Jesus Christ, our Lord.

Help send out the missionary that never fails.

RETREAT AT SHIPSHEWANA LAKE

The 1934 Mennonite Young People's Retreat will be held at Shipshewana Lake, near Shipshewana, Indiana, beginning Monday evening, August 13, and closing Tuesday noon, August 21.

A strong faculty is being secured to lead the young people in their annual Retreat. Opportunity will be afforded them for definite Bible Study and for careful study of present day problems, and life as the younger generation meets it. Consecrated Christian life and service on the part of each Retreater is the desired goal from the 1934 Retreat.

The sun-set services will be given by Rev. Jesse N. Smucker, Smithville, Ohio, on the general theme "Meeting The Master." A course of study in the Psalms will also be given by Rev. Smucker.

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver, Danvers, Ill., will give two courses. Retreaters will be divided into older and younger groups. The older group may choose the course "The Kingdom of God in the New Testament." The younger group will receive a course introducing the Bible as a whole; how we got our Bible; how to study the Bible, etc.

Dr. M. C. Lehman, Goshen, Ind., will offer a course in World Missions to the older group, and a course in New Testament study to the younger group.

Dr. E. I. Harshbarger, Newton, Kansas, will offer a course in Modern Social and Political Movements: Communism, Fascism, Socialism, with a study of the Peace Problem, for the older group, and a course in Christian Citizenship for the younger group.

Prof. H. W. Berky, Bluffton, Ohio, will offer a course related to the subject of Science and Religion for the older group, and a course in Nature Lore for the younger group, bringing out God's care of His world.

The leader of music has not been definitely selected to date. Announcement will be made later.

The registration fee will remain at $2.50 per person, including the ground privileges. Cottages can be secured through the Retreat Chairman Other details will be given shortly in a bulletin.

Kindly announce this Retreat, and have a large group of your young people present to benefit from this fellowship and study.

Cordially yours,
1934 Mennonite Retreat Committee,
Rev. G. T. Soldner, Chairman.
Rev. Earl Salzman, Treasurer.
Rev. R. L. Hartzler.
Miss Leona Stahley.
Mr. Don Smucker.

THE NORTHERN DISTRICT CONFERENCE

Was held at the Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota, June 9-12

Weather cool, visitors many, program rich and full, spirit brotherly and frank and Christian.

One of the outside speakers, Rev. P. J. Boehr of Quakertown, Pa., spoke on missions and consecration. Many young people responded to a call for service.

The Ministers' Conference on Saturday evening developed partly into an impromptu discussion of the future outlook of the church. This was due to a delay of the bus from South Dakota with twenty-four conference visitors, including two that were on the Saturday evening program. Nor were these delayed speakers permitted to rest easy until the business committee had found a place for them at a later session of the conference.

The High School auditorium, with a seating capacity of about 1300, was well filled during the Sunday and the evening sessions.

Some of the speakers were: Rev. Helmuth Ortman, Munich, North Dakota, on Home Missions with a vision of neglected territory 20 by 60 miles near his own church, with numerous churches closed; Rev. A. W. Friesen, Henderson, Nebraska, conference president, with an appeal for loyalty to Christ on the basis of the conference motto: "Have this mind in you, which was also in Jesus Christ," Phil. 2:5; Rev. John Esau of Lima, Ohio, another outside speaker, though a Mountain Lake boy, with a glowing appeal for yielded, power-filled witnesses; Mr. Felix Schrag of Marion, South Dakota, with a clearly outlined method of winning and holding Sunday School pupils; Miss Claudia Winsky, a blind member of the Swiss church at Alsen, North Dakota, with a vivid word picture of the failure of the present liquor control; President John D. Unruh of Freeman Junior-College, with a statement of objectives that Christian education must uphold; Rev. Walter Gering of the Bethany Church at Freeman, South Dakota, with an instructive analysis of what is spiritual music; Mr. John C. Mueller of Freeman, South Dakota, and Mr. Gerhard Rempel of Henderson, Nebraska, with discussions of the financial problems of the church; Rev. J. A. Tieszen, pastor of the Bethel church, near Dolton, South Dakota, pointing out some of the dangers in the office of the pastor; Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, South Dakota, with a chart talk on the prospects of the church, and an illustrated talk on "Sane Education — God's Likeness — and Vain Education."

Waldo Tieszen came from Wheaton College to lead the Sunday evening Young People's Program, and Harry Sawatzky came from Montana, in spite of the drought, to preside at the Monday evening convention.

Three blind visitors at the conference were—Miss Claudia Winsky from Alsen, North Dakota, Rev. Dirk Tieszen from Marion, South Dakota, and Rev. John Esau from Lima, Ohio.

A variety of songs and musical numbers by singers of the entertaining congregation and neighboring churches enlivened the conference sessions. Visiting churches were also well represented in the song festival given on the closing evening, singers from a distance coming from the Bethesda churches at Henderson, Nebraska, and Marion, South Dakota, and the Salem Zion Church of Marion, South Dakota. The last named church had its entire men's chorus present. The two Janzen girls from Henderson, Nebraska, sang their way into the hearts of all listeners, but their messages were especially touching to those that remembered their departed mother, formerly Miss Helen Wiebe of Mountain Lake. Alvin Augsburger of Bluffton, Ohio, touched the tender chord of sacred melody with several beautiful trombone solos.

Frequent remarks were heard from visitors commenting on the hospitality of the Mountain Lake homes. All meals were given upon invitation of local families, and according to reports the only regret of the visitors was that they had to decline so many invitations. The conference offerings totaled over $330.00.

At the women's missionary program a number of new missionary workers were in evidence. At the business sessions of the Conference there was a marked missionary spirit. All of the twenty-five conference churches had provided for representation. The quarterly missionary offerings for the Evangelization Committee of the conference are meeting with approval, and a motion was made to recommend this practice to other churches that have not yet tried it.

The needy fields in the district were named for special remembrance in prayer. They are Fairfield Basement, north of Huron, South Dakota, O'Niell, Nebraska, Madrid, Nebraska, Slater, Wyoming, Ulen, Minnesota, Arena and Lost Wood, North Dakota. New workers have been found for Lustre and Volt, Montana, in the persons of Albert Ewert and Albert Schultz. The treasuries of the Conference showed a balance in spite of drought. Rev. John Bartel of Mountain Lake is the next president, and Mr. David T. Nickel of the same place takes up the duties of secretary.

The spirit of united loyalty to the Christ of the Bible and the Bible of the Christ was evident throughout the Conference, and a special resolution called for renewed emphasis of the new birth as the condition of entrance into the kingdom of God. —P. R. Schroeder.

THE "O. B. A." (MENO, OKLA.), IN 1934-'35

At the last Oklahoma Convention, at Medford, on May 13th, also at the Yearly School-Meeting, at Meno, a few days previous, our beloved Oklahoma Bible Academy ("O. B. A.") received many encouragements. So different from former years! Usually our school was the only "Sorgenkind" of the Oklahoma churches. And it still will need our special care and help. Usually the school appeared before the Yearly Meeting and before the Convention with a large deficit and with an enlarged indebtedness. But this year a new plan was tried — and very successfully — namely, to run the school "without going into further debts." Herein we follow the example of most of our schools and missions. This gave such general satisfaction that the people took new courage, and we were able not only to pay our teachers in full and defray all other expenses, but also to reduce old debts.

The years of depression have taught all of us many lessons in saving. In various ways it was planned how we might run the school still more economically (next year). Plans were made and promises, to assist worthy students who would otherwise be unable to attend the "O. B. A." And the Board, in the evening of the convention, planned still more. The tuition was reduced from $40.00 to $32.00, and $25.00 for special Bible students. Remember that we are able to do nine months' work in eight months, thus reducing the year's expenses. This can be done by diligent students and through wise planning on the part of the teachers (not much time for extra sports, vacations, etc.) The room rent also has been reduced from $4.00 to $3.00, and where there are two in a room, they pay only $2.00 each. Also board can be had for less cash. Opportunity is given for self-boarding.

Besides all this, friends of the school have offered special assistance in one way or another to worthy students, to make it possible for them to attend. This latter is more or less private, and for individual cases. In regard to this address the Secretary of the Board.

Furthermore, the Board is encouraged to secure a third teacher, for about half time, especially for Bible and Religion. The other two teachers are unable to do the work, if sufficient Bible is to be taught — and we are a "BIBLE-Academy." During this past year Rev. J. B. Epp assisted in Bible instruction, giving his services free. With two full time and one half time teacher we can also now offer a full four-year High School course with a State diploma. The State Inspector has highly recommended this.

All this will likely bring us many more students; so it will more than pay for the venture —we hope.

This third teacher is to oversee the entire dormitory, boarding and all.

May the Lord add His blessing to all these undertakings. It is in His Name and for His cause that we are doing it.

South Oklahoma, too, is waking up again to the fact that the "O. B. A." also belongs to them, and more students are planning to come from there.

Thus we are looking forward to another prosperous and blessed school-year, 1934-1935. — The catalog will soon be sent out.

With greetings,

J. B. Epp, Secretary of the Board.

A BIT OF SUNDAY SCHOOL HISTORY

A newspaper editor, Robert Raikes, publisher of the Gloucester, England, Journal, formed the first Sunday School in 1780, in an effort to ameliorate the condition of slum children. In 1783, he began to propagate the idea as a movement. Wesley and Whitefield helped him. By 1788, there were a quarter of a million Sunday School members in the United Kingdom.

Today, the world-wide enrolment in the Sunday School — for the movement has penetrated wherever Christianity has gone — is about thirty-seven million members. Twenty million are in the United States, of whom two million are teachers. All ages are included in the Sunday School; adult classes have been a recent prodigious development. So has teacher-training.

The Sunday School is found in all religious denominations, and in the Roman Catholic Church and Jewish synagogues.

Recognition Day originated with Dr. William T. Ellis, of Swarthmore, Pa., long the author of syndicated Sunday School lessons for newspapers. He published the plan in the religious press, in October 1933. So marked was the approval, that conferences of Sunday School leaders were held in Philadelphia, resulting in the formation of an executive committee of representatives of various denominations, together with a National Advisory Committee of denominational Sunday School officials. There are no salaried officials, and the American Sunday School Union generously donated office space and facilities.

The real work of organizing Recognition Day celebrations is being done by the denominational agencies, and by the State Councils of Religious Education — and, most all, by individual initiative. October 6th has been designated as National Recognition Day.

When you brighten the corner where you are, you also brighten other corners.

Every call to salvation is a call to service and to witnessing for the Lord Jesus Christ.—J. L. Stauffer.

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. A son, Jean Arnold, was born May 18th to Mr. and Mrs. Garth Stoltz.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler of Bluffton, Ohio, was with us and delivered the messages both morning and evening, Sunday, May 20. He was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Helen Hartzler.

The Berean class met Thursday, May 24, with Mrs. Elmer Risser near Millersburg.

Union Memorial Services were held at the Methodist church Sunday evening, May 27th. Rev. Salzman delivered the sermon. There was also special music.

A daughter, Rose Marie, was born June 1, to Mr. and Mrs. John Stoltz.

Sunday evening, June 3, Rev. Wm. B. Weaver was with us and gave a lecture on Mennonite History.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, June 7, at the church. Officers were elected for the coming year.

Sunday evening, June 10, Mr. Dwight Hooten of Wawaka gave in dramatic form the scene of the crucifixion of Christ. He was assisted by members of the choir. There was special instrumental music by Allen Cox of Garrett and Robert Yoder.

The young folks enjoyed a social at the home of Woodrow Risser, near Millersburg, Wednesday evening, June 13th.

The church is being redecorated. As a result services Sunday morning, June 17, were held in the brick church in the country. In the evening the Children's Day program was given in the high school building.

Alden Plonk, who has been a student at Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio, is spending his vacation with his mother, Mrs. Lydia Plonk.

Clifford Loutz, who has been attending Worster College, Worster, Ohio, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Lantz.

The Salem Mennonite Church, near Dalton, Ohio, has been experiencing rich spiritual blessings and wishes to send hearty Christian greetings to its sister churches.

We had well attended Pre-Easter Lenten services on Good Friday, and communion service with a large attendance on Easter Sunday. The interest and attendance in the regular Sunday morning and evening services has been commendable.

Salem Church was visited by a delegation from Bluffton College, including Dr. C. H. Smith who spoke on "Mennonite Contributions in the Past and in the Future"; the Wadsworth church rendered an able exchange service, and on another Sunday evening Attorney Dean H. Weimer of Wooster, Ohio, brought us an interesting message. In the near future we are planning on having exchange worship services with a nearby colored church, a Seth Parker Song Service, and also some Sunday Out-door Vesper Services.

We have had our times of rejoicing and sorrow. We laid to rest two children, Hubert William, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Amstutz, and Vivienne Irene, the sunny dispositioned daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Miller. A generation also came to an end in the death of Daniel Kirchhofer, an active member who was widely known for his many correspondences.

Summer seems to be a time appropriate for the ringing of wedding bells. Several such ceremonies have already taken place, one a beautiful church wedding, and others are being planned for the coming weeks. Another enjoyable social church gathering took place on the 88th birthday of Christian Tschantz. He is the oldest member of the church and of the community. God has graciously blessed him with a continuance of good health and a good active mind.

The pastor, Rev. A. R. Keiser, is conducting a series of midweek meetings in the special interest of the young people. We feel that God is blessing us richly with spiritual blessings. We have also recently enjoyed a much needed and abundant rain for which we give sincere thanks. We pray that we may be more worthy of those good gifts. —Corr.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jeckel of Glasford, Illinois, visited at the Geo. Jeckel home.

A Sunday School picnic was held at the Hopedale Park Thursday, June 21. A large number enjoyed a bountiful dinner.

Eugene and Duane Litwiller, who have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller, have returned to their home in Milledgville.

Marie, Mattie, Helen, and Gertrude Brenneman attended the Bender reunion, held Sunday, July 1, at Miler Park in Bloomington, Ill.

Rev. and Mrs. Roy Scott and sons of Peoria, Ill., spent the Fourth with Mr. and Mrs. Julius Helwig.

Mr. and Mrs. Mose Hostetler of Topeka, Ind., spent the week-end, June 23-25, at the home of their son, Rev. Hostetler.

A Children's Day Program was given Sunday evening, June 17. A large crowd enjoyed the program.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Litwiller entertained the following, Sunday, July 1: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Litwiller and sons, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Litwiller, all of Milledgeville, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Roy Litwiller, Dr. and Mrs. O. B. Litwiller of Peoria, Mr. and Mrs. Al. Luke of Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. John Nafziger and family of Hopedale.

A basket dinner was held on the church lawn, Sunday, July 1. A business meeting was held in the afternoon. The officers for the Sunday School and church were appointed to serve for the coming year.

Miss Minnie Brenneman of Normal, and Mrs. Julia Oswald of Morton worshipped with us, Sunday, July 1.

Mr. and Mrs. John Litwiller and family of Normal, Ill., worshipped with us Sunday, July 8th.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Eash and daughter of Flanagan visited at the Barbara Nafziger home, Sunday, July 8. Misses Veda and Shirley stayed to spend a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Nelson and sons of Shipshewana, Ind., visited at the Barbara Nafziger home, Sunday, July 1.

THE DIRTY STORY

It advertises your own ignorance.

It displays your lack of a sense of decency.

It indicates the state of your inner character.

It exhibits the nature of your inner soul.

It shows your better self is being suppressed.

It illustrates the sordidness of your soul.

It typifies the meagerness of your resources of entertainment.

It proclaims the coarseness of your ideas of humor.

It tells of the inadequacy of your means of expression.

It reveals the depth of defilement you have already reached.

It proves to your friends how greatly they may be disappointed in you.

It stultifies the testimony of those who said you were a good fellow.

It soils the imagination of your hearers.

It hangs vulgar pictures on the inner chamber of the imagination of other men from which they cannot escape.

It disgusts men of finer sensibilities who care for the clean and wholesome things of life.

It nauseates men who love humor, but hate dirt.

It dishonors your parents and your wife and your children and your friends and your home and your business and your God.

It proves nothing but your own unworthiness.

It accomplishes nothing but your own undoing.

It convinces others that you are a good man not to do business with.

THE STORY OF TWO BOYS

Two boys left home with just money enough to take them through college. They both did well at college, took their diplomas in due time, and got from members of the faculty letters to a large shipbuilding firm with which they desired employment. When the first boy was given an audience with the head of the firm, he presented his letters.

"What can you do?" asked the president.

"I should like some sort of a clerkship."

"Well, sir, I will take your name and address, and if we have anything of the kind I will write to you."

The other boy then presented himself and his papers.

"What can you do?" the president asked him.

"Anything that a green hand can do, sir," was the reply.

The president touched a bell that called a foreman, and the college graduate went to work sorting scrap iron. A week passed, and the president, meeting the superintendent, asked, "How is the new man getting on?"

"Oh," said the superintendent, "he did his work so well that I put him over the gang."

In two years that young man was the head of a department and on the way to a salary larger probably than his friend will ever earn.

AS A POPULAR POET SEES THE PREACHER

Ah, what an easy job is his,
The man who's in the preaching biz!
He has but little work to do,
For all he does the whole week through
Is just to call upon the flock
As regularly as the clock;
To cheer the sick who groan in bed,
To preach a sermon for the dead;
To teach the sinner righteousness,
To succor famine and distress;
To marry lovers fond and true,
And christen little babies too;
Preside at socials now and then,
Hold meetings for the boys and men;
Look in upon the Ladies' Aid,
See that the janitor is paid;
Hold prayer meetings on Wednesday night,
Smooth over bickering and strife;
Keep all his actions free from smirch,
Avert all dissentions in the church;
Give all parishoners advice,
And always preach on Sunday twice.
Yes, kindly is the parson's fate,
The work is light, the pay is great.
A guide, philosopher, and seer,
At seven hundred bucks per year.

—Berton Braby.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR ACTIVITIES

The Aberdeen church entertained the District C. E. convention the latter part of April. The young people of the local church presented a simple pageant entitled, "The Challenge of the Cross" at one of the evening sessions of the convention.

Many of the C. E. workers of the Pratum church attended the Golden Jubilee of Oregon State C. E., held in the gymnasium of Willamette University the latter part of April. Dr. Dan Poling was the principal speaker.

Reedley Endeavorers attended the Fresno County C. E. convention in numbers at Fowler, April 6-8. Herman Rempel, president of the union, presided at the session. A girls' quartet from the Reedley Y. P. C. E. society won first place in the quartet contest and represented the county union in the District contest May 6.

The Easter Cantata "Jesus Lives" was sung on Easter Sunday evening by a Chorus of 49 voices in the Upland church under the direction of Rev. Lester Hostetler. Parts of the cantata were repeated the following Sunday evening.

The San Marcos church choir of Paso Robles rendered the Easter cantata entitled, "The Nazarene," by Charles Gabriel, on Easter night. The singing was preceded by the Easter story taken from the gospel of St. John. The church was well filled.

"The Holy City" by Gaul was given by the joint mens' and womens' choruses of the First Mennonite Church of Reedley on April 15 under the direction of C. F. Mueller. Two weeks later it was repeated in the First Presbyterian Church of Fresno.

In harmony with the National Music Week the choirs of the Pratum church under the direction of Rev. J. M. Franz gave a musical program Sunday evening, May 6. It is a custom in this church to give a sacred musical concert once every quarter.

A group of extension workers from the Pratum S. S. workers now hold regular services once a month at the State Tuberculosis Hospital. Last Sunday a male quartet sang serveral gospel songs, also Homer Welty and Clarence Buller played selections on their guitars. Leonard Harms opened the service with Scripture and prayer. Homer Leisy gave a chart illustrated lecture. The program was very much appreciated, and already request numbers are coming in through the mail for our next visit there. It proves folks still love and appreciate the true gospel and nothing else can truly feed the soul.

"TASTE, AND SEE!"

An infidel was lecturing to a great audience and, having finished his address, he invited any who had questions to ask to come on the platform. After a short interval, a man who had been well known in the town as a notorious drunkard, but who had lately been converted, stepped forward, and taking an orange from his pocket, cooly began to peel it. The lecturer asked him to propound his question, but without replying to him the man finished peeling his orange, and then ate it. When he had finished his orange he turned to the lecturer and asked him if it was a sweet one. Very angry, the man said, "Idiot, how can I know whether it was sweet or sour, when I never tasted it?" To this the converted drunkard retorted, "And how can you know anything about Christ, if you have not tried Him?"—Christian Herald.

Great Missionary Hymns And Their Challenge

Isaiah 42:1-4

A missionary church is bound to be a working church and chances are it will be a growing church. It bespeaks of religious warmth and spiritual power. All denominations need at the present time more of this missionary interest so it would be well to plan in order that new missionary enthusiasm will be brought into the Young People's Society and into the church. This cannot be done in any better way than in a carefully planned service of worship which will contain a great deal of singing of the best missionary hymns.

Nearly everybody loves to sing. It helps to bring about good interest, for it means that everybody is participating in the service. Many souls have come into the kingdom through the medium of singing. Perhaps they have been attracted to a service by hearing a hymn sung, or perhaps when in a service they have been aroused out of their stubborn sinfulness and have been brought into that intimate fellowship with Jesus Christ and have experienced what it means to be born again because they have heard one of these stirring missionary and soul-saving hymns of the Christian church.

The hymns we sing should be worthy of that name. Poor hymns with poor poetry, jazzy melodies and but little intelligent meaning may do inestimable harm. A good hymn must have a great message which seems to come from the very heart of God and goes out to the soul of the worshipper to give comfort, hope, and carry a challenge for service. But if a hymn will have any abiding value it must be a great message accompanied by a great melody. No cheap jingle will suffice.

Planning the Program

A great deal of care should be put upon the preparation for this service. It should be a most profitable and enjoyable hour. It might be well to have most of the program be of a worship nature. Plan to use considerable of Scripture material. Sing many of the best missionary hymns of the church. Learn to sing one or two new hymns. It would prove interesting to assign a few hymns to various individuals and ask them to analyze a few hymns and tell the reasons why they think it has become immortal, tell briefly the message it carries and the tune on which it is carried. It might be well to try to ascertain whether it is the message of the hymn or the melody or both which has made it immortal. Above all try to reach the hearts and souls of your congregation and pray that the Holy Spirit may instill a new missionary warmth and enthusiasm into every individual present. If it is possible have someone tell the stories of some of the best hymns, as to how they came to be written, by whom, and when. This is always of great interest and help.

The daily readings may be read in the service by some of the younger and more timid members. It may prove also of great worshipful value.

"This Is My Father's World"

Psalm 19:1-6

"This is my Father's world, and to my listening ears,
All nature sings, and round me rings the music of the spheres.
This is my Father's world, I rest me in the thought
Of rocks and trees, of skies and seas — His hand the wonders wrought.

"This is my Father's world, the birds their carols raise,
The morning light, the lily white, declare their Maker's praise.
This is my Father's world, He shines in all that's fair;
In the rustling grass, I hear Him pass, He speaks to me everywhere.

"This is my Father's world, Oh, let me ne'er forget
That though the wrong seems oft so strong, God is the Ruler yet.
This is my Father's world, why should my heart be sad?
The Lord is King—let the heavens ring: God reigns: let the earth be glad.
—Maltbie D. Babcock.

For this week and the next we will have topics which will deal with nature. In many communities outdoor meetings are planned during these summer months. Nothing is more beautiful and more inspiring than to discuss a topic like this with the entire congregation seated on a grassy knoll just as the sun is sinking into the west. Experience has proven in many communities that more members and a greater number of strangers will come to a service of that nature than when it is held in the church, providing it is properly planned and carried through with the proper reverence.

Many years ago the Psalmist was impressed with the wonders of the starry heavens telling their message of God the Creator of all things. The first part of the nineteenth Psalm gives voice to this God, praising Him for all the wonders which may be ours for the looking. The naked eye can see on any clear night anywhere from 2500 to 6000 stars. Others are too far away and consequently can not be seen with the naked, unaided eye. It is estimated that there are about thirty billion stars too far away even for the 100 inch glass to distinguish. With the aid of a strong telescope one may see the beautiful constellations and planets with their beautiful streamers and sparkling lights.

As we watch the sun and the starry heavens we can quite easily understand the feelings which arose in the mind of the Psalmist when he burst forth with his: "The heavens declare the glory of God, the firmament showeth his handiwork." Some quaking Christians fear that if we study the wonders of nature that we will lose our faith in God. In reality it will prove to be just the opposite, the more carefully and reverently we study concerning His wonderful creation the more we will love Him and seek to follow Him. The Creator is always greater than the object created. We will not worship the thing created, but the Creator.

Questions

1. Is this world to you a "blundering contrivance" or a wonderful manifestation of God's power and goodness?
2. Tell about some of the wonders of the starry heavens.
3. How can we avoid the danger of becoming nature worshippers?
4. Give some instance of Jesus' love for and use of nature in His teachings.
5. Can you combine the ideas of God as Creator and as Father?

Nature As Seen By Psalmist And Scientist

Psalm 8:3-6

The topic under discussion for the above date calls for a continuation of the discussion of the problems and beauties of nature. We will discuss tonight nature as viewed by the man who sees in it a thing of beauty and wonder and as studied by the man who tries to analyze all things from a scientific viewpoint.

Many young people when they have come to study biology, science and astronomy fear that they must either ignore their text-books or throw aside the Bible as the Word of God. But we are coming into better days. We have proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that which many believers have long confidently held to be true, namely that truth never contradicts itself, and if a thing is true, only fools try to be blind to it. And since God is Truth no child of His needs fear to discover truth. He gave us minds and He wishes us to use them. But the findings of science and true religion do not conflict. Our ablest scientists are telling us today that there is absolutely no conflict. Some would-be scientists scoff at religion and tell us it cannot be placed on the laboratory table there be dissected and analyzed and thus insinuate that it is unreal and untrue. And yet even the scientist begins with a certain unproven hypothesis and ends with theories which are only theories and in later years many times are proven to be empty and impossible.

All truth is not objective and possible of examination. You can experience a mother's love, but you cannot objectively explain the extent to which it will go in sacrifices. The Psalmist through his experiences of beauty and his soul ecstasies of the wonderfulness of nature comes as close to truth as does the scientist who takes the rose and dissects it into its various and separate parts.

Questions

1. How can a lover of beauty come into a fuller religious nature?
2. Do the scientist and the Psalmist conflict or do they only look at truth from different angles?
3. What can you see of the order and love of God by examining a rose?
4. What do some of our leading scientists tell us concerning the relation between religion and science?
5. In what ways do the Bible and the whole creation proclaim the wonders of God's love?

Preserving the Beauties of Nature

Genesis 2:8-15

> "The fears of what may come to pass,
> I cast them all away,
> Among the clover-scented grass,
> Among the new-mown hay,
> Among the hushing of the corn,
> Where drowsy poppies nod,
> Where ill thoughts die and good are born,
> Out in the fields with God."
> —Unknown.

Pre-Prayer

There could be no beauty in nature if there was no beauty in God.

Questions for Discussion

1. Why did God create Adam and Eve?
2. Why is it that two people can look at the same episode of nature and one see its beauties and the other its defects?
3. Recall to mind some outstanding beauties of nature which have been preserved from the beginning.
4. Does nature reveal all of God? or God in His fullness?
5. What do we learn, concerning God from the Bible that is not revealed by nature?
6. What in nature reveals God's Power, Wisdom, Love?

"This Is My Father's World"

(Consecration Meeting)

(An Outdoor Praise Service)

Ps. 148:1-13

A "Sunset Meeting"

Have a sunset or a sunrise meeting. If a sunset meeting would interfere with the evening worship hour, then a sunrise service would be best. It is a sacred obligation of every I. C. E. in the church of Jesus Christ, to give to each service of the church that which truly belongs to God. Have a good song leader, using poetry and scripture which deal with God and His world. Spend much time in prayer and preparation before you dare to lead others closer to His divine presence.

Suggestive Songs

1. This Is My Father's World
2. Now The Day Is Over.
3. Abide With Me.
4. The Lord Is My Shepherd.
5. Lead Kindly Light.
6. There Shall Be Showers of Blessings, and others.

Short Talks

1. The Mystery of Creation. Job 38:1-23; Gen. 1:1.
2. My Father's Care. I Pet. 5:7.
3. God, the Creator and Owner. John 1:1-5, 10.

Closing Consecration

Let all stand and recite or read in unison Psalm 8, and close with singing softly, "Day Is Dying In the West," and repeat Benediction.

Questions

for those who are not able to arouse an outdoor meeting.

1. If the world belongs to God, what place do we occupy in it? What is a steward?
2. What does the world owe you?
3. Explain God's care and interest in us.
4. Explain Phil. 4:19.

Keeping Our Heads

Daniel 6:10

"Practice the Presence of God"!

Pre-Prayer

Prayer is the secret of 'keeping our heads' in our relationships in I. C. E. Prove it!

A Round-Table Discussion

If possible place the members around a table with the leader at the head of the table. If each will be willing to speak in turn and raise questions of interest at intervals, the discussions will become surprisingly new and interesting.

The leader may open discussions on the following subjects and questions:

1. How does the condition of the mind affect 'keeping our heads'?
2. The conditions of the senses affect our attitude in making decisions. (Illustrate Daniel.)
3. How does health affect our choices?
4. What type of people are easily excited?
5. How can such possess the peace of God which passeth understanding?
6. There is a certain sense of safety when motoring or riding with someone in whom you put your trust in case of emergencies. Illustrate.
7. A swimmer feels himself caught in a tide. Why does he not float until someone hears his call for help instead of struggling, and terrorizing his future life?
8. What are some effects of a mob when it loses its head?
9. How would you say one may obtain God-given control in all avenues of life? I Pet. 2:19-25.
10. Why do so many commit suicide? Do they give it forethought?

Topic—God's Wonder Book: Solomon, Who Chose Wisdom

I Kings 3:5, 9

How many of you have ever had a whole dollar with which to do exactly as you pleased? I dare say it seemed so much that you hardly knew what you wanted most. If that seems big, how do you think it would be to have someone say, "Ask for anything you want"? Would we not want a lot of things! Perhaps many that would not be good for us at all. God came to Solomon one night and said, "Ask what I shall give thee." There were many things for which Solomon might have asked, because nothing is too great for God, but he asked just one thing. He thought of the people in his kingdom and how much he needed to know if he would rule them rightly, so he asked God for wisdom. God was so well pleased with his choice that he not only gave him wisdom, but riches and honor as well. Because of this, Solomon became the greatest of kings. In James 1:5 God promises wisdom to any of us who ask for it.

Plans for the Meeting

Have one or two of the older Juniors tell Solomon's life story, then ask each of the Juniors to quote one of Solomon's wise sayings from Proverbs. The assignments should be made a week before the meeting.

Questions

1. Whose son was King Solomon?
2. Over what nation did he reign?
3. Why did he choose wisdom?
4. For what great work is he especially remembered? (I Kings 8:12, 13.)
5. For what writings is he known?

Topic—Being Like Christ In His Self-control

Luke 9:51-56

(Consecration Meeting)

"He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city." Prov. 16:32.

When a girl in school, I read a story of a family in which there were four girls and a mother. One of the girls, although kind-hearted and lovable, was very quick tempered. She really tried to control her tongue, but the task seemed hopeless. She was greatly surprised when one day her mother said that she, too, had a bad temper. This seemed strange, for she never spoke unkindly or in anger. The mother explained that when she was younger she had been just as quick to speak as her daughter, but she had learned how wrong it was and although she did at times become angry even yet, she kept quiet until the anger had gone. "Oh," said the daughter, "is that why you sometimes close your lips tightly and leave the room?" Wouldn't it be fine if every one did that. Close the lips tightly instead of speaking when angry. Jesus can help us do that and He will help us not to get angry so easily if we let Him.

He had much more to annoy Him than any of us had, yet He never lost control of His temper, and He taught that His children should not. It pays to start to let Him control our lives while we are young.

Plans for the Meeting

Anger is only one of many things that need to be controlled in our lives. James 3:8 shows the need of ruling the tongue. Lead the Juniors to discuss other places in which self-control is needed. Finally, show how God, knowing how helpless we are, sent Jesus that our hearts might be changed. Through Him we go a step beyond self-control. We may have Christ-controlled lives.

Questions

1. What is self-control?
2. Why should we practice it?
3. How may we become like Christ in self-control?
4. Why is it important that we control our tongues?
5. How does Christ help us to live rightly?

August 12, 1934

Topic. — We come today to the greatest wonder of all mentioned in God's Wonder Book. Away back when God first made man and woman, He made them without sin. You remember it was not long until Satan tempted Adam and Eve and they both sinned. No one since that time has been perfect except Christ Himself. We know that God hates sin. He can not bear to see it and when there is sin in folks' hearts He cannot bless and help them as He would like to do.

He loved people too much to let them go even though they had done wrong, so He told them that if they would sacrifice animals He would forgive. At the same time He promised that some day He would send a Great Sacrifice that would be enough for all sin. While those who loved God sacrificed these animals, they kept looking forward to the time when this Perfect Sacrifice would come.

Almost two thousand years ago He came, Jesus, God's only Son. He came especially to die for our sin, and He died willingly (John 10: 17, 18). It is not only a wonder but something for which we should always thank God, that Christ loved us enough to leave His home in heaven to come down to die for us. John 9:16, Acts 16:31 and other verses tell us that our part is to believe on Him and we shall be saved, then we shall be God's own children.

Plans for the Meeting

Tell the story of the crucifixion, making three crosses on the blackboard. Tell of Jesus, the perfect Son of God, who died FOR sin because there was no other way that people could be saved. Then speak of the thief that died TO sin because he believed in Christ. Lastly, there was the thief who died IN sin and without hope because he would not believe. Juniors should get a glimpse of the awfulness of sin and the need of a Savior not simply for the world but for each of them individually.

Questions

1. When did sin come into the world?
2. Why did Jesus come?
3. Why did we need someone to die for us?
4. For whom did Jesus die?
5. How may we be saved?

The Best School

By Frank H. Winter

We learn in school of things and man,
The tug of nature's laws and life,
Of art, of music, thrilling sweet,
Of peace, of bloody wars and strife.

And then we learn in nature's school
Of birds, of flowers sweet and rare,
That God is great, all-wise, and good,
And life itself is sweet and fair.

But in God's precious Word we learn
That God is Love, and Christ is Peace;
And if we love all men and Him,
Our joys and songs shall never cease.

So let us learn from all these schools,
And try our best to grow and do,
Yes, live for Christ and all the world,
And to ourselves be always true.

Elijah Hears God's Voice

Lesson Text—I Kings 19:9-18

Golden Text—Speak Lord, for thy servant heareth. I Sam 3:9.

We are in the days of King Ahab, the king of the northern kingdom. The time is from 876 B. C. to 854 B. C. Elijah is the prophet. Ahab had married Jezebel, the king of Tyre's daughter. When she came into the kingdom she brought with her her Baal cult. Elijah demanded a contest on Mount Carmel to decide whether Jehovah was superior to Baal. The Lord Jehovah won. Jezebel attempted to stop this revolution by sending a threat to Elijah. He fled from the kingdom and went south to Beersheba, where we found him in our last Sunday School lesson, weary, discouraged, and spiritually depressed. This often happens to an individual right after a glowing victory. God revealed to him under a juniper tree his goodness by caring for him.

In our lesson today we find him on Mount Horeb where he met the Lord Jehovah face to face. Here Elijah was taught a number of very valuable lessons. In the first place in a very dramatic way he was taught that God is not only in the storm and earthquake and fire, but also comes to an individual as a still small voice as the individual communes with God. In the second place he was taught that God's cause of righteousness, justice and truth does not depend upon one individual, but that there were other ministers of Jehovah, such as Elisha, Jehu, and Hazael.

In the third place he was taught not to be pessimistic and self-centered, feeling that he was the only one that was righteous, but that there were yet seven thousand who had not bowed their knees to Baal. Elijah went back to Israel with new courage and faith and anointed Elisha to take up his work. This lesson is very significant in these days, for there is a tendency on the part of many people to look entirely on the dark side of life. With the many evils that are confronting us we feel that every one has forsaken God except they and a few choice friends. We need to have God revealed to us, but there are yet thousands of good Christian men and women who are the salt of the earth and the light of the world.

There are three voices to which we should be very sensitive in these days. The one is the voice from above which whispers to us strength and courage and faith. The other is the voice from within, our conscience which says, Lord, here am I, send me. And then there is that voice from without which is calling for help. Our lives should continually be sensitive to this call.

Micaiah Speaks the Truth

Lesson Text—I Kings 22:1-14

Golden Text—What the Lord saith unto me, that will I speak. I Kings 22:14.

In this lesson we are still in the reign of Ahab, king of Israel, and in the reign of Jehoshaphat, the king of Judah, but we now go from the prophet Elijah to the prophet Micaiah. Jehoshaphat came to be on friendly terms with Ahab. This friendship was cemented by the son of Jehoshaphat marrying the daughter of Ahab. Our lesson today deals with the incident where Ahab invited Jehoshaphat to accompany him in battle against the Syrians. Before Ahab went to battle he consulted the four hundred prophets of his kingdom as to whether he should go. These false prophets, knowing that Ahab wanted to go, advised him to do so. So he sent for Micaiah and asked him. Micaiah told him the truth and said if he went to battle he would lose his life. The king punished the prophet for the kind of advice he gave and went to battle in spite of it. The thing that Micaiah told him actually happened.

The moral of this lesson is not hard to discover. Here was a man who had a vision of God and therefore had faith and courage and would speak his convictions regardless of its effect upon the king. There is a great need in our country today for men of this kind. Men who have the courage of their convictions to speak out kindly, but truthfully, concerning the evils of our day. It is easy to find prophets who praise our country in this generation and encourage men and women to continue with false standards of life. But the real patriot and the true prophet is the one who will courageously speak the truth about economic greed, war, strong drink, and our movie indecencies. May this lesson inspire all of us church men and women to be true prophets of the truth.

JOTTINGS

Rev. E. Troyer, Rev. R. L. Hartzler, Rev. E. A. Sommer, N. O. Hoover, and Rev. W. B. Weaver attended a meeting of the finance and executive committee of the C. I. M. Board, held in Chicago the first day of June. The meeting was called for the purpose of discussing financial problems and how to meet them.

Mr. Eldon Stahly of the North Danvers Mennonite Church received his Doctor's degree in Chemistry at Pennsylvania State College in June. He has accepted a position at Schenectady, New York.

Dr. J. E. Hartzler gave a series of lectures at the Meadows Mennonite Church, Meadows, Illinois, June 10-17.

Rev. M. A. McCone of McComb, Illinois, held a three weeks' evangelistic campaign at the East White Oak Mennonite church near Carlock, Illinois. The pastor of the church is Rev. R. J. Zehr. On Monday evening, June 25, Rev. McCone gave an address on Communism at the Carlock community hall.

The Mennonite church of Normal, Illinois, is conducting a three weeks' vacation Bible school at their church. The pastor of the church is Rev. E. Troyer.

Dr. C. Henry Smith and Rev. I. R. Detweiler, both of Bluffton College, were instructors at the Central Conference Young People's Mennonite Retreat held at Meadows, Illinois.

Rev. Wm. B. Weaver gave an address on History of the Mennonites at the Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana, on the evening of June 3.

The French Mennonites hold their conferences in two languages. At a recent meeting one of their ministers preached in the French language and another minister in the German. The conference gives financial aid to the Dutch Mennonite Missionary Society, which conducts missions in the Islands of Samatra and Java. The conference also indicated its interest in the 187 Russian Mennonite refugees from Harbin, Manchuria, who crossed France on their way to Brazil.

Christian Endeavor in the Mennonite Church began in the Herford Mennonite Church, Bally, Pa., when the pastor of the congregation at that time, Rev. C. H. A. van der Smissen, introduced it. Rev. van der Smissen now lives in Kansas and quite lately participated in the installation of his son, Rev. G. A. van der Smissen, as pastor of the Einsiedel congregation at Hanston, Kansas. Rev. van der Smissen ordained his son to the ministry at a meeting of the Middle District Conference held several years ago at Summerfield, Ill. The line of ministers in this family goes back to 1837, when Jacob van der Smissen became a minister in Germany. Since that time Jacob van der Smissen ordained his son Carl J. to the ministry at Friederichsstadt, Germany; Carl J. ordained his son Carl H. at Ashland, Ohio, who in turn ordained his son T. A. in 1925. Other members of the Van der Smissen family have been active in the ministry in Germany. among them Rev. Heinrich van der Smissen, who for many years edited the Mennonitische Blaetter.

Dr. and Mrs. Pannabecker and children, located at our mission station at Kai Chow, China, since 1926, will sail from Shanghai July 7, on their first furlough.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander of Berne, Indiana, visited the Eastern District to participate in the Grren Lane Retreat, held in this conference of which Rev. Neuenschwander was one of the organizers of the Retreats seven years ago. He expects to move to Chicago shortly to assume the pastorate of the congregation there.

Reports from those attending the Mennonite Retreat held in Green Lane, Pa. June 22-24, indicate that it was the best attended of all the Retreats conducted. In many respects it was different, yet very helpful and inspiring.

Our missionary sister, Marie Schirmer, of Hoteville, Arizona, serves as postmistress. There are three mails a week, requiring about so many hours of her time, but this gives her opportunity to come into closer contact with the Hopis. Her ward, Daniel, recently graduated from the Los Angeles Bible School. He hopes to do Christian work among his people, the Hopis. A sister of Daniel died recently, leaving a little one, and Sister Schirmer is taking the motherless child to raise.

Rev. N. B. Grubb, pastor Emeritus of the First Mennonite Church, Philadelphia, Pa. now in his 84th year, celebrated the sixty second anniversary of his ordination to the Christian ministry on June 30. He received ordination in the Eden church, Schwenksville, which congregation he served for eleven years. His active ministry in the First Mennonite Church covered a period of nearly forty years.

The Congo Missionary Messenger reports that the American dollar has decreased over 40% in value in relation to the Belgian Congo money which means that more money is needed to provide for the needs on the field. At the beginning of 1933 a missionaries' allowance was $500.00. Today the same $500.00 buys less in Africa than $300.00 at that time. The change in value of the dollar causes a loss to him of more than $200.00 each year.

Doctors Harvey and Ella Bauman, who have been living in Quakertown during their furlough, plan to spend two months in Mrs. Bauman's home town, Versailles, Mo.

Bethel College , Newton, Kansas, Summer School has an enrollment of sixty. There is also a German Summer School for children being conducted on the campus which has an enrollment of thirty. The First Mennonite Church of Newton likewise conducts a German Summer School.

Rev. Edgar Toews, pastor of Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, who is secretary of the Program Committee of the Middle District Conference, gives notice that the next meeting of the Middle District Conference will be held in Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23-26.

Rev. A. R. Keiser, pastor of the Dalton, O., church. was among those who received degrees at the Oberlin School of Theology commencement this year. He received the degree of Master of Sacred Theology. The thesis he submitted was on the subject "Modern Catechetics."

Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. D., writes: "We are bringing two Summer Bible Schools to a close this week in our Salem Church territory with 54 enrolled. Bethany Church at Freeman has over 50 enrolled in a Summer Bible School, and Bethesda Church near Marion has over 80 enrolled, with four teachers. After a Comumnity Day of Prayer in Rev. P. P. Tschetter's church near Freeman, on May 30, with over a dozen ministers and many other people present, a number of soaking rains have come and more is in sight."

A quartette of Mennonite boys, students at Moody Institute, Jacob Quiring, John Harder, George and William Dick, the first named accompanied by his wife, gave a program of song and testimonies in Freeman College Auditorium on the evening of June 18.

MARRIAGE

Gering-Graber. — Dr. Joe J. Graber of Soap Lake, Washington, was married to Bertha Gering of Odessa, Washington, June 20, at two o'clock P. M., Rev. M. J. Galle officiating.

Kuehny-Bechtel. — A beautiful church wedding was solemnized in the Mennonite Church in Deer Creek on Sunday afternoon, June 24th, at three o'clock, when in the presence of the congregation, Miss Esther Kuehny, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuehny, became the bride of Mr. Harold Bechtel, the only son of Rev. and Mrs. A. S. Bechtel, the pastor of the church. Immediately following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Both the bride and groom are graduates of the Deer Creek High School with the class of 1929. The bride later attended Bethel College at Newton, Kansas.

Mr. and Mrs. Bechtel will be at home to their many friends in their newly furnished home on a farm two miles west and one mile north of Deer Creek.

DEATHS

Daniel Kirchhofer passed to his eternal reward on the 13th day of June, 1934, at the age of 74 years, 1 month, and 28 days. Baptized into membership of the Sonnenberg Mennonite Church, June 1, 1884, by Rev. Christian Krehbiel and later transferring his membership to the Salem Church, he has remained an active member there to the time of his death. He was united in marriage to Rosa Baumgartner on August 9, 1896, to which union were born two sons and two daughters. In his earlier days he was an Indian worker in the Mennonite Mission in the Indian territory. Later he was widely known for building picket fences, and still later for dealing in wire fencing. But he has been known most widely through his regular correspondence to various periodicals. He regularly contributed to the Dalton Gazette for over fifty years, to the Orrville Courier for over thirty years, and also for shorter periods of time to the Berne Review and the Mennonite Weekly Review.

Aside from his immediate family of children, his wife having preceded him in death by 1½ years, he leaves to mourn him a number of nephews and nieces and a large circle of friends.

TAXING BENEVOLENCES

The financial strain under which most of the benevolent institutions of our land are working is terrific. Most of them have been operating to the limit of their resources at all times, for there is never a time, even in prosperous days, when there is no need for all the benevolence that can be bestowed. Depression is no regarder of persons or institutions, it treats them all alike and forces hardships everywhere. With their endowments shriveling, or fading away altogether, the matter of caring for its wards is all the more harder for the institutions that must depend upon the voluntary liberality and many of them are in danger of being liquidated. This would be all the harder because it would add so much more to the already severe burden of public relief. It was recently suggested in the press that, since most of the churches, educational institutions, and charitable organizations that maintain property are tax free, they should also be taxed to help out in meeting the great public cost of government and relief. Such a suggestion, if heeded, would not relieve the tax burden very much, if at all, and would work out to the increased cost of relief. It must be borne in mind that all that is done by churches, schools, and benevolent institutions is adding so much to the public good. To tax them out of existence would be a foolish and short-sighted policy. G.

PROPAGANDA

Things in Germany are bewildering. The world has been shocked by the drastic measures taken by Hitler, but it seems that his nation is either cowed or satisfied by his actions. Everything indicates that before long other nations will be involved. Naturally there is a great deal of propaganda abroad and no one can tell how far this will go. Let us hope that our nation will not be drawn into it. In a speech Senator Borah recently called attention to the fact that after the World War official reports made in Great Britain revealed that great sums of money were spent in propaganda for the purpose of drawing the United States into the war. The lesson should be enough to make us wary of similar propaganda that might again involve us in a European conflict that would make the horrors of the last war look like child's play. G.

MISSION CONTRIBUTIONS

Few churches have come through their fiscal year without a deficit. Perhaps this is a normal situation just now, but we know that it cannot remain a normal one indefinitely. Some time the shortages must be made up or there will be a default, and a church defaulting is a serious drawback to the church of Jesus Christ, involving its reputation and its very existence. With most of the churches budgets will have to be carefully planned and extravagances will have to be cut out altogether while, at the same time, things that appear necessary will have to be limited. Perhaps no branch of the church has had to take the hard raps that fell upon the cause of missions. We do not know of a mission board that is not in debt, with debts increasing every day. The Christian church is on trial in the heathen lands. If the churches will not hold what they have there and continue their support in the way they began it, they must face the inditement that they are no more as seriously in earnest about bringing Jesus Christ to the lands and peoples who do not know Him. The matter of continuing missionary contributions in our churches to the extent that they have carried on is not a mere problem, it is a duty in which our honor is involved. —G.

THE MOVIES AGAIN

The movie arrogance that bid defiance to all decency and morality is getting its just rebuke. All denominations, including Catholic, Jew, and Protestant, are aggressively attacking Hollywood and its indecencies with a determination and vigor such as never before was shown. The Catholics are calling their people to withhold patronage from the movies until things are cleaned up to their satisfaction, going so far as to have them sign pledges to keep out of the movies entirely, and their people are signing these pledges by the thousands. The Protestant bodies, including the Federal Council of Churches and the Jewish organizations, are adding their support to this move in a most vigorous way. It so happens that now practically all religious bodies are united in an effort to suppress this most dangerous institution that has been making millions out of disregarding everything that stands for purity and law. It is to be hoped that all of our readers will feel it their duty to withhold their patronage entirely from moving picture theaters. "When the devil was sick a monk he would be." Now that box office language tells the movie people that it is not profitable for them to go on giving unclean shows they are making pretentions at reforming and asking for some kind of supervision that would satisfy the communities in which their shows are given We hope there will be no compromise. Can any one, or any body of men, with a record for debauching morality, poisoning the minds of the youths, glorifying crime and defying law, be trusted in any promise made that there will be reformation and a recognition of communities right to decency be trusted? —G.

TAKING THE CHURCH IN CONFIDENC

Recently the President and the Board Trustees of Bluffton College sent out a gener invitation to pastors and leaders in the churc to meet with them for a conference to discu ways and means whereby the college might of greater use to the church. This was an o portunity that gave all interested parties t chance to help in a constructive way that shou go far toward making the institution more e fective in its endeavors and discover what t needs of the churches are. A Mennonite inst tution deserves the support of Mennonites o hundred percent. We cannot conceive how a minister or leader in the church can feel th he is loyal to his church if he is not also loy to the school into whose hands have been e trusted the education of Mennonite youths. W note that, in other bodies of Christians, churc es and pastors are back of their institution Surely none of us would want the reputati of not supporting wholeheartedly that whic represents the hopes, the money, the energ and the love that has been thrown into a Mennonite institution. At this meeting the was then a splendid chance for anyone interes ed in the welfare of the school and church to b come enlightened and, we hope, intensely inte ested. —G.

CONCERNING OUR MISSION TREASURY

Although mission reports from the field ap-pear weekly in our papers, the Board decided hat also a monthly notice regarding our trea-sury appear, besides the statement of the reasurer.

As the field reports show, the work pro-gresses well on the whole. Those reports, of course, do not deal with the financial situation, which since last year, when our dollar changed its value, has changed against us, so that India reports a loss of about $4000.00, and China asks for about $1600.00 to make up for the loss in exchange.

The Board does not see its way clear so far to cover this. But all regular payments could so far be made, for which we are very thankful.

On July first the third quarter begins, and its payments become due, amounting to about $15,000.00. We would also appreciate special gifts for the printing of the Cheyenne New Testament, which has been entirely translated, and in about two weeks will be ready for the printer.

As you will have noticed, on June 1st we had only $37.36 in the treasury.

Some churches have a crop failure this year, and we hope that the others will redouble their support this year. Gratitude and love can do wonders, combined with prayer.

On July 7th, Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Pannabecker intend to leave China on furlough and expect to arrive in San Francisco about July 24th. Their trip is being paid by relatives.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

NINTH MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT AT BETHEL COLLEGE

Hutchinson, Kansas, July 12, 1934.

Dear Pastors and Co-workers:

The Retreat Committee of the Western District Conference would appreciate if you would announce the Young People's Retreat, to be held at Bethel College for the week beginning Sunday evening, August 5th, until Friday evening, August 10th.

Great opportunities will be offered for our Mennonite Young People. It is to be a week of intensive inspiration, information, meditation, and recreation.

Rev. A. J. Neueschwander, field secretary of the Young People of the General Conference, will teach a course on "Christ in Everyday Life."

Dr. J. H. Langenwalter, Friends University, Wichita, Kansas, will offer a course on the "Sermon on the Mount."

Miss Emma Ruth, Reedley, California, will offer a course on "Practical Young People's Christian Work."

The expenses for the Retreat will be a flat rate of $5.00 for the week, including registration to all that stay for the entire week.

We kindly ask you to give this information your prayerful consideration and announce the same in all your religious meetings. A complete program will be sent you soon.

Yours in the Master's service,

Rev. J. J. Plenert, Secretary.
The Retreat Committee,

A LITTLE SOMETHING about the Conference of Mennonites of Canada

(By J. H. Janzen, Waterloo.)

It was held at Hague, Saskatchewan, beginning June 30th, with a Conference of Mennonite Ministers, continuing with the "Missionsfest" Sunday, July 1st, and with the general sessions of the Conference, July 2nd to 4th. From 1500 to 2000 people attended. Roads were in poor condition as it rained almost every day, but the automobiles and the horse-drawn wagons made their way to Hague, — the people came and participated attentively.

As I saw it, the conference worked under the motto "Unity on the Ground of Truth." There can be no unity by effacing differences and parting lines between congregations and denominations. Every honest Christian must be faithful to his or her convictions in order to work steadfastly to the point.

We want to proclaim the glory of our God to the best of our ability according to, what we believe, the Word of God teaches. But we grant the same privilege to other denominations founded on the rock Jesus Christ and the salvation by the blood of the Lamb. In the different denominations we see not different directions in which Christians travel, but only different working units with different commissions from the Master. Fulfilling our duty as given to the different congregations by our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, we will build up the House of God, and as soon as it will be completed we will all be one in HIM.

Of what denomination will be the one flock under the one Shepherd?

"It does not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."

This is clear enough, and in order to become perfect, to accomplish our task, to be in perfect unity with one another, we should, by HIS power and by the guidance of the Holy Spirit, strive to see HIM now with the eyes of our soul and to "come in the unity of the faith, and to the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a fullgrown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."

Therefore the Conference endeavored to make clear where we stand, and from what position, and in what manner, we make for the goal. Hence such papers were read, as "Betaetigun der Liebe in der Urgemeinde" (The manifestation of love in the Apostolic Church), "Der Segen des systematischen Gebens" (The blessings of a systematic way of giving), "Belebun des Gemeindebewusztseins" (Enlivenment o church consciousness). Home Missions, Education and other matters of the Conference wer discussed. Boards, Committees, and Commissions were appointed, and things were set goin for another year.

The spirit of peace and good will prevaile during the sessions of the Conference, even i some of the speakers stressed the cause of ou churches somewhat energetically. We nee this, lest our members should think we do no know ourselves what we are at, and come t think, other congregations, who do a lot mor in advertising their churches, are founded mor solidly on the Scriptures as we are, and tha they should leave us and change over to another denomination if they wish to help in building the Kingdom of God.

The report of many activities of the Canadian Mennonite Board of Colonization and of the problems that the Board is faced with, was much appreciated. There could be no doubt but that the Board has to continue in its blessed work, helping so many who are in distress here and abroad, helping the newcomers to Canada to hang on in their efforts to live up to their obligations, and to make their living and even their life in the new home land. I forgot how many pounds of clothing were collected and distributed among needy ones, and how many dollars could be raised to aid the people in distress, to feed the hungry and to clothe the naked. On the proposal of Bro. David Toews, Rosthern, new members to the Board were elected, and thus its working ability was greatly enhanced. We all look forward for another year of prosperous and successful work of that Board.

Delegates and visitors from all parts of Canada and even some visitors from the United States were present, and many a tie of friendship and fellowship, made loose during the course of time, could be and was tightened again, and satisfied and thankful for the blessings they received, the delegates and visitors departed at nightfall, Wednesday, July 4th.

Today clouds gather over the plains of Saskatchewan again. There might be rain tonight.

The fields look very promising here. The farmers are hopeful for a good crop.

It has been my commission and privilege to serve the different Mennonite churches of Canada and many in the United States during recent years and up to the present time preaching sermons and delivering addresses, very often concerning the relations of science to Christian faith. I do the work with joy, although I have to spend most of my time far away from home.

Today I look out of the window of my kind hosts, Johannes Regiers, Tiefengrund, Saskatchewan. I see the green fields overhung with darkening clouds, and I dream of a far-away, quiet house in Waterloo, Ontario, and its inhabitants, — and I am getting just a little bit homesick. But I must and I will overcome that. I have work to do about here at least until July 24th. The different stations I will have to visit are, Waldheim, Rosthern, Drake, Herschel, Fiske, Glidden, and Kindersley, Saskatchewan.

I pray that the Lord may bless my humble endeavors, too. Jacob H. Janzen.

Tiefengrund, Sask., July 7, 1934.

BRIEF REPORT OF THE BIBLE SCHOOL 1933-1934

The Lord has this year blessed us with choice blessings, for which we must not fail to give Him the glory and praise. Our hearts go out in gratitude to Him for what He has wrought in and through us.

The teaching work could be carried on on a decidedly higher plane this year because the majority of our studnts are better educated and more experienced. We recognize this as a real step forward, and hope that next year the new students will be Middle School pass or its equivalent.

The health of the students and teachers has been fine. For this gift we are grateful to the Lord, for it enabled us to carry on the work without interruptions.

We believe that the moral life of the students this year has been better than ever before. God has done wonderful things for us through the Gospel Team work. It has meant much to our own hearts. Confession and cleansing has brought us into a closer fellowship with God and with each other.

We are grateful that a Gospel Team could be organized in the Bible School this year. The work was started by a man who was a hypocrite at heart, but we are grateful that he insisted on a confession of sins, even if he himself hid sins in his own heart. Those that confessed have had a new experience and have found a new life. This has brought into our Bible School a love and unity and fellowship such as we have never had in the Bible School. I must say that I have never enjoyed and experienced such fellowship with Indian Christians as I have with the students out on tour this year. The secret of this fellowship is confession of sins. We knew each other. We were frank with each other. Our life was open before each other. This fellowship has made possible a wonderful way of work which I thought was not possible. In this fellowship we did our planning and our work together. We did not follow "huckau." Group opinion was the rule. Decisions that came out of prayerful group thinking and planning were followed. Only once did I decide a matter taking the responsibility all myself, because we were divided, and we all seemed just as happy for this way out. I, of course, did much of the planning and much of the suggesting, but the decisions were made by the group and not by me. When hearts are clean, then there is unity, fellowship, and love. Then working together in all things is possible and becomes a power. I look back with regret now to my work in past years when I tried more or less to carry on the work by giving huckam. And I shall fear to go forward in this work if we should get students who are not truly converted and fully consecrated, who have not cleaned up their lives by confession. Such students we do not want. We hope for clean students in the future. I have seen the wonders of God this year as never before. God can heal terrible wounds and bring about a wonderful restoration when men truly repent, confess, and fully consecrate themselves to God. Confession is the door by which God can enter our hearts for cleansing and to bring joy into our hearts. Not sins that have happened, but sins that are hid and not confessed, is what binds God's hands.

The touring work has again been a blessed experience. It has meant much to our lives and God has through us worked mightily in the hearts of many people. We are still grateful to Rev. Moyer for his help last year which has helped us this year in many ways. In comparison with last year our work this year was weaker in some respects and stronger in others. The workers were decidedly stronger "in the inward man" and this made them more powerful. The impact upon the people was greater although the teaching was perhaps weaker. A great disadvantage was that we did not have women to teach the village women. Yet the Lord blessed the work and we praise Him for it.

Yours for the Kingdom of Christ in India,
W. F. Unruh, Janjgir, India.

DISTRIBUTING BIBLES

As an illustration of the fact that there are still many homes in the United States without Bibles, one of the workers of the American Bible Society reported that out of 7,646 families which he visited during 1933 he found 2,953 having no Bible — almost forty percent. In a western state one family admitted that for four generations they had been without a Bible. When we remember that more than one-half of the world lives in Bibleless homes the necessity laid upon Christian forces for furnishing the Word of God is at once apparent.

The American Bible Society faces many publication problems in supplying Scriptures annually in from 150 to 175 different languages. When Scriptures are needed for a remote tribe the edition will likely involve special technical processes. The demand for Penny Portions at times is so great that editions of a million or more are printed at one time. Frequently publication must be in two languages in parallel columns.

The erection and dedication during 1933 of new modern Bible Houses in Rio de Janeiro and Tokyo will aid the American Bible Society in increasing interest in Bible work in these two countries.

In crossing an altitude of 14,000 feet in Peru a colporteur of the American Bible Society, Don Pedro Diaz, suffered so much from exposure that his hands and face were swollen and blackened and his lips broken so that for a day or two he could scarcely open his mouth. "But," he reported, "I circulated the Word in many places which have never been visited by an evangelical missionary or colporteur and most of the others were only visited once by a colporteur more than thirty years ago."

Scientific invention and progress are now helping to counterbalance some of the perplexities usually faced by those charged with Scripture distribution. The radio is now being used for a half hour weekly in Shanghai to broadcast the Scriptures and to describe Bible Society activities. A few evenings before Christmas members of the Agency staff read the story of Jesus' birth over the radio in seven languages and dialects. In eastern Bolivia and Peru new government roads opend up territories formerly isolated and dangerous for travel. Cars can now penetrate from the Pacific Coast to the highlands of Central Peru, crossing the Andes at an altitude of 15,000 feet.

2,969 volumes of Scriptures for the blind, furnished at the special price of twenty-five cents a volume, although costing from $2 to $8 a volume, were distributed from the Bible House in New York City last year in seven different embossed systems. The American Bible Society is in its 99th year of supplying embossed Scriptures to the Blind.

A growing interest in the Bible among the 25,000 Indians in the Pacific coast states has been reported to the American Bible Society by its Pacific agency. It has long been a question among these Indians as to whether the Bible was a real religious help to them. They recognized the Bible as the white man's book and they feared it would destroy their old and cherished Indian culture; but they have come to believe that the Bible reaches a forward-looking religion and possesses the promise of life that they seek, so there has been a marked encouragement in a reading of it.

Most of the younger people read the Bible in English, but the older generation wants the Scriptures in the language they understand. The American Bible Society has printed some part of the Bible in fifteen different Indian dialects spoken throughout America.

Dear Pastors, S. S. Superintendents, C. E. Officers, and Leaders:

Some time ago you were sent information about the 1934 RETREAT to be held again at Shipshewana Lake. The dates, you remember, are August 13-21. Enclosed herewith find further information about the RETREAT. One pastor writes that 24 young people plan to attend from his church, and two or three mothers will accompany the group as chaperons. Where, and how, could the young people from your church have a more profitable vacation period than this group will have?

The Retreat Committee is very happy to announce that the leader of music has been secured. Mr. John Thut of Chicago will conduct the music hour and lead the singing of the entire Retreat. Mr. Thut is a native of West Liberty, Ohio. He graduated from Goshen College and taught for several years in Bethel College, Newton, Kans. He is now on the staff of the American Conservatory of Music, in Chicago. We are certain he will make the music end of the Retreat outstanding in quality and interest. It is planned to give Retreaters an opportunity for private interviews and voice trials with Mr. Thut. This feature alone should make the Retreat more than worth the price for anyone interested in music.

Dr. M. C. Lehman will give a course in Missions, and one in the N. T. parables. His courses will present a rare opportunity for study as he is well qualified and we are pleased to have him as a leader. Dr. E. L. Harshbarger is a graduate of Bluffton College and Ohio State University. He teaches history and the social sciences at Bethel College. Young people who take his courses will better understand many of the great political and social movements of our day. Prof. H. W. Berky of Bluffton College was present as a leader last year. Many will want to continue their work under him, or take his course in Nature Lore. Rev. W. B. Weaver has served as a leader for several years. His courses are always very helpful in Biblical interpretation. The sun-set services by Rev. J. N. Smucker, pastor of the Oak Grove Mennonite Church, Smithville, Ohio, will help the Retreaters "Meet the Master" as he speaks on this general subject, and his course in the Psalms will be an inspiration to those taking it.

Registration fee and ground privileges $2.50.

CORRESPONDENCE

First Mennonite Church, Newton, Kansas, June 29, 1934. Dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— On Sunday, May 6, since it was Deaconess-Sunday, our pastor, Rev. J. E. Entz, preached two very appropriate sermons in German and in English, the texts were Matt. 20:28 and I Cor. 13:8. In the afternoon the catechumens' knowledge of the catechism was shown. In the evening student colunteers from Bethel College gave a very nice program. This was followed by an excellent sacred concert by the male chorus from the Pretty Prairie congregation, well trained by Bro. Rudolf Wiens.

On Ascension Day Father Regier preached in German and Rev. Voth of Bethel College preached in English. On Sunday, May 13, the confession of faith was read. May 20th, our pastor preached an excellent sermon, baptized eighteen catechumens, made a very impressive address, and gave the catechumens each a passage of Scripture, quoting them by memory.

On May 25th, the beloved, efficient wife and helpmeet of our dear pastor died after a protracted sickness. May 27th was the Mennonite song festival at Bethel College, which was well attended. On May 28th the S. S. Convention of this district was held in our church. It was well attended and a blessing to many.

On May 29th was the funeral of Mrs. C. van der Smissen; and on May 30th the funeral of the beloved Mrs. Entz, her schoolmate, in Halstead. Rev. B. W. Harder spoke at the house, and Rev. B. Regier, Rev. H. J. Dyck, and Rev. J. B. Bays at the church.

Sunday, June 3, the Lord's supper was celebrated. On Sunday, June 24, was children's day. Our pastor preached on Luke 1:66, What manner of child shall this be? A row of parents, reaching almost across the church, brought their small children and our pastor blessed them. A junior choir sang a German and an English song. In the afternoon was the children's festival. Mrs. P. Bartsch led the singing. Bro. Hans Warkentin read a passage and prayed. Br. C. v. d. Smissen gave a short talk. Then followed the picnic.

Since your correspondent expects to go to Nevada for a few weeks with his children, coming back will likely be in the hospital for about two weeks and perhaps will not be able to go to church so soon, he may not write for the paper for a while. Fraternally,

C. van der Smissen.

Bethel Church, Mountain Lake, Minnesota. "I will open the windows of heaven and pour my blessing upon you" — has been very true for Bethel Church and this community as a whole this summer.

On May fourth, we had the privilege of celebrating Rev. J. J. Balzer's golden wedding. Many people took part in the happy event. Rev. I. J. Dick, Rev. Peter J. Friesen, Rev. John Bartel, and Rev. P. R. Schroeder from Freeman, South Dakota, were the speakers, each one making very appropriate remarks. The Lord also blessed us with a refreshing rain that afternoon after a period of dryness.

June 9th to 12th we had the Northern District Conference here. A spirit of love and cooperation was felt through all the meetings. Missions and a deeper spiritual life were stressed very much. All Sunday and evening meetings were held in the auditorium. The last evening, for the musical program, not even that building was large enough. We appreciated that two choirs from South Dakota thought it worth while to come for Tuesday evening and take part in the program.

Rev. John Esau gave an inspiring talk on Sunday evening. Missionary P. J. Boer also left some impressive mission thoughts with us. On Tuesday morning Rev. P. R. Schroeder gave a heart-searching message on "Bildung, Einbildung und Ebenbild."

The ladies' mission program on Tuesday afternoon was very well attended. Mrs. Henry Fast and Alma Ortman gave very good talks. Indeed the "Mind of Christ" was felt in all the meetings.

The Lord graciously gave the dry and parched earth a few days of rain before the conference, giving new hope to man, plant, and animal. Again we are looking for rain, the days are so hot and the ground so dry.

June 24th we had Children's Day Program in the morning. The church was packed with children and visitors. Miss Marie Peters from an Indian mission in northern Minnesota, gave a very interesting talk on the life of the Indians. We who have been brought up Christian, hardly realize how dark heathendom is.

That Sunday afternon we had the funeral services for Mrs. H. H. Regier, who followed Rev. Regier after six months. She was longing to enter her heavenly home, and God called her after a few days of serious illness.

Sunday, July 1st, our little city will be privileged to have the St. Olaf's Choir from Northfield, Minnesota, in our midst. They are a world famous group and we call it an honor to have them here. Susan Schroeder, Corr.

Butterfield, Minnesota, July 2, 1934. To the Editor and Readers: After a dry and stormy spring, we are very thankful for the nice rains we have had. The Lord answered prayers, everything is nice and green again. People rejoice and are grateful for the blessings we receive. We praise His holy name!

At this time we will try and mention a few things our congregation has been doing the last three months. The 8th of April the Zion choir from Bergthal church, consisting of about fifty mixed voices, rendered the Easter cantata in our church to a full house. April 15th, we were privileged to listen to Rev. J. D. Dick from Mountain Lake. He served at the morning services. April 19, our Ladies Aid Society held the annual sale of goods in the church basement, which brought $60.00.

May 13, the C. E. Society committee prepared a Mother's Day program, which was given in the evening. June 3, the Rev. J. J. Balzer from Mountain Lake occupied the pulpit and at the same time five new members joined the church, namely: Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Rempel, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Bergthold, and Mrs. J. R. Harder. We all partook of the Lord's supper at that time.

The fifth of June a golden wedding took place in the church, namely that of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Derksen. A well rendered program by the children and grandchildren was given. Rev. D. D. Harder, Rev. J. Stoesz, and Rev. L. H. Linscheid spoke. This was much enjoyed by those present. After the services about four hundred guests partook of a full supper in the church basement which was decorated in white and gold. May our Lord keep these dear people and protect them in the years they yet have to live.

A three day conference took place in Mountain Lake June 10—12. Being only eight miles from here, many of our people attended these meetings which were of great interest.

June 17, as usual, we celebrated our annual Mission and Children's Day. Rev. Edw. Derksen from Alsen, N. D., spoke on home mission, and Rev. J. J. Balzer on foreign mission. The choir sang a number of songs. In the afternoon the children did the speaking and singing, after which Missionary Marie Peters gave an interesting talk to young and old. Two meals were served to all in the basement. The evening service was in charge of Rev. Edw. Derksen. He spoke on the subject, "Trusting in God rather than in man." If we put our trust in man we often fail, but if we put our trust in God we never fail.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Linscheid and family of California are here visiting with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Linscheid, and other relatives and friends.

The first two weeks in June our annual daily vacation Bible school took place in the schoolhouse with two teachers, Amanda Dick from Mountain Lake and Anna Heinrichs from Manitoba. On the evening of June 19th the program was given, which was much enjoyed by all.

Our C. E. Society sent two delegates to the convention at Medicine Lake; Emma Linscheid and Betty Wengenroth were there. These ladies gave a fine report the first of July at the Christian Endeavor.

On June 24th about fifty invited guests gathered at the home of Daniel Hubins to help him celebrate his eightieth birthday. At this same time our mother, Mrs. John Rupp, was 81 years old, so we all celebrated together. A program was prepared by the children and grandchildren, and Rev. L. H. Linscheid and Rev. J. D. Hubin both spoke, after which H. K. Rupp made a few remarks and the closing prayer. A dainty lunch was served to all. May the Lord protect and keep these old people is our wish and prayer.

On June 24, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Cosey were surprised by a number of friends on their twenty-fifth anniversary. They all were at Bingham Lake and had supper together.

July 1st, the J. W. Hubin family from Red Wood Falls gave a very interesting C. E. program here. All members of this family have talents, and use them, too.

Our sister, Amalia Rupp, who fell a long time ago and hurt her hip, is now able to walk with the aid of a cane. We trust the Lord will restore her health fully, and if not, we know she will walk some day in glory.

St. John Mennonite Young People's Activities. On March 13, 1934, was the first meeting of the Bible Class organized by our Pastor, Rev. Edgar Toevs. This class is composed of young people of high school age and up (unmarried). This class meets weekly at the homes of the different members. For our text book we have the Bible, studying at the present time the books in the New Testament. Rev. Toevs conducts and teaches the class. The purpose of this class is to create a desire to study the Scriptures and to get well acquainted with it so that we may "put on the Sword of the Spirit" in order that the world may not stain us with the many temptations it offers. The absolute necessity of accepting Jesus Christ as our Savior from sin is stressed. Works are but the fruits of a Christian and cannot save him. We want to let our lights shine brightly in order that the beauty of Jesus may be seen in us and attract others to Him.

Besides meeting weekly for study, the class is responsible for furnishing a program once a month at two County Infirmaries. Much interest is being shown in this work.

On June 23rd and 24th the young people entertained the Ohio-Indiana Young People's Conference. The theme of the conference was "The Abundant Life." Receiving, maintaining, and living the abundant life were very ably discussed. In order to receive the abundant life, one must meet God's requirements for Heavenly Citizenship by receiving His Son into our lives. To maintain this abundant life one must keep in constant touch with the power. Just as a light bulb must be connected with the electricity to be able to shed abroad any light, so must the Christian see that nothing interferes or disconnects his fellowship and communion with God. The sunset worship service was very inspiring. The subject for the evening was "Mounting Up." L. Augsburger,

Young People's Correspondent,

Bally, Pennsylvania, June 30, 1934. The members and friends of the Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Penna., extend greetings to the editors and readers of The Mennonite and Christian Evangel.

We started the work of the New Year by having our annual service of praise where local talent took part during the church services.

Our Eastern District Conference has indeed been fortunate in that we had two returned missionaries in our conference during the past months. Rev. Peter J. Boehr spoke in our church on Sunday, February 4th. He, with his family, brought us the activities of the mission field in China. Then on February 11th, we had Dr. Harvey Bauman speak on Mahatmi Gandhi and his influence on India, where Dr. Bauman is working. Both these messages were enjoyed by our members.

On March 28th, Rev. Ralph Althouse, a reformed minister, preached to us in the absence of our regular pastor. Rev. Althouse spoke on friendship and what constitutes a real friendship. This was a timely sermon by this young minister, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

We again had Easter Dawn Services and they were very well attended. During the church services on Easter Sunday the members of the Primary Room sang two selections. This is a yearly event because our Primary Department does not prepare a program for the Easter season.

On Sunday evening, April 8, a neighboring choir of a Lutheran church rendered the cantata "Everlasting Life."

On May 6th, Jesse Renninger, a student of the Mount Airy Theological Seminary, preached in the absence of our pastor. He spoke on prayer.

Our pastor, Dr. Elmer E. S. Johnson, was away quite a bit in the past six months attending to his duties at the Hartford Theological Seminary. During his absence we had the supply ministers mentioned above, together with Mr. Paul Kehm, who was a student at Franklin and Seminary, but has now graduated and has a charge in a neighboring state.

On Thursday evening, June 7, the members of the Ladies Bible Class held their annual Mother and Daughter Banquet in the new social room of our church. A banquet meal was served, after which Miss Mary Fritz, a teacher of a Ladies' Bible class in St. John's Lutheran Church, Boyertown, spoke to the group on the relationship between mother and daughter. Our pastor, who was a special guest, spoke on the relationship between father and daughter. This banquet has come to mean a great deal in the organization of the Bible class.

Quite a number of our Sunday School members had attended every Sunday in the past year and they were recognized by the Sunday School in receiving a pin as a reward for their efforts.

The Intermediate Christian Endeavor Society of the church has been quite active holding their regular meetings, also had a contest between "Reds" and "Blues," and sponsoring a musical program in our church on Sunday evening, June 10th. This offering was turned over to the Church Building Fund.

Our pastor again was an instructor at the Eastern District Retreat, held on June 22-24. He lectured on New Testament History. Our church had five representatives.

There is to be started a class for catechetical instruction during the summer months.

At the writing of this letter plans are being made for our first Home Coming Services, to be held on July 1st during the morning and afternoon. This is a new event in the lives of the members of our church, but we hope it may truly be an enjoyable one.

Half of this year has passed and has had its bitter trials and disappointments as well as the joys and blessings. We are looking forward to greater things for the next half year, and we hope we may attain them through the help of our Lord and Savior. We shall take Him as our guide and know that He doeth all things well.

Tell me not in mournful numbers,
Life is but an empty dream,
That the soul is dead that slumbers,
And things are not what they seem.

Life is real, life is earnest
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art — to dust returnest
Was not spoken of the soul.

Not enjoyment and not sorrow,
Is our destined end or way;
But to act that each tomorrow
Finds us farther than today.

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

Let us, then, be up and doing,
With a heart for any fate;
Still achieving, still pursuing,
Learn to labor and to wait.

MY IDEAL GIRL

By Miss Louise Kemp

To most people, I am sure, my ideal girl would seem a strange example to live up to. She comes far from being an angel, but is instead just a typical American girl, living in this modern age. She is, perhaps, slightly old-fashioned to some, but comes up to all standards that I think a girl should.

My ideal girl, of course, possesses many virtues in addition to a very winning personality. In the home she is loved by everyone, because of her willingness to help anybody when they are in trouble. She helps her mother with the housework, helps her sisters and brothers as much as she is capable of, and makes the home a happier and more cheerful place for the whole family. She greets and bids her parents with a cheery "hello" or "goodbye," which does much to make the day a happy one. When in the presence of strangers or visitors she takes an active part in the conversation, showing her intelligence, but she always remembers that young people should be seen and not heard. She is polite to everyone, young and old, rich and poor, and is very considerate of her elders. However, she is but human, and sometimes gets into "scraps" with other members of the family just as everyone is apt to do. But she soon forgives and makes up once more, forgetting all about it.

Many girls act very nicely when at home, but when at school they are quite different people. This is not true of my ideal girl. She is still just the same polite, cheerful, and active person at school that she was at home under the watchful eyes of her parents. She intends to keep on going to school till she is through school, and realizes that an education is a very important asset in the life of any young person if he intends to really do something worthwhile, and follow his chosen career. Therefore, she makes going to school her WORK and puts forth all her efforts to the best of her ability. She talks and associates with everyone to a certain extent, but chooses very carefully companions with whom she intends to mingle more closely. She shares her intelligence with others, and helps other schoolmates less fortunate than herself. She takes an active part in social activities, often times having a real good time at some school party she is attending. This gives her popularity throughout the school.

After a week of hard studying and concentration, she feels she deserves just a little time for amusement. She sees no harm in going to see a movie, providing it is not one which shows nothing but evil, and now and then to a party staged by some school friend. This is the time my ideal girl may seem oldfashioned, but, when in the midst of gay friends, she will overcome all temptations and will not smoke nor drink nor do any other thing that her conscience tells her not to do. Often times she goes on hiking, swimming, and motoring parties and is active in all wholesome, healthy outdoor sports.

And then, last but not least, she is an active church member. She attends Sunday School, church, and other Christian organizations of the community regularly, and takes part in the programs when asked to do so. She is attentive when in church, and tries to follow the morals given there. She goes with the sole purpose of learning more about Christ and how to live more closely to Him, and not just because she feels it is her duty to go.

Such are the virtues of my ideal American girl. I have not set them too high, for I shall try to follow them. However, for myself they are at present far away, and it will be only through the most persistent efforts that I shall win this goal for which I am aiming.

LOOKING AHEAD

This is the time of the year when thousands of young people are thinking of what they will do when the coming school year opens. Some may qestion as to whether they shall continue their work in the high school. Such we would urge that if at all possible you should not permit anything to turn you aside. The future will demand men and women who have no less than a high school diploma.

There is a host of other fine young people who graduated from high school either this past spring or a year or two ago. Circumstances may have compelled you to find something else to do than to matriculate in college. Between now and early autumn you should think very definitely of beginning your further academic work. For many this will be your last opportunity, if you do not plan to go this year you never will, and consequently with less preparation your life will not mean what the Master meant it should. Other interests will beckon, perhaps the setting up of a home or the allurements of a good position, and your door to college will be closed forever. Young people with fine Christian character and a thorough preparation will stand in the land of the line of leadership for tomorrow.

Finances are often a hindering cause for worthy young people not going to college. But our schools and colleges are very sympathetic to worthy students with but little capital. Washing dishes, beating rugs, helping farmers cut corn, doing janitor work, and working in stores have in most cases developed rather than hindered character. In looking around to choose the institution to which you may choose to go our Mennonite youth should not fail to consider our own colleges. They are of the best and merit our support.

What Have I Worth Sharing With Others?

Acts 3:6-7

"Sharing" and "Service" have become two important words in life today. Even business has caught the spirit which emanates from the Galilean Master and we read and hear of "sharing plans," "cooperatives," and all kinds of service stations. Men are learning increasingly that the Christian life must be more than a matter of individual salvation. It must begin with being born again, but it must be a growing life and manifest itself as those same individuals come into contact with their fellowmen, "by their fruits ye shall know them." We are coming to see that to be concerned only in our own individual salvation and not concern ourselves about others is extremely selfish and hardly Christian. It is often argued that a man could hardly be Christian in the fullest sense if he would be thrown on an island all by himself. The sweet Christian life, like a good fountain, must give forth, otherwise it will soon become a stagnant pool.

This is to be something like a "taking stock account meeting" where we take all of our assets and make note of them and also consider carefully our liabilities. The successful business man or farmer will at stated times determine as to whether he is making progress or not and note the places where he is experiencing a loss. Dare a Christian be any less concerned about his character which determines his soul's destiny for time and eternity?

When we consider the values of a tangible or intangible quality which we may share, we will of course, note such things of worth like health and true happiness. If we are privileged to enjoy good health, we should sympathize with those who have less of that than we do, we should endeavor to make life more pleasant and agreeable to them. Peace of mind comes as a result of right relationships — to God and toward our fellowmen. So we will need to note among our assets the value of a staunch belief in God, and the experiential faith in Jesus Christ who can cleanse us from all sin and give us vision, inspiration and a newness of life. And thus one could continue almost indefinitely to count our blessings, among them would be such like the open Bible, friends, books, enjoyment of stars, trees, birds, and flowers, and some silver and gold. All of these are real blessings which we hold only as stewards, all of them should be shared.

It is equally essential to examine those traits which are liabilities and concerning which great care should be taken that they will not be scattered. Each year the wind catches up and distributes widely seeds from all kinds of obnoxious weeds such as Canadian thistle, dandelions, etc. It is easy to speak evil concerning another, but it is impossible to undo the wrong done. Each one of us has some harmful habit which so effects mind, soul, and body that it will forever keep us from being less a man than we otherwise would be, such a habit may be the only hindrance between what we are and true greatness. Such habits may be in the realm of an uncontrollable temper, laziness, sins of lust and passion, greed, undue worry, and selfishness. These are not worth sharing with others. We would better eliminate them from our own lives lest we contaminate the souls and characters of our children and friends.

Questions

1. Wherein is to be found the joy and value of sharing?
2. Enumerate and describe briefly some of the values we possess which are worth sharing.
3. Enumerate and describe briefly some traits which are not worth sharing with others.
4. What is the value of sharing silver and gold with the church and all needy and worthy causes?
5. In what ways can we share with Christ?

What Are The Qualifications Of A True Gentleman Or Lady?

Col. 3:12-17

In this topic we will not think of a lady and a gentleman in the derogatory sense, as one of those artificial, polished "butterflies." We will rather think of Christian manhood and womanhood at its best, that type of Christian personality which is in such great demand everywhere. Such a character is well-controlled, properly balanced, motivated by right purposes and sympathetic and actively interested in the most Christian aspects of life. Do you know such men and women? They begin to approach the Christlike ideal.

In the first place, it is a prime essential that the first step in becoming this ideal Christian personality be in the terms of our lesson text "to put on the new man," one cannot reach this high goal of attainment unless he be a true Christian. He needs to seek those things which are of a higher and more spiritual nature, and set his affection on things above and not on things too earthly, low and common or beastial. A true Christian is recognized as a gentleman or lady no matter where he or she may be found, be it in Japan, the South Sea Islands, Africa, or in New York City.

Sometimes it is thought that money is a requirement for the full development of the gentleman. Much money will not make a gentleman nor will it do him harm. The lack of money will not dare to sour the Christian personality. Money has its values and its dangers, for it is "the root of all kinds of evil." He who has considerable of wealth thereby increases his responsibilities for we are all stewards, we must give an account of our stewardship. To whom much is given will much be expected. No, money does not make a gentleman, neither need the lack of it rob anyone of ladylike and gentlemanly qualities.

Someone will ask, "What, then, determines as to who will be our ideal type of man and woman, will it be they who have social standing?" No, the "upper four hundred" are in many cases counted out immediately because their attitude makes them snobs, and a true gentleman above all things is not a snob. Truly big men and women are very accessible, they put you at ease immediately when you approach them, they know nothing of false pride. Such personalities like Jane Adams, John R. Mott, Dr. Kagawa, Dr. E. Stanley Jones, and others are very common as one speaks with them. There are some people who have never traveled, whose name has never appeared in the papers, and who have seemed not to be notable in any way, but who in reality have the stamp of greatness written upon their faces. They may have little or no education, but if they have sat at the feet of the Master and have been willing to pour forth their lives in sacrificial service, serving God and their fellowmen as best they know how, such lives will be truly great.

One can find perhaps no better catalog of characteristics of our ideal Christian under consideration than is found in the Sermon on the Mount, especially in the Beatitudes. Some would scoff at these ethical exhortations as not pertaining to the Christian, they maintain that these are for heaven. That is heresy of the worst type, be it Modernism in its most blatant form or Fundamentalism in its dress most crass. Jesus gave the Beatitudes as principles and ideals by which Christians should live and grow unto the perfectness in Christ Jesus our Lord.

It Is Not Easy—

To apologize.
To begin over.
To take advice.
To admit error.
To be unselfish.
To be charitable.
To be considerate.
To endure success.
To keep on trying.
To avoid mistakes.
To quit bad habits.
To shoulder the blame.
To forgive and forget.
To keep out of the rut.
To maintain a high standard.
To recognize the silver lining.
To make the most out of little.
But it always pays.

Questions

1. What is meant by being a lady or a gentleman?
2. What is the relation between money and character?
3. Think upon your ideal lady and describe some of her fine qualities which make her distinctive.
4. Think of a gentleman who is your ideal and characterize his virtues.
5. Name and describe five of the most needful virtues in a great Christian personality.
6. What is involved in "putting on the new man"?

Favorite Characters in the Old Testament
Heb. 11:1-40

The week before the meeting give the members each the name of one Bible Old Testament character — with Scripture reference — to read about and tell the story in the next meeting. Lessons for us today should climax each story.

Pre-Prayer

Let us get renewed grace and strength and wisdom in a few moments of united prayer before the meeting begins, in a corner or room alone with God. This should be the prayer meeting chairman's opportunity in making a "Better Endeavor" to encourage and lead this pre-prayer band.

God's Heroes

Let us begin at the beginning of God's records and point aut His faithful leaders and watch God work with and in their yielded lives.

1. Abraham
   God's call. Gen. 12:1—Heb. 11:8. To be the father of a great nation and the ancestor of the Messiah. Gen. 12:2, 6.
   Abraham's choice. Gen. 13th chapter. Name changed from Abram to Abraham. Gen. 17:—
   Birth of Isaac. Gen. 21:1-8; Heb. 11:11. Isaac as a sacrifice. Gen. 22: 1-44; Heb. 11:17, 19.
2. Joseph
   Son of Jacob. Gen. 37:1-4. Jealousy of brothers, Gen. 37:12-36. Potiphar's favorite. Gen. 39:1-6. Placed in prison where he interprets dreams of the butler and baker of the king. Gen. 39:7-23; Gen. 40: Interprets king's dreams. Gen. 41:1-36. Famine in the land, and his dealing with his brothers and parents. Gen. 42:—43:—45; Gen. 46:—50:13; Gen. 50:14-26.
3. Moses
   Moses' life preserved. Ex. 2:11-25.
   His loss of self-control. Ex. 3:11-22.
   God talks to Moses. Ex. 4:1-17.
   The burden of the Egyptians and the Passover. Ex. 4:18 through 5:13.
   Wilderness journey. View of the Promised Land and last acts of Moses. Deut. 1 to 30; Deut. 31 to 33.
   Death and Burial. Deut. 34.
4. David
   Childhood and anointed. I Sam. 16:1-13.
   Comforts Saul. I Sam. 16:14-23.
   Battle with Goliath. I Sam. 17:—
   Friendship of David. I Sam. 19 to 23.
   Made king of Judah. II Sam. 1 to 4.
   God's promise to David. II Sam. 6 to 10.
   His last days and charge to Solomon. I Kings 1 to 2:11.
5. Daniel
   Names changed. Dan. 1:1-7.
   Physical preparation. Dan. 1:8-21.
   Interprets king's dream. Dan. 2:14-23.
   Fiery furnace trial. Dan. 3.
   Interprets another dream which foretells destruction of the king. Dan. 5:—
   Daniel prays and is cast into the lions' den. Dan. 6:4-9.
   Daniel's prophecies. Dan. 7 to 12.
6. Esther
   Read the whole book, but emphasize her self-sacrifice. Esther 4:13-17.
8. Elijah—I Kings 18:17-40
   Courage, Faith in God, Zeal, Passion for right and truth.
9. Amos
   A man who would not be bribed. Amos 7:10-17.
10. Isaiah
   His consecration. Isaiah 6:—

JUNIOR C. E. TOPICS

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 So. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

The Junior Pledge—"I Promise Him"

May Schad, Normal Ill.

A promise is an engagement to do or not to do something.

Every promise made to God keeps us nearer to Him. Whenever we make a promise to God, He expects us to keep it, so therefore it is very important we remember every promise made.

For instance when you are playing with your playmates and they make you a promise, you expect them to keep their promise, and if they do not, how disappointed you are. Just so is God when we make a promise and then do not remain true to it.

If your parents would go away on a visit and leave you at home, telling you they would be back at a certain time and perhaps bring you something, you would have faith enough in your parents to trust them and to know they would be true to you. How much more we should be true and faithful to our Heavenly Father!

Let us look at some of the promises we find in God's Word that have been kept.

Ruth promised Naomi she would never leave her, but would go with her wherever she went.

The rainbow in the heavens was a promise to Noah that there would not be any more floods to destroy the earth. This promise has stood for many, many years.

God promised Moses He would be with him in leading the children of Israel. God's promises never fail, but are always sure. I Kings 8:56, "Blessed be the Lord that hath given rest unto His people Israel, according to all that He promised; there hath not failed one word of all His good promises, which he promised by the hand of Moses, his servant." This is true because "God is the same yesterday, today, and forever." Heb. 13:8. Just as He was with the children of Israel, He will be with us. He has promised us He would never leave us nor forsake us.

He has promised a home for those who will accept and follow Him. I John 2:25, "And this is the promise that He hath promised us, even eternal life." But to those who would rather follow their own desires, God has said they will be punished. God's promises never fail, so let us all strive for that heavenly home. Surely it is worth while to make a promise to God here on earth and keep it, for our reward will be an eternal home.

Let us read our Bible and pray every day that we may know the way of the Lord and His promises.

Topic—God's Wonder Book: John, Who Tells Us To Love

I John 2:10, 11

"When George and Alice went to visit some friends they found that nobody in the family said their prayers. They did not have family prayers or kneel to pray night and morning, as George and Alice had been taught to do. The first night they hardly knew what to do.

" 'They don't have prayers here,' said George, 'and do you suppose we should pray while we are here? Maybe God wouldn't hear us so far away from home.'

" 'I thought about that,' said Alice, 'but you know mother loves us just the same when we are far away as when we are close by, and God would love us the same here as at home. I don't understand it very well, but I guess love can go everywhere; and I believe God would hear us the same here as He would if we were at home.'

"George and Alice had the right thought about God's love. Love can go everywhere; and we can never get so far away that God's love will not follow us. No matter where we are He will always hear our prayers."—Selected.

Because God's love follows us everywhere, He asks that we love Him and those around us.

Plans for the Meeting

Ask the Juniors a week before the meeting to find verses in the gospel and epistles of John which speak of love. See how many they can find. Six of the Juniors might read and give short talks on the Daily Readings. Let these be used instead of questions today.

Daily Readings

Jesus' word about love. John 13:35.
The test of love. John 14:23, 24.
Love is obedient. I John 2:3, 5.
How God loves us. I John 3:1.
How we may show love. I John 3:16-18.
Love for others. I John 4:20.

Topic—God's Wonder Book: James, Who Tells Us What Religion Is

James 1:27

Jesus said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matt. 22:37, 39. It is easy to say that we love the Lord or that we love other people, but just saying isn't enough. The Bible says, "Even a child maketh himself known by his doings."

Our subject today tells us how we may show our love for Christ for religion is the outward act by which we prove our loyalty to the God we love. God spoke through many men who wrote the New Testament telling of Christ and how we should love and trust Him. Then He had James to write to say that we must prove our faith by doing right things. You know it does not make your mother happy if you just say you love her and then do not try to please her. Just so, if we really love Christ we shall want to show it by doing the things that please Him. Read the first and second chapters of James and see how we who love Christ should work. Notice that it isn't simply working, but working because we love Him.

Plans for the Meeting

Perhaps you could get a member of the Senior Society to visit your Juniors and give a talk on the subject. Make the meeting a very practical one, suggesting definite things that your own group can do to show their love for Christ.

Questions

1. What is religion?
2. How are we to prove our love for Christ?
3. How may we prove our love for others?
4. Why is it important that we do the things that will please Him?
5. What may we, as a society, do for Him?

Daily Readings

Slow to believe Jesus. John 7:5.
Old-time religion. Deut. 10:12.
Practical religion. Micah 6:8.
Religion is loving. Rom. 13:10.
Religion is pleasing God. John 8:29.
Religion is doing good. James 1:22-25.

Seven Minds

Mind your tongue! Don't let it speak cruel, unkind, or wicked words. Mind!

Mind your eyes! Don't permit them to look on wicked books, pictures, or other objects. Mind!

Mind your ears! Don't suffer them to listen to wicked speeches, songs, or words. Mind!

Mind your lips! Don't let tobacco foul them. Don't let strong drink pass them. Don't let the food of a glutton enter between them. Mind!

Mind your hands! Don't let them steal, or fight, or write any evil words. Mind!

Mind your feet! Don't let them walk in the steps of the wicked. Mind!

Mind your heart! Don't let the love of sin dwell in it, but ask Jesus to make it His throne. Mind! —Autor Unknown.

Elisha Helps the Needy

Lesson Text—II Kings 4:1-7

Golden Text—Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me. Matt. 25:40.

After the discouragement of Elijah and his vision of God on Mt. Horeb, he was commanded by the Lord to go back to Israel and to anoint Elisha in his stead as a prophet. Elisha is different from Elijah in that he is a more companionable man who loved society and visited the cities and the homes of people. Politically, Elisha was responsible for placing Jehu on the throne as king of Israel. After Ahab's death the two sons of Ahab who became kings of Israel in succession were very weak and allowed Baal worship to continue in the kingdom. But the influence of the prophet has been growing. Elisha belonged to a guild or school of the prophets who were bringing about a very effective reform in the destruction of Baalism. Elisha belonged to this school. He finally became its leader and the placing of Jehu on the throne of Israel meant that the prophetic party had won.

Our lesson today, however, deals with one of the stories that is told about Elisha which illustrates his kindly spirit. He came to a widow who had two sons and her husband was dead. Her creditors had demanded of her to pay her debts or they would take her two sons as a bond. So she appealed to Elisha. He said, "What do you have in the house"? She said, "Nothing but a pot of oil." This oil was used for the body after bathing. So Elisha told her to get a large number of empty vessels. This she did, borrowing them from her neighbors. Then Elisha told her to pour the oil from one pot to another, and as she poured each pot became full. Then Elisha said, "Go and sell the oil and pay your debts." The lesson, of course, is that of showing mercy to those that are in great need.

This lesson is very timely because of the great need there is in the world today. We, too, with Elisha can find many opportunities of building a little house of mercy along the path of life. There are those who are in physical want to whom we can give a friendly lift. It need not always be money, but may be advice as Elisha gave to the widow how she might help herself. Then there are those who are in mental distress. They are lonely, discouraged, and have their doubts. Many a one looks up and cries, "Help thou my unbelief"! Share with that life your own trust in God, your conviction of truth and your high aspirations. Then there are those who are in need because they are sinners. They need to be pointed to the lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. May this lesson inspire us to manifest that fruit of love which is mercy.

Amos Pleads for Justice

Lesson Text—Amos 5:1; 10:15; 21-24

Golden Text—Love worketh no ill to his neighbor therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. Rom. 13:10.

In this lesson we move on from the reigns of Jehu of Israel and Joash of Judah to the reign of Jeroboam II of Israel and Uzziah of Judah. We are in the eighth century before Christ. This period deals with four great prophets , Amos and Hosea of Israel and Micah and Isaiah of Judah. These men are the first prophets who wrote their messages.

Amos is the prophet of social righteousness. Although he was a native of Judah, he preached in the northern kingdom. Two conditions called him forth. One was the corruption of the northern kingdom and the other was the danger of Assyria. Amos was born at Tekoa, seven miles south of Bethlehem. He was a herdsman and a dresser of sycamore trees. He did not belong to the school of the prophets, but received his call while he was taking care of his sheep. One day he appeared at Bethel where there was a great religious festival. He began to cry out against the wickedness of the kingdom. He denounced the rich and ruling classes. The grafters who used public office for private gain. He fearlessly proclaimed that the first duty of rulers is to protect the rights of the poor and defenseless; that riches gained by exhibiting the poor are a disgrace and a menace. He said that God can not be bribed to excuse their evils because they offer great sacrifices. He teaches that democracy, brotherhood and kindness are the true principles of life. This is the first time such teachings were heard not only in Israel but in the world. He says, let justice roll down as waters and righteousness as a mighty stream. He takes the position that God is on the side of the downtrodden and the poor and that if their religion does not concern itself with all. After thirty centuries we still do not live the welfare of others it is not any religion at up to it and because we have not, we are in the midst of a great depression. May we study carefully the message of Amos as it applies to our present everyday life.

GREEN LANE RETREAT REPORTS, 1934

Retreat

The purpose of the Retreat is getting away from the material things of life for a few days and concentrating on religious life and fellowship.

The 1934 Retreat was held at the University Boys' Camp instead of at the Girls' Camp, due to the large number of registrations received. This Retreat was the largest we have ever had and was attended by 120 Retreaters and 6 leaders.

The central theme was "Living for Christ," and I am sure all the Retreaters have come with the right spirit in their hearts concerning this theme. The Retreat motto is "Serving the Lord with all humility of mind," Acts 20:19.

On Friday evening we had a social hour in which we had a "get-together" meeting, roll call, and refreshments. After the entertainment we had an address by Rev. Carl J. Landes on "Learning how to die."

Breakfast on Saturday morning was followed by the Quiet Hour. After this we had classes. Course A, which was required of all Retreaters, was taught by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander. Course B offered three classes, one of which is elective. They were: History of the New Testament, taught by Dr. E. E. S. Johnson; The Parables of Jesus, Rev. A. S. Rosenberger; Missions, Dr. Ella Bauman.

On Saturday afternoon, swimming, baseball, hiking, tennis, and a scavenger hunt furnished entertainment.

Saturday evening we had a twilight "sing" and a Biblical drama, "Simon, the Leper," presented by the Souderton young people. After the drama we had a communion service, in charge of Rev. D. J. Unruh.

Sunday morning we had classes and Sunday School. After dinner, the closing class in each course was followed by a farewell service.

The Retreat is now over and every one has had a pleasant time even though the weather was unfavorable at times. I am sure that every one has not only had a good time, but has made many pleasant acquaintances and, last but not least, has benefited spiritually. Every one will be able to go forth from the Retreat inspired to do good for his church and to let his life be an example for other young people of the community who were not blessed with the opportunity to come here.

CORRESPONDENCE

Meadow Church Notes, Meadows, Illinois. The following Sunday School officers were elected for the year: S. E. Baughman, superintendent; L. E. Dietz, assistant superintendent; Roland Gundy, secretary and treasurer; Russel Streid, assistant; Ruth Streid, pianist; Hazel Mae Augsperger, assistant; Emanuel Raber, chorister; J. H. Roszhart, assistant; Mrs. J. E. Rocke, superintendent of Primary Department; Mrs. Elmer Lahn, secretary and treasurer.

The following C. E. officers were elected: Wilber Moseman, president; Lydia Sommer, vice president; Pearl Marie Augsperger, secretary-treasurer; Charles Gitlinger, assistant; Herb. Roszhart, chorister; C. J. Moseman, assistant; Hazel Mae Augsperger, pianist; Tillie Gitlenger, assistant.

Rev. Claron Augsperger delivered the message on July 22 in the absence of our pastor, who filled the pulpit at the Lutheran church at Washington, Ill.

Rev. G. I. Gundy, Mrs. Gundy, G. C. Gundy and family motored to Cleveland, Ohio, for a short visit.

Miss Ferne Oyer and Herb Roszhart were united in marriage at the bride's home, June 27. Their many friends wish them much happiness.

The congregation of the Meadows church voted to give Rev. and Mrs. Gundy a two-week vacation.

The Hereford Mennonite Church, Bally, Penn., recently inaugurated what is hoped to become an annual affair — a Home Coming. The regular service was in charge of the pastor, Dr. Johnson. In the afternoon a Praise Service was conducted, the program consisting of special music and an address by Henry Borneman, a Philadelphia attorney. The history of the Herford church goes back to the early colonial days from 1718 to 1725, when the Mennonties settled in the community. The congregation continued until 1847, when unhappy circumstances led to a division. Until then their ministers had been: Jacob Bechtly, Daniel Longenecker, George Bechtel, John Bechtel, John Boyer, Abraham Bechtel, Henry Funk, and John E. Bechtel.

When the division came in 1846, by far the larger number left the old church, but until 1852 both groups continued to worship on alternate Sundays in the same old log meeting house. In 1851 and 1852 the new group erected a brick meeting house on an adjacent lot of ground. They then sold their share in the old log meeting house to the original but now smaller group for $75.00. The ministers in the old group from 1847 have been: John E. Bechtel, John Gehman, Andrew Mack, John B. Bechtel, John Ehst, Elias Kulp, and John Kriebel. The ministers from the new group since 1847 have been: Christian Clemmer, Ephraim Hunsberger, Samuel Clemmer, Abraham Gottshall, C. H. A. van der Smissen, 1885-1890; Anthony Shelly, 1890-1915; D. J. Brand, 1915-1921; Elmer Johnson, 1921-. The Sunday School was begun in 1870 and the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was begun January 15, 1887. The Women's Missionary Society, now the Ladies Aid Society, was organized in or before 1880.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. S. Shelly, who was visiting his old home in Pennsylvania, the young people conducted the services in the Wadsworth, Ohio, church. Another interesting service in which the young people had part was the first of a series of evening services, held at River Styx amid the hills and trees in the quiet outdoors. The pastor preached at this meeting. It is expected that these services will be helpful and welcomed by the people of the community.

The Alumni and friends of Bluffton living in eastern Pennsylvania will give a Bluffton Program in Bethany church, Quakertown, July 29, at 2:30. The purpose of this meeting is to get and hold the many friends of the college in closer relations. Music and inspirational addresses will form a larger portion of the program.

The 46th Annual Session of the Middle District Conference of the General Conference will be held in the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23-26, 1934. State Route 106 passes through Pandora and intersects various routes at Findlay in the east and Columbus Grove to the west. A general invitation is extended to delegates and visitors to attend this session of the Middle District Conference. Further information may be obtained by writing to the pastor of entertaining church, Rev. Paul Whitmer, Pandora, Ohio.

The members of the Eden church, Schwenksville, Pa., and their pastor, Rev. Freeman Schwartz, are very happy because of the success that attended their Family Sunday Meeting. The large attendance and the great interest that marked the gathering indicated the wisdom of calling it. Among the groups of families represented, Harrison Updengrove brought 29 members and a visitor, Alvine Aldorfer 29 members and a visitor, and Samuel Reiff 23 members.

Rev. Arthur Rosenberger, pastor of the West Swamp, Pa., church has accepted a call to become associate to President Mosiman of Bluffton College. He expects to enter upon his duties with the opening of the school year.

The Gottshall family of eastern Pennsylvania, one of the oldest families in the Mennonite church in America, being descended from Rev. Jacob Gottshall, who arrived in Pennsylvania in 1702, will hold its annual reunion on August 11 at Lakeside Park, Royer's Ford, Pa. A feature of the gathering will be the reading of a message from Emma Gottshall, also a descendant of Jacob Gottschall, who is the last survivor of the family in Germany and is making her home in Crefeld. The message will be brought by Rev. N. B. Grubb, who also will relate some of his experiences while visiting Crefeld years ago.

Rev. and Mrs. Alfred Habegger, of our mission among the Cheyennes in Busby, Montana, have been making an extended visit to their home town and church in Berne, Ind., giving missionary addresses in the meanwhile. When they returned they took with them their son, Marden, who had been attending school in Berne for the last two years.

The Minutes of the last General Conference held in Bluffton, Ohio, last fall, have been printed and distributed. The contents of this volume bring to the reader valuable information concerning the work and interests of the General Conference. Members of the conference churches should possess copies and familiarize themselves with the work of the church of which they are a part. Copies may be secured from the officers of the local congregations.

The Missionary Board of the (Old) Mennonite church has recently opened a station in Africa, the address being Musoma P. O. Shirati Station Tanganyika, East Africa. The missionaries located on this station are Rev. and Mrs. Elim Stauffer and Rev. and Mrs. John H. Mosemann. In their search for a field they were accompanied by Orie O. Miller of Akron, Pa., who was in the party as representative of the Conference. He will shortly return to America. This Board now has missions in Asia, South America, and Africa.

Willis Rich, a former instructor in the Bentley, Kans., High School, has accepted a position in Bethel College, as Director of the Bureau of Public Relations. He will visit Mennonite churches in the district for the purpose of soliciting students and also endeavor to discover ways whereby Bethel College may be of greater service to its constituency.

MARRIAGE

Jantz-Krehbiel. — Arthur Krehbiel of Lind, Washington, was married to Jennie Jantz of Odessa, Washington, in the home of their pastor, Rev. M. J. Galle, Sunday, July 8.

DEATHS

Helena Schmidt Frey, died June 30, 1934. Helena Schmidt, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Schmidt, was born at Mariawohl, South Russia, on September 21, 1870. When she was four years of age, the family came to America, settling in Marion County, Kansas. At the age of 19 she was baptized by Rev. Jacob Buller and became a member of the Alexanderwohl church. On January 9, 1892, she was united in marriage to Cornelius Frey. To this union eight children were born, three preceding her in death.

The family moved to Coy, Okla. in 1908. residing there eight years. In the fall of 1916 they returned to Newton where they have resided since that time. She became a member of the Bethel College Church upon the return to Newton, of which she was a faithful member and which she loved to attend until failing health prevented her from doing so.

She was a quiet and home-loving wife and mother, Hers was a life of unselfish devotion to her family, and one of her greatest enjoyments was to be with her grandchildren.

She reached the age of 63 years, 9 months, and 9 days, having been bedfast seven months and eight days. All her illness was endured with great patience, never complaining, and putting her trust in her Lord whom she had so faithfully served.

Those mourning her departure are her husband, three sons, two daughters, two daughters-in-law, one son-in-law, four grandchildren, and one sister and two brothers, besides a host of friends and relatives.

Kinsinger. — Following an illness of twelve years, Fannie Kinsinger entered into the rest that remaineth to the people of God, on May 31, 1934, at her home in Collinsville, Ohio. Funeral services held at Hamilton, burial at Collinsville, June 2, 1934. Rev. J. E. Amstutz conducted the services, choosing for his text Rev. 21:25 and 22:5.

Miss Kinsinger was born two miles north of Collinsville, on February 23, 1843, and lived in this vicinity all her life. She was the daughter of Joseph and Magdalena Augspurger Kinsinger, and was one of a family of nine — eight of whom preceded her into the better land.

Reared in a Christian home, she was carefully trained in Christian service and very early in life she accepted Christ as her Savior, and she walked with Him through life. She publicly confessed Him by uniting with the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio, where she remained a member to the end.

The Bible was a familiar book to her and she treasured many passages in her memory; as also many of the grand old church hymns to her dying day.

Her work has been accomplished and she rests from her labors and she has met her Master face to face, and all the loved ones who have gone before.

CORRESPONDENCE

East White Oak Church, near Carlock, Ill. Baptismal services were held Sunday morning, July 1. There were four who were willing to acknowledge Christ as their Savior and seal this covenant by water baptism.

A large group of our consecrated young people have organized a gospel team. This team held its first service July 12, at Panola, Illinois. Our service was composed of a song service, testimony meeting, short message, and vocal numbers. We hope to hold other services whenever God will open the way.

The Ladies Aid met at the church July 11. The afternoon was spent in sewing for the hospital.

Officers for the following organizations of our church have been elected: Sunday School, church, adult, intermediate, and Junior Christian Endeavor, Young People's Bible class, Ladies Aid, Young Women's Missionary class.

This is the way to cultivate courage: First, by standing firm on some conscientious principle, some law of duty. Next, by being faithful to truth and right on small occasions and common events. Third, by trusting in God for help and power.—Jas. F. Clark.

"The present circumstance, which presses so hard against you (if surrendered to Christ) is the best shaped tool in the Master's hand to chisel you for eternity. TRUST HIM THEN. Do not push away the instrument lest you lose also its work."—B. T. Bradley.

THE SCATTERED FEW

In following the reports of several District Conferences it will be noted that in these districts there are small groups of Mennonites who are being served with pastoral care by the conferences. These groups are generally small and the financial support necessary for carrying on the work must naturally come from the treasuries of these conferences. Times are hard and all kinds of religious and benevolent work are suffering under a strain that has almost reached the breaking point. In spite of this, however, we note that this phase of the work has not been neglected or abandoned. One hears a great deal in our day of what is termed a waste of money in keeping up small churches and groups who hold to a separate denomination when the country is full of churches that might serve these small groups just as acceptably. We disagree with this position. The matter of the existence of our communion depends upon maintaining a vital fellowship with those of our people who are scattered and can only be gathered into small groups. From some such groups some of our strongest churches have developed. It certainly is not fair to those loyal souls who, though separated from the more numerous communities of our people, still prefer to remain definitely associated with those with whom they share allegiance to the doctrines for which we stand, if they are left to themselves and are allowed to lose interest in the Mennonite church altogether. It is a serious matter to permit the impression to get abroad that a church is a church and it matters little to which one we belong. Such an attitude is a surrender of all that our fathers deemed precious enough for which to endure great hardships. The sincerity of any church comes into question when that church does not exercise itself in the direction of supporting and sustaining in the faith those who, while few and scattered, are still loyal to the principles for which the church stands. There was a time when Mennonites generally were widely scattered in small groups. It was from such groups that there developed the movements that built up our conferences to the positions they now occupy. The untiring efforts of the ministers who served these groups should be an inspiration to those of this day and, if anything, should move us to do as they did and shepherd those who, though not large in numbers, are still of our flock. —G.

WHAT WILL COME OF IT?

What will come out of Austria? Who can tell? Twenty years ago when a prince and his consort were murdered the world was shocked, but no one could foresee that from it would come a war that practically involved all the great nations of the earth, including our own. Today the world is still paying bitterly for its folly, while for months the munition makers have been smacking their lips at the prospect of another outbreak that has been preparing for in the shape of suspicions, armaments, and trade rivalries, and that when there is no trade.

These same men, who are bloated with the wealth coming to them through the blood of millions of slain youths, have been quietly and effectively cultivating a spirit of war and preparation for war from which they hope to add to their already inordinate accumulations of wealth. The last war was fought with the mistaken idea that those doing the fighting were in a "War to end war" and to "Make the world safe for democracy." Now we have nothing left but dictatorships and the prospect of another conflict that will be more horrible than the last. Has the world lost its senses? Are the citizens of this country and other countries so blind and so disregardful of their dear ones that they do not see that another war will destroy our civilization, debase our religion and turn loose every savagery that hell can conceive? At this time there still remains some opportunity for nations and their leaders to avoid conflict and come to understandings peacefully. Let us hope that they will. —G.

THE WELCOME LETTER

Said the postman who delivered our mail one stormy day: "Well, everybody looks for me and is glad to see me." Of course, every one is ready for news and happy when it happens to be good news. Who of us would care to be so situated that mails could not reach us? True, we whose memories go back to the times in obscure rural settlements when mails only arrived twice a week, may say that we lived anyway and that we suffered little if any physical discomforts because of the scarcety of information from the outside world. Yet, none of us would want to change back to that time. Our modern life is so complex that to be behind the times for only a day or two would be a hardship. There lies before the writer a letter written from a Mennonite community in Switzerland to a family of Swiss extraction living in Schleswig-Holstein in 1769 and brought to America by members of the family of a later generation. One may imagine the sensation in those days, of a country family receiving a letter from relatives several times removed, living in a distant country. It is not surprising that the letter was carefully preserved and became a treasured heirloom in that family. Today we sometimes wonder whether a letter, which we suspect contains only advertising matter, is worth the trouble of opening at all. We have become used to receiving letters and no more get a thrill in getting them. Yet there are people, thousands of them, to whom a single letter would be a godsend, brightening their lives, if it came from someone interested in them or in whom they are interested. Think, if you please, of the cheer a letter might bring to some shut-in whom you happen to know. How about that one who is struggling hard with some trying condition that makes his life lonesome and dreary? If the reader were in that one's place would he not feel that a ray of sunshine had entered his life after all? Why not, then, just write a few such letters? Here is a ministry of blessing into which any one may enter. Try it for yourself and see whether it will not give you joy. —G.

WHAT SHOULD MY ATTITUDE AS A CHRISTIAN BE TOWARD WAR?

Arthur R. Franz, Schrag, Washington

For various reasons I shall take the liberty to treat this topic in a general way although not forgetting the question, "What Should My Attitude As A Christian Be Toward War." We might well ask ourselves two questions; first, What does the spirit of Christ say should be our attitude toward war? and second, What does the spirit of war say that it should be? Asking ourselves the first question, thoughts as the following are brought to mind: "Thou shalt not kill," "As much as lieth in you live peaceably with all men," "Love your enemies, do not return evil for evil, but return good for evil, do good to them that despitefully use you and persecute you, bless and curse not." Asking ourselves the second question, the following, the spirit of it appears in the following thoughts: You shall kill whenever possible, by weapon, by starvation, by disease; war is noble, it makes heroes, therefore take part in it; hate your enemies; return evil for evil and as manyfold as possible; aid hatred by lies, by false propaganda; nothing is too cheap or low as long as it in some way harms the enemy. Seeing the contrast, there is no doubt as to what the attitude of a Christian should be. But is that all that the Christian attitude should amount to, just a mere hatred of war's principle?

Hating war means that we will oppose it as zealously as we are convinced that it is against the spirit of Christ. Using that as a measure for our sincerity, we might well conclude that we are not Christian. I know that there are many of us here that are conscientiously convinced that it is wrong to take life. But is that sufficient? Am I not guilty of the evils of war if I do not raise a protesting voice against it? I am guilty of killing,, of hating, of destroying, of torturing, as well as the man who goes to the fighting front and shoots another man or stabs him with his bayonet. I am even more guilty than he, because he is doing it in the belief that he is doing it for the good of mankind. I am convinced that it is utterly wrong, that it is sin, and yet do nothing about it.

This applies even more directly to the Mennonites because to some extent their principle of non-resistance has become traditional. It is somewhat easier to escape the pressure of the military machine because our principles are recognized and because of the moral support that a wonderful heritage gives to us in times of distress. We are guilty, too, of the evils of war when we remain civilians, because we are helping in one way or another to carry on the war; we are raising food, manufacturing directly or indirectly materials that are necessary to carry on war;; we buy bonds that help to buy the materials necessary to carry on the destruction of property, lives, and hopes.

If I am not actively opposed to war and gain exemption from service when war comes, I am a coward. I am hiding behind a creed and it is no wonder that the man who is enveloped by the spirit of war is so bitter toward me. We are thrilled by the stories of Mennonite Martyrs, but would I undergo what they did? If I fight now I may not have to. If I don't fight now, a more trying fight may wait for me when the military machine tries to claim me.

Is it necessary that we fight war now? You will answer that for yourselves when I answer another question. Is there any prospective chance of war? There is a growing feeling that we are approaching war, not only do ministers preach it, but economic and social conditions in the world predict it. Revolutionary movements in the world are a forerunner. The world has more men under arms than previous to 1914 and that has been considered a serious menace toward peace. The militaristic attitude in our own country, as shown by an increasing army, reserves, compulsory training in our colleges (which is growing more difficult to escape as proven by eight students ot Ohio State College and two students at University of California at Los Angeles), and the 300,000 C. C. C. boys. The bringing together of the most destructive naval force by President Roosevelt ever assembled, ninety-six fighting ships. Along the Atlantic seaboard it has made the people war conscious, it will convince them to vote for taxes to build the greater navy the President is thinking about. Now this grim assemblage is steaming to the Pacific to make us, here, war conscious. Perhaps to show our mailed fist to Japan, who will respond by building a fleet designed to protect itself from such a menace. The three power pact is about to terminate, none of the nations show any desire to renew it. The disarmament conference at Geneva accomplishes nothing and in the meantime armaments are growing. The munition makers are eager to reap a profit. As in the past, they will loan money to the enemy with which to buy ammunition from their factories; they know no hatred, no favoritism, they know only greed for wealth and are unscrupulous in obtaining it.

It seems that the attitude of a Christian should be to oppose all this. He must make the world peace-minded instead of war-minded. The world must be shown the value of peace, the error of war, the suffering that war causes, the crime that war breeds, and the economic distress that it brings. The Christian must be heard now, he must say now, "I will not fight even if war does come" and say it to ears that are in influential positions.

There are many others who are thinking seriously about the question. The church bodies of five large denominations have gone on record as being opposed to compulsory military training. Some of them in official statements have assured conscientiousness that they would be assured moral support of the churches with which they were identified. President Oxman of DePauw University says in part, "I am opposed to compulsory military training also on patriotic grounds. The time has come to identify patriotism with those activities that lead toward the enrichment of life of all people, to identify it with those measures that seek to create international understanding, to identify it with those endeavors that seek to establish some organization from which world law and order may come, to identify it with those constructive movements that seek to abolish war from the face of the earth." It is interesting to note that at one time military training was compulsory at this school, then it became elective, and now the board of directors asked the army to withdraw altogether. Students in various colleges, as I stated before, also some in other nations, are objecting to military training.

In England a War Registers League kept the country out of war at least once since the World War by proposing to call a general strike of all workers of hand and brain. Our country has a similar organization to withtake some proposition in mind when there is a certainty that our country contemplates a declaration of war. I saw a list of twenty-three youth and peace organizations in America. Our own church was not listed. Are we doing nothing? The material I have read in preparation for this topic has been obtained largely from a paper of another denomination and from other materials through the courtesy of a student at college.

What is my attitude toward war? and my church's attitude? Is it passive objection or active objection? Let me again state the thoughts that I tried to emphasize.

1. That the spirit of Christ does not tolerate war.
2. That, if I do nothing about it now, I shall be as guilty in the next war as the soldier, perhaps even more so.
3. That Mennonites have an additional charge to keep.
4. The prospect of war demands action now.
5. That there are many who are actively waging war against militarism.
6. That our church is not taking a very active part in opposing war.

In closing let me paint a picture to you that is more than a dream. War seems close at hand, needs only a trifle to start it as did the world war. I am a young man, physically fit; there are quite a few others like me here. The war machine will claim us. With our heritage we may resist it successfully, but it will not be easy. If we do resist we shall still be indirectly responsible for the suffering caused by the war as shall all of us. If the war spirit unmakes me I shall go out to do that which is very un-Christian, to cause suffering of body and mind. I will kill husbands, fathers, brothers, friends of people who love life and home as much as you do. I may come back, others will not, with my conscience soiled. Will I be hailed as a hero? I hope not. War shall never come. Now again, What should my attitude as a Christian be toward war? What is my attitude? Am I living as though my attitude is a zealous conviction?

CHRIST OUR RESURRECTION

A Funeral Sermon

Frank R. Mitchell, Comins, Michigan

Scripture reading John 11:1-26

Text, John 11:25-26

Once more we are brought face to face with an experience that inevitably comes into the life of every one of us. We are sobered and warned as we see again how frail is the slender thread that keeps us here. We plan our life in the morning, and before evening all is changed.

What is the significance of our life? Is life real and worth while? And, if so, why does disease and accident and death walk in on us as it does? Why must man suffer? Why should sin be allowed to go on? Why must our hopes be dashed to the ground? That little, but mighty word WHY rises from the heart of man to the throne of God. Even Jesus cried "WHY hast Thou forsaken me?" when He was facing death.

Is it according to the will of God that man should go through these experiences? We know by the Scriptures that it is. Disease and death do exist by the will of God, however, we must not surrender to them and let them have their way, but must resist them to the utmost and by so doing discover and fulfill His higher will.

God thus has two wills, a lower and a higher. He must, of necessity, touch us to the quick by allowing these things to come into our lives. We must be brought to the realities of life and this is the only way. What are the realities of life? Sickness, suffering, accident, and physical death? No, these are only means to an end. Love and goodness, truth and beauty — these are among the everlasting things. The living, life-giving Jesus is a reality around which life may be centered. Hear ye Him in the words of the text that we have chosen for this afternoon.

"Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

We remember the story in connection with these words. Jesus had been preaching in Galilee when the message came that His good friend, Lazarus, who lived in Bethany of Judea, was sick. Instead of going to him immediately, Jesus tarried, and came to the home after He knew that Lazarus had died. Then He came and wept with the bereaved sisters who gently reproved Him for not coming in time to prevent the tragedy. Jesus then said, "Thy brother shall rise again," and Martha responded, "I know he shall rise again in the resurrection of the last day." It was here that Jesus gave utterance to the eternal truth that, as the Son of God, He was not subject to the earthly limitations of time and space.

Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

There are three outstanding factors in these words for us this afternoon: Jesus the resurrection, Jesus the life, and the great distinction He makes between believing and not believing. And running through the text are the overtones of the eternal present in connection with Himself. I AM. He does not merely say that He has this power to use at some future date, but, I am this power, Martha. You may see it today! I am the resurrection and the life; present tense, today.

I. I Am the Resurrection

The resurrection is a word that is used in connection with the body. We are in earnest about the resurrection in that every day our bodies are being restored and renewed. There is a continual battle going on in them with death. This is truly a miraculous contest which no man can fully explain.

Jesus was always very much concerned with the physical life of men. A large part of the record in the Scriptures about His life has to do with His ministrations to the physical needs of men. He touched the sightless eyes, He restored withered arms and limbs, He renewed and cleansed the bodies of lepers, the mentally diseased received sound minds. God made man's body to be the most wonderful of all the physical organisms on earth. Jesus was always very tender in His dealings with the physical bodies of men. He was concerned with their hungers. He fed their bodies with the bread of life. He saw that His disciples had the rest that their bodies needed. He even went so far as to bring back life into bodies that had been laid aside in death, that He might show that He was indeed the master over the physical life of mankind. I am the resurection, He says. You may trust me to make adequate provision in that mysterious world beyond, that the spirit of man shall be properly clothed. Paul expresses this faith in 2 Corinthians 5:1, when he says: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, an house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "I am the resurrection" tells us then of the importance He places on the physical bodies God has given to man.

II. I Am the Life

But He did not stop here. He knew that to take care of men's bodies was not all of life. I am the resurrection, but I am more than that, I am the life. He was always careful to place the emphasis where it belonged. He did not make life dependent upon the body. To Him the body was very important, but not essential. The physical body is the house that serves the man for a little while. Paul says there is more than one kind of body. There are bodies terrestrial, earthly, and there are bodies celestial, heavenly. We have bodies that are suited to this world at present. In the world beyond death, a body suited to that kind of life will be provided. I am the resurrection and I am also the life. I am the Lord of the body and I am also the Lord of the life in that body. Our eyes need to be led away from the physical, material, and transitory things of this life. Our life is so fleshy that even our religion becomes fleshlike. He points away to the eternal verities of the Spirit. "God is a Spirit," He says, they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth. I am the resurrection and I am the life.

III. Our Faith

The third element in Jesus' words is faith on our part. "Believest thou this?" Many of the saints of the church have made and are making the very same mistake He is correcting in Martha. Bereaved ones are encouraged merely to wait and hope. "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day," must be their present consolation. This is commendable faith and good as far as it goes. But it does not go quite far enough to be Christian. A passive attitude toward this great experience may be deadly. Our privilege is a triumphant active and present faith in a living Christ today.

"I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this?"

He presses the point. Believest thou this? It is still clearer translated by Goodspeed into our own language.

"I myself am Resurrection and Life. He who believes in me will live on, even if he dies, and no one who is alive and believes in me will ever die. Do you believe that?"

Three times in the text Jesus lays the emphasis upon our part of the transaction: namely our faith. He is not speaking of intellectual assent to a theoretical, or worn-out dogma, but of an intimate personal experience with Him as an ever-present, all-powerful Lord. The strong point of unbelief is a misplaced emphasis. We relegate the power and spirit of Jesus either to the past, or to the future. We find it easy to assent that Jesus did many wonderful things when He was there in the flesh. He raised the dead. That He will do many mighty things in the future, we accept without difficulty. We confidently say with John: When He shall appear we shall be like Him for we shall see Him as He is. Distance lends enchantment both ways. But what is our relation to Him as living Lord today? What is our experience of His power for the present? There is the rub. What does He do for us today? We recount His mercies. He forgives our sins. He gives us peace. He keeps us from the evil. He works through His church. But our faith in Him is so poor and weak. Has He no word of power for His bereaved ones? Is there no way that the loved ones whom we have lost from our sight for a while should be found by our faith?

We believe He has provided a way, and that this way is found in our text. There is no death to those who love Him. They go to be with Him. We experience His presence in our lives. They are with Him, He is with us. We may have fellowship with Him, and with them through Him. The author of the book of Hebrews tells us of the great cloud of witnesses who compass us about. They hover over us, watching over us, praying for us. They are still ours because they have never ceased to be His.

You who are bereaved feel lonely today, and sorrowful because it has been impossible for you to adjust yourself so soon to the new relationship. You may always feel lonely and separated, but you need not. There have been many who have experienced the joys of a renewed, yes, a new and deeper relationship with their loved one through our Lord Jesus Christ.

He who proclaimed Himself the resurrection and the life still has His way of restoring to us our loved ones. He still gently asks the Martha's "Why wait?" when they say: I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day. I am the resurrection and the life, He replies. Abide in me and all are yours.

You children are now going into a new relationship with your mother. Up until now you could speak with her and see her often, but there were times when you were handicapped. When she was unwell there was little that you could do for her. Again and again you would be temporarily separated from her. The relation that you have had up till the present has been only partly satisfactory, bound by the physical barriers that so often wall us up from one another. A perfect relationship has been left by a loving Father for another world. From now on there can be a more perfect relation than before. She at least is free from the distressing barriers that separate us so painfully here.

This new relationship may begin now. She can follow each one of you all the time in a way that was impossible before. You may fellowship and commune with her, whom we believe to be with her Lord. She watches over you and guides you. She prays for you as she did before. Her life may be a profound influence over you. You need never be very far away from her. The nearer you come to God the nearer you are to her. When you sin you push her and her Savior away from you and there is a great gulf fixed between you. The choice lies with you as to how much you will have her with you.

"And he said unto her, I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this? John 11: 25, 26.

Faith is manifested in coming to Jesus, praying to Jesus, holding on to Jesus, and expecting much from Jesus. It overcomes obstacles, obtains all it asks, pleases Christ, wins His commendation. What more could any man desire?

HOME MISSION NOTES

Encouraging as well as discouraging reports are sent in from the North. The scattered condition of the people, many of which are without means, having earthly cares, human weaknesses and such matters that weaken brotherly love and hinder attendance on divine services, together with the alurements of the world which endeavor to lure the young people from the right path, and troublesome heresies, all these make the work harder. Yet the brethren are faithful in their work and there are always those that are loyal and true. They report substantial increase in many congregations. Each one gives expression of his gratitude for the support which they receive from our Board, without which this work would be impossible.

Girls' Home, Winnipeg

Brother J. H. Enns, Spiritual Adviser of the Home, writes as follows: "My Bible class was dismissed about the middle of April. The closing exercises were held on April 24 and were largely attended. This is a good opportunity to declare the wonderful works of God through youthful witnesses. During the period of instruction I greatly rejoiced over many of the pupils when I discovered a childlike faith, and good understanding of the Truth, and a happy heart. In the public presentations many a young heart was touched, and I expect more pupils will enroll for next winter. We meet every Thursday evening in the Girls' Home; the girls, their superintendents, Helena and Martha Epp, and myself. If any of our ministers are in the city, we are glad if they come and address us.

On May 4, both the Girls' Homes in Winnipeg, ours and the one under the supervision of the Mennonite Brethren, had a joint meeting. The purpose was to get the girls who are in the same position to know each other better. A program was rendered in which both Homes were represented. Many of the girls were highly delighted. It is better and more advantageous that the Homes take a friendly attitude toward each other than that those belonging to different denominations should be antagonistic one toward the other.

This get-together meeting was also held at this time because many of the girls were going home for the summer, and for many it was a farewell service. Many of our girls are somewhere on a vacation during the summer months. We can only give them our word of admonition and pray for them, and will rejoice when in the fall the large family of girls will return in good health and spirts."

Girls' Home and Church Extension Work in Saskatoon

During the second quarter of this year the work along the whole line was carried forward. By the grace of God we were able to devote ourselves entirely to the care of the congregation and the young people. To have control of the spiritual care of the youth and of the church under the protection of the government, is a great privilege. We thank the Lord for it. We appreciate it all the more when we compare the sad conditions in Russia with those of our own in our new home.

We have services at two places every Sunday. The faithful attendance has been a great encouragement and gave new impetus to greater devotion to the work. The Sunday School was held successfully at both places. A catechetical class of sixteen met at my house every Tuesday. On Pentecost thirteen of them were baptized and received into the church by Elder David Toews. May the Lord give us power and wisdom to establish them in the faith and lead them on to higher ground. Two weeks after Pentecost Bro. Toews also served with the holy communion, when 134 participated.

An occasion worthy of being noted was the song service on May 10, in which four choirs took part. We hope in this way to increase the present interest in singing and improve the music in the congregation.

The number of girls in the Home has been reduced by about fifteen. Some went home for the season and others never to return. Quite a few went with their employers on their vacation, which is a real recreation for the girls. When one is permitted to observe the girls at short range it is evident that the constant strain of their work is a drain on their vitality and a strain on their nerves. The girls were preserved from prolonged bodily illness, but some returned to their home with a shattered nervous system. We hope they will soon recuperate in the fresh country air.

In our hospitals we had several people that were seriously ill and a few that passed out.

—J. J. Thiessen.

The Home Mission Treasury

We need funds very badly. The treasury is not only emptied every month, but it never reaches to give our workers a decent living. They run into debt, especially those living in cities. Some of our faithful workers in Canada are in great need of help. If we say that we could pay only one third of their salary for June that does not say much, for we must consider the amount they receive when paid in full after repeated cuts. A man with a family of six can not live on a dollar a day in a city and buy everything. We are grateful for what the congregations and mission friends have sent us in these hard times, but the Board is wondering sometimes why faith missions with no denomination behind them are going right ahead and our people can not make up a cent a week per member, which is all the Home Mission Board ask at present.—II Cor. 8:1-15.

W. S. Gottshall,
Secretary Home Mission Board.

MISSION ITEMS

Bro. R. Petter wrote on July 7th: "We have finished the multigraph print of the New Testament. Praise God for His gracious help!"

This speedy consummation of the work during the last few months was largely due to the help of Miss Leona Thierstein of Whitewater, Kansas, who offered her services as typist gratis. For this we wish to express our hearty thanks.

A fuller report of the finished translation we expect to bring in the next Mission Number next fall. We only wish to add here that no more funds are needed for this printing, because the American Bible Society has offered to pay a large part of the cost of the actual printing.

Bro. H. J. Kliewer writes: "We plan to have a camp meeting at Thomas from August 21st to August 23rd. I think it would be well if a notice of this and a request for prayer would appear in some of our church papers."

We are glad to comply with this suggestion herewith. "The effectual fervent prayer of the righteous availeth much." — Yes, but who of us is righteous? One test is Matt. 5:6, "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." Such a hunger proves one's love of the light, rather than the darkness, and justifies ones claim on I John 1:7, "If we walk in the light as he is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." That makes real righteous men who can claim the promise about effectual prayer.

Bro. and Sister C. L. Pannabecker (our medical doctor in China), are since July 7th on their way home. May they land safely, is our prayer. Their relatives have paid for the trip. Special thanks to them!

Bro. and Sister P. A. Penner, Champa, India, intend to celebrate their silver wedding on August 24th, 1934. We wish them a special blessing from the Lord for the occasion.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

CYCLONE AND HEAVY DOWNPOUR AT JANJGIR, INDIA

India has three seasons: the cool, hot, and rainy. The last two have extremes, because the former is exceedingly dry, but with a frequent temperature of 115 and more, then again the latter where in our territory, threatens flood, moist houses, mouldy clothes, every creature being on the verge to become webb-footed.

These seasons, of course, are annually by far not the same. This year for eight months insufficient rain fell to lay the dust properly. During the last weeks everybody watched the government reports to find out about the movement of the monsoon from the Arabean

Sea. The very first mention of its approach thrilled the hearts anticipating a relief from this terrible heat and discomfort. The hot season this year proved exceptionally trying, however, for some time we were glad for the comparatively cool nights.

On June 15th, the heavens were overcast with light clouds, in the afternoon at four o'clock the rain began to fall, the wind set in, changed rapidly to all directions, its velocity increased seriously. Suddenly it changed to the northeast, a cyclone was formed, and in a twinkling of an eye the north side roof of the east wing of the Miss A. C. Funk Memorial Girls' School had been picked up, throwing the corrugated iron sheets over a large area as if they were light paper sheets, the tiles that rested upon them largely broken, strewn about at some places in piles. The devastation presented a distressing picture before us. Happily the cyclone right there had lifted up, otherwise the girls' boarding, our mission bungalow, the garage, carpenter shop, pigeon and chicken houses, and cattle shed would possibly have been reduced to a heap of debris; these all were standing in its path traveled. How gratefully our hearts lifted up to the Almighty for His guidance of this devastative element!

Immediately after the rain subsided the people received word of this happening and came running together. One brother, Rev. Asna — who always at such occasions has something original and practical, — remarked: "This school is for everybody, from each home one or more should volunteer to clear the wreckage away." The next morning a large number of the church applied their assistance gratis. At noon most of the clearing had been achieved. At two o'clock the first useable iron sheets commenced to cover the exposed rooms. This noble service certainly helped to hasten the repairs and solve the financial burden. When money is painfully scarce in the mission one appreciates such a brotherly evidence infinitely more.

On this eventful day it rained a trifle more than a half inch. Two days later quite innocent looking clouds opened and poured in less than two hours almost four and one-half inches of water, only the next day to be followed by another, two and three quarter inches precipitation. Now the farmers looked happily forward to till their soil. However, on the second day, just while Miss Nickel conducted the official opening of the school in the main auditorium, comparatively non-threatening clouds opened, adding inside of two hours nearly five inches. This caused the gently sloping mission compound to form a river bed conveying a huge volume of water. The rice fields around us had become lakes. These four heavy downpours had brought 12.36 inches of water. Never in the history of our mission has this been the case so early in the season. The rain was local, only seven miles away, in Champa, they received hardly sufficient rain to operate their field work.

The annual rainfall in this place, Janjgir, amounts to about 50 inches. The monsoon this year has already caused serious damage in northeast India. Cherripunji at an elevation of 4,538 feet, registers the heaviest rainfall in the world, records since January 1st up to date, June 26th, 270 inches, 104 above normal. Out of this huge amount in one single day came down 18 inches, still another day 36 inches. One can hardly conceive such a precipitation inside of that limited time.

Yours for service,
P. W. Penner.
Janjgir, C. P., India, June 26, 1934.

GREEN LANE RETREAT REPORTS, 1934

Retreat Statistics

Enrollment: 120 Retreaters, 6 leaders. This was the seventh Retreat. Four persons have attended all of the Retreats; ten have been there six years; three, five years; ten, four years; eighteen, three years; twenty-five, two years; while forty-seven were there for the first time.

Nineteen churches of the Eastern District Conference were represented, Richfield and Roaring Springs having young people present for the first time.

Four states appeared on the registrar's roll: Pennsylvania, Indiana, Massachusetts, and Florida.

Quiet Hour

One of the most inspirational periods of the Retreat is the Quiet Hour. This period of worship is immediately after breakfast and each group is under the direction of a capable leader. I shall tell of the group under the instruction of Miss Eleanor Temple. We opened our Saturday morning period of devotion with prayer by our leader and followed with singing a chorus. The scripture was taken from I Cor. 16:19, 20 and Romans 12:1. Miss Temple urged the young people to give their bodies as a living sacrifice. Our bodies are God's and we are bought with a price, therefore, we should give to God what rightfully belongs to Him. After the short address by our instructor, we had a season of voluntary prayer with many of the group taking part. We ended this period by singing a chorus.

The Sunday morning Quiet Hour was similar to the one held the previous day. The scripture was read from Acts 1:6-8. Miss Temple spoke briefly concerning these verses. She emphasized the fact that we should not worry about the future as it is in God's power. In the eighth verse, Jesus said, "Ye shall be my witnesses." It is our duty as Christians to witness for Christ, but often we do not take the opportunities we are given.

All of the periods at the Retreat were very helpful, but this period was precious when one could gather with a small group and worship God in the early, quiet hours of the morning.

Miriam Snyder, Roaring Springs.

Parables of Jesus

Class taught by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger

A parable is an earthly story with a heavenly meaning. These stories are true to life and are made so by the use of everyday things such as yeast, bread, sheep, wheat, coins, and many others. The parable chapters of the Bible are Mat. 13 and 25, Mark 4, and Luke 15.

Jesus used parables for three reasons; because people liked good stories; to hide the truth from those who did not wish to understand, as well as to make the truth clearer to those who were seeking it. To interpret the parables one must seek for the central truth and then not insist too strongly to find a meaning for every detail of the story.

The parables of Luke 15 were given because Jesus wished to justify Himself in the work which He was doing. Why did Jesus leave the ninety-nine and go out for the one? He wanted to emphasize the value of the individual. He is not satisfied with ninety-nine; He wants one hundred. When Napoleon went to conquer Russia, he was told that it would take one hundred million men to win. His reply was, "What do I care about one hundred million men?" Napoleon cared nothing about so many, but Jesus is concerned about one.

The lost sheep is the one that is in the grip of forces which will sooner or later bring destruction. An aimless or drifting life will be seized by those destructive forces. The lost soul is out of relationship with God.

In the parable of the prodigal son, we see a young man who broke home ties with the wrong goal in view. He set out for liberty, but found slavery. After he returns home and confesses his guilt, he finds a jealous older brother who is not ready to welcome him. The spiritual sin of the older brother is just as great as the moral sin of the younger man.

The parables of Matthew were taught to make clearer the great truths of the Kingdom of God. The parable of the Good Samaritan was given to teach us what religion should be in our daily lives. The last parable studied in the class was the one in Matthew 7. The only foundation to build upon is the one laid upon the principles of the Bible. The foundation of Jesus Christ gives us stability in times of hardship.

Esther Hunsberger, Deep Run.

Course on Missions

Taught by Dr. Ella Bauman

We may ask ourselves, "What is the real basis of mission work?" The church started after the Holy Spirit came and through the church came missions. Each church has a world wide message of evangelism and we can all be missionaries at heart and ambassadors for Christ and the church. We should strive to make our churches fruit-bearing and soul-winning churches. God uses all of us as instruments in bringing souls to Christ and we may be sure that wherever we may go, Christ will be there with us.

The first missionary thought of our nation to others began in 1806 when Samuel Mills told his ideas to his companions in Williams College in Massachusetts. The first missionary society was started in 1808. Dr. Bauman then told of her decision to become a missionary.

The missionary not only gives the gospel to the heathen, but also teaches them how to help themselves. There are 246 mission hospitals, 37 leper asylums, and 15 tuberculosis sanitariums under missionary control in India.

May we all let God work His will in our lives and become missionaries at heart if we cannot go to the mission fields.

Ruth Kirby, Lansdale.

History of the New Testament

Taught by Dr. E. E. S. Johnson

The New Testament was not given to us as it was originally written. The first part written were the letters of Paul. They were written to meet an immediate need and many are no preserved for us. The letters to the Thessalonians by Paul were the first books written. Galatians was next and seems to be the most powerful letter written. Paul wrote First Corinthians to answer some questions which had been asked. The second letter to Corinth gives more light on the life of Paul than any other book. Romans was the next to be written because Paul could not go to them.

The first church founded by Paul was at Philippi, and the book of Philippians was written to this group. The only personal letter we have is Philemon, written regarding a slave who had run away from his master.

Mark was the first gospel written, then Matthew, followed by Luke. Luke, the Greek physician, also wrote the Acts of the Apostles. John gives us important discourses which are not related by the other evangelists.

The churches were becoming indifferent when the book of Hebrews was written to save the church. First Peter gave hope to the early Christians in Asia Minor. Third John was written to Gaius, Second John to the church which he attended. First John is a letter of exhortation to Christian love and conduct.

In the letters to Timothy and Titus, Paul instructs Timothy in the duty of a pastor and encourages him in the work of the ministry; he also encourages Titus in the performance of his ministerial duties.

The epistle to Jude and Second Peter were the last books written. It is interesting to note that about one-fourth of the New Testament was written by Paul.

The course was very interesting. The only trouble was that the time was entirely too short.

Verna Keiser, West Swamp.

Saturday Evening at the Retreat

The Saturday evening program was a great contribution to the already abundant store of blessings received from the different courses taught by our able instructors and from the fellowship of the young people from the different churches. As we look back, I know we will often say, "It was good for us to have been there."

The twilight service was in charge of Rev. D. J. Unruh of Lansdale. The Retreat group gathered across from he Dining Hall on some large rocks. After prayer by Rev. Ernest Bohn, Retreat chairman, about forty-five minutes were spent in singing choruses and hymns. Several selections were given by the quartet, Paul and Andrew Shelly of the Saucon Church and Harleigh and Ralph Rosenberger of Souderton. Harleigh and Ralph Rosenberger also rendered a trombone duet.

At the close of the twilight service we assembled in the large Recreation Hall, where a beautiful and touching drama, entitled "Simon, the Leper," was presented by the Souderton young folks. After it was over some one made the remark, "The one whose heart was not touched by that drama must be hard-hearted." The pathetic cry of the leper, "Unclean, unclean!" gave one the chills, while the deep, touching love of the sister of Simon brought tears to one's eyes.

And last, but not least, was the Candle-light Camp Communion Service. The Retreaters were arranged in groups of eleven. Rev. D. J. Unruh gave he communion address and after several hymns and prayer, one group at a time knelt at the altar to partake of the bread and the wine, symbols of the broken body and the shed blood of Christ, our Savior. It was, indeed, a blessed experience for us.

Helena Frei, Flatland.

Closing Session at Retreat

The time for parting had come. A large group of Retreaters, instructors, and friends were seated, some on huge rocks, some on logs, in the great outdoors.

Farewell messages were heard from both Retreaters and instructors. Each message bore a fine testimony of the uplifting instruction received during the conference periods and of the wonderful spirit which pervaded among all who had gathered for what proved to be the finest and the most helpful Retreat ever held by the Eastern District Conference.

We were particularly pleased to hear the fine comments made by our friends from the western part of our conference — those from Roaring Springs, Richfield, and Bowmansville. For many of them this was a new experience, which, according to their testimonies, will be a lasting one.

Reluctantly the group separated — one grand rush to the dining room for our farewell luncheon then the closing friendship circle, and the 1934 Retreat became history.

May Markley, Schwenksville.

My General Impressions of the Retreat

The Green Lane Retreat has surpassed all my highest expectations. The camp itself is located on the banks of a large stream, surrounded by beautiful trees and grass covered ground, dotted with enormous boulders.

While the location is ideal, it is, however, not the greatest thing that attracts our attention and interest. Never before have I seen or associated with a more sincere and conscientious group of young people. They take life seriously, really attempting to live the Christian life as they see it. With all their thoughtfulness and reverence, they seem to be truly happy, going about with a smile for everyone and a song in their hearts which cannot be surpassed, but is heard all over the camp grounds.

The leaders and instructors are real friends, showing forth the true consecrated Christian life. The entire atmosphere is pure and wholesome, and I feel certain that no one can attend the Retreat for two entire days and not go home a better and more sincere person than ever before.

Ernest Leitzel, Richfield, Pa.

Retreat Impressions

I was asked to write a report on my impressions of the Retreat. Well, the Retreat was held this year at the University Boys' Camp, to which they were forced to move because of lack of room at the Girls' Camp, where they have been having it heretofore.

The camp is a beautiful place with cabins on either side of the Perkiomen Creek which flows through the grounds. In this creek they have swimming and boating. The grounds are strewn with large boulders and rocks, and there are trees all around. The scenery is so beautiful in this part of Pennsylvania that many rich city people come to different places around here for summer vacation.

At the Retreat there was one general course which all had to take. Of the three electives, I chose "The History of the New Testament," taught by Dr. Johnson. It has proved to be very interesting as well as instructive. The general course, "The Christian's Attitude Toward War and Peace," was led by Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander. It was very helpful and set us all to thinking. Both these courses were also helpful spiritually.

We had devotions every morning under the title of the Quiet Hour. The different classes met at different places on the grounds and were led by various people.

The atmosphere was distinctly Christian and all were fine young people that came. You really felt at home among them. I am sure that we all had a fine time.

John Boehr.

WHY SHOULD I ACCEPT CHRIST AS A PARTNER IN THIS BUSINESS OF LIVING?

Many believe that if we live an honest, moral, upright life, we will be saved. We fail to understand what salvation really is. Salvation is personal friendship and companionship with God. Paul was intensely moral before conversion, but he found out later that he had been an enemy of God all the time. Then, too, salvation means humility and meekness. The man who thinks he can save himself puts himself out of the kingdom of heaven by that very attitude of mind. For the kingdom of heaven is made up of people with childlike hearts who have given up their pride and self-will.

Scripture and experience alike teach us that it is possible for one to have all the outward marks of religion, yet fail of possessing the real and vital thing. Saul of Tarsus was a most zealous man trying to do the will of God, but after his conversion he felt that his former life had been very sinful, because he had not submitted himself to the will of God and accepted Christ's righteousness as his own.

We should accept Christ and enter into the life He prescribes, not because we may die soon, but in order that we might live. We need Christ as our Savior now and we need Him as our guide throughout life. Some complain of the parable of the vineyard because the man who began work at the eleventh hour received the same pay as those who toiled all day. Surely, those who complain have not tasted the joys of a Christian life. No one who follows the teachings of Christ will begrudge the reward promised to those who repent at the last moment and are saved. The eleventh-hour Christians are the ones that mourn because they have lost the happiness that they would have found in service during their whole life.

Many people also look upon religion as narrowing in its influence. Christianity is the broadest of creeds because it takes in everything that touches human life, here and hereafter. The Christian life is the most comprehensive life known; it is as deep as the heart; it is as wide as the world; and it is as high as the heaven. Paul, the great Apostle, tells us, that Christ came to "bring life and immortality to light" — not immortality alone, but life also, and the word Life comes before the word Immortality.

But we have a higher authority even than Paul. Christ, in explaining His mission, said, "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." It is to the more abundant life that Christ calls us. He was the master of mathematics yet He used only addition and multiplication, subtraction has no place in His philosophy.

The spiritual gifts which Jesus bestows are vastly richer than all that man possessed before. Who can measure the value of salvation, the peace that comes with sins forgiven, and the joy of constant communion with the heavenly Father, whom Christ reveals? And, then, consider the moral code that is revolutionizing the world. Let us mention a few of the fundamental teachings of Christ.

Christ gave the world a new definition of love. Husbands had loved their wives and wives their husbands. Parents had loved their children and children their parents; and friend had loved friend, but Christ proclaimed a love as boundless as the sea. Christ founded a religion and built a Church on love — the greatest force in the world. Love furnishes an armor which no weapon can pierce. When physical warfare is forgotten, love will still call its hosts to battle. The effort then will be, not to kill one another, but to excel in doing good.

Christ has been called "visionary" — that is a favorite word with those who pride themselves upon being practical. But as a matter of fact, one of the great virtues of Christ's teachings is that they are practical. He deals with the everyday things of ordinary life and in His quiet way irons out difficulties and makes rough paths smooth. The philosophy of Christ might with propriety be called Joyful Wisdom. It leads one into the path of happiness that is real and permanent.

Carl Hilty, a writer, has published a book entitled, "Happiness," in which he points out that, as those have the poorest health who spend their time traveling from one health resort to another looking for it, so those are least happy who do nothing but hunt for pleasure. He insists that to be happy one must have employment for the hands, the head, and the heart.

Christ leads His followers into happiness through His route. No one who partakes of His spirit can be an idler. The world is full of work awaiting laborers. Those who try to imitate Christ will be planning for the extension of His Kingdom and the comfort of God's people. The heart of the Christian, the center of life and love will find satisfaction in being in sympathetic touch with all that is good and noble.

The worldly are in the habit of picturing the Christian life as gloomy and forbidding. A long faced Christian is a poor Christian, if a Christian at all. "Be of good cheer," is a Christian salutation. Christ used it repeatedly. In Matthew 9:2, He said to the man sick of the palsy, "Son, be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee." In Matt. 14:27 He quieted the fears of His disciples, "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." In John 16:33 He inspired the apostles, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Here we have the three greatest sources of happiness—Forgiveness of sins, the presence of the Savior, and triumph over the world.

In conclusion, let us esteem it a privilege to be permitted to accept the larger life to which Jesus, the Christ, calls all of the children of men. Why should one choose a life that is small and contracted, when there is within his reach the life that is full and complete? Why should one be content with the pleasures of the body and the joys of the mind when he can have added to them the delights of the spirit? How can one delay acceptance of Christ's offer to ennoble that which he has, and to add to it the things that are highest and best and most enduring? This is the life that Christ brought to light when He came that men might have life and have it more abundantly. A simple trust in the death of Jesus as the remedy for our sin; a simple acceptance of Christ to be our righteousness and salvation will bring joy and power of a new life of sonship of God and fellowship with Christ.

CORRESPONDENCE

Ebenezer Church, Gotebo, Oklahoma. July 8th, 1934, marks the date of another wedding in the Ebenezer church of Gotebo, Okla., when David Daubert, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. David Daubert, Sr., and Miss Nora Goertz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Goertz, were united in holy wedlock. A wedding supper was served at six o'clock P. M. at the home of the bride, after which the bridal party proceeded to the church where the wedding services were held. Rev. Hege gave a short sermon, using the text: "And Jesus was invited to the wedding too." John 2:2 (Twentieth Century Translation). Rev. Froese delivered the wedding sermon in German, using Phil. 4:4 for the text. The girls' quartet — sisters of the bride and groom, — sang two numbers, "Whispering Hope" and "Every Prayer Will Find Its Answer." The wedding march was played by Mrs. A. J. Brandt, sister of the bridegroom. Rev. Froese performed the marriage ceremony.

The bride was dressed in a charming gown of white satin and carried a bouquet of white sweet peas. The younger sister of the bride, dressed in shell pink, was the maid of honor, and the brother of the groom served as best man. The bride and groom marched in together and were seated in chairs at the altar. Wreathed in ribbons of pink and white crepe, under an arch of pink and white crepe. The ribbons, blown by the wind, made a remarkable effect of a part circle about the bridal pair.

Mennonite Church of Upland, California. Our church held its midsummer communion service July 15, 1934. The attendance was somewhat limited on account of so many being away on vacation. The spirit, however, was exceptionally fine and helpful. The pastor's theme was "Wells of Living Water."

The people were greatly pleased to see our oldest member, Rev. Andrew Oesch, present once more. Brother Oesch was for many years one of the most active ministers in the Illinois Conference. He now makes his home at Long Beach with his daughter and her husband, the Rev. Jacob Donners. The infirmaties of age keep him confined to his home pretty closely.

Rev. J. J. Voth, greatly beloved, retired pastor, had a serious attack of pneumonia in the late spring. We are all glad to see him able to be at the services again.

Rev. D. B. Hess was very busy for a number of years as Y. M. C. A. secretary to the sailors at San Pedro harbor. The Y. M. work there was temporarily suspended when the fleet was moved to the Atlantic. Brother Hess moved back to his home here. We are glad to have him among us once more, but we are sorry that he is temporarily out of a job.

E. H. Haury, closely connected with this church almost from its birth, and one of its most successful Sunday School teachers, had the misfortune of sustaining a double fracture of the leg about ten weeks ago. He is able to be about again in a wheel chair and we look for his speedy recovery. He is surely missed by his many friends.

L. J. Horsch and wife with their daughter, Betty, are spending several summer months at Sequoia Park. While there they will engage in Y. M. C. A. work. Brother Horsch is one of the most successful teachers here at Chaffey high school.

Gertrude Eyman, one of our most active C. E. workers, and her cousin, Emma Ruth, of Reedley, will drive across country to attend the Retreat at Lake Shipshewana (many a carefree hour of my boyhood was spent about that lake). Enroute they will visit Hoover Dam, Century of Progress, and other places of interest.

A committee composed of membership chosen from Upland and Los Angeles Mennonite churches, after carefully looking over the whole field, came to the conclusion that Upland is the logical place where the General Conference should convene next year. Upland greatly appreciates the beautiful spirit of generosity shown by the sister congregation in helping to locate the conference here, knowing at the same time how greatly the Los Angeles brethren longed to have it near their own church.

In our congregation are seven retired pastors so we should learn how to be good. More than a dozen of our people are engaged in public school work, so we should become wise. One doctor and five trained nurses are on our church record, so we should know how to keep well. A dozen of our families are engaged in fruit growing and three in the grocery business, so there should always be plenty to eat. Four are engaged in banks, so we have a chance to learn the value of money. Six have passed the eightieth milestone, so we should learn how to grow old beautifully. J. C. M.

Aberdeen, Idaho, July 18, 1934. Dear Friends of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel:— We had the happy privilege of being host to the Conference of our Pacific District churches. This conference convened from June 7th to the evening of the following Sunday. The great theme which was made manifest in all addresses and discussions was "The Church with Power." It was just ten years ago that the Pacific District Conference met in Aberdeen, Idaho. This year thirteen churches were represented: twenty-two delegates other than our own; in all, sixty-two visitors. The local homes proved their Christian hospitality by graciously entertaining them.

Every day of the conference was filled with blessings. We listened to interesting, inspirational talks and sermons by the ministers present: Rev. P. R. Aeschliman of Colfax, Washington; Rev. S. S. Baumgartner of Monroe, Wash.; Rev. Albert Claassen of Portland, Oregon; Rev. J. M. Franz of Pratum, Ore.; Rev. Lester Hostetler of Upland, Calif.; Rev. F. F. Jantzen of Paso Robles, Calif.; Rev. J. M. Regier, President of our conference, of Reedley, Calif.; Rev. Herbert Widmer of Dallas, Ore,; and the Rev. Widmer of Albany, Ore,. and our own pastor, Rev. J. E. Kaufman.

Sunday morning, at nine o'clock, Rev. Aeschliman gave a very fine sermon in the German language. Sunday School took up as usual at ten o'clock, with the record attendance of 269. A number of the visiting pastors taught our Sunday School classes. Rev. Hostetler preached on "Religion, a Load or a Lift"? in a most impressive manner. Religion is a lift, a means by which we are enabled to carry our cross in life.

Sunday afternoon and evening our young people were given the opportunity to serve. Miss Emma Ruth, field secretary, of Reedley, Cal., presided in her able, pleasing manner. Inspirational music was interspersed everywhere. The theme of the evening was "The Challenge of the Cross." The men's chorus sang the wonderful song "The Wayside Cross." Talks by some of our young people and the evening sermon by Rev. Herbert Widmer were summed up in a touching manner in the pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross," given by our young people. The prayerful singing of the Christian farewell hymn, "God Be With You," by the congregation, closed the meeting. May all things have been done for the glory and the honor of God! Blissful echoes and memories will linger long.

We are enjoying very warm weather. It seems as though our gardens and our fields are four weeks earlier than usual. Although we are not suffering, our water supply in the Jackson Lake Reservoir is getting very low. Several wells have been drilled for irrigation purposes.

On the 24th of June, twelve young people were baptized and received into the church: Edward Baer, Herbert Bartel, Estherd Becker, Gladys Johnson Becker, Peter Boldt, Jr., Elva Enns, Wilmer Friesen, Ellen Matthies, Carl Wenger, Malcolm Wenger, and Margaret Wiebe. May the Lord bless their declaration with much grace and power! The following Sunday our church partook of the Lord's Supper. It proved an assurance of the tie that binds and the strength that empowers.

With good wishes,
Margaret E. Giesbrecht.

Pleasant View Mennonite Church, Aurora, Nebraska. Sunday School election was held June 17 with the following officers elected: Ezra Kremer, superintendent; Ed. Sprunger, assistant superintendent; Eli Schlager, chorister; Mrs. Chas. Kraus, assistant chorister; Dorothy Oswald, pianist; Gladys Rediger, assistant pianist; Verna Kremer, secretary and treasurer; Verna Springer, assistant secretary and treasurer; Freda Oswald, primary superintendent.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Springer are spending a few weeks visiting relatives and friends near Pontiac, Ill.

Miss Francis Bachman returned to her home near Matamora, Ill.

The annual C. E. election took place June 24th. Officers elected were: Paul Oswald, president; Earl Oswald, vice president; Yester Rediger, secretary and treasurer; Glen Troyer, chorister; Rev. Augspurger, assistant chorister; Gladys Rediger, pianist; Dorothy Oswald, assistant pianist; Maurice Kremer, Junior C. E. superintendent.

A son, Richard, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Oswald, July 25th.

Mr. Ralph Steider is at present visiting relatives and friends in Illinois.

Lester Rediger left Friday, August 3, for Gridley, Illinois.

A daughter, Barbara Lee, was born August 1st, to Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith.

Basic Virtues: Honesty

Luke 19:8-17

For the next four weeks we will think upon some of the Christian virtues. This series is very timely, for many leaders recognize that the world's sorest need at the present time is Christian character. There is a sore need for men and women who will be Christian in our homes, presiding over the school room, in legislating halls, in the office, shop, and the street.

We have come upon days of irresponsibility, integrity is not a characterstic of our people as it used to be. This has come about as an indirect result of the World War, but more recently of the period of depression. Many men have become discouraged and have given up their belief in a high idealism, they find it easier to get along on a lower level of thinking and doing, and it seems to many that the wicked are flourishing and the righteous suffer, consequently they lose faith and say, "What's the use of being innocent and conscientious, we might as well get into the fray and get what we can." That philosophy of life is only too common and must be overcome by those who have learned like the Psalmist in Psalm 73 that he has been foolish. When he came to meditate in the sanctuary he saw that the wicked are walking in very slippery places and that, after all, destruction is hounding them. Only those who meditate upon God and have fellowship with Him will have the lasting satisfaction and happiness which all men desire.

In planning this program each society should endeavor to make clear the fact that the universe is founded upon the fundamental principle of honesty and integrity. Falsehood, lying, and irresponsibility are certain to lead to ruin. We have a beautiful picture of a virtuous man in Samuel who, when he came to the end of his days, witnessed concerning his own character and his people replied that in no instance had he defrauded nor oppressed nor taken anything out of their hands.

Questions

1. In how far is honesty a basic virtue in the universe?
2. Why should we be honest, because it pays or because it is right?
3. How do you answer the age-old problem: The wicked prosper and the righteous suffer?
4. Give some of Jesus' teachings which proclaim honesty a virtue.
5. Narrate some daily happenings which show the importance of absolute honesty.
6. Contrast a life of absolute honesty and a character void of integrity. Are the fruits shown forth in life or must one also remember the rewards in eternity?
7. Name some situations and vocations in which honesty is very much to be desired.
8. To what extent is a life not lived at its known best dishonest?

Basic Virtues — Courage

Acts 20:23

This is the second of our series on Basic Virtues. In our topic of this week we will consider COURAGE. It is a fine thing to know what is right, but the more difficult half is often to have the courage to carry out our convictions. Do you dare to do what you know is right?

Courage abounds in two realms—in the physical and in the moral. It is the quality of courage which bids a man to save a child from the path of a speeding automobile or from a burning building, but it is also courage which causes a representative of the people to vote for a law he believes right even if it may endanger his reelection. The latter is the more difficult. It often proves to be a more severe test for a young man to refuse a cigarette or a drink than it is to enter a crucial game of football. To throw one's whole soul into a moral fight when public sentiment is against it, that is real courage, the kind of courage which Jesus dared to inculcate into His life. A man may be instinctively courageous in the physical realm, but only a child of God will dare to be courageous for the sake of Jesus Christ when He is faced with a moral or spiritual crisis.

In planning for this service make the most of it, plan to use much inspirational material, but avoid superficiality. The finest instances of real courage are to be found in some characters from the Bible, like: Abraham, Joshua, Ruth, David, Daniel, Peter, Stephen, Paul, Simon of Cyrene, and Jesus. You might also ask the various members either voluntarily or in the form of topics to tell about the most courageous deed they have ever witnessed. The Scripture readings will also form good backgrounds for able talks.

Questions

1. How do you define courage? What is its relation to faith?
2. Compare the characteristics of courage in the physical and moral realms.
3. Who is your favorite missionary when you think of courage?
4. What is the most courageous deed you have ever heard of?
5. What are some of the phases of life today which you think require a large amount of courage?
6. Name and describe briefly some of the examples of courage in the Old Testament.
7. Briefly narrate some New Testament instances of courage.
8. How may our society venture forth in high courage?

Are the Rich More Selfish Than the Poor?

Eccles. 2:1-11; Luke 6:30, 31

Consecration Meeting

Selfishness means getting something for one's self at the expense of some one else.

Pre-Prayer

Let us not be selfish with our time. Let us not give our time in the meeting when we are giving it at the expense of lack of united prayer for a common cause of growing for and in Christ and in the church as an I. C. E. Society.

Program

1. Piano Prelude — "Savior Like A Shepherd Lead Us."
2. Sentence Prayers, asking God's blessings upon I. C. E. meetings everywhere and praying for a deeper consecration through another month.
3. Roll Call (answering to names with favorite scripture verses).

4. Introduction of topic and remarks by the leader.
5. Scripture reading Eccles. 2:1-11; Luke 6:30, 31.
6. Question 1: What do we usually mean by "being rich"?
7. Topic 2: Someone has said that selfishness is the root of all depressions. Is it?
8. Question 3: Are all rich people selfish? Why? Are poor folks selfish?
9. Question 4: Are missionaries selfish in wanting to come home on furloughs when funds are so scarce?
10. Stand and call for several volunteer prayers for the foreign and home missionaries everywhere and close this prayer season by singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer" very softly without any musical instrument, realizing and believing that souls are being saved somewhere, because of your pausing to intercede for them at the Throne of Grace.

    Question 5: In many instances what is the price of becoming rich materially? Spiritually?

    Question 6: Do riches really bring joy?
11. Group Song—"Nor silver nor gold,"
12. Let us worship God in the giving of our material gains to Him in an offering.
13. Announcements.
14. Special Number—"No Not One."
15. Benediction. Numbers 6:24, 25, 26.

"To Be Better Off Is Not To Be Better"

I Tim. 6:10, 17

"The use of wealth shows whether or not we are selfish and how selfish."

Pre-Prayer

Are we selfish with our time which God would enjoy, if being spent with Him?

Open Discussions

1. It is not a sin to be "well off." Abraham, a true man of God, was a wealthy man. The sin lies in the selfish use of wealth in the presence of others' needs.

2. Money is one of the hardest of the training tests in character that we meet in this world. Few make money and retain their old simplicity, kindness, and concern for others. Why?

3. Is this true: "What you do with your money proves what you are"!

4. Does having wealth necessarily mean that we know a greater responsibility to God and to others?

5. Do riches enrich our nation?

6. We say that we have solved the problem of production in the land so there need be no hungry; but we do not distribute our abundance, and so food goes to waste while millions go hungry. Why?

7. What is the first cause of almost every war?

8. Relate the incident of the Rich Young Ruler and Jesus.

9. Tell of the Rich Man and Lazarus.

10. How is the present "credit system" a selfish, coveting device?

11. Explain: Not money, but the love of money is the root of all evil!

Topic—Being Like Christ In His Friendliness

Luke 15:1-7 (Consecration Meeting)

Where is the boy or girl who does not like to have friends? I am sure God wants us to have them, for they are spoken of so many times in the Bible. See how many verses you can find about friends or friendliness. Jesus had true friends with whom He loved to be. How many of them can you name? Have you noticed that He always treated them kindly? Prov. 18:24 says, "A man that hath friends must shew himself friendly." That is exactly what Jesus did. Even when He needed to correct friends as He did Martha one day, He did it kindly. He "went about doing good" to all kinds of people. It is easy to be friends with some people, but you know how hard it is to treat others kindly. If we would be like Christ in friendliness, we must ask Him to help us love even those who are hard to love for that is what He did and still does. We find Him being kind to the poor, the sick and the sinners as well as to those that other people could easily love.

A story is told of a little girl named Gertie who loved Christ and because of that came to love as He loved. She entered a poster contest in school and even though she did very good work, Amy won. Gertie's mother felt it was not fair, but Gertie was glad for Amy and said, "Oh, mother, I think it's nice for Amy, she's a friend of mine and we ought to be glad when a friend gets a gift for good work, even if we have to go empty handed our own selves"! She felt the same when Amy won other honors. She had read in the Bible, "A friend loveth at all times."

What kind of a friend are you? Have you learned to love like Christ or do you only love those who are kind to you and easy to love? Think of someone who does not have many friends to whom you can be kind for Jesus' sake.

Plans for the Meeting

Since the work of the Sunshine Committee consists largely in showing friendliness, it will be fitting to give that committee charge of the meeting today. One member may be responsible for the music, another for assigning subjects, etc. Each Junior might be asked to come to the meeting prepared to quote a Bible verse containing the word "friend."

Questions

1. How did Jesus show friendliness toward sinners?
2. Tell about His friendship for the poor?
3. Why do we think of Him as a friend of children?
4. How does being a Christian help one to be friendly?
5. Name some real friends mentioned in the Bible.

Topic—God's Wonder Book: Peter, Who Failed, Yet Made Good

Luke 22:54-62

When a young boy, Herbert went to work for a man who was a Christian. Because Herbert, too, was a Christian, his master trusted him and granted him privileges that would not have been given another boy. There were times when Herbert was left alone in the office.

One day his master noticed that the boy seemed troubled. Suspecting the truth, he spoke kindly to Herbert who then confessed that when alone one day he had taken a penny from the desk in the office feeling sure that no one need ever know.

He had forgotten that God saw and God loved him so well that He would not let him be happy until he had confessed his sin.

Peter became frightened when he saw Jesus in trouble and was afraid to admit that he was one of His disciples. When Jesus looked on him sadly and lovingly, Peter saw how greatly he had sinned in denying his Lord. Like Herbert in our story, God loved Peter too well to let him go on doing wrong, so troubled his conscience until he became willing to let everyone know that he belonged to Christ. After Peter saw his sin and became truly sorry, he knew more than ever how much he needed the Lord and he became one of the greatest of preachers, filled with the Holy Spirit. He was no longer afraid of what people might say or what they might do to him. This is another of God's wonders. That He can take a man like Peter and make him a strong, fearless preacher.

Plans for the Meeting

Take time to study Peter's life carefully, noticing his human weakness as well as Christian strength. Such a study will help the boys and girls to see the power of the Holy Spirit in the life of the man rather than thinking so much of the man himself.

Questions

1. How was Peter first brought to Christ?
2. When and how did Christ call him for service?
3. What things in Peter's nature are most noticeable?
4. Tell how he denied Christ and then came back to Him.
5. What do you know of Peter's work after he came back to Christ?

Daily Readings

Peter's confession. Matt. 16:16.
A changed Peter. Acts 2:14.
A courageous Peter. Acts 4:13, 19.
Peter, the healer. Acts 3:1-8.
Strong in prayer. Acts 9:40.
Peter, the preacher. Acts 10:44.

The Junior Pledge

"I Will Strive"

As I sit here thinking about all the wonderful opportunities the Heavenly Father offers His people for service and better Christian living, I am wondering just how many of us accept these opportunities and do the very best we can with them. Oh yes, this means boys and girls as well as grown-ups, Christianity is not a "grown-up" religion, boys and girls can have a very important part in it too. God's Word, the Holy Bible, tells us so.

Now just stop and think of all the children mentioned in the Bible. There is Samuel. Do you remember the very hard message God gave Samuel to tell to Eli? God trusted a boy with this message and the boy delivered it. Samuel might have said, "Oh, I am just a boy, I'm sure it would not do any good for me to tell this to Eli." But instead he trusted God and did his very best.

Then there was the little captive maid from the land of Israel who waited on Naaman's wife. She had faith in her God, she knew that if Naaman would go to the prophet of God that he could be healed. God worked through this girl because she was willing to do her part even if it was small.

Have you ever thought of what Jesus used to feed the 5,000 people? He used a boy's lunch! The boy might have said, "This is my lunch and I'm hungry," but he loved the Master so much that he was willing to give up what little he had. Because this one boy was willing to do his part in a small way, Christ blessed it and fed 5,000 people! It is the little things that even boys and girls can do that count because Christ can bless them and really make the small things worth while.

There is a pledge that all Christian Endeavorers sign and repeat but so many do not think of what it means. TRUSTING IN THE LORD JESUS CHRIST FOR STRENGTH I promise Him that I will STRIVE to do whatever He would like to have me do. Just what does STRIVE mean? The dictionary says it means to "make an effort." It means that we will do our best to do whatever He would like to have us do. It does not mean that we promise big things, but just being faithful every day.

Do you suppose it might mean to share a lunch? Maybe. In Mark 9:41 Jesus promises to bless those who "give in His name." We can never know just how much good we are doing for Christ just by doing our best for Him in small things, by being real, true "Christian Endeavorers."

In my life let others see,
I am growing, Lord, like Thee,
Loving, helping, cheerfully
A true Christian may I be.

Mrs. J. Ernest Cline, Upland, Cal.

"Prayer is the deepest impulse of the human spirit. Somehow or other our poor, struggling, longing souls turn toward the thought of an Eternal Father."

Amos Denounces Self-Indulgence

Lesson Text—Amos 6:1-7; 11-14

Golden Text—Seek good and not evil that ye may live. Amos 5:14.

In this lesson we have a continuation of the message of the prophet Amos. He is denouncing the people of Israel for their self-indulgence. The enemy of Assyria was ready to pounce down upon them. But the people were blinded by their luxurious living and lulled into a false security. They had substituted religious worship and sacrifices for true living. They even desired the day of the Lord to come. Amos said: Why do you desire the day of the Lord, it will be to you darkness and not light. As if a man did flee from a lion and a bear met him. But they thought because they believed in the day of the Lord, it was sufficient whether they were ready for him or not. The description by Amos of Israel's intemperance is typical of our situation today. We became prosperous as did the children of Israel in the days of Jeroboam II and our prosperity produced the idle rich. We placed a great deal of emphasis upon two automobiles in every garage and a chicken in every pot, but in our wild chase for higher material standards we became intemperate in eating and drinking and we spent our money in revelry. We, too, needed a prophet Amos to warn us of our self-indulgence. The hope is that the depression may serve as a prophet and drive us back to sane thinking and sane living. We need to learn that no amount of material prosperity can safeguard an evil nation. The church has a great opportunity today to bring the message of Amos to our pleasure-loving age.

Hosea Preaches God's Love

Lesson Text—Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9; 14:4-9

Golden Text—For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3:16.

Hosea was a contemporary of Amos. He ranks even above Amos in insight of moral power. He was a man of the northern kingdom. He was a thorough patriot and proclaimed the corruption of the people of Israel. He with Amos believes in justice and social righteousness. But he can not stop there. He comes to another great truth about God through a tragic experience in his home. He married a woman by the name of Gomer in whom he believed and trusted. But she proved untrue to him and finally left him. She sinks lower and lower in the moral scale until she is sold into slavery. Hosea sees her being sold, buys her and brings her to his home. But he requires her to go through a period of probation and discipline before she can be his wife. This taught Hosea the great truth of the forgiving love of God. Israel, like Gomer, had wandered away from God, but God would not give them up. He says, "I will heal their backsliding, I will love them freely." This love is not a sentiment or an emotion but a principle of action. It reveals itself in righteousness, justice and kindness. This idea of God's redeeming love became the dominant message of the prophets after Hosea. But it was he who brought this truth to the minds of the people. He is one of the greatest religious geniuses the world has ever known. This love proclaimed by Hosea is the dominant message of Jesus and of the New Testament. It is a love that is forgiving, manifests itself in deeds of mercy, and constrains men and women to go to foreign lands to bring the good news of the kingdom of God. May this love be the motivating power of our lives!

THE SPIRIT AND THE WORD

The Spirit is given to help us to apply the Word to the particular event of life. The Spirit will bring the Word to our remembrance. But that implies that we have studied the Word. He cannot bring to our remembrance what we have never known. And the Spirit will not only bring the Word to our remembrance, but He will bring us into sympathy with the mind of Christ, so that when we ask the question, "What would Jesus do?" we shall have from the indwelling Spirit the answer.

The business of the Church is to produce Christlike characters and equip them for Christlike service.—Sel.

JOTTINGS

One of our exchanges, the Quakertown Free Press, has been printing each week the picture of persons who were well known to the community in the past and then inviting the readers to guess who they were. Among pictures of interest to our readers were those of John Oberholtzer, one of the founders of the General Conference, Rev. H. G. Allebach, a former editor of The Mennonite, with a group of young people on a hike, a group of young people from the East Swamp Young People's Society of East Swamp and "Printer" "John Stauffer."

A very ancient Mennonite place of worship was Hersteins School House, near Schwenksville, Penn. Years have passed since services were held in this place hidden among the rocks of Stone Hill, but the late Rev. Moses Gottschall and Rev. N. B. Grubb, who still survives, once held regular services here. Near the building is an old cemetery where rest many of the fathers and mothers of bygone years. Two members of this church in the late 1700's made a journey to Germany and had a thousand copies of Danner's Sermons printed which they sold in Mennonite communities. Copies of this work by a minister of the Hamburg, Germany, church are now rare and some are preserved in Mennonite families as heirlooms.

The home built by William Rittenhouse, the first Mennonite minister of the Mennonite church, which he erected near Germantown, is still preserved as a landmark. The section surrounding the home has been taken in by Fairmount Park, the largest of Philadelphia's park system. Near the house Rittenhouse had erected the first paper mill in America. The quaint building is beautifully situated along the banks of Paper Mill Run. On one of the walls is a tablet erected by the American Philosophical Society in honor of the scientist David Rittenhouse, who with Benjamin Franklin organized this famous society.

The Forty-Sixth Session of the Middle District Conference of the General Conference will be held at the Grace Mennonite church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23-26. The Conference sermon will be preached by Rev. W. S. Shelly, the president of the conference. The day sessions on Friday and Saturday will be devoted to the regular conference program. On Friday evening the Women's Missionary Society of the conference will give a program, setting forth its work in the local churches and also its contributions to the Home and Foreign Boards. On Sunday morning conference visitors will join the entertaining congregation in a Conference Communion Service. On Sunday afternoon there will be a program on young people's work in the churches. On Sunday evening the oratorio, "St. Paul," will be sung by a joint choir of the local Mennonite churches. A large attendance is expected at this session of the churches.

Rev. P. J. Boehr has been traveling considerably during the summer, giving missionary and evangelistic addresses. He has just completed a seven weeks' tour covering South Dakota, Minnesota, and Montana. During the journey he had the opportunity to spend three days with his 89-year-old father at Henderson, Nebraska. He returned home July 12, after having given 45 addresses covering the various churches he visited. Rev. Boehr's address has been changed from Quakertown to Richlandtown, Pa.

The officers of the Western District Conference, Rev. P. H. Richert, Rev. Frantz, secretary, Rev. P. K. Regier, announce that the time for the meeting of the conference will soon be here. They will be glad to consider invitations to hold the meeting from such congregations who desire to entertain the Conference. Any congregation ready to offer such entertainment, will please notify the secretary of the conference.

The Bible School conducted in the First Church, Philadelphia, has had an average attendance of forty, which is about all that can be successfully handled in the church annex.

When the writer entered the ministry some 38 years ago most of the Mennonite churches in the General Conference conducted their services entirely in the German language and, even in the Eastern Conference, which is the oldest district conference, the churches using English did so alternating with German. Conference business in the East continued to be conducted in German until the early years of this century. One congregation had an article in its constitution which required the use of German exclusively so long as one-tenth of the congregation required it.

The Home Mission Board of the General Conference Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Trenton, Ohio, treasurer, report, April-June, shows that up to June the total receipts were $2620.94 and the disbursements were $3119.78. Up to June enough money was on hand to pay the workers in full, but in June only enough was received to pay them on the basis of 35% that month. The indebtedness of the Board to date is $8500.00.

A fine spirit prevailed at the meeting of the Western District Conference held at Aberdeen, Idaho. Statistics showed that there has been a gain in church membership and Sunday School attendance. The conference treasury, however, is empty. Efforts are being made to get Sunday School classes, C. E. Societies, Missionary Societies, or individuals to pledge themselves for the following projects: (1) $15.00 per month for Miss Niswander's rent at the Portland mission; (2) $15.00 per month toward the support of the pastor at Dallas, Oregon, where the church was recently organized; (3) $5.00 per month for Rev. P. R. Eschliman's expenses to Newport where he serves a group of Mennonites who have no pastor; (4) $5.00 per month for the publication of the Pacific District Workers Exchange. Organizations or individuals who are willing to take care of one or more of these projects one or more months, please inform either Rev. Lester Hostetler, Upland, Calif., or Miss Emma Ruth, Reedley, Calif.

The Young People's Retreat of the Western District Conference will be held at Lake Sequoia, Calif. Among those who will be leaders are Rev. Lester Hostetler and Lucas Horsch.

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, who has been doing field work in the interest of the Young People's Work and Publications, is expected to take charge as pastor of the Chicago Mission, September 1.

WHAT DOES CHRIST MEAN TO CHRISTIANS IN THIS MODERN WORLD?

We want to think of the "Christians" as genuine followers of the teaching and example of our Lord Jesus Christ. We think of them with the one concern; namely, to do the will of Him who loved us, cleansed us, and made us kings and priests before God in His kingdom.

Christians ARE IN this modern world, but NOT OF this world, even as Christ was and is not of this world, although He was in this world and in the Holy Spirit still is in this world, inspiring, counseling, and teaching the Christian.

What the Christ means to the Christian in this present world is: 1. An ever present Companion. The Lord's presence is real to the Christian. Likes Moses, he walks before Him as if he saw Him. The Lord is his light and salvation, an ever present help in trouble.

2. The Christ is the IDEAL for the Christian's life, hope and ambition. The Christian's concern is, What would Jesus do and what will you have me do? The Christ is among all the starring personalities the Sun of Righteousness, outshining all others as the sun does the stars.

3. To the Christian the Christ is the Savior of mankind from its depravity and sin in this modern age. Times change and so do we in methods and ways of doing things, but human nature is ever the same, and our needs of the Savior are always the same.

4. To the Christian of today the Christ is the captain in the lead of all Christian enterprises, such as church extension, Christian education, Christian Endeavor movement. Also of all charitable institutions, such as children's homes, deaconess' work, and hospitals. As the prince of peace Christ also can be identified with all peace movements.

5. To the Christians of today the Christ means that He is Lord over all, that He sides in with the righteous and stands against the wicked, that He leads His army to a final victory. He is the Lord over all in the governments, stands with the right and stands against the wrong, and will finally bring to judgment every one according to his works.

6. What the Christ does mean to the Christian in this modern world is so beautifully expressed in the prayer by the late Amos R. Wells.

Will Zerger, Monroe, Washington.

CORRESPONDENCE

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. Sunday, July 29, was observed as Cradle Roll Day. Four members were promoted to the Primary class. Three new members have been added to the roll this year, making a total of eleven members. Miss Bernice Naffziger has been chosen as superintendent for the coming year.

Misses Marie, Mattie, Helen, and Gertrude Brenneman spent a week in Chicago visiting the Century of Progress and other places of interest, and are now enjoying a week's vacation at Lake Mendota at Madison, Wis.

Mrs. Barbara Naffziger and daughters, Fern and Mona, accompanied by Miss Bernice Naffziger, are spending a week at Lake Shipshewana in Indiana.

The Ladies Aid sent a consignment of canned fruit and vegetables to the hospital this month.

Members of the Christian Endeavor Society were entertained at the homes of Mr. Julius Helwig on the evening of July 20, and Mrs. Barbara Naffziger on August 3rd. The main feature at the latter home was a treasure hunt which furnished entertainment for the evening.

ATTENTION!

Sunday School Teachers and Secretaries

Several prominent men in our denomination are behind the movement which aims to get all our Sunday Schools to use the New ALL-BIBLE GRADED SERIES of Sunday School Lessons. We know that several of our Sunday Schools are not satisfied with the Graded series they are using at present and therefore suggest that these Sunday Schools investigate the New ALL-BIBLE GRADED Series.

The Graded year begins on October 1st, so it is high time to investigate the new series of lessons if a change is to be made October 1st. The tendency is toward last-minute ordering. This not only works a hardship on us, but hinders an orderly and carefully planned introduction into your Sunday School of the All-Bible Graded Series. Do not wait until the last week, or even the last month, — send in your order NOW! We will appreciate your order NOW!

The new manuals are off the press!

Have you seen copies? Examine them—both pupil's and teachers' manuals!

You will note two radical departures looming up BIG in importance:

1. The All-Bible Graded Series is ALL BIBLE. The International Uniform lessons and many of the existing graded lessons disregard prophecy, shun Paul's epistles, and omit the Psalms and other books. We give them their place of importance.

2. The All-Bible Graded Series is GRADED. Such Bible portions are given to each child and adolescent as can best be understood and absorbed — an important principle. The pupils are given opportunities of expression and work to do both in and out of the class—they do it because it is laid out pedagogically as is their day-school work.

The best way to get acquainted with the new ALL-BIBLE GRADED Series is to order a copy of each of the Teacher's and Pupil's Manuals. Use the order blank on the right hand side of this page.

MENNONITES IN PARAGUAY

One of the problems of the Mennonite colony in Paraguay is to find a crop that will not only supply the necessary food for the colonists, but also enable them to build up economic resources. They have found that vegetables of various kinds thrive, though the numerous pests, insects and others, make it inconvenient at times to bring their crops to maturity. Corn does not do so well. They have gone in for cotton and have given considerable thought to the cultivation of sugar and some have been seriously inquiring whether silk culture could not be introduced. It seems that their best bet is cotton. During the short period that the colonists have been in Paraguay they have had to face the hardships incident to all colonization efforts on raw lands, but the matter of mere existence is not their chief consideration. They are endeavoring to build up a cultured community and in this is implied the establishment of churches, good schools, and attention to such cultural matters as music and the development of profitable trade with the outside world. These undertakings call for added talents and efforts of various kinds, but are exceedingly worth while. Coming as they did from the cultured communities which existed in the Mennonite colonies in Russia before the war, our brethren in South America are determined to hold on to the higher things of life. Wherever Mennonites have gone as settlers into raw countries they have always been a great factor in the cultural development of that section. It was true of their early settlements in East Prussia, Poland, Russia, Pennsylvania, and Canada. In Pennsylvania, for example in the pre-Revolutionary days, they with the other German settlers, possessed a higher percent of literacy than their English neighbors, and had a literature of greater proportions than they. We may expect a similar development in South America, both in Brazil and Paraguay. The advantage our South American brethren have is that they arrived on their field with a better cultural background behind them and a tradition for being successful settlers in many parts of the earth. —G.

THE NEXT MEETING OF GENERAL CONFERENCE

It is about time for all of the General Conference churches to give attention to the coming conference in California next summer. At this meeting the conference will celebrate its Diamond Jubilee. The little gathering of a handful of brethren that took place in Iowa had vision. They not only dreamed of more united and effective church, but they immediately undertook to make their dream come true. The later gatherings were small indeed, but the matters of education, missions, and publications had already ceased to be mere ideas, they had become projects to be undertaken. We doubt if the brethren who met at the beginning of the conference visualized the colleges, the Home and Foreign Missions and the Benevolences that were to follow in the course of years, but they did see the possibility of bigger things ahead and went right in for them. Our recollection of Father John Oberholtzer brings to mind how, in his old age, he delighted to relate his experiences as a leader to both young and old. There were troubles he had to meet that called for all the faith and energy he could command but, in a measure, he lived to see the beginnings of the great things the conference accomplished — there were the Wadsworth School, the Foreign Missions, the publishing interests already fairly well developed, and the accession of numerous churches in a number of states.

When the Conference met in California last, our country was in the beginning of the World War. Things were unsettled and there were problems of peculiar interest to the whole Mennonite church with relation to the war that had to be faced. Delegates going and coming met with trainload after trainload of soldiers on the way to the camps. The writer had the unusual experience of seeing a trainload of German prisoners, crews of German war ships, interned at Hawaii, unloaded at Salt Lake City. There were many problems to be met with reference to our attitude toward the war, but which had to wait for future developments. The marvel of it is that, in the face of war excitement that was sweeping over the country, so little attention was directed against the peace attitude of the Mennonites and that the officials were endeavoring to deal with the matter in some sort of a sympathetic way according to their light. Of course, what they did was far from satisfactory to us, but matters might have been a great deal worse. In any other warring country, we doubt whether it would have been possible at that time for Mennonites to hold any kind of a conference.

The great majority of the people composing the General Conference are today living in a territory hit by the greatest drouth in the history of our country, which has meant ruin to multitudes and brings the prospect of a coming winter that will impose terrible hardships upon millions of Americans, and this in the midst of the worst depression we have known. Just what will be the bearing of this condition upon the coming Conference we cannot say, except that it will call forth problems that will tax the abilities of the Conference to the extreme. With most of us bankrupt and our missionaries on the field who need to be cared for and our Home Missions which cannot be abandoned as well as our publications already in the deepest hole in their history, we surely will have to be doing some figuring. However, we are not in despair. The best things survive under the hardest conditions. Good things are always worth all they cost in sacrifice. The strongest ties are those cemented under the severest trials. We look for an epoch-making conference. —G.

THE SCHWENKFELDIANS

A group of Schwenkfeldians from Pennsylvania have been visiting the old home in Germany from which their fathers fled to Pennsylvania in the early part of the eighteenth century. This small group is closely related to the Mennonites and has maintained itself as well as its distinctive doctrines in America, although the sect has completely disappeared in Europe. Not only have they founded a community that has endured, but they have always appreciated the historical background from which they came. The outstanding results of their zeal for their church and its history may be seen in the gigantic undertaking in the publication of many volumes of the works of Casper Schwenkfeld, the Historical Library and the Perkiomen School they maintain at Pennsburg, Pa. The library, under the direction of Dr. Elmer Johnson, has received a nation-wide recognition and contains a very extensive collection of Mennonite historical material as well as material that applies to local and Schwenkfeldian interests.

QUARTERLY REPORT

Champa Station, First Quarter, 1934

Dear Brethren of the Foreign Mission Board:

The past three months were largely spent in touring. The first camp was located on the border between Champa and Korba territory, and so the Duerksens and we from Champa camped together. A great many villages were reached from this camp, and daily many people came to the tents to visit and to hear the message. However, during the whole season in all those villages not one person confessed Christ openly in response to our preaching. We are praying and trusting, nevertheless, that the seed sown may bear fruit in due time. Some heard the Gospel story many times. Why should they come again and again to our camp to hear if there was no response in their heart ?

Meanwhile at Champa another man has had a definite conversion experience, and he together with his wife and fourteen-year-old son have been baptized on Easter Sunday. His story in detail I am enclosing on a separate sheet for possible publication. Two other families have expressed their desire to become Christians, and also a young man who years ago wanted to take this step but was held back by his relatives.

I want to testify that renewed consecration has given me more joy and courage to preach and it seems as though more spiritually hungry people meet me everywhere. Perhaps they were always there, but my spiritual condition not being what it should be, the Lord could not introduce them to me. Respectfully submitted,

F. J. Isaac.

THE ANNUAL REPORT of the Hua Mei School, Kaichow, Hopei, China, for the year 1933

Hua Mei School Accepted by the Chinese

This school was established in the fall of 1916. It has a history of 18 years. During this period of time it has been managed by our missionary friends. Last year the Mission decided to turn mission schools over to the Chinese church. The local church, realizing the importance of educating the children of the church members, disregarded the difficulty before them and in the beginning of the year accepted the responsibility of this school. Now the school is controlled entirely by Chinese.

Organization

At the annual meeting of the local church four people were elected as members to the school board. Then the church committee also invited two people from the outside who were interested in the school, thus making in all six people on the school board. The board invited one of the church members to act as principal. The principal hired the teachers which were accepted by the school board. In the school the principal, general manager, business manager, director of the boys, and the matron of the girls were organized as an executive committee which takes care of the management of the whole institution.

Difficulties at the Time of Acceptance

The school could be opened this year because of the willingness on the part of the teachers to sacrifice. Before the school was opened the financial conditions were uncertain. On one hand the local church did not have sufficient funds and on the other hand the mission did not know for certain how much of a grant they could give. In the spring term there were four regular teachers and six voluntary teachers. The regular teachers did not get their full salaries. Each teacher received only $10.00 a month for his bare necessities. In the fall term we had four regular men teachers and one lady teacher and five voluntary teachers. This term, because of the financial help from some friends of the school, the teachers could get their full salary. On the whole, we had a very hard time financially, yet the school work was done quite satisfactorily.

For the first half of the year the teachers received $232.00 less than their regular allowance.

Financial Help from the Outside

After the school was accepted, the finances were uncertain. So the school board suggested collecting money from the outside. At first they sent letters to those people who had had connection with the school. Then Mr. Wang Juei Ting and Mr. James C. Liu went to the six main stations of our mission field to see the friends personally to whom the letters had been sent. Wherever they went both Christians and non-Christians were glad to contribute. Besides these six local mission stations, quite large gifts of money were contributed by the Christian friends at the North China Theological Seminary, Tenghsien, Shantung, China. Miss Frieda N. Sprunger has helped with $10.00 a month for one of the teachers since last September and is still helping until the end of August, 1934. As a whole, the result of this undertaking was very good.

Plans to Add Second Year of Junior High School Given Up

Early in the year, the school board decided to add the second year of Junior High School at the beginning of the fall term. Later, during the month of July, the big flood from the Yellow River came. Many people lost their homes and everything they had. So it was very hard for them to send their children to school. Thus the number of our students was decreased and consequently the income would be less and it was found necessary to give up the plan to add the second year. It is hoped, however, that it will be possible next year.

The Student Body

During the spring term we had 108 students, boys and girls. This fall there were 88 boys and 17 girls, making a total of 105. There were seven classes altogether. The first year of the Junior High School (or the seventh grade) had the most students (25) and the first grade had the least (9). Among the students there were 8 Christians and 21 inquirers. Because of the flood many old students were kept at home, but the number of new students was about half of the whole student body. So the discipline of the students this year is more complicated than in former years.

Expenses of the Students

This is a boarding school. The expense for each student in the Junior High School is about $25.00 per term, for a student in Higher Primary $18.00, for a student in Lower Primary $15.00. These figures include board, which is approximately $13.00 per term. The students who come from a greater distance naturally have a few extra expenses for travel, etc. There are two terms in a year.

Courses Taught

The curriculum is the same as that required by the Department of Education of the National Government of China. A library is provided for the students. Different kinds of magazines, papers,, etc., are supplied besides their regular courses.

Student Organizations

During the spring term the only organizations were board committee, student government, and a literary society. Since the fall term the student government has been changed into a combined Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. A group of young people has also organized the Youth's and Children's "Love the Lord" Society. The board committee is elected from among the students and is in charge of the boarding hall. The Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. consists of four departments: spiritual, intellectual, physical, and social. The purpose of this organization is to develop these qualities and abilities. It also helps the students to know how to serve the school. The purpose of the student government is to train students to do things along different lines. The Literary Society consists of the whole student body. A committee of four is elected from the students who arrange the programs for the meetings. The programs are given on each Saturday evening. The "Love the Lord" Society consists of a group of younger students. The purpose of this organization is to increase their love and loyalty to the Lord.

The Religious Life of the Students

We have joint chapel with the Bible School every morning except Sunday. On Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings there is a chapel service for the three departments, Hua Mei School, Bible School, and hospital combined. Every evening the students have their prayer meetings. On Friday afternoon the "Love the Lord" Society holds its regular meeting. They invite the teachers or outside speakers to tell Bible stories to them. On Sunday afternoon some of the students go to the country with the Bible School students to preach and some go to the hospital to sing for the patients. On Sunday evening the Y. M. C. A. invites the teachers or outside speakers to lead their Bible study class. It is expected that the students attend all the meetings of the local church.

Hope for the Future

At present the school is managed by the local independent church of the East Suburb at Kaichow. But this one church is not able to carry the whole burden of responsibility. It has been suggested by friends of the school that an organization consisting of representatives from the six counties of our field, be formed to take over the High School, which might be called "South Hopei Union Hua Mei Junior High School." The primary school would still be managed by the local church, and the High School would become an organization of our whole field. It had been planned to hold a meeting at the end of Summer Institute to discuss this matter. Delegates from the whole field had been asked to attend. Unfortunately, the flood came and the Summer Institute was closed early, so this meeting did not materialize. We still hope it can be held next year. Our hope for the future is to have a complete Junior High School in order to meet the needs of our churches and local community.

The Final Request

This report gives the general condition of the school for this year. We request first, prayer for the school; second, suggestions for improving the school; and third, financial aid.

THE PRACTICAL CHRIST IN LIVING

Scripture: "Is not this the carpenter"? Mark 6:3

Is it not an outstanding fact that any organization one might name, either secular or religious, has an occasional member that believes his particular group is the one Christ would select as being the one most nearly the point of perfection of all, when it comes to real practical living?

Now, I do not wish to be understood as either condemning or upholding this practice. Perhaps the man that believes Christ was a Socialist feels good over this belief; and, if he is a Christian, he must be honest, and Jesus will bless his soul. The same might be said of the dear old Republican or the dear old Democrat.

Christ was a friend of publicans and sinners, consequently we believe He is a friend of every man, woman, or child, regardless of church, party, or any other creed. While on earth He showed Himself to be interested in all practical affairs of life.

What is practical living, do you ask? We do not believe it is speculative living. We do not believe it is haphazard living. We do not believe it is self-centered living. We do believe, however, it is helpful living. We believe it is useful living. We believe it is living that upbuilds. In short, it is "Christian living."

The God-way of living — the Christ-way of living — has proved itself practical in every condition since the dawn of creation down to the very present. Christ was and still is the ideal in all practical living. He had practical ancestry, being the only begotten Son of God, nothing other than the practical in the highest degree could spring therefrom.

His earthly ancestry descended from the practical. The Davidic line was blessed with many God-fearing practical leaders. King David himself was the greatest and, no doubt, the most practical monarch of Israel's history.

Jesus was brought up under the care and instruction of most practical people. Joseph, his foster father, was a hard working carpenter. Mary, his virgin mother, was the very exemplification of all true virtue, a deep thinker of the economic things of life, and God's choice of a woman to be the mother of the everlasting "King of Salvation."

Not much is told us of the early life, the schooling and training of Jesus. However, it is said, "He went down with his parents to Nazareth and was subject unto them." Luke 2:51. Also, in this same chapter of Luke, that "He increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

"Is not this the carpenter"? ask the words around which we wish to somewhat centralize. Yes, I believe He was a good carpenter, an honest, hard working carpenter, a carpenter whose work was faultless. Joseph, His foster father, must have been an ideal instructor.

Jesus' own home people, according to the gospel narrative, did not seem to understand from whence came His wisdom, His great understanding. No doubt their envy and criticism came through jealousy because of His practicality above them all.

Christ's later life and ministry was an example in practical living. Development of the spiritual side of life, we must all agree, is the very foundation for practical material living. Jesus was the noblest pattern the world has ever known. His baptism, His wilderness experience, His subsequent ministry were all passed through in a successful manner because of strict adherence to "The Great Plan"; yes, God's plan for the saving of a world of lost sinners.

The way of love, as shown by Jesus, is it practical? Jesus went throughout all Galilee, visited the countries beyond Jordan, passed through Samaria, dwelt in Bethany of Judea, and other unnamed places, entered and preached in many towns and villages.

What was He occupied in all this time? — Doing good, healing the sick, preaching to poor and needy souls, and extending works of love and mercy. He was laying the foundation of the "Kingdom of God" in the hearts of men. If this sort of thing made people better, more useful, then, does it not apply now? Most assuredly — the way of Christ is practical.

It helps us in our living, not only to prepare for "Eternal Glory," but adds the all necessary qualities for good and useful work, helpful work, necessary work in every form, both mental and manual.

In conclusion, I believe we can all testify from actual experience that the Christ way of living enables one to go from one duty to another with a clear conscience, knowing that each and every task is polished by our very best effort.

Yes, it enables us to go on in this life singing in our heart "Glad Hallelujahs" of triumph, which shall continue to be sung and practiced forever and forever in "Yonder Glory World."

SEEING THE HOME THROUGH THE EYES OF JESUS

Luella Smith, Pawnee Rock, Kans.

After reflecting on the topic "Seeing the home through the eyes of Jesus" for a while, I came to the conclusion that to see "the home through the eyes of Jesus" was probably impossible for any human being. Jesus speaks little about the home, but He gives Christian principles to live by. And so I would like to call this paper "The Home in the Light of Christian Principles," as we know them.

It is not my purpose to present a pessimistic view of the home and family and to discry and bewail the evils of the home as so many writers do. If possible, I should rather like to throw on a challenge today, to you young people and old people alike, to take these opportunities which are yours today, in a greater measure than ever before, and make them such an institution, such an influence in this land and the world that it will make it the way God intended it to be.

The home is the unit of society — you have heard that many times, but have you thought of its possibilities? It determines more than any other one influence, and perhaps more than all influences combined, what the destiny of the girl or boy shall be. But more than this, the home shapes social life: it makes the church possible; it is the true basis of the state and nation.

And yet today there are those who tell us that the home has lost its functions, has lost its importance. A recent writer on the passing of the home, presented as his main contention that because mothers no longer baked bread and canned vegetables, the core of the home life was destroyed.

From this and many other such statements we see that the function of the home in the past, and even by many today, has been thought of as an economic function, i. e., it was thought that the home existed chiefly as a place where the members of the family could work and make a living. Today the idea of the function of the home in society is changing. Instead of the early colonial home where father, mother, and the children formed an independent little society —self-sufficient in all their needs, making all their clothes, shoes, tools, and implements and preparing all their food, the home has gradually become a part of an increasingly larger society where each family is dependent upon other units of industry for their everyday necessities. Until today we have such a closely woven net of interdependence that not even a nation is self-sufficient, but dependent on other nations for living necessities. But this does not mean that the home has lost its function. It means instead, that we must come to realize the real and much higher function (or work) of the home. What whereas in the past we have thought of the home chiefly as having only an economic function — a place to make a living — we must now realize that it has much greater work to do, that of character building, of developing Christian personalities. The function of the home, then, has shifted from making a living to making a life — a life that will be prepared (through associations with the Master) to meet the increasing complexities of society.

Recent social trends show that there is a definite decline in the economic functions of the home, i. e., the economic functions are more and more taken out of the home and into the shop and office; on the other hand, there is a predominant increase in the interest shown in personality development in the home which is very encouraging. The family has, of course, always been largely responsible for formation of character, but not until the home was stripped of some of its economic functions did it begin to realize the importance and possibilities of this responsibility and its most important contributions to society. Whatever else the home may be, then, we must consider it as a character building clinic for the growth of Christian character.

But how, you ask, is the home to be character clinic and have a predominant influence over the child when our very interdependence and ease of communication makes social influence outside the home, which is often widely different from that of the home, predominant.

While it is true that the family unit is to a large extent a concentrated reflection of the larger social group of which it is a part. It is also true on the other hand, that the family becomes the seed bed from which grow and develop ideas, ideals, attitudes, and practices which take their ultimate form in the larger group and determine the tone and trend of the community and of each succeeding generation.

This same principle holds in connection with the church; while the family needs religion to stabilize the home, the family really is necessary to vitalize the church.

Living is a fine art which cannot be learned from instruction only, but which requires much practice and some one to initate. If parents are to teach children how to live, they themselves will have to be the examples and be well trained to be able to guide children in the right path.

Training for parenthood is one of the greatest needs of the home. It is one of the first and surest remedies to be applied to the problems of the modern home. In it lie the roots of happy, successful Christian homes.

"Train up a child in the way he shall go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22:6). How many parents here can say they have accomplished training their children in the way they should go? How many young people, who, within the next five years are going to establish homes, are preparing themselves for successful parenthood, so that they may be able to train their children in that path which they shall go? How many are learning what that path is? How many are studying the most effective methods of training children in that way?

Parenthood is manysided. The needs of children are so various and changing that the average parent's inability to cope with the tremendous problem of dealing with the growing child is evident. We assume that a man or woman may be trained to become a physician, a teacher, or a stenographer. Yet we spend relatively little to teach our children to live their life in the proper way.

I wonder, for instance, how many parents realize that the very voice in which they speak to the little infant is a factor in shaping the future attitude of that life. One writer says, "The pleasure or disgust which the parent displays toward various situations does more to develop habit patterns in the little child than a formal course in courtesy, sympathy, and cooperation will be able to accomplish in high school. The basis for most happy and unhappy marriages was established before the persons involved were ten years of age. A child brought up in the atmosphere of courteous appreciation of the needs and privileges of other members of the household will learn self-control and repect for the rights of others.

Discord in the home worries a child more than parents or participants often realize. Not only does it worry a child or make him unhappy for the time being, but perpetual discord also builds up in him habits of thought and action that persist throughout the child's life and that are very likely to be drawn upon as an unrecognized guide in emergencies.

Not only does the parent need to know the influence his attitudes and relationships are going to have on his children, but he needs to be able to analyze himself and see what his attitudes and policies are.

The child in the home is unconscious of the influence his environment is having upon him or his personality; he is indifferent as to whether he is getting the proper foundation for future attitudes, or whether he is getting the correct training for the independent action that will some day be required of him. All this is left entirely up to the parents. The child responds in terms of what he conceives to be expected of him by those around him.

Very often parent-child conflicts set in because of wrong policies persued by the parents, thus inviting the antagonistic reaction of the child. For instance, parents often overstimulate their children so that they mature prematurely — not realizing that they are doing this merely for their own vanity by showing the grown-up-ness of their child. The strain on the child is often noticeable in an antagonistic spirit.

Or many parents pursue the molding policy; the parent conceives the child as material of his power, as a piece of wax that may be molded entirely by outside influence. Such a policy usually warps the child's personality and destroys the incentive which he will require later to do his work well. The child is a unique personality, often different in all important aspects from father and mother. The result is a struggle between child and parent, between the desire for self-expression on the part of the child and the love of power on the part of the parent.

Parents need to try to discover promising trends in the personality of the little one and to furnish means of growth which will permit the life to develop according to its bend, accepting the responsibility of guidance and of bringing to the child the conditions of growth. The meaning of human personality is sacredly recognized and every effort is made to help the inner life of the child to unfold itself.

I presume there is hardly a home represented here but what there were present in that home at one time or other parent-child conflicts, besides the above mentioned causes for conflict there are many others which we cannot stop to consider, such as the child being over-protected, lack of confidences between parent and child, the child being allowed too much freedom so that he develops into a tyrant, favoritism on the part of one or both of the parents, lack of effort on the part of both parents and children to understand each other, and by lack of training on part of parents to understand the different phases of childhood.

It is important that parents should know the detrimental influence of fears in a child's life and how such fears may be prevented or overcome. The same can be said of other complexes such as inferiority or superiority complex.

Not only is parent education necessary to prevent the conflicts and disharmonies of the home, but to know to constructively build homes that will influence and remake society by producing strong Christian characters.

We need to recognize the fact that the Christian family — the family that recognizes its responsibility of character building, must be a true democracy, a democracy where there is frank equality between father and mother, and a new constructive discipline, based on reasoning obedience to reasonable requests with responsibility shared with trusted children, all having a voice in the family council.

Formerly father's word has been law — at home — the father's rule has been lenient enough to be benevolent despotism, but tyranny nevertheless; children were taught to be seen, but not heard and to give unquestionable obedience.

At present it is true that many homes have gone to the other extreme, giving the child absolute reign, and we have what is called the tyranny of the high chair. In an age like ours the Christian home must be a true democracy. We need to face the fact that the home is for the children, that it is built around the children, and that they have personal rights which must be respected. Children have, for instance, the right to an explanation of what they are to do; they have a right to know why certain requests are demanded. There is no justification for the statement, children should be seen but not heard." On the other hand, the superior wisdom of parents, based on wider experience, must be recognized and respected, but the individuality of the child must not be crushed by forced obedience. The only safe obedience is willing obedience. This willing obedience is secured largely through the habit of shared confidences between trusted children and parents. The family should by all means develop the custom of the informal council — the "let's sit down and talk it over" idea. This gives the child the joy of feeling he really belongs instead of being merely an extra addition outside the family. It also prevents many misunderstandings and conflicts. Children honor the confidence of their elders by becoming more trustworthy; they develop self-respect and manliness. Definite responsibilities make them more dependable.

But to make the democratic family a success and to establish the proper relationships not only within the family but with society as well, we must accept religion, or Christianity, as the stabilizer of the home. By religion I mean a wonderful way of living, as natural as it is spiritual. It is a life of love, faith, and service of God and our fellow men, inspired by the ideals and purposes of Christ.

Every home should be a school of Christian living. It is only through the practice that good habits are formed. To insure a Christian character, children must practice religion in a character clinic. Talk is weak, but practice is mighty. Religion must be regarded as a prime necessity for living a life; it must be a present, living experience. The children in a home will know whether the religion of the elders is sincere or not. Too much religion is only churchanity, and can not be really effective.

There must be training in public worship and religion. Such home training in worship includes: (1) Unconscious impressions of a worship environment — the prayers of a mother as she kneels by the cradle of her infant mean much to the child as well as to the mother; (2) praying with father and mother — the bedside prayer is sensed before it is understood; (3) personal prayer habits should be started and a desire for prayer aroused by explaining meanings of prayers; (4) original prayers should be encouraged. Prayer experiences should be explained and developed. Children should be helped to answer their own prayers. Real religion should be taught — not only about it — but teach a unity of experience and make life and religion inseparable. Children should also be taught facts about the Bible, such as its history, how it was put together, and how to use it, as well as its literary and historical value. Study the psychology of Jesus' prayer life. Rediscover the meaning of prayer — prayer that releases the stored up spiritual energies of our lives and divine resources near at hand, and makes man superman — man plus the power of God.

Religion is the most effective stabilizer of the family — a home-centered life with Christ at the heart of it, usually makes the family permanent and successful.

I have not, in this paper, treated such problems as divorce, the decreasing birth rate, illegitamacy, and amusements which are usually spoken of in connection with the problems of the home. The reason for omitting these was: (1) I wanted to show that there were new and great possibilities within the family today, as well as failures; and, (2) because I felt that making the best of these possibilities and building the proper foundation would eliminate these failures of the home.

Now before every one of us, since every one has personal relations, lies a whole new world to be shaped by creative instinct. There lie the raw materials of glory, the same old primitively necessary human ties without which the race has never been able to exist a moment — mating, parenthood, responsibility of one to another. There lies our raw material — the relationship between men and women, between parents and their children.

"We know from the core of our beings that beautiful things can be made of such relationships, and the glowing certainty of this seems to me to be the first element in any training to cope with them."

BETHEL MENNONITE YOUNG PEOPLE'S RETREAT

REPORT OF THE 35th ANNUAL SESSION of the Pacific District Conference, held in the First Mennonite Church, Aberdeen, Idaho, June 7-10, 1934

The Thirty-fifth Annual Conference of the Pacific District convened on Thursday, June 7, at 2:00 P. M. Instead of having a Ministers' Conference, it had been planned by the conference officers that this should be a session for prayer and consecration. After the singing of two appropriate songs, Rev. Albert Claassen read from Hebrews 10 and made some practical remarks, then the time was used for testimonies and prayer.

The opening service took place Thursday evening, June 7, at 8 P. M., with a song service led by Rev. Lester Hostetler. Rev. J. E. Kaufman, the pastor of the local church, welcomed the delegates and visitors, to which Rev. S. S. Baumgartner responded with some practical remarks.

After a short prayer service, led by Rev. J. M. Franz, and two appropriate selections by the male chorus of the local church, Rev. J. M. Regier, the president of the Conference, preached the conference sermon on the subject: "The Church With Power." The service closed with prayer and benediction led by Rev. S. S. Baumgartner.

On Friday morning the Conference began its regular session of business. Rev. P. R, Aeschliman led the prayer session.

Following the order of business, the secretary now read the minutes of the 34th session and also of the short session which was held in connection with the General Conference in Bluffton, Ohio, August 22 and 28, 1933. Both of these reports stood approved as read.

After having completed this preliminary business, Rev. A. Claassen discussed the topic: "The Power of Growth in the Church," after which Rev. F. F. Jantzen spoke on "The Meaning and Source of Power in the Church."

The forenoon session closed with an interesting Bible study on the topic: "Jeremiah's Life and Times," by Rev. L. Hostetler. Closing prayer was led by Rev. Herbert Widmer.

The Friday afternoon session was opened by an appropriate talk on "The Means and Power of Prayer," by Rev. F. R. Aeschliman.

Committee to examine applications for membership in the conference reported at this time.

Resolved, to welcome the Grace Mennonite Church of Albany, Oregon, and the Grace Mennonite Church of Dallas, Oregon, into the conference by standing vote.

Rev. J. M. Franz discussed the following topic: "How can we have more power in the church"? Rev. S. S. Baumgartner discussed the topic: "In what way can the Sunday School be a power for our church"? Rev. P. R. Aeschliman closed this session with the discussion of the topic: "What can our Conference do to assist the conference churches which, because of financial distress, are hardly able to continue"?

After a round table discussion the meeting closed with prayer, led by President J. M. Regier.

The Friday evening session was in charge of the Women's Missionary Sewing Society.

Saturday morning, June 9: Business session of the Conference. The meeting was opened with song and a short message on prayer by Rev. P. R. Aeschliman.

First the report of the Evangelization Committee was given by Rev. S. S. Baumgartner.

Several representatives of our conference home mission work were present and were asked to give an oral report of the work.

Rev. Herbert Widmer reported on the work in Dallas, Oregon.

Rev. P. R. Aeschliman reported on the conditions at Newport, Washington.

Brother Elmer Widmer reported on the work of the Grace Church at Albany, Oregon.

Rev. Albert Claassen and Sister C. Niswander reported on the work in the Portland Mission church.

Resolved, that we accept the report of the Evangelization Committee as read.

Second the report of the Treasury was read and considered. In the absence of the treasurer, Bro. John C. Jantz, this report was read by the conference secretary.

Resolved, that the treasurer's report and the report of the auditing committee be accepted.

Resolved, that the chairman appoint a committee to make a list of the needs of our Pacific Conference work and suggest a method of assigning definite projects to the various churches for support.

The following committee was appointed by the chair: Rev. Lester Hostetler, Miss Emma Ruth, Mrs. Dan Wenger.

The report of the Field Secretary was read by Miss Emma Ruth.

Resolved, that the report of the Field Secretary be accepted for discussion. The following recommendations were made in the Field Secretary's report:

1. In view of the fact that the General Conference is to be held in California next year, we recommend to the Y. P. Committee of the General Conference that a General Conference Y. P. Retreat be held in California next year preceding the sessions of the General Conference, and that we pledge our support to such an undertaking.
2. Since the Sunday Schools of the Pacific District Conference have voluntarily assumed the support of the Portland Mission as their project, that our Y. P. societies be encouraged to give their support to some other missionary project in a united effort.
3. In view of the invitations that have come from the different churches, particularly those which are somewhat isolated, for the annual visit of the field secretary, that the possibility of such a trip be again taken under consideration for next year.

Resolved, that if possible the Field Secretary make an annual visit to the various churches the coming year.

At this time the question was brought up where the next session of the conference should be held.

Resolved, that we plan to hold the next Pacific District Conference the day before the opening session of the General Conference.

Saturday afternoon, June 10, the meeting was opened by song and an impressive devotional service led by Bro. P. R. Aeschliman.

The following two topics were discussed at this time: "The Church, a Power in the World," by Bro. Marvin Linscheid; "Our Young People, the Future Power of the Church," by Bro. R. Ewy. The devotional part of this conference closed with a second interesting Bible study on the topic "Jeremiah, a Prophet with Power," by Rev. Lester Hostetler.

The following message was sent to the Northern Conference: "The Pacific District Conference is just closing a delightful session. We send greetings of Christian fellowship to the Northern District Conference."

Report of the resolutions committee, read by Mrs. Lester Hostetler. Be it resolved:

1. That we thank our Heavenly Father for the privilege of assembling with the First Mennonite Church of Aberdeen, Idaho, and for His guidance during the Conference.
2. That we express our thanks to Rev. J. E. Kaufman and the local congregation for their hospitality and kindness to all delegates and visitors.
3. That we thank the officers of the conference for their services in arranging for and conducting the helpful and inspiring services of the conference. We thank all those who have willingly taken part in the program and praise God for the spiritual blessings we have received from the addresses and discussions. We especially wish to thank Rev. Aeschliman for his uplifting devotional messages.
4. That we express our regret that our coworkers, Rev. M. J. Galle, Rev. H. J. Krehbiel, Rev. D. D. Eitzen, and Rev. Harley King were unable to be present with us and wish to instruct the secretary to send to them the greetings of the Conference.

Respectfully submitted,

(Mrs. Lester Hostetler, Miss Catherine Niswander, Rev. Herbert Widmer.)

Resolved, that the Resolutions Committee be instructed to formulate a resolution expressing our attitude on the question of war and peace, to be presented to the conference on Sunday afternoon.

The following resolution was presented to the Conference on that Sunday afternoon:

"We recommend that our pastors and Sunday School teachers and Christian Endeavor workers present the teachings of Jesus and the position of the church in regard to war and peace to the young people, in the endeavor to have them form sincere convictions regarding the Christian attitude towards this question."

This finished the business part of the Conference sessions of the Pacific District. After a few closing remarks by the president, it was resolved that this Conference be adjourned.

J. M. Franz, Secretary.

AIMS OF OUR HOSPITAL TRAINING SCHOOL

An Address at Central Conference at Danvers

By Florence Badertscher-Amstutz

As a church we believe that through us Christ expects to minister to the world and to win it for His Kingdom. We are to salvage both body and soul. The hospital is a servant to the church to accomplish the ministry of healing. In addition, the hospital furnishes an important part in the educational work of the church.

But we must have a clear vision of what we wish to accomplish for our student nurses in order to directly benefit your work through the hospital. We identify ourselves with the position of the late Dean Oyer of Goshen College, wherein he said, "In seeking a way out of our difficulties it is essential that our intellectual age overcome its fear of clear-cut positive convictions. The college must be a place where a positive faith is nurtured, instead of doubts and negations." So with our School of Nursing.

Each year a group of young women comes to our school for training in the care of the sick. We believe that the Christian training is superior to that given in secular or state institutions, else what is our excuse for existence as a school for nurses? We feel like Dr. Mosiman in speaking on "Ideals of Bluffton College": "If the Christian college is not able to lead the way back and the way forward in education, then it has no mission and had better close its doors."

"What are we doing to enrich the spiritual life of these girls, so that they may leave us better and stronger and more fully consecrated to God"? asks a superintendent of an eastern hospital. "The situations that the young women must face daily are such that they either wreck them or make them a thousand times stronger in their faith. How can we contribute to the building up of the nobility of mind and soul of our nurses, and how can we equip them to be true servants of God in their ministry of nursing? Ours is the opportunity and the responsibility."

Since the average patient bases his opinion of the hospital on the nursing service, contacts with the patients are a fine opportunity to interpret the spirit of the hospital to the public. The nurse's approach, her genuine interest in the patient, — in fact, the sum total of all her efforts toward the healing of human life, — are the things by which the hospital and the quality of training are judged. We have been taught to believe that the hospital was instituted for the welfare of the patient. Therefore, the consideration of the patient comes first.

The modern physician wants a graduate nurse, and a good, competent one. She must be highly skilled, must possess an abundance of common sense, adaptability, and a thorough understanding and knowledge of the complicated procedures, and be well seasoned with devotion and consecration. The hospital wants nurses who will appreciate that the institution constantly deals with the public; that it represents one angle of the sacred work of the church, and that selfish or individual interests must give place to the greater interests — the welfare of the whole work.

I am convinced that the true Christian nurse has chosen this particular profession because it affords her the best means of interpreting the love of Christ to humanity. Certainly this motive conflicts in no way with the interests in which our hospital was established.

The aim of our nursing education, then, is a harmonious blending of all our duties as consecrated nurses. We wish our outward actions to be the expression of the fine inner life and communion with the Father. Thus with faith centered in Christ and allegiance with the Holy Spirit may we accomplish our end! Thus can we be certain that Christ liveth in us and the life we live is Christ's.

"Only as nursing gives full measure of courtesy, kindliness, gentleness, sympathetic un-

CORRESPONDENCE

Salem Mennonite Church, Marion, South Dakota, July 31, 1934. Dear Editor: Here is the last day of the first month of the second half of the year and our people are looking for a report.

With sincere hope our people were looking forward to a crop this year and relief from the serious shortage of feed. Early in the year considerable snow fell and the grain was put in with a fair amount of surface moisture. It came up very promising, but the month of May proved a record for heat and absence of moisture. Small grain was soon doomed, but some fine showers in June gave promise of a corn crop. Now July came back even stronger and more devastating than May and on this date our hopes for corn are about blasted. The writer still believes in miracles, but only such a miracle can save our remaining prospects. These trying times give us younger people somewhat of an insight of what our pioneer fathers experienced more than fifty years ago. They test our ingenuity, character, courage, and faith as prosperity never could, so we humbly bow and submit to a higher power.

During the closing days of the old year we were privileged to listen to a most interesting, instructive, and inspiring series of lectures on "Voices from the Bible Lands" by Dr. J. E. Hartzler of Bluffton, Ohio. These were held in the college auditorium at Freeman and were attended by record crowds from within and without our denomination.

At least two well known missionaries visited and spoke in our church recently, they being Dr. Harvey Bauman from the India field, and Rev. P. J. Boehr of China. The usual interesting reports were brought by these brethren from the heathen lands.

Our Freeman Junior College closed its thirtieth year in May, with Dr. E. G. Kaufman, President of Bethel College, delivering the Commencement Address on the subject of "Building a Better World." Our poor crops of the last four years have made the work of keeping the college going an almost super-human task. Only the courage, loyalty, and sacrifice of President J. D. Unruh and his co-workers have kept the doors open. What the future has in store for this institution is veiled in mystery.

On the 4th day of July our church and the Salem-Zion church held a joint Sunday School picnic in the Weicht grove. This was the continuation of a custom that has been in vogue for a number of years. At the program in the forenoon the joint Men's Chorus of the two churches rendered several musical numbers and Rev. Chas. Gerlinger of the First Congregational Church of Sioux Falls delivered the address. Rev. Gerlinger paid a fitting tribute to the Mennonite doctrines, of which he had made a study, and expressed his belief that they are workable and worthy of proclaiming to the present nations of the world. It is gratifying indeed, that our doctrines are gaining recognition among the other churches and denominations and that the Mennonite anti-war attitude is no longer a phantastic theory, but a sober-minded program.

Our pastor, P. R. Schroeder, now chairman of the General Conference, is constantly being invited to hold meetings and has only been able to respond to a small part of the calls received.

A recent death among our church members was that of Mrs. Frances Gering, widow of C. Gering, who died of gangrene in the leg, and was buried July 3, 1934. John J. Gering.

Imanuel Church, Los Angeles, California. The German communion was held August 12 at the mission house. Miss Faust who has served two terms as a General Conference missionary in China, arrived in Los Angeles harbor and was a welcome visitor at Imanuel.

Rev. and Mrs. Eitzen are to be congratulated on the birth of a son, David III.

The women's Bible class had charge of the evening service on August 5.

Those planning to attend the Mennonite Retreat at Lake Sequoi, are Gunar Anderson, Lyman Sprunger, Katherine Klassen, Gladys Cuevas, James Hilty, Miss Burkhalter, Dorothy Schroeder, and Aaron Jantzen.

Rev. Charles Derr was a special speaker at the evening service, July 29. He is a Presbyterian missionary at Hengjow, China. He and Mrs. Derr expect to return to their field this month.

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. Celia King, Thursday, August 9th. A pot luck dinner was served at noon.

The Good Fellowship class enjoyed a pot luck supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Heffner, Friday, August 10.

Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Hostetler and sons of Hopedale, Illinois, visited recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Moses Hostetler.

Miss Madine Miller of Bryan, Ohio, and Carmon Miller of Angola, Indiana, spent a week's vacation with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Miller.

Kathryn Yoder, Mary Catherine Peterson, Evelyn Bobeck, Nedra Loy, Evelyn Steele, Paul Kohl, and Alden Plank attended the Retreat at Shipshewana Lake, August 13-21. Rev. and Mrs. Salzman and Mrs. Lydia Plank were sponsors for the group.

Rev. E. J. Bohn and family of Souderton, Pa., visited with relatives in this vicinity. Rev. Bohn delivered the morning message, Sunday, August 19.

The Berean class met Thursday, August 23, with Mrs. Freeman Bobeck.

Mrs. Clyde Yoder entertained the ladies of the Good Fellowship class Friday afternoon, August 24.

Rev. Raymond Hartzler and family of Carlock, Illinois, spent several days recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Hartzler.

Rev. and Mrs. Salzman and daughters attended the Annual Conference of Central Mennonites, held at Danvers, Ill., August 24-27.

THE ROAD TO HAPPINESS

It's only just a little road,
The road that leads
To happiness. It's made of faith
And kindly deeds.

Of pleasantness, of words that bless,
Of thoughts that heal;
Of very silent giving up
For other's weal.

"I WILL BE CHRISTIAN IN EVERY HUMAN RELATIONSHIP"

Rev. Lester Hostetler, Upland, Calif.

What the world needs and what every church needs and what every individual needs is to have human relationships governed everywhere by the spirit of Christ.

The first place to begin is the home. There are three great institutions whose purpose it is, in part at least, to develop character: the church, the school, the home. Of the three, the greatest is the home.

As the home is, so is the church and the nation. Unless love pervades the home there is small chance that it will pervade the wider social relationships. Unless children learn the principles of service and unselfishness, respect for the rights of others, courtesy, fair dealing, reverence, and sobriety, in the home, it cannot be expected that they will go out at mature men and women and conduct their lives as children of the King. Do we really desire to be Christian? Then let us begin at home. If our relationships with father and mother, brothers and sisters are in keeping with the spirit of Christ, then it is likely that we possess a secret of living which is worth while injecting into the whole fabric of human relationships. When men everywhere recognize God as Father, and treat each other as brothers, and seek heaven as their eternal home, then the ancient prophecy of redeemed society shall indeed have been fulfilled.

THE EVOLUTIONIST'S "GENESIS"

In the beginning the Unknowable moved upon the Cosmos and evolved Protoplasm; and Protoplasm contained all things in potential energy; and a Spirit of Evolution moved upon the fluid mass.

Then the Unknowable said, "Let atoms be differentiated"; and their contact begat light, and their combinations begat air, rock, and water.

And there went out a Spirit from the Unconditioned and produced the organic cell; and this begat Eozoon, and Eozoon begat Monad, and Monad begat Animalcule.

And from the Animalcule, by progressive steps, was at length evolved Ascidian, and from the Ascidian came the Simidae, and among these the Lemur prevailed above his fellows and produced the Platyrhine.

And the Platyrhine went into the land of Nod and took him a wife of the Anthropoid Apes.

And in process of the cosmic aeons were born unto them and their children the anthropomorphic primordial types; and these are the generations of primeval man.

WHAT SOME OF THE WORLD'S GREATEST SCIENTISTS SAY

Darwinism is dead, and will soon be buried without hope for resurrection. But, without Darwinism, evolution is the mere empty shell of a venerable speculation.—Dr. H. C. Morton, in "The Bankruptcy of Evolution" (p. 13).

It is impossible for scientists longers to agree with Darwin's theory of the origin of species.

No explanation whatever has been offered for the fact that after forty years no evidence has been discovered to verify his genesis of species.—Prof. William Bateson, of Cambridge, England, the Greatest Living Biologist (Ibid, p. 103).

The Darwinian theory is now rejected by the majority of biologists as absurdly inadequate, owing to its principle being wholly negative. . . . Evolution never was a cause of anything.—Dr. W. H. Thomson, Ex-president of the New York Academy of Medicine, in "Wonders of Biology."

In all this great museum there is not a particle of evidence of transmutation of species. Nine-tenths of the talk of evolutionists is sheer nonsense, not founded on observation, and wholly unsupported by fact. This museum is full of proofs of the utter falsity of their views.—Dr. Etheridge, of the British Museum, England's Greatest Authority on Fossils.

The idea of any relation having been established between the nonliving and living, by a gradual advance from lifeless matter to the lowest forms of life, and so onwards to the higher and more complex, has not the slighest evidence from the facts of any section of living nature, of which anything is known. . . . In support of all naturalistic conjectures concerning man's origin, there is not at this time a shadow of scientific evidence.—From Address at the Victoria Institute, London, June 1903, by Professor Beale, of King's College, London.

I marvel at the undue haste with which teachers in our universities, and preachers in our pulpits, are restating truth in the terms of evolution, while evolution remains an unproven hypothesis in the corollaries of science.—From an Address to the British Association of Science, by Lord Kelvin, the Greatest of Modern Scientists. —C. E. Quarterly.

FAITH OF OUR MOTHERS

Faith of our mothers, hold it true
As morning star in heaven's blue,
As peerless pearl from ocean's bed,
As guiding light seen far ahead,
Faith of our mothers, blessed faith,
It shall be ours to hold till death.

Faith of our mothers, hold in trust
That which is true and pure and just,
Her loving thought and constant prayer
For those held dear who leave her care.
Faith of our mothers, blessed faith,
In holy hope, we'll hold till death.

Faith of our mothers, hold in love
This sacred treasure from above,
God grant it grace upon its way,
O'er wandering souls to hold its sway.
Faith of our mothers, blessed faith,
Triumphantly, we'll hold till death.

Basic Virtues — Courtesy

Luke 7:44-46

God give us men, yes, the world sorely needs Christian ladies and Christian gentlemen. Our study this week leads us into the discussion of courtesy, its value and contribution in living the full and the good life. It might be well to have the leader or some other appointed person to define courtesy. It might be someone who is known for his courtesy or you might point to a very courteous person and describe him. No better example can be found than in the person of Jesus Christ.

Courtesy is one of those everyday qualities which should be used everywhere and at all times, it is not only a Sunday or a "company" mannerism which can be put on like a garment. That will be too superficial. It should be motivated by love and a high regard for all personalities. The courteous boy or girl in the home says "Thank you," "If you please," and "Pardon me" to parents and brothers and sisters. The young Christian will at all times seek to be kind and considerate to all elders. Older people may be in their second childhood and have a lack of understanding in respect to the new day, but nevertheless they have experienced many things and have sacrificed much for the younger generation and deserve our sincere love and reverence. No doubt everybody has heard the story of the little boy who was trying to carve a wooden trough for his parents because he had seen and heard their abuse which had been heaped upon the old father who had soiled some of the table linen and consequently was compelled to eat in the corner of the kitchen out of a wooden bowl, so the young son was already laying the plans for his parents in their older years.

It behooves each one of us to be courteous to every stranger who comes within our gates, be he a traveler, a tramp, an agent, or a guest. Likewise it is part of our Christian duty as well as a part of our business obligation to treat our patrons kindly if we happen to be in any public service, such as a clerk, a school teacher, or an officer at law. He who would serve in a public capacity must learn to be patient and admit that the other fellow is right, and forego pride. "Love seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked."

Questions

1. What is meant by courtesy?
2. Tell about courtesy as taught in Luke 7: 44-46.
3. How courteous should we be in the home?
4. Should men be more or less courteous to women since they have received equal suffrage with men?
5. What should be our attitude toward our elders?
6. Why should Christians always be courteous?

Basic Virtues — Good Will — Genesis 13:8-9

This is the last of the "Basic Virtue" series that we will discuss at this time. Tonight we will consider Good Will. This means a high regard for others. It includes the message of I Corinthians 13, the Golden Rule, and the teaching of Jesus when He said, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you."

The world is becoming increasingly one large neighborhood, the whole family of nations is being tied more and more closely together, hence if we will make any progress in civilization we must of necessity learn to live together peaceably and lovingly. Suspicion, fear, prejudice, and intolerance must go in a world where Jesus Christ rules.

Questions

1. What is meant by good will and how is it illustrated in our lesson text?
2. Show how the spirit of good will is heeded in the home and in the school.
3. How can the church show a finer spirit of good will?
4. How can we progress in manifesting a spirit of good will?
    a) First speaker—Between individuals who dislike each other.
    b) Second speaker—Between rival churches.
    c) Third speaker—Between social classes.
    d) Fourth speaker—Between racial classes.
    e) Fifth speaker—Between nations.
5. In what ways is a sympathetic understanding necessary in bringing about a spirit of good will?
6. In what ways can the Word of God help us to live a life of good will?

Good Will In Speech

Perhaps the most popular man in our town was John Whitney. In neither direction was he conversationally conspicuous. But he used his words well. He had a genius for saying the right thing at the right time. If you were sad, he knew how to make you feel better. If you were in a temper, he could "calm you down." Conversation seemed to seek a curiously high level when John was around.

I remember one talk fest in which the character of a young woman was being torn to shreds. Appearances were against her. John's face grew dark as the tongues clicked.

"What's the matter, John"? a neighbor asked.

"I just don't like this kind of talk," he said quietly. "After all, we don't know that any of these things are true."

And then he told us the story of a peasant with a troubled conscience who had come to a monk for advice. The peasant had circulated slander about a friend — only to find out later that it wasn't true.

The monk was old and wise. "If you want to make peace with your conscience," he said, "you must fill a bag with chicken down, go to every dooryard in the village, and drop in each of them one fluffy feather."

The peasant did as he was told. Then he came back to the monk and announced that he had done penance for his folly. "Not yet"! said the monk, sternly. "Take up your bag, go the rounds again, and gather up every feather that you have dropped!"

"But the wind must have blown them all away."

"Yes, my son," replied the monk. "And so it is with gossip. Words are easily dropped, but, no matter how hard you try, you can never get them back again."

The parable was like a shower on a granite walk. It washed away the dirt. The group and the gossip broke up.

John Whitney was a gentleman. Every one loved and respected him. He left no relatives nearer than a third cousin, but his grave has never lacked flowers.—(Selected.)

Where There Are No Churches

Acts 1:8

"There would be no missions if Christians did not have 'power within' that drives them on."

Pre-Prayer

Pause for a moment to praise God that you live in a land where the gospel is taught and in return for your thankfulness let Him fill you with His message of salvation that you might give it out to others through your life that you live and the words that you say.

Suggestive Prayer

Prelude — "Jesus Calls Us."

Praise Service.

Devotionals.

Silent prayer closing with "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

Leader's introduction of the topic.

Question 1: What type of social life is evident in a land where there are no churches?

2. Discuss the law control in a region where there are no churches.

3. What effect does the lack of churches have upon the business districts and the agricultural regions and life?

4. Name some of the customs practiced in countries where Christ is not known.

5. Why is there so much superstition in lands where there are no churches?

6. What responsibility does God place upon all those naming the name "Christian" in relationship to these districts, mountains, slums, lands, and countries without churches and without Christ?

7. Is it possible to have churches and yet be without Christ?

Prayer by volunteers for the passion for lost souls across the oceans and here in the homelands. Pray God's blessing upon those who have gone to proclaim this gospel message, and pray for a willing and yielded heart and life and ears and souls tuned to God's voice in our lives.

Special music—"Speak, My Lord."

Announcements—Announce your leader for next Sunday night, and the topic, extending a hearty invitation to all to come.

Benediction.

Should I Like To Be A Missionary?

II Cor. 11:23-33

Paul said, "The love of Christ constraineth me."

Pre-Prayer

Pause for a moment in which you come to a full realization of what it means to be a missionary.

1. What is most important in my decision to be a missionary? Is it for money, fame, thrill, or amusement?

2. Since the name missionary means a "messenger" of good news, what are some of the privileges one has in the service of a missionary?

3. Are not all Christian men and women called of God as missionaries?

4. What contributions do missionaries make to health conditions?
to the development of industry?
to lift moral standards?
to exalt the value of human life?
to lift up womanhood?
to bless childhood?
to help the afflicted?
in your neighborhood, home, city, nation, and abroad?

5. Is the life of the missionary one of ease and comfort?

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

The Junior Pledge

"I WILL PRAY"

Prayer is talking to our Heavenly Father, thanking Him for what He has done for us and asking Him for His care and protection; for God hears and answers prayer. Remember, Jesus said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." There is no trouble so small that we cannot take it to the Lord in prayer and feel that He will bless us.

One clause of our Junior Pledge reads, "I will pray and read the Bible every day." Let us not forget our sentence prayers in our Junior C. E. meetings. Without our sentence prayers we cannot have a complete meeting. Let me illustrate with a story that shows that our boys and girls love to pray.

At one of our Junior C. E. meetings this spring an intoxicated man was attracted to our open windows by our singing; having a harmonica with him, he also joined in with our songs, one being especially familiar to him, "Let Jesus Come Into Your Heart." At the request of the children we invited him to come into the adult C. E. meeting, which he willingly did. After the boys and girls had quieted down, and we had explained to them what harm comes from drinking, we had our sentence prayers. Without asking the Juniors to remember this particular man in their prayers, a number of them prayed for him, asking God in their simple way to help this man to become a better man and live a nobler life. I cannot help but feel that some day these prayers of childlike faith will be answered by our Heavenly Father, for He is a prayer-answering God. "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh, receiveth; and he that seeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened."

May our boys and girls learn that God has a plan for this wayward man who once had known the joy of Christian service, and may this experience and the simple prayers of our Juniors be the means of bringing him back to follow out the plan God had for his life.

Dear Juniors, let us not forget that the darkest word is "SIN." The shame of sin fastening itself upon the lives of our boys and girls is a most pitiable thing. The Bible says, "If we confess our sin (that is, if we tell them to our loving Heavenly Father), He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins." We are reminded that the faithful prayers of a little child in Israel were instrumental in the healing of Naaman, the leper.

In closing let me leave a few choice verses with you:

"Pray without ceasing."

"Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth."

"A little child shall lead them."

"Yield not to temptation."

"Enter into His courts with praise."

"Rejoice evermore."

—"A Friend of Juniors."

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: Paul, Who Gave All To Christ

Phil. 3:7-10

I am quite sure that almost every Junior could tell a good deal about Paul, especially the story of his conversion. You know too, that he became a great preacher and missionary, starting many churches. We could easily spend the hour telling of things that he did and places that he went, but if we keep our topic in mind, we shall speak rather of how he proved that he had given himself altogether to Christ. When he gave his heart, he gave his whole body and all of his strength to living for Jesus. This meant that he must give up many things that had been worth a great deal to him before he was saved. Our Scripture speaks of him as having lost "all things." What were some of them?

Let us turn to Phil. 3:4-6 and see. He was a splendid Jew and kept the law, even persecuting the Christians because he thought they were wrong. For a time he thought he was pleasing God in doing this, but he finally found that he was all wrong and could never be saved by obeying the law, but must believe on Jesus Christ. He had enough education that he might have become a great man of the world, but he forgot such dreams too as he went out to tell others of Jesus. He tells of having been beaten, stoned, and shipwrecked and was finally in prison for a long time, but he was never sorry that he gave up what he did. Instead of that he was glad. You older boys and girls ought to read the whole of Philippians and notice how happily he writes. See how many times you can find such words as "joy," "rejoice," "gladness."

Reading that book should make us ashamed ever to complain about anything we give up. Did you know that Christ has promised to more than make up for anything we give up for Him? Read what He said in Luke 18:29, 30. Paul found that true, and so do we. Another of God's wonders!

Plans for the Meeting

Let the missionary committee take charge of this meeting, and if there is time after studying the topic, speak of present-day Christians who have given all to Christ, and of the joy they have found in serving Him. Use such songs as "I'll Live for Him," "Take My Life and Let It Be," etc.

Questions

1. What kind of man was Paul before he was saved?
2. How did he prove that he really gave all to Christ?
3. What are some of the things he gave up for Christ?
4. What did he gain?
5. What does Christ promise those who live for Him?

Topic.—God's Wonder Book: Bible Characters I Know. — Heb. 11:1-7

Plans for the Meeting

This can easily be made a very interesting meeting in which all may have a part. Some time in advance assign to each Junior the name of some Bible character of whom he may speak. The names of these Bible people should be written on the blackboard as they are mentioned. After all of the Juniors have spoken, ask them to name other Bible characters who may be added to your list. The Juniors will enjoy a Bible character alphabet drill. Have them choose sides as for a spelling contest. The "sides" will then name Bible characters in turn, beginning with "A" and going through the alphabet, one name for each letter. The superintendent should take time at the close to draw practical lessons from the lives of some of these Bible characters.

Questions

1. Why does God want us to know the men and women of the Bible?
2. Tell some things we learn about God as we study their lives.
3. Who is your favorite Old Testament character? Why?
4. Who is your favorite New Testament character? Why?
5. How many Bible boys and girls do you know?

Hezekiah Leads His People Back to God

Lesson Text.—II Chronicles 30:1-9, 13

Golden Text.—The Lord your God is gracious and merciful. II Chron. 30:9.

Hezekiah came to the throne of Judah two years after the downfall of Israel. He ruled from 720 B. C. to 692 B. C. Israel fell in 722 B. C. The downfall of Israel made a profound impression on the southern kingdom. After Jeroboam II Israel's kings were weak and began to pay tribute to Assyria. Finally Assyria came in and took Israel into captivity. This is the beginning of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel. They were lost in the sense that they merged into the life of other races and lost their identity. They dissolved like salt in water.

The Hebrews of the southern kingdom now sought for the cause of Israel's downfall. They believed that Israel sinned, therefore she fell. Her sin was idolatry and infidelity to Jehovah. Also in their relation to others, their sin was injustice and oppression. So that when Assyria destroyed her political identity, sin had already destroyed her soul. Greed, materialism, and lust had destroyed national and individual character and substituted debasing Canaanite forms of worship.

Hezekiah, when he came to the throne as a young man, knew that he could not fight Assyria, so for nine years he paid the tribute his father Ahaz had begun. Although Hezekiah could do nothing outwardly, he began to strengthen his people inwardly. He carried on some social and religious reforms. He was by nature religious and so attempted to re-establish Jehovah worship in Judah. He had the temple cleaned and set in order and had the worship in the temple revived. He undoubtedly was encouraged in this by Isaiah, then a young prophet. His father had no patience with Jehovah worship and loyalty to his own country. Hezekiah abolished idolatry and purified the worship of Jehovah.

This lesson is a very timely one for our day. We emphasize the depression and its causes, which to us are usually explained as economic and political. But if we study carefully the condition of our country during prosperity, we find that materialism, greed, injustice, and a lowering of our standards of right and wrong were the real reasons for the depression. We drifted away from God. We neglected the assembling of ourselves together for worship. The solution of our problems must lie along the same line as those of Hezekiah. We must get back to God. Justice, peace, love, and purity must motivate the lives of the people.

Isaiah Contrasts False and True Worship

Lesson Text.—Isa. 1:10-20

Golden Text.—Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? or who shall stand in his holy place? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart. Ps. 24:3, 4.

In this series of lessons we have been studying four great prophets, Amos and Hosea, who preached in the northern kingdom, and Micah and Isaiah, in the southern kingdom. Amos and Micah emphasized social justice, Hosea was the prophet of love, and Isaiah emphasizes righteousness. Isaiah received his call in the year that king Uzziah died, in 739 B. C. He was a young man, perhaps twenty years old. For over forty years he is the most important figure in Judah and Jerusalem. He is not only a great prophet, but a wise statesman. He belonged to a wealthy family and was at home in court circles. He is often called the Prince of Prophets. It is largely as a result of Isaiah's religious leadership that Judah endured nearly a century and one half longer than Israel.

Isaiah's convictions can be largely attributed to the vision that he had in the temple. One Sabbath morning in the eventful year of Uzziah's death, he went to the temple to worship. His heart was filled with forebodings concerning the future of his country. In the temple there came to him a revelation of God such as he had never had before. God filled all the temple, choirs of angels were singing around God's throne. In the presence of the holiness and majesty of Jehovah, Isaiah was impressed with his own unworthiness and the guilt of his people. But the Lord cleansed his lips and said, "Whom shall I send, who will go for us"? Isaiah responded, "Here am I, send me." He here consecrated his life for the purifying of his nation.

His people had been coming to the temple and offering sacrifices and going through the forms of worship while their lives were not in accordance with God's will.

How true this is in much of our church life today! We are continually offering substitutes for a real genuine Christian life. We think if we go to church, worship a particular way, believe certain things, then we are acceptable to God, regardless of our lives. Isaiah teaches us that God is only satisfied with the offering of a righteous and loving life. If we would worship in spirit and truth we must know God, His character and purpose, we must come into the sanctuary with clean hands and a pure heart.

THE CENTRAL CONFERENCE OF MENNONITES

The Conference of the Central Conference of Mennonites has again passed into history. This conference was held in the Community Hall at Danvers, Illinois, August 24-27. The churches were very well represented. Out of the thirty-five ministers of our conference, twenty-four were present. Out of our twenty-six churches, twenty-four were represented. The attendance was especially encouraging. On Sunday over sixteen hundred attended.

The reports of the various institutions and activities showed that real progress had been made during the year. The addresses given this year were unusually interesting and inspiring. We appreciated the contribution made by Rev. A. E. Kreider who brought two messages, one on Saturday evening and one on Sunday morning.

Some of the outstanding decisions made at the delegate's session were the provision for a full time Field Secretary and the encouragement of a Training School for the benefit of our Christian workers in our churches who cannot get away to attend our educational institutions.

BUSINESS SESSION HELD AT CONCLUSION OF CHURCH MEETINGS

Nunemaker, Tiskilwa; library, Mrs. R. L. Hartzler, Carlock; field work, Illinois and the west, E. W. Rediger; Washington, Indiana, and Michigan, Rev. Earl Salzman, Topeka, Ind.

The Christian Endeavor union of the conference elected as officers: President, Ernest Schrich, Chenoa; vice president, Delmar Stahly, Danvers; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Homer McCowan, Bloomington; field secretary, Wilbur Mosiman, Meadows; junior superintendent, Mrs. Ali Stahly, Carlock, and intermediate, Mrs. Roy Yoder, Peoria.

THE PRAYER THAT MOTHER TAUGHT

Long years ago by trundle bed,
My mother taught the prayer I said;
And still her voice sounds from the deep,
"Now I lay me down to sleep."

My mother taught me there to pray,
And in my prayer to always say,
"I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep
As now I lay me down to sleep."

I'm old today, as men count years,
But oft my eyes are filled with tears
As thoughts turn toward the way I take,
"If I should die before I wake."

I've wandered far by day and night,
My soul has often missed the right;
Yet ring the words my mother spake,
"I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take
If I should die before I wake."

—G. W. E.

Men who ignore their souls might as well have none.

Mutual happiness and calmness always sharpen perception and make for mutual clearness.

Education can inform, but only religion can enlighten.

JOTTINGS

The reports coming from all the western sections of the country indicate that the drought is one of the worst, if not the worst, that the country has experienced. Rev. P. H. Unruh writing from the heart of the Mennonite settlement of Kansas, says: "The country is burning up. The western part of our state will have no row crop. How to get feed for the stock is a problem." This was written some days ago and at the time of this writing the drought is still going. With the deliberate destruction of crops and stock in order to impose greater hardships upon those who are at the end of their buying resources, our authorities did not take into consideration what the weather might do to increase the hardships. The prospects for the coming winter throughout the entire country are gloomy. This country that never knew a famine may be very close to one.

During the absence of the pastor, Rev. Carl Landes, of the First Church, Philadelphia, Rev. Howard Landes of the Germantown church and Rev. D. J. Unruh of Lansdale occupied the pulpit. There were 38 in the Bible Summer School. A program was given in the church at the close of the session. The First Church suffered the loss of one of its oldest members in the death of Samuel Landis, who was in his 86th year.

Dr. Harvey Bauman and Mrs. Bauman have been spending some time in the Middlewest. They were in Berne some days ago. They saw much of the great drought that is burning up the country. The Doctors Bauman are giving missionary information and bringing missionary inspiration in the churches they visit.

The Berne, Indiana, Chorus gave its fourth annual concert in the Berne, Indiana, Mennonite church. There were 75 voices in the chorus, which was under the direction of Harold Russer. The large church offered opportunity for the crowd that was made up of people from a large circle of territory.

The Grace Church choir, Pandora, Ohio, with the assistance of representatives of the other Mennonite choirs of the community will sing the oratorio "St. Paul" at the final session of the Middle District Conference, to be held at the Grace Church on August 23 to 26, 1934. The "St. Paul" will be rendered on Sunday evening, August 26th. The following soloists will assist the choir in the rendition: Professor G. A. Lehman, formerly of the Westminster Choir, will sing the bass solos; Professor Freeman Burkhalter, formerly of Berne, Indiana, will sing the tenor solos; Mrs. Roy Hilty of Bowling Green, Ohio, will sing the soprano solos; and Miss Hilda Amstutz, the director of the chorus, will also sing the alto solos. The Sunday morning session will consist of a Conference Communion Service, and the Sunday afternoon session will be in charge of the young people's organization.

Bluffton College will inaugurate a campus improvement project providing part time employment for 57 students when the fall term opens. FERA appropriations will be available to defray the cost of work done by 17 of the students. The remainder will be employed under working conditions similar to the FERA students, but will be paid by the college. The project will make it possible for students to earn from $50 to $155 toward their college expenses. The renumeration will be 30c an hour. FERA work will not be available for students who were in college last year. It is planned to assist eight women and nine men in this department. Women will work in the library and college office and men on the college campus.

Rev. Lester Bixel, a graduate of Bluffton College and Witmarsum College, who served in the Congo Mission eight years, died at his home in Pandora. Funeral services were held in his home church, the pastor, Rev. P. A. Kliever, assisted by Rev. Emanuel Troyer and Rev. E. A. Esch. For a time before going to Africa, Rev. Bixel served as pastor of the Hopedale, Ill., church.

A recent storm passing over Pretty Prairie, Kansas, damaged the Mennonite church, located two and a half miles out of town. Loosened by the storm, a part of one of the brick towers fell on the roof and the steps below, doing considerable damage.

A Memorial Tablet was placed in the Shantipur church, India, in appreciation of the labors of the Rev. C. D. Esch, who for a long time was superintendent of this institution, conducted by the (Old) Mennonite missionaries. A large number of people attended the exercises, among them Dr. P. H. Penner, who was one of speakers.

The Fretz family, one of the oldest families among the Mennonites of eastern Pennsylvania, will hold its forty-sixth reunion in the Deep Run Mennonite church, near Plumsteadville, Pa., of which Rev. Allen M. Fretz is pastor. There will be two sessions. The speaker for the occasion will be Calvin I. Kephart, Ph. D., of Washington, D. C., who is attorney for the Interstate Commerce Commission. The ancestors of the Fretz family originally located in this section.

Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference reports through its treasurer the following receipts for May: For Russia, $173.38; for Harbin, $381.85; for China, $24.84; for General Relief, $142.68. A total of $722.93. The Board paid out $890.75.

The Executive Committee of the Women's Missionary Societies of the General Conference give the following financial report for July: There have been received for Foreign Missions the sum of $309.00; for Home Missions $123.57; for expenses for "News and Notes" $49.20, Miscellaneous $359.50. Total $841.28.

The treasurer of the Foreign Missions Board of the General Conference submits the following statement of the finances of the Board for the month of July: Receipts $6,574.86. Balance in Bank $102.68. Gifts for General Fund $545.92. Gifts for Orphans, Teachers, etc. $439.00. Gifts for Special Accounts $10.75. Gifts for Sundries $33.25. Interest and Rent $636.94. The total balance and receipts amount to $7,595.54. There were paid out on orders $5,289.70. Remitted directly to India $104.45. The balance in Bank, August 1, 1934, was $2,201.39.

Immanuel Church, Los Angeles, Calif., is preparing to celebrate its silver anniversary about the time when the General Conference will be meeting in California next summer to observe its Diamond Jubilee. The Immanuel church is a child of the Home Mission work of the General Conference. Rev. D. D. Itsen is the pastor.

Interesting statistics come to us from the Mennonite colony in Paraguay. Since the founding of the colony Fernheim, 2001 persons have arrived in the settlement and of these 117 have gone elsewhere since coming. 232 children were born in the colony, 123 boys and 109 girls. During this time there have been 144 deaths, 71 men and 73 women. There have been 84 marriages.

The Forty-Sixth Session of the Middle District Conference will be held in Grace church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23-26. The pastor of the local church, Rev. P. E. Whitmer, will deliver the address of welcome. Rev. W. S. Shelly, chairman of the Conference, will preach the Conference Sermon. Themes chosen for the conference devotions will be: "The Fullness of Christ"; "Fullnss of Experience"; "Fullness of Joy"; "Fullness of Christ in our Testimony." Rev. A. C. Wienad will conduct "Bible Hours." Rev. P. H. Unruh will deliver two addresses, the subject of one will be "An Intelligent Scriptural Reason for our Faith and Conduct as Conscientious Objectors in Times of War." Others who will participate in the program are, Revs. Allen Miller, Elmer Basinger, Clyde Dirks, P. A. Kliewer, and A. R. Keiser. The Women's Missionary Society will offer a program in which the following will take part: Miss Inda Sprunger, Mrs. P. A. Kliever, Mrs. S. L. Pannebecker, Mrs. John Esau and Dr. Ella Bauman. Two other important meetings of this conference will be the "Young People's Conference" and the "Peace Conference."

derstanding, and friendliness, are we prepared to meet our reasonable expectation," says Miss Leader, Superintendent of Christ Hospital of Cincinnati. "Nursing standards are definitely affected by the spirit of the nursing group. We wish to measure beyond the purely technical. We are often rated by the performance of extra duties and the spirit of our work rather than on physical care alone."

We must be pure, holy, refined women, zealous, joyful, and jealously guarding our integrity, allowing no evil thought to take root in us. St. Vincent de Paul has cautioned us to be even holier than because we are not protected as the sisters are by institutional traditions and walls. We are admonished to build within ourselves citadels against the onslaughts of evil and immorality. Constantly must we be striving to master good habits of thought, pure speech, cleanliness and orderliness, and a sense of what is proper.

The advice from St. Paul to Timothy comes to us forcefully: "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." In the language of our day we interpret this to mean that we are urged to perfect our work, to use our hands intelligently, and to apply ourselves to our duties faithfully, and not least of all to conduct ourselves in a manner beyond reproach, as members of the body of Christ. We recognize that these principles should be applied to all vocations and professions and any walk of life.

Only when we adhere to this admonition can we be called worthy of bearing the Light of God, and caring for the precious gift of life itself. Only as the Holy Spirit endows us with love for our fellow-beings and visions of the needs of the human family are we fully qualified to administer the physical, mental, and spiritual care and give the touch of human sympathy of which the victims of disease and misfortune are in need. May God grant us an abundance of the Fruits of the Spirit for this mission.

You as a conference have a right to expect of us pure motives in furthering the ministry of healing. Your challenge to us as a school is to turn out consecrated women who will humbly and capably face the task of healing stricken humanity, and to coopetrate with you in your burdens.

We accept your challenge, but we solicit your prayers and your faith and patience to believe that your hopes in us in the past have not been entirely fruitless.

To you who work in educational fields, I appeal to help us to solve our problems of maintaining a state-accredited institution and improving our educational background.

In a word, our aim is to produce nurses who can say:

"We have seen the vision
And for self we cannot live
Life is worse than useless
Till our all we give."

THE FUTURE MUST PAY

"God pity the generation that comes after us" is an expression we frequently hear today when the tremendous load of debts, now being laid up against the future, because of present conditions, is being discussed. The present state of our country, and for the world for that matter, is a desperate one. Debts have to be made that those coming after us will have to pay or people will starve. Added to the debts that are the children of desperate necessity, are those made when people thought that good times would last forever and there was a riot of spending. It may be that such a state, due to the materialism of the age, may not be exactly within the province of what an editor of a religious paper is expected to discuss, but the future of the church is as much in danger of the trying circumstances as are the business and social world. Already numerous churches that cannot meet present obligations are staggering under inherited debts assumed in flush times when everyone was optimistic. Examples of this may be seen in several churches, not of our denomination, however, of which we know. Not far from us they erected a magnificent edifice, embodying works of famous artists. It is the show place of the neighborhood. Today that congregation must first raise $11,000.00 every year to pay its interest before a penny may be spent for present necessities. The congregation has ceased to grow and many of the most liberal contributors are either dead or not in a position to keep up to the standard of giving they once set for themselves. Another magnificent structure not far away was just finished when the hard times struck. Worry over the responsibility of raising the cash needed killed the pastor. Still another had sold its lot for a fortune and, before settlement was made, proceeded to erect a modern church on another site. The church was just finished when the property was thrown back on their hands. Now they have a lot which they cannot sell and a building for which they cannot pay. It is being whispered that the best thing for that church to do would be to disband. How many more such tragedies have developed and will develop there is no way of telling, but there will be others. A NEW EDITION OF THE CATECHISM

The General Conference some time ago directed that the Catechism in use in that organization be revised. This has been accomplished and the volume is ready for distribution. A glance at the new issue immediately compels a recognition of the improvement in its physical make-up. It is excellently bound and attractive in appearance. The subject matter has been arranged in a systematic and logical manner. Numerous questions and answers have been added which, while not making any radical change in the teaching of the book, clarify and supplement the topics affected so that a larger understanding is possible.

The Catechism first appeared in Germany and from there was taken to Canada, where

John Oberholtzer, one of the founders of the General Conference, met with it. Since that time it has gone through a number of editions in both the German and English languages. The first English translation was brought out by the Eastern District Conference very early in its history. Daniel Rupp, the author of many historical works bearing on Pennsylvania German communities, was engaged to make the translation. While not a satisfactory translation in many respects, the work continued in use for a number of decades. A revision was made and presented to the General Conference in 1914. The revision at that time was an improvement, as far as its language was concerned, but the revisers disregarded the original arrangement of the text and did not substitute a better arrangement. We are glad that the present revisers conformed more consistently with the original. The topics and subtopics as given in the new work will be found to be an excellent help in getting an idea of the whole work. With such an outline it will be possible for the pupil to grasp the entire plan as a whole. The work of revision was given by the Conference into the hands of the Board of Education. The work was done by Rev. P. R. Schroeder of Freeman, S. D., who was assisted by Rev. P. P. Tschetter. Rev. Schroeder and his helper are to be congratulated upon the excellence of the work. G.

WHY DO THEY STAY ON THE JOB

It is often a marvel to us, when we read or hear of expressions coming from so-called Christian ministers and teachers that indicate their lack of sympathy with, and often a denial of, the fundamental principles of Christianity. Why, we wonder, do they betray their lack of confidence in these positions which alone make wise unto salvation? Mercenary motives, we suspect, are their reasons. Their job is a job, and nothing more, and that one that is poorly and insincerely executed. One who cannot accept the Bible as the Word of God or believe that Jesus is divine or attempts to explain away the supernatural element that enters into the sacred narrative may call himself a liberal, but his liberality is in the direction of unbelief—a thing that can neither direct, encourage, nor inspire faith in the Son of God, mankind's only Redeemer, in the lives those whose eternal destiny is subjected to their influence. YOU DECREED HER DEATH

G. A. Linscheid

A board shack, a missionary and his wife within, speaking to a girl of about twenty who had been beguiled into drinking. The girl was defiant, she could see no wrong in what she had done, besides she insisted that it did make her feel better. Continued admonition seemed to leave the girl quite indifferent. Reluctantly she took the proffered hand of the missionary as he arose to depart. Once more the missionary spoke to her. She felt uneasy, in vain she tried to withdraw her hand, the missionary refused to release it; instead he insisted that she repent of the wrong committed and promise to refrain from it. "You know you are a sick girl," said the missionary, "I want you to straighten this matter out and get right with God, for you may not have very much longer to live," the missionary persisted. Slowly she "melted" and with her hand still in that of the missionary she admitted her failing and promised to refrain thereafter. This promise she kept faithfully.

Some time later. The same shack and the same girl — yet not the same girl any more. Tuberculosis was fast sapping her life, but approaching death held no terrors for her, her New Testament was her constant companion. Even to the last she looked for and found the answers to the scriptural questions in the Messenger. Fully conscious to the last, she slipped away in the cool of a July morning. Her last words, spoken not in her own tongue but in the English language, were: "I am going home, to the house above."

Some time after that the missionary and wife again called at this place. The parents of the girl were not at home, however, the grandmother and an uncle — neither one of them Christians — and some other relatives were there. The uncle had recently taken a wife unto himself according to the tribal custom but had not been married legally as yet. To start the conversation the missionary asked him if he had secured the marriage license as yet. His curt reply was, "I don't need to get a license if I don't want to; no one has said anything to me about it, not even the superintendent himself when I saw him last week." To mollify the evidently ruffled spirit the missionary suggested that in case of his death the woman would be left without a legal status as his widow. "We are not thinking of dying," was the snappy response. After assuring him that he did not mean to insinuate a death soon the missionary tried to turn the conversation to things spiritual. "Will we have any farm and horses and chickens in that other life"? he interrogated sarcastically. After some explanations and admonitions on this matter, the Indian remarked dryly: "I used to drink and gamble and go to peyote meetings and to church, but I have quit all of that and don't go anywhere any more." After some further conversation the Indian said: "O, I may come to church some time." As the missionary and wife were bidding them goodbye, the grandmother, who had been silent all this while, now had her say. "We are poor and have nothing to eat; the girl having died, her parents are poor and we have been helping them and now we have nothing any more, so we cannot help them, you should help them since you ruled that the girl should die." This was given in good caustic Cheyenne.

Because the missionary had called the sick girl's attention to the fact that she might not live very long any more, he was accused of having decreed her death and was now expected to take care of the bereaved farmily.

A LETTER FROM MISS NICKEL

Janjgir, C. P., India,
July 2, 1934.

Dear Christian Friends:

I must try to send in at least one quarterly report a year or I might disgrace myself in the eyes of the Board. It is not that one lacks work, but still I am often at a loss to know just what to report. This time I am tempted to tell about the refreshing hill vacation which Miss Lehman and I enjoyed from the first of May until the 20th of June. But that, too, might sound too good in these depression days because I would forget to mention how we saved and pinched in order to decide to go and will be saving and budgeting till New Year in order to get over effects. Yet it is all to the good, especially since news has come of postponed furloughs, because Miss Lehman was very tired and a doctor up there told her that she was OVERtired and therefore at times troubled very much by shortness of breath. Since a new Indian lady doctor has come to relieve in Champa she may be able to rest more now.

Ootacamund, in South India, where we went, is a beautiful and restful spot in the Nilgire hills. The eucalyptus trees line the hillsides and tea plants form a beautiful green undergrowth. The climate is lovely, though one realizes that the altitude is great and that it is near the equator because the sun is very powerful. The thing that I prized most was wonderful Christian fellowship and accidentally meeting with some friends I had known in America. Sometimes I feel a bit discouraged that I am to get gray out here before any one younger or newer than I comes to our field. I always wanted to have the fun of seeing someone else struggle along with the Hindu language and feel like revolutionizing many things on the mission field. I am not giving up as yet to pray for and expect new missionaries. In the hills we met a number who had just come out, and some at a great sacrifice, too. We have so much reason to be thankful for God's faithful care and remembrance of us all! It is sad to hear of such frequent physical and mental breakdowns among missionaries. The American Mennonites and Alliance people have been sorely tried by these experiences and need our earnest prayers.

We had planned to reach Janjgir Monday night, June 18, but we took an extra day at Shamshabad in the Mennonite Brethren Mission in Hyderabad State, so we got home Tuesday, and opened school the 20th. A severe wind and rainstorm had torn off the roof of the east wing of the school building, so Mr. Penner was busy directing repairs when I came. We did open on the afternoon of the 20th and during that time and immediately afterward had a five inch rain. How we would have liked to direct it to the Dakotas instead! It has rained so much since then that the farmers cannot sow the rice in the fields, but we hope there will be a break this week. After eight months of drouth and heat the compound is now again beautifully green, and we are washing in soft water.

There are 75 girls in the Boarding School of whom about 60 attend the Middle School. This is a slight increase over last year — perhaps an increase in worry, but I prefer to look at it as an additional challenge to greater trust in God. Our good head-mistress resigned and secured a position elsewhere, but we think that our staff is still a good one and we could reduce the budget a bit because of the change. The four teachers together now draw exactly Rs. 100 salary monthly. We get the government grant as before, which pays for salaries once a quarter. The addition of three new kitchens in the building this hot season, built largely by the Birra school boys and to be paid, I anticipate, from small special gift cheques which come occasionally from friends, has been the outstanding improvement. The girls are cheerful and cooperate quite well in the business of trying to learn to economize.

The conditions in the church at Janjgir are very sad, indeed. We need an awakening and a church cleaning. We are waiting on God to direct us all to know what to do next. If only a revival would break in our midst! It must come from the Lord and we pray earnestly that we may discern His will as we plead for a change.

Best regards to all with Ephesians 3:14-21.

Very sincerely,

H. E. Nickel.

HOME MISSION NOTES

Brother Sylvan Lehman writes concerning the work at East Freedom (Mountain Mission): "The preaching services are attended by a goodly number, even though it may be hot. The average attendance at Sunday School was much better this quarter than the last. The people are rather faithful in attending the evening services, for which we are happy. The young people hold a service the first Sunday in the month, and the Bible class continues with the usual interest. Following the Bible class we practice singing for one-half hour. In this way we hope to improve the singing in the church services."

Concerning the new State road which was built past the mission, Bro. Lehman writes: "We are more than pleased for what the State has done to make the home and church attractive. We have a wonderful parking space now, plenty for almost any occasion. The shade trees at the home were preserved and those at the church were removed at my request. All is in much better condition than previously.

The Eighth District Sunday School Convention held here on May 10th, and the Sunday School Rally held by our own Sunday Schools of this part of the State on May 19th, were well attended, and we feel that it was good to have such meetings here in our church."

Bro. Glass of the Altoona mission writes: "The Lord has richly blessed us in our work, so that we could keep up all our Sunday services morning and evening, Sunday School, Young People's Meetings, Midweek Prayer and Bible Study, Cottage Prayer Meetings, visiting the sick in the hospitals, and broadcasting for the ministerium. We took in several new members on Easter, and consecrated several children.

The Retired Veterans of the P. R. R., which is not a secret organization, elected me as their chaplain. They have 419 members; but quite a few are Catholics, but they decided to come to our church services, and they came on the evening of June 20th, and we had a good attendance, and the Lord met with us and we had a wonderful meeting. Those old men wept like children, Catholics and all, and asked to have the services repeated, so they could bring their wives and children. We have quite a few coming to our church, also their children, and they tell me they are done with their church.

I was elected on the Board of Directors of the Altoona Hebrew Mission and of the Altoona School of the Bible; they invite me to come and speak for them and to visit them in their dying hours, and it is a source of great joy to be used of the Lord in this way. So you see I have no time to take a vacation, for some day the trumpet will sound and we, with you, will go to meet Him who bought us with His blood, sustained us with His grace, kept us by His power, and led us by His Spirit.

We had two weeks of Summer Bible School, with an enrollment of 113 and an average attendance of 88. Some of the parents wanted us to continue all summer. They said they never saw such a change in the conduct of their children so soon. We meet them one forenoon during the week, and again the older ones on Friday evening as a Teacher Training Class. We have in this class some Catholics who have no Bibles. We give all small books of the Gospels, and they are very proud of them. You ought to hear Mrs. Stiffler's class quote chapter after chapter and sing! Then an orphan girl stepped out on the platform and made one of the most touching prayers I ever heard. And you ought to see our splendid corps of teachers and their patience and devotion. And when we consider that we are in a community where they have their street dances and teachers of other Sunday Schools take part, and public swimming pool in the morning free to all, Sunday baseball, free movies to attract the children, you can see what it takes to carry on a work like this. We have a prayer circle that meets regularly for the purpose of invoking the divine favor upon us and the work. When you are through reading this report, will you kindly bow your head and ask the Father's blessing on this work, for we have said nothing about the discouragements, — we take them to the Lord."

Bro. J. J. Plenert of the Hutchinson mission writes: "With great joy we come again to the Board with our report, praising the Lord for His presence and power in service for His Kingdom in Hutchinson. It has been one of the rich quarters we have experienced in the Lord's service. All the activities in the work of the church are progressing. We have added twenty new members to the church. We had a Daily Vacation Bible School with the Presbyterian church in this community. There were 113 enrolled, one of the largest we had so far; eleven denominations were represented. The attendance during these hot summer days has fallen off somewhat. Our evening services are held outdoors, these are union services with the Presbyterians and the Church of the Brethren. These are well attended, some evenings there are over 300 present. The indebtedness on the church is gradually getting smaller, for which we are thankful. By the end of the year it will likely be less than eight hundred dollars."

The reports from Canada are short; this quarter comes into the season of sowing, and the people are busy. Brother Franz Enns was laid up for two weeks with rheumatism. He reports a number of additions to the church at Lena and other groups in his district. Also the dedication of the church and cemetery at Lena, Manitoba. Brother C. F. Sawatzky reports fourteen additions to the church at Great Deer, Sask., and four more applied for admission. He also complains of failing health. He has served this congregation now for eleven years, and with good results.

The Board is happy and grateful to the congregations who have contributed so much that for July we could pay 90 percent of the monthly salaries, and we hope and pray that the Lord may give our people the courage and willingness to continue their support so we can meet our obligations. It is the Lord's work and our workers are all sound in faith, and that is saying a whole lot these days.

A report was circulated in some quarters that the Board had asked Bro. Shea of Chicago to resign. This is not so, he resigned of his own accord and free will. The Board has also found his accounts correct. He will retire from the work in Chicago by September 1.

W. S. Gottshall,
Secretary Home Mission Board.

"A BEARDED JEHOVAH"

The above unlovely word I shrink from repeating, and do so at sacrifice of my feelings. It is quoted in daily papers from an address by visiting university professors at a recent conference on "Child Development and Parent Education," held at Iowa City, seat of Iowa State University, attended by learned educational men and women of note, coveted abilities, and doubtless experts in their line. It therefore ill becomes me to evince any feeling in taking issue with so high authority, to some of whose views I must dissent. Just why university professors wander from the forum and their matter in hand to the pulpit with destructive religious teaching, is in itself questionable, when regrettable effects are already everywhere apparent in youth, who, in the words of the late W. J. Bryan, "are being turned out into a starless night." Desiring to clear the way for "new conceptions of good and evil," the address was rather calculated to muddle the mind of adolescence and shake their faith. To quote them: "The church has lost its prestige and importance: the rise of science and decline of anthropomorphic views (the worship of Christ) have caused the people to abandon a belief in a bearded Jehovah' sitting in judgment on quick and dead, consigning the bad to a hell presided over by a real devil." These scientists should know (as I once wrote) that science makes no claims in the realms of spirit, limited to the material and mechanical, they wisely leave the spiritual to religion and philosophy. The word "anthropomorphic" relates here to deity in human form, as does also the inelegant expression 'Bearded Jehovah,' a bold thrust at Christ's divinity, as they "who confess not that Jesus is come in the flesh." True, it is age old. As Parks Cadman says, "There is nothing new in their attitude any more than in Modernism's intellectual antagonism to believing minds." It becomes increasingly difficult for some scholarly men to accept the biblical Christ, His true earthly mission, and significance of the cross. "Thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent and revealed them unto babes." And these latter are "stewards over the mysteries (secrets) of God." The professors would also dispense with Bible warnings and inducements to salvation: to quote again: "The Past relied on prospect of heaven or threat of hell to induce to godliness, but the old types of heaven and hell have faded: Other world rewards and punishments have lost reality to on-coming generations." True, many believe not. It is also true that human conceptions of biblical sayings change, but the facts of reality are none the less real. Men carry in their breast results of unrepented sin, while the Redeemed already experience foretastes of heavenly rewards. Those who discredit God's Word do not improve over those who follow plain Bible teaching; the opposite is true. Modern criticism harms not the mature Christian. But we protest for children and youth. Yet protest is not enough. And since they are not under the Gospel preached, we turn to the church school, stronghold of the Gospel taught. But with due credit to church school, "Religious Education" has its weakness; it permits youth to drift out, strangely and decidedly averse to casting their lot with the church that nourished them, becoming easy prey to the prevalent false teaching.

What is wrong? Simply that religious education without response is not education. Repetition of verse and pretty story become like platitudes, which result in no vital soul-awakening, and can no more assume an abiding spiritual future than can culture be had by "sleeping in a library." Like temperance folk who would reform drunkards by substituting buttermilk, but found the saloon was not to be driven out by a cow. Church school enlightens, but light without heart-response fails to fortify youth against insidious teaching of "science falsely so called." Only dynamic, soul-reaching Scripture insures youth graduating into the kingdom, and not out of it, else they choose the way of least resistance, and church school becomes only a memory. If we love the children, safeguard them against Bible criticism. Let Christ be central in song and teaching. Insist on response to the Gospel taught.

A MODEL WALK

Genesis 5:24

(The writer of this paper is Miss Anna H. Quiring of Mountain Lake, Minn. Miss Quiring is a member of the General Conference and an accepted candidate for work in the Congo Inland Mission, a cooperative Mennonite mission work in the Belgian Congo.)

"And Enoch walked with God: and he was not; for God took him." The model walk is one with God as you have noticed from the text. Our whole life is referred to as a walk, which includes our words, thoughts, and deeds, yes our whole being, what we do and what we don't do; what we say and what is left unsaid, it all belongs to our walk. Our walk is far more important than we often realize, or surely our walk would be a bit more and perhaps a good deal more careful.

May we point out a few facts, concerning the model walk, as we find them in the Scriptures? We find first of all that the walk with God is a walk of faith. Thomas, one of the disciples, was one day reminded of this fact by the Lord Jesus saying, "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." Peter in his letter writes: "Whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see Him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Some one may harbor the question: What is a walk of faith? To such I should like to pass on the answer of Geo. Mueller to this very question: "Faith is the eye by which we look to Jesus. A dim-sighted eye is still an eye; a weeping eye is still an eye. Faith is the hand with which we lay hold of Jesus. trembling hand is still a hand. And he is a believer whose heart within him trembles when he touches the hem of the Saviour's garment, that he may be healed. Faith is the tongue by which we taste how good the Lord is. A feverish tongue is nevertheless a tongue. And even then we may believe, when we are without the smallest portion of comfort; for our faith is founded not upon feelings, but upon the promises of God. Faith is the foot by which we go to Jesus. A lame foot is still a foot. He who comes slowly nevertheless comes." "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith." Heb. 10: 22.

tangled with worldly affairs, false teachers, idol worshippers, Paul sends forth this call: "Wherefore come out from among them and be separate, saith the Lord," II Cor. 6:17. Separation in Scripture, is twofold—a separation "from" whatever is contrary to the mind of God, and a separation "unto" God himself. We come in contact with the evil of this world, but as Christians we have no right to be conformed to the things of the world.

3. Again the model walk is a walk of fellowship. The purpose of God for commanding Israel to set up a Tabernacle in the wilderness was His desire to dwell among them. God has through all ages manifested His desire of fellowship with His creatures. As soon as the complete separation takes place, the intimate fellowship between God and man follows. In Lev. 26:12, "And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people." God has kept His promise to Israel, but Israel failed God and thus broke the blessed fellowship between God and them.

4. Furthermore, a model walk is a walk of spiritual progress. "But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." The Apostle Paul often speaks of grace in connection with Christian growth. As saved, we are not under law, but under grace. Having by grace brought the believer into the highest conceivable position, God ceaselessly works through grace, to impart to, and perfect in him, corresponding graces. Isn't it true when we look back we must say, "Out of His fullness we have received grace for grace." And when we look ahead we say our one great need is: grace and more grace. What a blessing to have such a limitless source of grace from which we may at any time draw!

5. Going back to the text in Gen. 5:24, "Enoch walked with God; and he was not; for God took him." Enoch found such joy and blessing in his walk of faith, separation, fellowship, and spiritual progress that he possibly never thought of a reward, nevertheless, after three hundred years and some more of this walk of life, "Enoch was not; for God took him." In a moment he was lifted away from this earth into the very presence of God. Did his walk with God pay? It most certainly did. We all covet such an end or such a commencement of life.

6. A walk with God is a safe walk. You recall how the Psalmist pictures this walk in Psalm 34:7, "The angel of the Lord campeth round about them that fear him and delivereth them." And again in Psalm 91:4, "He shall cover thee with his feathers and under his wings shalt thou trust: His truth shall be thy shield and buckler." Paul refers to this safe walk in Rom. 8:28, "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose."

7. The walk with God is a safe walk and also a pleasant walk. King Solomon in writing about wisdom's ways and values makes this statement: "Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace." When we go back a few steps to where we spoke of our growth in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord, we can readily see how this statement of Solomon compares with our model walk as one of pleasantness and peace. And it could not be otherwise with such companionship.

8. Finally, the walk with God is a profitable walk. We need not look only for the reward at the end of our life, but all through our life's walk countless blessings are ours. In Rev. 3:4, the Lord has a commendation to the church of Sardis which brings out the thought of the profitable walk. These are the words: "Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white; for they are worthy." And listen to the following words, "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment." The few whose names were on record had lived a life of victory. They had carried the cross and shall wear the crown.

Now for a brief summary may we look at our walk in the light of the model walk set forth in Scripture. Are we walking with God a walk of unwavering faith, of blessed fellowship, of complete separation, of continual progress, then only can we be sure that it is a safe, a pleasant, a profitable walk which will be rewarded by our Great Rewarder, the Lord Jesus Christ Himself.

D. L. Moody once said: "Nowadays we talk cream and live skimmed milk." He uses some even stronger contrasts between our talk and walk. How sad, but how true! May God grant us grace to remember that we have a high calling, that of representing Christ upon earth. Therefore the solemn warning by Paul: "I beseech you that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love."

"Enoch walked with God; and he was not; for God took him."

WONDERFUL ARE THE WAYS OF THE LORD

Rev. F. J. Enns

Yesterday Njinda Mose died. His life was a blessing to many, and we hope his death will bring others to a decision for Christ. It was in 1927 that we first came in contact with him. We made our first itinerary through the villages and stopped at one larger village for the night. This young man with two others of a nearby village heard of it and came to greet us. They said that they wanted to come to the mission. They did come. One went back again, another is now a zealous witness for his Lord as teacher and evangelist, and the third was the one we buried today.

These last two were consecrated workers for the Lord: the first zealous and quick tempered whose temper sometimes brings him embarrassment, the latter meek and humble, usually happy and thankful, a friend of young and old alike. Teaching, witnessing, manual labor — he did it all willingly and looked upon all work as assigned by God. For personal work God had given him special talents. Today at the grave stood a gray-haired man, a true friend to whom he had often spoken about his soul's salvation. May his death be the means of bringing that old man to the feet of the cross. Not long ago I called Njinda Mose and asked him about his neighbor who seemed to go wrong paths. He told me that he was avoided by the neighbor in question since he started strange paths, because he knew Njinda would reprove him. O, would that all professing Christians be such "salt of the earth"!

At such a funeral the difference between Christianity and heathenism is more visible than usual. Light and darkness battle with each other. Many relatives are still in darkness, while other are Christians. The difference is between hope and despair. The song of victory of the Christian and the wailing of despair of the other alternately fill the air. One quietly waits on the Lord, the other must be held so he does not throw himself into the grave. Do we truly realize what it means to be "without God in the world"? Would that we meditate on that question till nothing be too precious to give for the saving of the lost, be it talents, money, self, or children—till we be not ashamed to approach another relative to his soul's salvation.

Wonderful are the ways of the Lord. The seed of the Word of God had been sown in the heart of this Njinda and his friends before we came to the field. Their small Batshoke village had formerly been near a Bampende village, where our station has a teacher. They had come to that school. Later the teacher had sent boys there to instruct them. From such beginnings we have a small group of Batshoke Christians here. Finding the seed sprout at places least expected, I can better understand Paul's admonition to Timothy, when he says, "Preach the word: be urgent in season, out of season," and hath not God said, "It shall not return unto me void"?

HAS MENNONITISM A CONTRIBUTION FOR OUR DAY?

Harold S. Bender

Two hundred and fifty years ago, the first group of permanent Mennonite settlers in America, newly come from Northwest Germany, were struggling under many privations through a cold, hard winter in their newly established village of Germantown, located in the primeval wilderness a few miles north of the two-year city of Philadelphia. It was bitter winter for the poverty-stricken weavers from Crefeld, so poor that a pitying traveler who had had a sight of their misery, suggested the name of the village be changed to "Armentown" — village of the poor. But the privations were borne with fortitude. They were borne with fortitude because the Mennonite weavers cherished a faith more precious to them than material prosperity, hence a faith well worth suffering. They had found on the shores of the New World, under the peace-loving government of William Penn, what the German and Swiss Mennonites had been seeking through one hundred and fifty years of suffering; complete freedom and liberty of conscience. No transient physical privations were too great to pay as the price for this freedom.

In the century following the settlement of Germantown in 1683, at least five thousand Mennonites traveled the trail across the sea to the land of liberty and peace, to "Penns Woods." Their descendants today who have kept the faith of their fathers number probably 60,000. In addition other and larger groups of Mennonites from various regions of Europe, such as Switzerland, Alsace, East Prussia have since found their way to America. The descendants of these later groups who have kept their faith must number another 140,000. All told the Mennonite clan living on the North American continent must number around 200,000 souls.

Goshen College has been a vital part of the educational and religious program of this group for forty years. During these years the great majority of its students have naturally been Mennonites, and are so today. In this anniversary year it is therefore fitting that space is given in the student publication for a few moments of reflection on the contribution which the Mennonites of America have to make to this age and this land, a land which has been their fatherland for two hundred and fifty years, and an age which is sorely in need. If the Mennonites of America have a contribution to make, Goshen College must be in the forefront of those who are striving to make this contribution the most generous and the most effective possible. In my humble judgement, there is such a contribution and it is genuinely worth while. It is a contribution of the spirit, of the sort that America needs sorely today.

The spiritual contribution of Mennonitism is, in the first place, the spirit of faithful and complete application of the principles of Jesus Christ, the Christ of the Gospels and Epistles, to the individual and collective life of our day. Such an application has not yet been thoroughly made. The world has yet to see what a truly Christian man and a truly Christian society can be. Let it be one of the greatest challenges of the age to Mennonite youth to follow the Christ at any cost to seek the school of life which is absolutely Christian for themselves and their fellows.

A second element in the spiritual contribution of Mennonitism, is the spirit of love. By this I mean not a superficial sentimentality, but a love that moves the wills of good men to create the good for all and considers no sacrifice too great to attain this goal. It is a love which never stoops to the use of force to attain even the best of ends because it knows that force in the long run always destroys more than it creates. Our age with all its oppression, its injustice, its greed and its selfishness, needs desperately the power which a Christlike love can provide.

In the third place and finally, the spiritual contribution of Mennonitism is the spirit of the supremacy of the spiritual over the material. It is the spirit which cherishes spiritual values as worth far more than any material good, however useful and comfortable such good may be. It is the spirit which makes the pursuit of these spiritual values the primary task, duty, and desire of life, the end toward which all secondary things but serve as means. For this reason it introduces and produces as a major characteristic of life the spirit of simplicity, of sincerity, of other-worldliness, of devotion to God and His Kingdom and righteousness, first.

It would be foolish, of course, to profess that all Mennonites as individuals have been possessed by the spirit described above, just as foolish as it would be to assume that none but Mennonites have been its advocates. Nor do I wish to suggest that the meaning of Mennonitism is exhausted in the analysis just given. Yet, is it not true that the true distinctive genius of Mennonitism through the ages is to be found in this spirit? And is this spirit not just what a struggling and weary race needs for the hour?

If the spiritual contribution which Mennonitism has to give is needed in our day, then there is no more serious word which can be spoken to this generation of Mennonites, and to the students of Goshen College, than the summons to give the best of life and strength to make this contribution richly adequate and effective. And that is my word to the students of Goshen College in this anniversary year: make the values in your spiritual heritage available in effective service to our generation.

PROVIDING MISSIONARY IMPRESSION AND EXPRESSION IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

By Mrs. Norman Bauman

(This paper was read at the Ohio State Sunday School Conference.)

"And he goeth up into a mountain, and calleth unto him. And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him, and that he might send them forth to preach, and to have power to heal sicknesses, and to cast out devils." (Mark 3:13-15.)

These verses contain two of the most precious words in the entire Bible—only seven letters, but they spell two words which mean real joy—they are these: "With Him." With expresses association—a oneness. So "with Him" is ultimate well-being. "With Him" who came directly from the presence of God to reveal God, yes, who was God Himself—the only perfect man this world has ever known. "With Him" who is a real friend, who understands as no other can understand, a friend to all, even to His enemies. With the greatest Physician this world has ever known—no case was ever too hard for Him to heal, none too lowly for His notice. He never turned any away nor refused to help. With the Master Teacher in the most efficient training school ever established anywhere. True, one pupil failed, but when we think of the success of the other eleven we must agree that the methods Jesus used must be worth a careful study.

We are not told that association with Jesus meant a training school. Mark says, He "calleth" and He "ordained" twelve that they should be "with Him." They were "with Him" on the mountainside—when He taught as one having authority and not as the scribes. And the people said, "Never man spake like this man." The Twelve were with Him when He went about all their cities and villages teaching in their synagogues, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom and healing every sickness and every disease among the people. They were with Him when He fed thousands. They knew His close fellowship with His Father—when He spent all night in prayer, when He arose a great while before day and departed into a desert place to pray." They heard Him talk to the Father, and heard the Father talk to Him. They were with Him when the multitudes followed Him—when the people determined to take Him by force and make Him king. Three were with Him on the mountain top when He talked with Moses and Elias. And they were with Him when He said, "The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests: but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head." They were with Him and He said to them, "Will ye also go away"? They heard Him say, "The Son of Man must suffer many things and be rejected of the elders, and of the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed." They were with Him when these things came to pass through one of their own number. They saw Him killed, put in the tomb — later they saw the empty tomb and the Risen Christ. He ascended to the Father from their very midst, and they went back to Jerusalem to wait for the promised Comforter.

But before Jesus left them, as they traveled up and down the country together, they too saw those multitudes which moved Jesus to compassion, and they heard Him say, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." Jesus sent them out to teach and to work as they had seen Him work. When they returned from their tour elated over their success, He was ready to discuss the work with them. He said, "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring." His last message to them was, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."

Ten days later, after the coming of the Holy Ghost and the preaching of one sermon three thousand were converted. Then we see the eleven going about teaching and preaching and healing—doing the same kind of work Jesus had done—yes, living the very life Jesus had lived, so that it is written, "They took knowledge of them that they had been with Jesus." It was as though Jesus had multiplied Himself many times and these men went about impelled by the same Spirit to live their lives for others as Jesus had lived. Jesus taught His disciples by words, but the quiet living of His life, His personality, had a much greater influence over them than His teaching. He literally lived His life into them, so that it was not the disciples working, but Jesus living and working in them.

This, then, is where we must begin if we wish to prepare others to send out. When Mary Slessor was at home on furlough and was asked to give addresses, instead of telling about her work in Africa she often took a text from the Bible and spoke on that . Her biographer gives the following reason: "She knew that the presentation of startling facts and figures alone would never rouse to action: these might touch the conscience for a moment, but the only thing that would awaken interest and keep it active and militant would be a revival of love for Christ in the hearts of the people. There would be no need then to make appeals." Paul gives this same thought in II Cor. 5:14 in these words, "The love of Christ constraineth us."

Jesus is the Author of the missionary enterprise. He is the Message and no one can go out and give that message unless he first has it in his own life. So if we would prepare messengers we must first make Christ a living reality in the lives of our pupils. We want them to know the life of Christ, how He lived and taught and worked—that He is the Son of God, the Savior of the world, but more than that, they must know Him as a personal Savior. They must know Him not only as the friend of all mankind, but as a personal friend — one who stays close by every day, every hour, every moment—who understands and knows all about us —who directs and keeps all our ways.

Jesus is more precious than life itself, yes, He who is life in us. These who know truly can say with Paul, "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." Only those who have this life can understand that those who do not have it are really in need, and for such to see this need, means to respond.

Jesus presented this need at first-hand. As He and the twelve traveled about they saw the people scattered as sheep without a shepherd—thy saw how eager the common people were to hear Jesus and be healed by Him. He pointed out to them the Samaritan crowd as a harvest ready to be gathered. So when we show our pupils the need by personal observation it is of course the most effective way. This is not always possible, so we must find other ways to present the conditions under which others live.

There are a number of ways by which this may be done. We are glad for our missionaries who have had personal experience with other peoples. When our pupils hear their stories first hand it adds to their interest. There are hundreds of good missionary books which we may place in our Sunday School libraries, and so gain people's interest. In some schools we find a definite time set aside in which missionary information is given—at some places this is five minutes each Sunday. Another plan is to have a missionary Sunday each month—perhaps on the day the monthly offering is taken. On that day the time devoted for the opening or review, or both, is taken for passing along missionary inspiration. This may be done by a missionary superintendent, by the regular superintendent, or by some one appointed by him. The Bible is full of the missionary message, and a teacher who is full of the missionary spirit will be passing along continually missionary inspiration. The missionary spirit is infectious — it bubbles over. We have found the Junior meetings a place where missionary work can be made a definite study.

I am glad for the second part of this subject —providing missionary expression. We cannot have expression until we first have impression. But impression without expression is not good either, in fact, it is positively harmful. Every impulse tends to express itself in action: where action is blocked the impulse dies and it may better never have been given. If we wish to have a missionary spirit grow in our Sunday School we must provide a way by which the impulse to service may be expressed when it is given.

There are many ways in which this may be done, and what is practical in one Sunday School may not be in another. This expression need not be elaborate—it may be simply some definite part in the Sunday School service—leading a song, reading a Scripture lesson, leading in prayer—even the children will respond and appreciate the opportunity for such service. The older classes might be able to provide some equipment which will make the work of the other department more efficient. The sick always appreciate a remembrance. A shut-in's time will be made less lonely by some songs. The Junior meetings and the Young People's Meeting give opportunity for expression. Branch Sunday Schools benefit not only the home school but help those who otherwise might not have Gospel privileges.

The Quarter Fund and the Savings Boxes are splendid avenues for service. They give every child a definite part in the mission activities of the church and afford an opportunity for real missionary training. But if we only hand out the boxes and quarters in the spring and collect them on the third Sunday in November we are missing our greatest opportunity. Our missionaries need all the money we can send to them—certainly. They are going to need all the money we can send for many more years, and they will need men and women to help them on the field.

Our greatest opportunity with the savings boxes and quarters for our children is not simply to see how much money we can raise, but how much missionary spirit we can implant that will continue to grow and bear still more fruit later on. If we hope to have a missionary church five or ten years from now, if we want to carry on our present work successfully, we must instill a missionary spirit into our children. We want them to feel that by investing the quarters and giving of their savings, they are linking themselves up with the most worth while work that any one can do. We like to remind them occasionally that this is a very definite way in which they may be "laborers together with God."

Their work is just as much a work for God as is the work of the missionaries. Our missionaries work in India and South America; we work here; but God gives the strength, the blessing, the increase and works with all of us—thus we all work together with God. But there are some children who are too small to invest quarters or to understand about the savings boxes. These, too, need to be given an opportunity to do something. Just a little service to some one else in the family or to another child in the Sunday School may mean just as much to the tiny tot as the doing of a more difficult task may mean to an older person. Each one needs an opportunity to express the impulse to serve, no matter how insignificant the service may look to be. Sometimes we hear the idea expressed that we need to give our children all the missionary information and teaching possible. Then when they grow up we will have a missionary church—get them to bottle up a lot of inspiration and zeal, then when they grow older they will be ready to go to work and we will have a strong missionary church. But it does not work that way! If you start a fire and always keep piling on more fuel without giving any chance for the fire to really burn, you will soon have no fire at all. That is just the way it works when we try to make missionaries by impression only. So, by all means, let us provide both impression and the expression.

In all our work and with all of our methods, let us not forget to begin where Jesus began—let us make sure that our pupils become personally acquainted with Jesus; that His love completely fills their hearts; then His Spirit will impel them forth to service.

In conclusion, if you will allow me to change the tense in the quotation which I have already given from the Life of Mary Slessor, I wish you would remember it like this: "The presentation of startling facts and figures alone will never rouse to action; these may touch the conscience for a moment, but the only thing that will awaken interest and keep it active and militant is a revival of love for Christ in the hearts of the people. There will be no need then to make appeals." —Christian Monitor.

CORRESPONDENCE

Comins Church, Comins, Michigan. The annual church business meeting and election of officers was held July 1, with an all-day service, having a basket dinner on the church grounds at noon.

Missionary Sunday was observed July 1. The topic of the sermon was "Prayer and Missions." Our African field was a special subject of prayer for that day. A number of new members for the Congo Inland Mission Prayer Band were received.

July 15th, five young people confessed their faith in Jesus Christ as their personal Savior and were received into the church. Four of the five were baptized. The church then partook of the Holy Communion.

A concert was given at the church, July 24. Chorus singing, quartets, and duets made up this program.

Mr. Levi King of Indiana conducted the chorus. A full house enjoyed the program.

The annual S. S. meeting was held and new teachers and officers were elected for the coming year. Plans were also made for a monthly C. S. Workers' Meeting for the improvement of our school.

At the young married people's monthly meeting, held July 25, at the home of E. L. Shantz of Fairview, a name was decided for the class, a motto, and a song: "Home Builders," "More Christianity in the Home," "Love at Home," the name of the song.

Boynton Mennonite Church, Hopedale, Ill. The members of the Christian Endeavor Society enjoyed a pound social at the Jacob Litwiller home, Wednesday evening, September 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brenneman and daughter, Lila Mae, visited a week in St. Louis, Mo.

The Ladies Aid Society held the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. George Jeckel, and canned fruit for the Mennonite Hospital at Bloomington, Ill.

Rev. and Mrs. Hostetler and sons, Junior and David, returned home Friday, August 31, from an enjoyable vacation spent at Wenona Lake. They attended the Bible conference which was held at that place.

During the absence of Rev. Hostetler, August 19, the church services were in charge of Earl Guth, Joe Wind, and Robert Strubhar of Washington. No services were held Sunday, August 26, and many attended the conference at Danvers.

Misses Hilda Iutzi and Mildred Brenneman have returned from Bluffton, Ohio, where they visited relatives and friends.

Miss Elisa Holly of Trenton, Ohio, Peter Holly and Walter Bender of Hamilton, Ohio, visited relatives in this vicinity the past month.

Pleasant View Mennonite Church at Aurora, Nebraska. Miss Grace Springer returned to Los Angeles Monday, August 20, after spending a week with relatives and friends at Aurora and Giltner.

The Christian Endeavor Society enjoyed an outdoor party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Oswald, Monday evening, August 13.

A large number of relatives gathered at Streeters Park Sunday, August 26, for a family reunion picnic in honor of Chris Rediger's eighty-fifth birthday. Among those enjoying the basket dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Chris Stauffer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stauffer, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Bender and family, and Miss Norma Birkey, all of Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kremer and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Kremer, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Rediger and family, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Arnett and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Rediger and daughter, and the guest of honor, Chris Rediger.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Springer and daughters spent two weeks visiting relatives and friends near Princeton, Illinois.

Rev. Rediger, for many years pastor of Pleasant View Mennonite church, was honored at the morning service on Sunday, August 26, with a special program, after which he was presented with flowers.

Mary Freyenberger, who has been staying with Grandma and Grandpa Oswald, returned to her home in Wayland, Iowa.

At the present writing Grandma Oswald is feeling better again and is slowly gaining strength.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Short and three daughters, and Mrs. Noah Rupp of Archbold, Ohio, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Oswald. The three ladies are sisters.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, September 6, at the home of Mrs. Joe Oswald.

First Mennonite Church, Allentown, Pa., August 18, 1934. Greetings to the dear Readers of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel! On the evening of June 12, a pleasant surprise celebration was enjoyed by the congregation and friends.

The occasion was the tenth wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. Howard Nyer and Drs. Harvey and Ella Bauman. The Ladies Aid Society conceived the idea of a surprise for both couples as their anniversaries fell upon the same date. It proved to be a happy service and celebration.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers. It was amusing and a pleasure to watch the faces of the pastor, this time sitting with the rest of us, and of the Drs. Bauman; faces, that in swift fashion expressed curiosity, inquiry, suspicion, and finally, as the program went on it settled into a sort of fearful fascination. Might it not be likened somewhat unto that first event which we were celebrating?

The president of the Ladies Aid Society, Mrs. Llewelyn Shulley, acted as chairlady. Mrs. Clayton Rosenberger recited "That Old Sweetheart of Mine." Our good old friend, Rev. Daniel Unruh, was introduced to break the ice (the news of the occasion) and did so in his usual pleasant and interesting manner with suitable humor for the occasion, winding up his address in a vein of seriousness by emphasizing the sacredness of marriage, loyalty to Evangelical Truth, to the Lord Jesus Christ, and to the Word of God. Thanks, Bro. Unruh, we enjoyed that! Oh, how needed an emphasis!

Our dear pastor replied with remarks, as did Dr. Bauman, rather sheepishly at first, but both warmed up to their subject. What else could they do, for were their wives not with them? Mrs. Bauman also replied with remarks. After the program everyone was invited to the social room of the church for lunch. A very enjoyable time was had by all present.

The Fourth Annual Daily Vacation Bible School of our church was again conducted for three weeks, from July 16 to August 3. The average attendance of the school was seventy-one. Fifty-four were present every day.

The Beginners Department, in charge of Miss Anna Backensto, memorized the 100th Psalm; they were taught how to play together unselfishly and how to share with other children; they made little prayer books, entitled "Gifts of the Heavenly Father"; they made a scrap book entitled "The Story of Jesus," for missions, to be given to the Drs. Bauman. They made a blotter for their fathers, and fans for their mothers.

The Primary Department, in charge of Mrs. Jacob Solt and Misses Viola Moyer and Rachel Rosenberger, memorized a poem on the goodness of God. They memorized a memory verse for each day of the school period and three songs, "Smile Song," "Under His Care," and "That Wonderful Name." The main work in this department was a "Through the Bible" Study Course for the Primary Department as prepared by Rev. Roper of the Scofield Memorial Church in Dallas, Texas. This book contained thirteen lessons and the children liked it very much.

The Junior Department was in charge of Miss Doris Kummery and the Pastor. The principal course in this departmnet was similar to the above mentioned course, but was for Juniors. The Juniors also memorized Psalms 1, 46, and 121, and the following songs and choruses: One verse of "Draw Thou my soul, O Christ," two verses of "Trust and Obey," entire hymn "Fairest Lord Jesus," entire hymn "Hallelujah, what a Savior," and the following choruses, "All that I want is in Jesus," "Jesus, O how sweet the Name," and "Be like Jesus, this my song."

West Zion Church, Moundridge, Kansas. With the Scripture passage, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us" (I Sam. 7:12), the Mission Workers Society of the West Zion church, Moundridge, Kansas, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization, on August 16.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion in green and silver, a rustic bridge on the rostrum portraying the span of years in which the society has been active. Mrs. O. C. Rupp, the president, led the meeting, an organ prelude was played by Mrs. B. M. Dirks, and Bro. Jacob Isaac led in the opening prayer, which was followed by a ladies' octette, singing "The Ninety and Nine." Rev. P. K. Regier gave a splendid talk on the thought, "What gets your attention, gets you!" He also congratulated the society on its twenty-five years of mission work. Two letters from India brought anniversary greetings from Dr. P. A. Penner, Champa, and Dr. Caroline Banwar Theodore, who was our special concern for many years. A vocal duet, "Calvary," was sung by Weldon and Edward Rupp and was especially dedicated to their mother, who was the first president of the society. Sister Hillegonda of Bethel Hospital wrote an anniversary poem, which was much appreciated, the poem was read by Sister Marie (Lohrentz).

Mrs. J. M. Suderman, a former member, gave an inspiring talk on "Prayer and Missions." We were pleased also to have Miss Agnetha Fast with us. Miss Fast is home on her second furlough, and spoke on women's work in our China stations.

The men's chorus sang, "God of Abraham Praise," after which Rev. J. J. Plenert, a former pastor, brought an inspiring message. Mrs. Herman Janzen spoke on: "The Why of our mission society." The offertory was played by Mrs. Herman Ewy, followed by the closing prayer, and "Blest be the tie that binds."

Following the program, refreshments were served on the church lawn.

Former members (from out of town) present were: Mrs. J. P. Boehr, Mrs. J. F. Moyer, and Sister Marie, all of Newton; Mrs. J. J. Plenert from Hutchinson, Mrs. J. M. Suderman from Buhler, Miss Margaret Richert from Goessel, and Miss Luella Kuhbiel from Cottonwood Falls.

SUCCESS

I tried, myself, to bring to pass
That which I thought should be,
I felt the Lord would profit by
A little help from me.
And so I worried and despaired
And vainly labored on,
Until my fairest plans had crashed,
My choicest visions gone;
And then I knelt before my Lord,
Chastened, humbled, still,
Ready to let Him work through me,
Ready to do His will.
And there it was I found success,
For then alone my Lord could bless.

I tried to win a soul for Christ;
How earnestly I pleaded
That he had sinned and gone astray
And Christ was all he needed.
I begged him to forsake the world,
Repent and be forgiven —
I tried to coax him to the Lord,
To woo him into heaven.
And then I realized that Christ
Longed for him more than I,
That He alone could make one care,
Who cared enough to die.
Upon my knees I fought the fight
My friend was born again that night.

AN ALL-CHURCH C. E. SOCIAL

In many church communities there is a real need for a greater sense of sympathy and understanding between the young people and the older generation. It is no real problem in Salem Church, Dalton, Ohio, but in order that a good spirit of fellowship might continue a unique social was planned and successfully carried through.

The Social Committee of the Christian Endeavor planned an evening All-Church Social. The older folks were cordially and earnestly invited to be present. A large number responded to the invitation. The evening was a bit cool, so a large bonfire was prepared, everybody sat around it enjoying its warmth, the children together with the older ones delighting in watching the sparks fly upward. The place chosen was the beautiful Kirchhofer's Grove near the church. An interesting program had been arranged, in which were presented some well-prepared musical numbers and some talks. There were representative messages by a daughter and a mother, a son and a father, and then many impromptu talks which were helpful and of great interest. Among those speaking and enjoying the event was the oldest member of the church. Following the program, the Y. P. Committee served the entire group with delicious sandwiches, steaming hot tea, roasting ears prepared over the bonfire, and watermelon. Everybody enjoyed the occasion. It was felt by all that this should be the first of a series of similar social events which should be held annually. The last number of the program was the singing of the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds." Other C. E. Societies may want to try the same kind of a social. It will prove helpful to your society and to your church.

AN EXPLANATION

The September 4 issue of the Mennonite and Christian Evangel arrived just as the copy of the September 18 issue went to press. It is with sincere regret that we noticed the appearance of the brief article, "The Evolutionist's 'Genesis.'" It was a mistake that this article appeared on these pages. It happens to be a clipping of another periodical, it is there meant to be a satire on the "wisdom of words" of some of those who try to supplant God and the Bible. We hasten to beg that none of our readers shall think this worldly wisdom to be the conviction of th editorial staff of the Y. P. Department. We maintain that it has always been merely a theory and is being rapidly exploded by all of the able scientists. We take our stand in these matters with the first four words of the Bible, "In the beginning God."

Worth-while Aims for the Year Ahead

Philippians 3:13-14

Among C. E. Societies organized along strictly C. E. plans the year comes to a close with the above date. A new year of work begins with October. Whether we follow this plan or not, this does serve a good purpose at this time of the year. The summer months have passed, the winter months are just coming on, many of our young people will have left home, some officers and committees will need to be reorganized, so this will serve as a good time to make fresh plans for the work of the next eight or nine months. Not only in the fields of economics, education, and business, but also in the field of religion is there real value in planning, the results will in such cases be much more evident if the plans are carefully followed.

Rarely do young people turn aside from a task because it is too difficult, in fact they like to tackle challenging endeavors. Our Scripture text is very fitting and one which strongly appeals to energetic young people. We quote from the Weymouth Version:

"I do not say that I have already won the race or have already reached perfection. But I am pressing on, striving to lay hold of the prize for which also Christ has laid hold of me . . . But this one thing I do — forgetting everything which is past and stretching forward to what lies in front of me, with my eyes fixed on the goal. I push on to secure the prize of God's heavenly call in Christ Jesus."

What more fitting task and challenge can be placed before us than that?

The program for this meeting should be planned several weeks in advance, and the topics assigned so that in this hour of meeting all of the plans can be placed before the group and the work actually be gotten under way with much enthusiasm. A good plan will be to ask the committee chairmen to carefully plan their work for the coming year and outline their plan of procedure. Some other topics will be discussed by those who are best fitted to do so. Frank D. Getty, director of Young People's Work for the Presbyterian Church, has given an able outline of aims for a Y. P. Society.

1. To challenge young people to allegiance to Jesus Christ and to the expression of personal Christian conviction and ideals.
2. To afford opportunities to consider together the problems of youth, to discover the Christian truths applying to these problems, and to practice with the helpful cooperation of fellow-members the Christian way of living.
3. To enable young people to participate in the preparation and conduct of worship services.
4. To develop leadership through training by doing, thus preparing for future service in larger responsibilities in the church and other fields.
5. To provide opportunities for young people to develop and express their own creative powers in program building.

Questions

1. Why is it necessary to plan for work in Christian endeavors?
2. Give a brief exposition on the Scripture text for today.
3. How can our society increase her membership and her attendance?
4. How can we increase our interest in the saving of souls for Christ?
5. Ways in which we may encourage the personal devotional life.
6. How should our society help to increase the loyalty to our church?
7. What outstanding project can our society undertake in order that we may do service for Christ?
8. What can our membership do in the way of stewardship and missionary endeavors?

(Commitment Meeting)

"This Is My Task" — John 17:19

Our Scripture Text is a part of Jesus' High Priestly Prayer — "For their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth." Here we have the primary reason for consecration, namely in Jesus Christ giving Himself even unto sanctification and crucifixion. He did all this for me and for you, what will we do for Him? Will we have the courage to forego some selfish desires and be willing to pour forth our lives in unselfish service?

A very able and helpful book on Christian Consecration is "Kept for the Master's Use," by Frances Ridley Havergal. It is based on the poem Consecration in which the poet speaks of the gifts which we should keep for the Master's use, namely: our lives, moments, hands, feet, voice, lips, wealth, intellect, wills, hearts, our love, and finally ourselves.

The first task of every sincere-minded Christian is to love his Lord and Master in full sincerity or in other terms, he must be born again, he must have experienced the spirit of God coming upon him. All human efforts, reform, and what not are of little avail until a man's heart is right with God. Any human activity which is intended to make for true progress must be cooperation with God.

The true child of God will be discouraged many times, for the Christian life is a fight for character, it is a growing life. God indeed can do very little with the man or the church or the nation which is well satisfied with itself. The dark hours of discouragement are often times the hours prior to new light. Christian character makes its best progress in those hours. How dark the shadows seem, and yet a shadow does not last so very long.

"We are not here to play, to dream, to drift,
We have hard work to do, and loads to lift.
Shun not the struggle; face it, 'tis God's gift."

The abundant Christian life should be perfectly balanced. In the first place, he must acknowledge the mind as a gift from God. He gave us humans something from our ears up which He did not give to any other creature, He meant that we should use it. All life should be carefully discerned, there is nothing in the Bible or in all the creeds of Christendom to which we are asked to put our mental powers to bed. On the other hand, let none of us think we are so worldly wise that if our puny minds cannot logically understand and explain everything, therefore the Divine powers are to that extent limited and think that what we cannot rationalize is foolishness. If I acknowledge Jesus Christ as my Lord and Master, one who can transform a sinful little me into a potential child of God, then no miracle is impossible.

In the second place, there is emotion and feeling in Christianity. The cross and its meaning must reach us in our emotional sector of life. Poor indeed is the soul who cannot shed a tear over a lost soul or because of his continued wrong doing. However, that does not mean that our emotions should run away with us, that does not justify uncivilized foolishness in the name of religion. Many ecstatic manifestations border on insanity. Emotions must be well balanced with sane ethics. By their fruits ye shall know them. This is the most observed test today. We know a woman "who got religion" (of the emotional type only) and will sit and read her Bible for hours at a time, but for three whole days she will not speak to any member of her family and mistreats, scolds, and whips her children for practically no reason whatsoever.

The third factor in the well-balanced Christian life is the will. When a man has been moved by his emotions, when he has felt the power of God from on high, and when the whole matter seems reasonable to his humble mind, then his whole life must come under the denomination of his will. When a man hates sin worse than he loves it, and gives God a chance, then into his life will come a power more than his own. There is nothing a man cannot do when he utilizes his whole willpower and when it is of such a nature that God can cooperate with him in the task.

Questions

1. Give some thoughts based on John 17:19.
2. What is meant by consecration?
3. What value or power in life do we need most to consecrate?
4. What are the limits of a life fully consecrated to God and His service?
5. Name some other duties and privileges which may be included in "My Task."

WHY We Need Both The Church and the Public School

II Tim. 2:15, 16; Prov. 8:1-6
(Rally Day)

"It is as necessary to learn how to live as it is to learn how to build houses, etc."

Pre-Prayer

Let Jesus meet your souls in united prayer.

Your Meeting — School Meeting

Arrange your chairs, if possible, in two rows, label one row "Schools," and the other row "Churches." The questions should be asked, first one row, then the other.

Questions

1 What is the real work of the church? of the school?
2. How does the school aid practical life? the church?
3. Name kinds of knowledge gained in schools; in churches.
4. Does the school teach you how to live? Does the church?
5. How does the school train your thinking powers? How does the church?
6. Does public school set all pupils on the same level? Does the church?
7. If a good education in public school means returns in dollar and cents, what does a good religious education mean?
8. Does being rich in material powers and things mean everything? Why? Why not?
9. How is education without Christianity like a bird with one wing?

(The teacher or leader will add to any questions or call for suggestions from volunteer pupils, as you see fit.)

Make the discussions interesting.

Can You Find Them?

Find Quickly and Read Reverently

James 1:27; II Cor. 6:14-18; Heb. 13: 17-25; Acts 7:22; Prov. 4:5; Prov 23:23; II Tim. 2: 15, 16; Prov. 8:1-6.

"The People Had A Mind To Work"

Neh. 4:1-6

(Consecration Meeting)

A united people can work wonders. Even a small church with members whose souls are afire can be a real power. Acts are more powerful than words.

Suggestive Service

Piano Prelude. (The pianist can put reverence into and create a worshipful attitude by being on hand at least fifteen minutes before the services and minister praises on the organ or piano which will pave the way for the service to follow.)

Pre-Prayer

Meet as President, Leader, and Prayer Meeting Chairman, and as many others as will, together for a season of prayer, praying for the C. E.'s all over the world and for the working out of God's program of salvation of precious souls "through Christ and the church," as the Christian Endeavor motto pledges.

Prelude.

Response. Read in unison Neh. 4:1-6.

Hymn: "To the Work," or "Toiling On."

Sentence Prayers of Praise and Adoration. and Petitions for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in the discussion tonight.

Remarks of introduction on the topic by the leader.

Discussions:

1. Why do most people work?
2. How can we increase interest in church work?
3. What can this society do to help the pastor?
4. What can young people do for the neighborhood in which they live?
5. Talk about the privilege we have in being workers together with God.
6. How is God's plan of salvation hindered by His workman?

Song: "Work for the Night Is Coming."

Consecration Service.

Special Musical Number: "Jesus Calls Us."

Leader: Since this is Roll Call night, let us consecrate ourselves anew to the work to which the Master has called us, whether in school, home, store, factory, or shop.

Secretary will call the roll and each will respond with a favorite verse of Scripture which they expect to take with them, particularly this new month.

Dismiss with a prayer of consecration and close with the C. E. Benediction.

Mindful Work for Intermediates

1. Try a clean-up campaign.
2. Help clear a lot for boys' baseball diamond or children's playground.
3. Trim a Christmas tree for a hospital.
4. Collect toys and dolls and fix them up for sick children.
5. Give entertainment at the Old Folks Home.
6. Visit and cheer the weary at Poor Farms.

7. Provide good magazines and books for firemen at fire stations.
8. Provide flowers for the church each Sunday.
9. Give your unselfish interest in taking old people to church services.
10. Assist with church publicity by handing out invitation cards, announcing the services of the church, leaflets, tracts, and keep scrap books on hand to give on visitation work with your pastor.

JUNIOR C. E. SECTION

Mrs. Chas. H. Andersohn
6454 S. Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois

The Junior Pledge — "I Will Read The Bible"

Lavina Burkhalter, Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Juniors:

Did you read your Bible this morning? Did you mark it on your chart which is hanging by your bed or dresser? Did you learn a verse, making it the thought of your meditation for the day?

If you have not, do so before you close your eyes tonight. You will feel better. In the morning when you awake, ask God to give you a pure heart, an understanding mind and obedient will as you think upon the verses you have learned, and with joy you will read your chapter for the day. As you read, pray: "Open thou mine eyes that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."

Do you know how the Bible came to us? It it interesting to know its growth and development as we have it today.

It is written by men, but God, by His Holy Spirit, gave them what they should write. It contains many interesting stories. As you read them you feel the thrill of a living book, which grew out of the needs, problems, defeats, and victories of living men and women. Men and women who sought to know God and His will, and to whom God made Himself known.

It tells us as no other book who God is, and Jesus Christ, that the Holy Spirit wants to live with us and show us things we could never find out for ourselves. It tells us that we are sinners and separated from God, and how we can come back to Him. It helps us to solve our problems. Read it over and over.

We ever want to show it the greatest respect and reverence. I love it because it offers salvation for all, for me, for you, if we believe it.

There are some people who believe and accept it as true, go to church and Sunday School, but very seldom if ever, read it for themself. They remind me of people going on a journey without a guide or may, and have to listen to the people along the way for directions. Such people are often misled, waste much time, and miss much of the joy in traveling. READ THE BIBLE FOR YOURSELF — for we, too, are on a journey, the journey to heaven.

There are some who read only certain parts of the Bible. They remind me of a spoiled child who eats only what he thinks is sweet and pushes away the things he thinks are bitter.

Take the Bible as it is. Read all of it, believe all of it. You may not understand all of it. Nor do you understand all the food elements you eat. You keep on eating just the same. Your food gives you physical strength. The Word of God gives you spiritual strength and life. We accept it by faith.

There are more Bibles sold each year than any other book. God's heroes read it through many times. Hudson Taylor, one of China's greatest missionaries, read it through forty times in forty years. A few years ago the School Bag Gospel League was formed. Hundreds of boys and girls gathered in groups and read the Bible together.

You form a Bible Reading League in your neighborhood and at your meetings tell what you have read, and a lesson learned. As you read, do as Samuel did, say "Speak, Lord, thy servant heareth."

654 E. 79 St., Los Angeles, Calif.

We are glad that Miss Burkhalter sent us a copy of a song that she uses in her Junior Society. It is to be sung to the tune of "Count Your Blessings."

Would you like to know how great God's love hath been?
Take the dear old Bible, read John 3:16;
And the best assurance if you want to know,
Just turn over leaf to John 5:24.

Chorus:
Read your Bible, read it every day!
Read your Bible, read it come what may;
Read your Bible, read it every day,
Never mind what any of the critics say.

It tells of joy unspeakable for all who take,
Just by simple faith first Peter 1 and 8;
It tells of perfect victory through the blood that is given,
Look up Revelations 12 and verse 11.

It tells of many mansions there for you and me,
Read John 14th chapter, verses 2 and 3;
It tells of Jesus' coming for to take His own,
To the land of glory, never more to roam."

Topic.—Come On, Push! Our Plans for the Season

Phil. 3:13, 14

(Rally Meeting)

As I read the first three words of the topic, they remind me of many things. I fancy I see a group of boys and girls trying to get a loaded cart up a steep hill. It moves, but so slowly! Every few minutes they must stop to rest for the load is heavy. Then they see more boys and girls at the foot of the hill and call to them, "Come on, help push"! They come, and as all work together they move steadily and soon reach the top. Isn't that something like our Junior work? We love to work, but so much needs to be done that when only a few Juniors push the load seems heavy. There are meetings to plan, studying to do, sick folks to visit, missionaries to remember, new Juniors to win, and ever so many other things to think about. Jesus said, "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the labourers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth labourers into his harvest." Shall we who love Him say, "Let someone else," or shall we say like Isaiah, "Here am I, send me." Your work may not seem so great as Isaiah's, but it is just as important that we each do just what the Lord would have us to do.

Plans for the Meeting

If it seems wise, follow the suggestion that this be a Rally meeting. Invite all those of Junior age in your church as well as those in the community not connected with any church. Each Daily Reading suggests important work for the Junior society. Perhaps a member of the Senior society who received training in the Junior will speak. Definite plans should be made for work in the coming months. Juniors as a rule are eager to work if the superintendent will show the way.

Questions

1. Why will the Junior who loves Christ want to work for Him?
2. How may we find out what He would have us do?
3. Tell of some things your society may do for your own church.
4. For your community.
5. How may the Junior meetings be made more interesting?

Daily Readings

Personal work. John 1:40-42.
Memory work. Psa. 119:1.
Helping the poor. Gal. 2:10.
Doing good turns. Matt. 7:12.
Interesting meetings. Heb. 10:25.
Bible study. John 5:39.

Topic.—Being Like Christ In His Faithfulness

Luke 2:49

(Consecration Meeting)

Christ said in speaking of His Heavenly Father, "I do always those things that please Him." He was always faithful. God in His Word speaks of the faithfulness of a number of men. Get your Bibles and find the verses as we think of them. There are Moses, Num. 12:7; David, 1 Sam. 22:14; Timothy, 1 Cor. 4:17;; Abraham, Gal. 3:9; Paul, 1 Tim. 1:12, and many others. As you read of these men, think of their lives and just how they proved their faithfulness. Can God call us faithful? He is willing to help us and we do need to go to Him for help each day.

Questions

1. What is meant by faithfulness?
2. How did Christ prove His faithfulness?
3. Tell of others who were called faithful.
4. How may we prove faithful?
5. What is the reward of faithfulness?

Daily Readings

The faithful son. Heb. 3:1-3.
Faithful Moses. Num. 12:5-7.
Faithful in trial. James 1:12
Faithful Abraham. Gal. 3:9.
Faithful unto death. Rev. 7:9-17.
Reward of faithfulness. Luke 19:17.

Isaiah Counsels Rulers

Lesson Text.—Isa. 31:1-9

Golden Text.—"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee; because he trusteth in thee." Isa. 26:3.

The four prophets, Amos, Hosea, Micah, and Isaiah, were very different in temperament and in their methods of work. Amos and Micah were men of the desert who appeared at special times to bring a message of rebuke and judgement to their people. Isaiah and Hosea lived with the people and mingled in their activities. Isaiah belonged to the wealthy. He moved in the society of the court. He counseled with princes and rulers. He was no rough man of the hills like Elijah, or a rude herdsman like Amos of Tekoa. He had an assured social position which gave him access to the court of the king.

Isaiah became a prophet at a great national crisis. It was at the death of Uzziah. This ruler had been on the throne for fifty-two years and had served his country well. He had increased the material prosperity of his people; he had strengthened the fortifications of his capital city, Jerusalem. Now he was dead and who should assume his leadership? Isaiah saw this, but he also saw the majesty and holiness of the King Jehovah as he worshipped in the temple. Many a man has in the hour of stress and need seen the Lord. He carried this conviction and vision with him in his advice to the king. Israel was threatened by two strong nations, Assyria and Egypt. The king was debating whether he should ally himself with one or the other. Isaiah advised no alliance, but a return of the people to the obedience of the true God.

God in Hebrew History

Lesson Text.—Heb. 11:32-40

Golden Text.—"Thy kingdom is an everlasting kingdom." Ps. 145:13.

A review often in Sunday School results in a repeating of each lesson that has already been discussed. This need not be so. The purpose of a review is rather to select the outstanding truths of the twelve lessons as a whole. The last quarter we have been studying Judah and Israel from the time of the division of the kingdom at the death of Solomon in 937 B. C. to the downfall of Israel in 722 B. C. and the end of the reign of Uzziah.

In this period of history we have found a leadership religiously that was unique in Hebrew history as well as world history. No other nation has ever had a leadership that entirely compared with the prophets Amos, Hosea, Micah, and Isaiah.

These men were forth-tellers of God's eternal purpose for man and man's relation to God. They had a vision of God acquired through fellowship and communion with Him. Through this vision they saw themselves and felt keenly a responsibility. They saw the needs of their people and this constituted their call. Their message emphasized faith in an unseen holy God and the need of the Hebrews to be true to this God. The worship must not simply be a round of ceremonies, but it must be spiritual. This worship must be accompanied by right conduct. The prophets laid great stress on the ethical side of life.

Dear Loyal Temperance League boys and girls:

I am wondering how many of you have spoken to your playmates about coming into our around the world chain of L. T. L.'s. I am sure you are interested enough in your friends that you will want to ask them to.

Whenever you send me five names of those who want to get into this great chain, then I will send you five cards for them to sign. In that way you can help your friends, and they will help some other friends to abstain from such narcotic poisons as alcohol and tobacco. I wonder who will be the first to send me at least five? I wish all our L. T. L.'s would memorize this little verse, and never forget it:

My body is a temple, to God it does belong,
He bade me keep it for His use,
He wants it pure and strong.
The things that harm my body I must not use at all.
Tobacco is one harmful thing, and so is alcohol.
Into my mouth they shall not go;
When tempted I will answer, "No"!
And every day I'll watch and pray:
Lord, keep me pure and strong alway!

Mrs. Jacob Sommer, Peoria, Ill.

JOTTINGS

Mr. and Mrs. Peter H. Wedel, of near Moundridge, Kansas, recently celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding. A reception was held in their honor in the Eden Mennonite church which was attended by about 150 relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Wedel have been living in this community nearly all of their lives, being among some of the earliest settlers.

Although the community has been hard hit by several crop failures during the past few years and the drought of this year, Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., will continue its work this year as usual. The Board of Directors has decided that it is not dealing so much with dollars and cents as with young people who are to become useful men and women in the world. Rev. John C. Kaufman, who knows conditions well and whose father was one of the leading men in establishing the institution, will visit churches in better favored communities, soliciting financial assistance for the institution.

The attendance at the Bethel Retreat, held on the Bethel campus, exceeded that of other years. The young people who attended came from various Mennonite churches in Kansas and Nebraska. This show of increased interest was especially encouraging to the promoters of the Retreat.

Mr. Waldo Wedel, son of Professor P. J. Wedel, of Bethel College, now working toward the Ph. D. degree at the University of California, was one of a party of archaeologists investing remains of prehistoric people in Kansas. They uncovered many interesting evidences of a people of advanced culture who lived in large communities and erected substantial structures.

Miss Aganetha Fast, who recently returned from the mission field in China under the direction of the General Conference, arrived from Los Angeles at Newton, Kansas, some days ago. After visiting friends and relatives she departed for Mountain Lake, Minnesota, her home town.

The Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference reports its receipts for July to have been $6,574.86. To this amount is to be added gifts for orphans, teachers, ets., gifts for special accounts, gifts for salaries, gifts for sundries, interest, and rent. There was a balance in bank of $1,020.68. The total receipts, special gifts, and balance is $7,595.54. There were paid on orders and remitted direct to India $5,394.15. The balance in bank August 1, was $2,201.39. J. E. Regier, Newton, Kans., is treasurer of the Board and gifts and contributions should be sent to him.

Mrs. J. G. Regier, Treasurer of the Executive Committee of Mission Societies, reports the following for that organization for July: For the Foreign Mission General Treasury, $309.01; for Home Missions, $123.57; Miscellaneous, $359.50. Expenses of Executive Committee and "News and Notes," $49.20. Grand Total, $841.28.

The Middle District Conference met in Grace Church, Pandora, Ohio, August 23 to 26. The program of this meeting appeared in our previous number. Report of the meeting will appear later.

The Mennonite Retreat at Shipshewanna Lake was well attended. 21 young people from the Bluffton, Ohio, district attended. 13 are reported to have attended from Berne, Ind.

On September 12, the group of Mennonites who arrived in America from Asia and located in the vicinity of Beatrice fifty years ago propose to observe the anniversary with a festival of thanksgiving. Survivors of that party and their descendants are cordially invited to attend or if that is impossible, a communication from the old settlers will be welcomed and should be addressed to Rev. Franz Albrecht, R. D. 1, Beatrice, Nebraska.

On August 1, there was a gathering of Mennonites at Steinbach, Manitoba, held to celebrate the coming of the Russian Mennonites into Manitoba sixty years ago. Among those who attended were a number of the original party, some quite aged — eighty and ninety years. There was a morning and afternoon program in which many participated, some giving their experiences during that period. Among those present were several Canadian officials and four members of the Manitoba Legislature.

In Waterloo, Ontario, there was another gathering, this time in celebration of the arrival of the Russian Mennonite refugees in Canada ten years ago. Addresses were made at this gathering in German, English, and Russian. Music by various choruses was also an inspiring feature of the gathering. In many sections of the world Mennonites are accustomed to use two languages, but here Russian was also recognized as one of the tongues with which many are familiar. We venture that while not having a place on the program, there was as much Plattdeutsch heard as there was of the other tongues and if any descendants of the oldest Mennonite settlers in Canada were present there were also those to whom "Pennsylvania Dutch" was at least the language of the home. Five languages!

The Treasurer of the Emergency Relief Board of the General Conference, Rev. P. H Unruh, of Alexanderwohl, Kansas, reports the following gifts for June: For Russia, $57.60; for Harbin, $119.47; for the General Fund, $253.48. Total, $430.55. Paid out during the month, $700.17.

The anniversary of the Mennonite Home for the Aged at Frederick, Pa., will be held this year on September 8. This occasion has become one of the big features in the Eastern District Conference. The program always includes an address by a prominent speaker and special music. This institution is well equipped to care for those who stand in need of the services of such a home. It is splendidly located among the beautiful green hills of Montgomery County, on a well traveled road in one of the most healthful sections in the state.

The outing of the Saucon, Pa., church, Rev. Elwood Shelly, pastor, held in the church grove, was a successful affair. The Gospel Messengers of Bally and the Harmony Gospel Trio were features of the program. The occasion was one of home coming for former members of the Sunday School, members and friends. Saucon is one of the oldest Mennonite churches in Pennsylvania, going back to the early colonial days. The beautiful grove in which the meeting house stands makes it an ideal place for meditation and the enjoyment of the beauties of nature. No less an artist than Wallace Nutting has made this a subject for one of his pictures collected in the volume "Beautiful Pennsylvania."

The severe drought covering a greater part of our country brings to mind to some of the old timers who came to Dakota some fifty years ago similar conditions in the Russian Mennonite settlements that were experienced by the settlers there. An item from the Freeman Courier has to bear on this point: "Farmers are busy cutting and stack Russian thistles for feed for the winter. A few years ago very few young people knew that these thistles can be used for feed. The older people heard from their fathers that there was a time in Russia when thistles were fed to livestock in 1833. We heard this from a man who was a lad of seven years in 1833 and saw it done, and told the story frequently. The man is Jacob M. Wollmann's father. The other day we opened a book written in Russia close to 100 years ago and describing conditions there in 1833. It was a total crop failure, dust storms just like 1923, no feed, many cattle were starving, wind every day, etc. They had relief organizations just like now here, but not quite as sytematic. The feed for the livestock were the Russian thistles. Since the conditions now are just like that, we make mention of it."

MARRIAGE

Reeser-Rich.—Sunday, August 19, 1934, at 4 P. M., at the Eicher Mennonite Parsonage of Noble, Iowa, was solemnized the marriage of Miss Helen Rich, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Rich, of near Crawfordsville, Iowa, to Mr. Murray Reeser, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Reeser, of near Congerville, Illinois. They were attended by Miss Esther Wenger, cousin of the bride, and Raymond Rich, the bride's brother. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rich, her sister, Mildred, and Miss Josephine Stuard of Washington, Iowa, attended the ceremony. The single ring ceremony was read. Rev. A. A. Miller, pastor of the bride, officiated.

Mrs. Reeser is a graduate of the Olds High School, and has been at Bloomington, Ill., the past year taking nurses' training at the Mennonite Hospital. Mr. Reeser attended high school at Congerville, Ill., and is a graduate of the School of Auction at Kansas City, Mo. They will reside on a farm south of Bloomington, near Randolph, Ill., and will be at home to their friends after September first.

DEATHS

Augspurger.—Miss Ida Mae, born in Gibson City, Ill., April 2, 1904. In 1914 she moved with her family into this community, and at an early age she made one of the important decisions of her life, her choice of Christ as her Savior, uniting with the Mennonite Church of Trenton, Ohio.

Ida Mae graduated from the Middletown High School in 1924 with high honors, after which she attended Bluffton College for two years where she made deep and lasting friendships. In 1926 she entered the Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton to train for her life work, graduating in 1929. After graduation she nursed for some time in Dayton and later spent two years in service at the St. Luke's Hospital in Cleveland.

For the past two years Ida Mae suffered from ill health, but her sweet cheerfulness and her uncomplaining patience kept the fact from many of those who knew her, until very recently. The immediate cause of her death was due to an operation which was necessary for her to undergo at the Miami Valley Hospital, July 23rd. After a week of courageous fighting for life she answered her Master's call Sunday night, July 29, at 8:20 o'clock, leaving those who knew her to mourn the passing of a beautiful soul from their presence.

Although short, Ida Mae's life was rich and useful, because all of it was spent in service for her fellow men in a spirit of willing devotion and sweet self-sacrifice.

Rev. J. E. Amstutz spoke words of comfort at the service which was held at the Trenton Mennonite Church, which was filled with relatives and friends.

She is mourned by her beloved parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert S. Augspurger, two sisters, Anne Augspurger and Mrs. Robert Teckemeyer, and one brother, Robert, all who feel their loss deeply.

DUTY

Duty is an old-fashioned word, but it is well to keep it in one's vocabulary. Some young people imagine that duty is something desperate, difficult, and unpleasant. Some think of it only as connected with going to church and missionary work. To some it means a great sacrifice that man is called on to make on one or two occasions in a life-time. To many it is a word bearing no pleasant impression. And many more do not think about it at all. Duty is not a thing for special occasion, nor does it require any great courage or sacrifice. To do one's duty is simply to do right, a daily and hourly responsibility. It is one's duty to be honest and kind, to be cheerful and make happiness, and to delight in every good and beautiful thing. "The reward of one duty is the power to fulfill another."

THE END OF A SUMMER

With the country coming through the longest and hardest period of drought in its history, with labor unrest spreading practically over our entire territory, with the prospect of increased distress during the coming winter, and with millions of troubled and discouraged people; it is hard to guess what will happen in the next months. Much has been said of the common sense of the American people being our best security against anarchy, but a hungry and disappointed people in deep distress is apt to exercise another kind of common sense which may be common, but not sensible. Our National Government goes happily on with experiment after experiment with the hope of stumbling upon something that will be a real help to the nation, but making little advance in getting the country out of the red. Yet with all this the sobering influence that should be felt makes little impression on many. Some still seem to think that the nation can drink itself back to prosperity. Others have acted on the theory that destroying the national resources will make us prosperous. The seashore resorts have had more visitors enter into their gayities than they have had for years. At Washington where they are multiplying positions and great numbers of public employees in ventures that will load down generations to come with the debts they are merrily continuing in absurd projects that mean nothing in the long run. Down there they are not much better than the Nero who fiddled while Rome was burning. It is about time that the words of the prophet sink deep into the national mind: "The harvest is ended, the summer is past, and I am not saved."

TURNING CRIMINALS LOOSE

The other day in one of our large cities a policeman acting as a guard, was shot down in cold blood and his companion, carrying the deposits of his firm to bank, wounded nigh unto death by a gang of young ruffians bent on robbery. Stories such as these are so common in our day, they only make the inside pages of the newspapers. It happened that this particular gang of youthful murderers were soon captured and developed that each of them had a criminal record involving major crimes, but later escaped punishment altogether or partly so by paroles and suspended sentences. An offense against the law of the land may not require the severest punishment that can be imposed, and there is sometimes a chance that the offender will reform and become a useful member of society again, but when it comes to turning loose persons of notorious criminal tendencies without compelling them to suffer the full penalties imposed by the courts and without a careful consideration of the damage they may do to society, there remains much to be improved on the part of the courts and those into whose keeping criminals under punishment is placed. Turning loose dangerous criminals under suspended sentences or on parole may appear merciful and hopeful on the part of the state, but the practice has met with so much abuse that it is becoming a serious menace to the whole community. G.

SLEEPING IN CHURCH

There may be various ways by which the sleeper in church may be accounted for. A good old father, accustomed to hard daily toil, who sometimes lapsed into slumber while the pastor preached, explained that it was perfectly all right for him to do so since he was thoroughly satisfied with the preacher and his preaching. That surely should have been a comfort to the pastor, knowing that at least one of his congregation was contented. Said a minister of experience, "I am flattered to know that my sermons at least have a soothing effect, so many of my hearers slumber peacefully through them." Another dear old soul said that her husband's habit of sleeping in church was justified since the Scriptures distinctly state, "The Lord giveth his beloved rest."

Seriously speaking, however, there are physical conditions that tend to sleepiness in many churches that might be corrected. A building that has been closed for some days, especially during the hot months, should be thoroughly aired some hours before the service begins. In winter the room should be comfortable but not hot. After the building is filled with people care should be given to proper ventilation. Where oil or gas is used in lighting, the fixtures should be so located that they will not radiate heat upon the worshippers. It is a splendid thing to plan that the audience rise for singing during the service. A change of position often keeps the audience in a more responsive mood. Lights back of the pulpit are badly placed and interfere with the effectiveness of the meeting. When an audience is compelled to look directly into them for any length of time it is sure to tire the eyes and make one sleepy. The correction of conditions, such as we have noted, will surely be appreciated by all concerned. G.

A CALL FOR HELP

It is not easy for me to again appeal for help for our destitute people in Canada. But in view of the winter that will set in after a few months, and in view of the fact that in the southern part of Saskatchewan there have been crop failures for the last five and six years. I trust that our kind friends who have again and again helped us with our many immigrants, who came here penniless, will pardon me for again asking for help.

I certainly had hoped that after ten years of residence in Canada most of our immigrants would have become self-supporting. But it must be remembered that these people came into Canada at a time when the coming depression began to make itself felt. Crops in many cases were poor, prices for farm products were low, and unemployment almost from the beginning became more and more general.

We, who have a chance to observe our people in their everyday toil, must admire the courage of the majority who not only try to help themselves, but send large sums out of their earnings to their starving friends in Russia.

I am sure that with changing conditions our incoming people will not only help themselves, but they will prove a real help to all our endeavors along missionary or charitable lines. But owing to conditions over which we have no control, I hope our friends will bear with me for again appealing for help in the way of clothing or otherwise.

Trusting that this appeal will receive the same kind consideration as in previous years, I am,

Yours in the service of our suffering brethren, David Toews.

TO THE CHURCHES OF THE W. D. CONFERENCE

The Lord willing, the 43rd session of the Western District Conference will convene in the City Auditorium, Newton, Kansas, beginning October 24, at 9:30 A. M. This is in accordance with a former resolution that the Conference will be held in Newton in case no special invitation has been received.

P. H. Richert, President.
P. E. Frantz, Vice President.
P. K. Regier, Secretary.

THE MIDDLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE

The forty-sixth annual session of the Middle District Conference of the Mennonite Church convened at the Grace Mennonite Church, Pandora, Ohio, on Thursday evening, August 23, and continued in session until Sunday evening, August 26. Throughout the eleven sessions the weather was ideal for a good conference, cool and bracing. The attendance was good, although not as large as sometimes. There were one hundred and twenty-five registered delegates and visitors. In addition to these there were also a large number who remained only for a part of the sessions. The attendance from the local community was large throughout the entire period of the Conference.

At the Thursday evening session Rev. Wilmer S. Shelly, the retiring president of the conference, preached the annual conference sermon. He selected the conference theme for the subject of his sermon, "The Fullness of Christ." The sermon constituted a fitting keynote for the later sessions of the conference. The Grace church choir under the leadership of Hilda W. Amstutz, sang two choruses from "The Holy City," which were much appreciated.

The forenoon and afternoon sessions on Friday and Saturday were devoted to the hearing of instructive and inspiring addresses and the transaction of the conference business. These addresses were given by the two guest speakers of the conference, Rev. P. H. Unruh, the pastor of the Alexanderwohl Mennonite church, Goessel, Kansas, and Dr. A. C. Wieand, Professor of the Bethany Biblical Seminary, Chicago, Illinois. These messages were greatly appreciated and were a chief factor in the success of the Conference.

The business session consisted in the hearing of reports from the various boards and their activities, making plans to carry forward the work for the coming year and the election of officers, boards, and committees. Several items of business required lengthy consideration. Others passed in rapid review. At each session a worship period was conducted by the several pastors of the churches in the Middle District. There were also two special numbers of music at each session supplied by the local and neighboring Mennonite churches.

On Friday evening the session was in charge of the Women's Missionary Society of the Middle District Conference. Several missionaries, who are at home on furlough, spoke. A report was made of the results of the business session, which was held in the afternoon. Several numbers of music were given by the ladies of the neighboring Mennonite churches. An impressive devotional service introduced this session. The church was crowded to capacity at this session.

On Saturday later afternoon and evening the young people of the conference had charge of two sessions. These were valuable contributions to the Conference. A large number of young people attended these sessions and furnished the entire program with the exception of one address which was given by one of the two conference guest speakers. These were inspiring sessions. On Sunday afternoon the Educational Committee of the Conference gave a very helpful program. An address on "How to Study and Teach the Bible" was especially suggestive and helpful.

On Sunday morning the entertaining church and the delegates and visitors conducted a conference communion service. Ten ministers and the deacons of the entertaining church conducted this service. This was one of the mountain-top experiences of the conference. By means of prayers, hymns, Scripture readings, an impressive communion meditation and appropriate special music the entire congregation was led to realize anew the significance of the cross and the atonement wrought there for our redemption.

At the final session on Sunday evening the Grace church choir, with the help of soloists, rendered Mendelssohn's "Saint Paul." The church was packed and many were standing a half hour before the beginning of the sacred concert. Many could not gain admission to the church, but shared in the rendition as best they could from the outside, listening to the choruses and solos through the open windows. The rendition of the "Saint Paul" climaxed the conference.

ORDINATION OF MINISTERS

J. H. Janzen

Sunday, August 12, 1934, was a day of abundant blessing to us, when at Vineland, Ontario, the Brethren Peter Kroeker, Hespeler, and Nicolai Fransen, Vineland, were ordained into the ministry.

It was a joy to see the two brethren who have contemplated their call very long and very carefully, to come to a decision at last, and to give themselves over to the ministry of the Gospel, which by no means is an easy office. Everybody sees the minister, everybody watches him, that he might not tresspass on the limits set for him, everybody criticizes him, and very often he gets the blame if things do not come as expected and desired. Alas, we have many candidates for the ministry who say to the Lord, like Moses, "Oh Lord, send, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou wilt send."

But these two brethren had fought their way through to become obedient to their calling, and here they were present with their families, in the presence of many witnesses, from the Mennonite Brethren Church as well as from ours, to surrender themselves to the ministry of the Gospel and to receive upon themselves the blessing through the laying on of hands of the Elder who officiated on behalf of the church.

Bro. D. H. Koop, Bishop of the Waterloo-Kitchener United Mennonite Church, read the 84th Psalm and led in prayer. After congregational singing, Rev. John Wichert, local pastor of the Vineland group, spoke on 2 Cor. 1:24, and then Bro. J. H. Janzen, former Elder of the church, preached, taking his text from the Gospel of John 21:15-18. Bro. D. H. Koop, officiating Elder, took his text from the Gospel of Luke 4:18-19, and after the local choir had sung his beautiful hymn, he ordained the two brethren into the ministry. Rev. J. H. Janzen, Waterloo, led in the consecrating prayer.

The hearts of the congregation were moved when the two brethren rose from their seats to anew confess their faith and to pledge themselves to the ministry of reconciliation. Their wives also rose to show their accord with what their husbands were taking upon them. Simple, short, but very impressive was the way in which Bro. Koop conducted the ordination. Thankfully the people took their seats after the service, satisfied that the Lord had sent two more workers into his harvest field, and that they had been willing to go and work.

Judging by the warm greetings extended to the new ministers by their co-workers, from the Brethren Church as well as from ours, everybody who cared for the building up of the Kingdom of God was exceedingly glad to see more workers building the walls of Zion.

The newly ordained ministers were too much moved to say much, but they both spoke very briefly, taking for their texts, Bro. Kroeker John 10:27 and Bro. Fransen 2 Tim. 1:11.

The impressive service closed with congregational singing, prayer, and benediction.

There they stand on the walls of Zion, as times require it, holding in the one hand their tools and in the other their weapons. Pray for them, because they and their co-workers are all of the kind who glory the things that concern their weakness. And the Lord must make His power perfect in their weakness. "Not that we are sufficient in ourselves, to account anything as from ourselves; but our sufficiency is from God."

CHAMPA CHURCH TESTIFIES

(By F. J. Isaac, Champa, India)

The Champa church decided to have a week of evangelism during the latter part of April. The plan was that young and old, as many as could, should together go to some nearby village each evening. Besides this another group of women, especially those who could not get out in the evening, were to go to the same villages each morning to do preparatory work. There was much enthusiasm for this plan and each night of the week before groups gathered to pray for this special effort. But the very first evening when we came to a village the Evil One tried to spoil our unity. As the seating of the group was being arranged someone's voice was heard loudly giving vent to hurt feelings because another brother had greeted him jeeringly, as he thought. This loud one was at once told to keep still and advised to go home. He did so, and the spirit of the gathering was not seriously affected — perhaps many and especially the non-Christians hardly knew what it was all about. After this we had no more trouble and each evening several people gave their personal testimony with great fervor and conviction, while all joined in the singing. People listened attentively to the testimonies and some invited us to come again. The morning group also brought back happy reports of good receptions and respectful hearers. One evening on the way home a young man remarked enthusiastically: "We ought to do this often." We felt that in many instances these close neighbors of ours — who see the Christians daily and know both their strength and weakness — were mightily stirred by the Christians' frank confession of their failings and sins, but also by their firm trust in a Savior who both died to take away their sin and lives to daily help them overcome the Evil One.

WORSHIPPING WITH VOICE AND INSTRUMENT

By M. G. Oberholtzer

It depends entirely upon the spirit of the performer of either vocal or instrumental music whether it will be true worship — as unto the Lord. It is indeed true that much of the singing in churches is not in accord with Paul's teaching, according to Colossians 3:16, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your heart to the Lord."

While it is sacriligious to sing songs, and making melody, by the use of songs and hymns, which are not of a good moral character, it is also sacriligous to use the piano, organ, violin, etc., in making melody in any other way but what is of a good nature, in worshipping God and to cheer and inspire humanity.

Some good and devout church people think that a piano or other instruments of music used in church services are not appropriate, or in other words, are sacriligous. They think while musical instruments are often used to make all kinds of music, which is not in harmony with Christian sentiment, but used at frolics, scenes of levity, or frivolity, it will also be wrong to use them in the church. Those people have the wrong conception of the need and use of a piano or organ for church music.

The piano or organ is intended to be used to assist in the service of song, to give the proper and prompt record of pitches of the harmony of the chords, as well as giving the correct pitch for the leader of singing. The instrument is not to be used merely to lead in singing, or taking the place of the human voice while we worship in songs and hymns. The mission of the instrument in church service is to give the correct harmony of the four parts of the hymn, and thereby giving each of them their pitch, so that all are helped to start promptly and properly together in the beginning of the song as well as assisting throughout the entire hymn.

We find some conscientious, good people in our enlightened age of progression in musical art, who think it a great wrong to use an organ or piano in the house of worship. It reminds me of an incident when a woman prayed that "she hoped the congregation would never introduce hymn books with notes, as the singing of hymns with notes is of the devil."

Why should we object to the use of musical instrument in order to assist in praising and worshipping God? We read in God's word how David played the harp, and said the people should "praise Him with the sound of the trumpet; praise Him with the psaltery and harp, and with stringed instruments ond organs," etc. Psalm 150:3, 4. Also see II Chron. 7:6 and Isa. 38:20. I suppose if they had had pianos and organs in those days he would have told them to praise the Lord with them, as well.

But some will say, that was Old Testament times, but we are now in the New Testament time. It is, however, a fact that there is nothing said in the Old or New Testament that the use of musical instruments is wrong. The New Testament encourages the use of instruments of music. Rev. 5:8, "The four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps."

We believe that it all depends on the spirit of worship — when the instrument is used in praising the Lord. Anything can be misused; so in the using of an instrument in the service of worship. Just in the same way can the voice be used in the singing of songs in a wrong spirit, which is not true worship. We may sing frivolous songs or speak unrefined and vulgar languages, which is not worshipping God. "Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good." Rom. 12:9.

A CHINESE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

We had gotten comfortably seated on the bus at the station on North Street, Taming. I had just extracted some mulberries from Leland's blouse pockets with which he had fortified himself against a possible famine of "eats" on the way. The manager motioned me to the front seat, reminding us that we had arranged for the privilege of a front seat. I soon found myself between the driver on my right and an amiable business man on my left.

"Eight o'clock," piped Stanley from behind us as he proudly chucked his "Century of Progress" watch, a gift from his uncle, back into his pocket.

"You're slow," came in good English from the gentleman to my left. "We leave here at exactly 8:30, so we may take it that it is 8:30 now."

"Presumably," I agreed, "provided the bus always starts at the same time."

"Oh, that it does," he insisted.

He looked back at the boys and their father and with typical Chinese enthusiasm over "sons" complimented us on our family. Upon his question we explained there was also a "hsiao mei mei" (little sister), whom we had left at home with friends. "And you are going to Pei Ping for the boys to have a 'look-see,' eh"? he understandingly decided.

"Yes, we have business here and thought it would be a good change for them," I stated.

"So it will," he agreed, "because it gets monotonous for children in the interior. Things are very humdrum, the Chinese farmer is content with things as they are, he has no ambition to change things, and so in the country it is quite different from in the city." And Mr. Wu, as he introduced himself, enlarged upon his opinion of the lower classes of rural Chinese, an opinion none too complimentary. Upon my query as to his destination, he explained that his home was in Shunte, but that he was going to several temple fairs near Wu An before returning home. That brought up the subject of the recent very flourishing revival of temple building. Within the last year four temples have been completely renovated in the south suburb of Taming alone, and in village after village new temples are going up. Day after day one hears the clang clang of cymbals and beating of drums. We see the people, mostly old women, come in streams from every direction bringing money and earth to supply the temple and gain for themselves merit. My traveling companion accounted for this in this way: The present government does not prohibit religious worship as was the case a few years ago when all temples and images were torn down the teaching of religion was forbidden in schools. Religion is free, everyone can worship as he pleases.

"And so the farmer in his ignorance spends his money building these temples — a foolish waste," declared Mr. Wu. I called his attention to the predicament which this supposedly religious freedom puts our Christians into. Temple building as well as staging theatrical performances for the idols has from old been a community project and if Christians refuse to help it can be made very unpleasant for them. So that while the government gives the community freedom, the community does not allow the individual the same freedom. Adherents of other religions have no scruples against helping with the maintainance of several different kinds of temples, believing they gain the more merit thereby. So he wondered why Christians could not do the same, saying that the Chinese Christianity was no more than any other religion. Not being a Christian himself, he could not appreciate the fact that a man, if he be a genuine follower of Christ cannot conscientiously subscribe to the rites of any other religion.

The bus passed a man lying alongside the road taking a morning nap, with his head resting on a brick. It is hard to see how anyone can rest that way, but rural Chinese often, like Jacob, use a hard pillow.

"Just like an animal," muttered our traveling companion. "The Chinese farmer has no push, no ambition, is content with his situation so he can sleep like that."

"But," I protested, "the Chinese farmer works hard, he gets up early and his subsistence is poor, so his physical strength soon gives out and he needs to rest. And contentment is, after all, a blessing, whereas discontentment might make a bad situation worse."

"Yes, the trouble is there is too much difference between rich and poor in China; the rich live too high, the poor too low." Having learned by now that Mr. Wu was a manager in the "B. A. T." (British American Tobacco Company), I asked what that company is doing to improve the economic situation. I meant the sum total constructive contribution of that and kindred business enterprises to the country. But he gave my question a more superficial interpretation and stated that they give money for poor relief when there are famines. I made reference to the opium trade which is on the increase again in this as well as other provinces. In Peking we heard Bishop Bottom of Szechuen province tell of how even Sedan chair coolies carrying passengers up the mountains have to stop for "rest periods" of opium smoking before they have sufficient "strength" to carry passengers on up the mountain. Our B. A. T. representative was emphatic in his denunciation of the opium evil, but his remark that from the opium friends the tobacco company gets much of its heaviest trade, was significant. "For," he added, "an opium smoker has the habit, so that he must be smoking all the time. Therefore he smokes cigarettes in between his opium draughts."

Dropping this delicate but significant subject, we met a man pushing a wheelbarrow on which sat a woman, apparently his wife. I complimented our traveling companion on Chinese regard for women. Whereas some other races demand that their women carry heavy burdens and do hard farm work, Chinese women are not often seen in the fields except at harvest time, seldom, for instance, to "ch'u ti" — wield the hoe. And in making long journeys, wagons or wheelbarrows are usually provided. If the family is poor, the man often himself pushes the wheelbarrow for his womenfolk, many weary miles. Mr. Wu went on to speak of Chinese ideals of womanhood and marriage. He told about his own family. He had a son ond two daughters "and ONE wife," he said, emphasizing the "one" because so many have two and more. He said they never had a disagreement in their home because they had a definite understanding about things. He gives his wife a stipulated sum of money each month, which is hers to run the home on. In that realm she has absolute control. The rest he does with as he sees best, without consulting her. He repeated several times, "no consultation." Suppose he wanted to help his nephew in school — that was his own business. Taking his business associates out to feasts or giving to some object of charity — all these he did "without consultation." To the suggestion that from the Christian point of view one would feel that both husband and wife were equally concerned in the family income and would want to discuss these things together, he answered that women were more concerned about their immediate family and could often not see the needs of others. Theirs was not the old Chinese type of home where the clan chief ruled the whole clan, he continued, nor the modern home where dancing and other western practices, such as free love and divorce, are countenanced.

"I send my boy to college to prepare for life, but not to waste his time making love to girls," he declared quite frankly. "Then after he is through school and has found the work he wants to do and can support a wife, let him say what kind of wife he wants; what type of girl — modern, oldfashioned, educated, of the official class, or what. Then we look around. When we have found such a girl he writes for her photograph, and maybe they can meet in a park with friends to have a 'looksee.' If she is not like photograph then we say, 'No, don't want.' "

At this point of the delineation I could not refrain the remark, "My only question would be whether with such brief acquaintance the two young people could know enough about each other's temperament and character to be able to live together happily all their lives."

"Oh, that's easy," he hastened to assure me, "because in China the wife does just as the husband says." Noting my amusement he added, "In America it is more a fifty-fifty affair." He was reminded that indeed not only in these matters but even in government were women accorded a voice in Christian countries. We tried to explain that the western man expects from his wife intellectual and spiritual companionship as well as the filling of a mother's place in the family pattern. Moreover, we had observed that the Chinese man also craves this companionship, but often not finding it in their wives, take a concubine.

The bus swung into Hantan streets and the boys were getting excited about "seeing the train." They had not seen one for two and one-half years. Mr. Wu looked back at them, smiling understandingly. But he returned to the subject under discussion. He said, "America will be having the second-to-none navy soon. That might bring on another world war. How is that when the women of America are supposed to be working for peace" ? He challenged. And I am sorry I could not answer him, but was glad that it was time to gather up our bags and alight.

A MISSIONARY LETTER

Charlesville, Africa,
July 13, 1934.

Dear Brethren in Christ:—

"Revive us again; fill each heart with Thy love, may each soul be rekindled with fire from above." We truly feel that the Lord has heard our plea, and that He has revived us again during the past two weeks, as the teachers and their families gathered here for a week's conference and revival meetings.

Last week about 85 teachers and their families were gathered together here at Charlesville from all the outstations around about this station. Some traveled quite a distance to attend the conference, and to mingle once again with their past friends. We started the meetings a week ago Sunday, on July 1, in the evening, which we opened with a revival meeting, the sermon being given by Rev. Graber. Then each morning of last week we had Bible classes, music hour, and also a separate session of women's meetings for the teachers and their wives. In the afternoon we all gathered together at the church for a short lesson on prayer, which was conducted by Mr. Schnell. After that we all united together in a short session of prayer. Each evening Mr. Graber gave an inspiring revival sermon to a large audience composed of the teachers and the people from the villages round about here.

Throughout the meetings we felt the Christians were really being revived again; and many also heard the call of the Lord for the first time and heeded it. The teachers were very glad to learn more of the Bible, ond also to gather together here once again at Charlesville.

Last Sunday morning, July 8, we received a wonderful blessing when we all gathered around the Lord's table with the teachers and Christions to partake of the Holy Sacrament. The revival meetings came to a close on Sunday night. Then on Monday we had a founders' day gathering with the teachers and their families. The gathering was held where the mission was first located at Charlesville. All the leaders and teachers that were here at that time or soon afterward gave a talk and told of the first days of the mission. Then they planted a tree on the spot where the first missionaries pitched their tent, after which we all gathered together and ate our supper out in the open under the trees with the teachers.

On Wednesday morning the teachers began the journey back to their villages to stay for a period of about six months.

Monday of this week we opened up the school again for the mission children and the villages around here, after they had been closed for a period of about two months. We hope to have school session from now until the first of December. School is held five days a week in the morning during the hours from 8:00 to 12:00.

Thinking that you would like to see some work which is done by the mission printing machine, we are sending you a few samples of some tracts. The yellow stripes are "Golden Rules" with centimeters. The large tract is practically the same translation of the tract put out by the American Bible Society, "How to use your Bible." We hope these tracts may prove of interest to you and may give you a little sample of the language spoken here among the natives.

In closing, we earnestly request that you remember the Lord's work here in the Congo in your prayers, and that we might hear from some of you in the near future. Wishing you God's richest blessing in your church work, we are,

Yours in the Master's service,
Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Schnell.

YOUTH IN ACTION

Mrs. Earl Salzman, Topeka, Indiana

Not having been present at the Program Committee Meeting, I was not sure just what the committee had in mind when this subject was assigned. I proceeded to study the general program and noticed that the topic was the building of character. We begin by encouraging a systematic Bible Study through the Sunday School, thus helping build the foundation in the life of the child. Then giving guidance to the young boy and girl as they come to the age when they are ready to enter some definite vocation in life, in order that they might consider all sides of the question and choose wisely. Then comes YOUTH IN ACTION. In other words, now we are in our chosen profession, what are we going to do about it? What attitude are we going to take toward our work and toward those who are in the work with us? Whether that is what the committee had in mind or not, that is the thing that appeals to me with relation to this question.

Youth and activity are well nigh synonymous terms. Hence to force young people to be idle and dependent when they yearn to be active and independent, is perhaps the cruelest blow of our depression. He goes out from his training only to find that there seems to be no vacancy in his profession, or to find that that profession already is overcrowded. Or it may be that he must necessarily dispense with that training which he had so much hoped he could get and that he must go on with his work with a very meager preparation for that task. All this is discouraging and a handicap to youth today. But let us look at the bright side of the case.

When we of the last generation graduated and were ready to enter our tasks we thought we were going out to a world that was just on the verge of conquering some of its greatest enemies that it has ever had. We knew that inventions and discoveries had come which so bound us together that soon we would be a great family of nations. War to us seemed a thing so remote that we thought it surely would soon cease to exist. We had disease in our grip and were ready to crush out its life. It was indeed a world of great things into which we stepped to take up our work. Then came the world war, and as a result you young people are stepping out into a sorely troubled world. You surely must realize as you start out the terrific tasks which await you and which you alone can cope with. You have come on the stage when things were in a great state of change, when the post-war problems lay heavily on the heart of America, when kings and emperors with their one-time authority were swept from their seats and new powers were ordained; when traditions which we had clung to tenaciously were thrown aside and others must be brought forth to take their place. This age has witnessed the prostration of prosperity, the catastrophe of unemployment, fresh wars are looming over the horizon, and bewilderment is everywhere seen. Men are more and more saying our hope is in our youth of today and the question is, what will be their solution of the problems which we have forced upon them.

The young people are coming into a world and into a profession which we older ones have largely made for them according to our own standards. The problems which we have mentioned and which they will be called upon to solve are problems of our making.

You are stepping into a world where money was the great standard of success, of efficiency, and of happiness. To be thrifty one had to get up early, work hard all day, and save all you made, then you were indeed prosperous. The more you had saved, the more was it possible for the salesman and exploiter to take from you and enrich himself. A vast amount of the wealth of the nation has been held by men who count themselves as Christian men. The churches have always felt proud of the fact that they could have businessmen and men of large finance as members of their boards, and as their trustees. Now it has been revealed in the past few years that many of the men in whose hands rested vast amounts of wealth and power and whose downfall has come about, have been men of the Christian society. Our late Chief Justice of the Nation, the Honorable William Howard Taft, sounded a most timely admonition to the nation to the effect that the enthronement of the spirit of materialism in the fabric of our country's life contributes the most serious menace to our civilization and to the security of our Republic. How true this prophecy seems to us today, and we see its fulfillment. It is very evident on every hand that the church has not preached the doctrine of simple honesty and responsibility to its rich men as it should have done. Men who violate all rules of business probity and speculate with the money of other people are not fit for membership in any self-respecting church. Civilization is a dismal failure, even though its banks be glutted with deposits and its ships of commerce traverse all seas, unless the true appraisement of human life shall be at the peak of such civilization. "Ill fares the land, to hastening ills a prey, where wealth accumulates and men decay."

Youth is taking note of these facts today with the conviction that its part in the renovation of the economic order is clear and imperative. What is going to be the standard of success in this new world which our youth will build? Will it be wealth, or will it be the higher ideal of the proper use and distribution of wealth, that it may be the servant of humanity in the future? And will the primary concern be the conservation of human values?

Many will tell us the real religion of America is power, and the real God the God of financial success. Saying to our youth, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me."

Youth is stepping into a world where war is imminent or where it has again become the accepted standard. That spirit seems to be stalking through Europe, showing the insecurity of past treaties, making countries doubt one another. Men and women of a militaristic mind are doing all they can to lead mankind to war. Our newspapers are doing their utmost to enhance the war spirit; we are through our military training schools developing the military spirit in our young people. This is a problem which must be faced by the young men and women as they go into their particular profession today and we feel that they are the only ones who can save the nation. If the students and youth of Europe and America would resolve never again to engage in the insanity of another war, war would be impossible. This attitude is being taken by many of our young people. They are everywhere putting themselves on record to this effect. Has our church been so building the character of these young people as they come to the age of responsibility and leadership that they have the stamina and positiveness to take a definite stand on these questions? Young people, you must face this issue regardless of what vocation you enter, and may you face it in the fear and knowledge of God, doing all in your power to erase war from the face of the earth and instead bring in peace and good will and brotherhood in the years to come.

You are stepping into a world where the church and religion itself are being questioned. People are saying that the church has failed in recent years in upholding its ideals and its purity, so why try to perpetuate it. We talk a great deal about religious revivals coming with a depression, but in our cities where the need and distress is most acute, there are as many empty pews as there ever have been, and youth is asking the question as to whether after all the church did not fail to function properly or we would not be facing conditions as we find them today. What is going to be your attitude toward the church and what it is trying to accomplish in the world? It is just as difficult to reconcile the enforced idleness of today in the midst of so much work to be done, the hunger and want in the midst of plenty of food and clothing, poverty in the midst of untold wealth as it was to reconcile the hatred and killing of 1917 with a tolerable religion. Are you going to go forth in your profession and your business to make religion not just a matter of form and creed, but a vital force in society, as some one has put it, "We have put forth every effort to produce the needful things, now let religion direct the consecrated intelligence of men in the business of solving the problem of just and suitable distribution."

You are stepping into a world where there are an enormous number of failures among those who undertake the family and home enterprise. United States leads the world in the number of legally dissolved marriages, in fact in several states the rates are as high as one divorce for every three or four marriages, and the rate is increasing at on alarming rate. Young people are placed in a peculiar position today by the fact that many who would like to establish homes feel that financially they cannot do it, they cannot undertake such a responsibility at the present time, as a result there is often a promiscuous sex relationship which is not conducive to the greatest happiness and to the most wholesome family life. We must not forget that a nation of people with a happy and prosperous home life is a happy and prosperous nation. Young people, we have come to a time which we must emphasize anew in the midst of our busy industrial life the purity and sanctity of the home and the art of home building. We must have consistent education and training of our American youth toward a fuller appreciation of the seriousness of mating, the social sacredness of marriage, of the need of consideration and preparation before marriage, and of the responsibility of family life. Will you, as you enter your work whatever it may be, not dedicate your lives to this high cause?

There are other large issues to which you should dedicate your lives, but we cannot take time to discuss them here. The age of responsibility it being lowered, and young men and women are increasingly becoming the leaders in business, education, social activity, national interests, morals, religion, and international affairs. In spite of the handicaps which the depression has forced upon them, they are gradually finding their place in the world's work and are destined to work momentous changes in the patterns of the nation's life, and what a world into which to step, what opportunities for real services today!

Someone has likened life as a market place. Each young person comes to this great market-place with a life to exchange. Here on this side is the place where fortune is for sale and where the young person may exchange his life for things. Here is the place where popularity is for sale and where you may spend your life for the approval of men. In another place pleasure is for sale and you may exchange your life for enjoyment. Here is a place where fame is for sale and where you may give your life and receive in return the praises of men. Over there is a place marked "Others." There you may give your life and receive in return an opportunity to serve. Can you not picture a young man or woman stopping before each one of these places trying to decide just whether he shall give his life for fortune, pleasure, fame, or service. He stops in front of each one and each bids for his life. He stops before the one of sacrificial service and as he considers, a hand is laid upon his shoulder. It is a strong hand with a scar in the palm of it as though a nail had been driven through it and a voice of infinite understanding says, "Come, follow me! He that saveth his life shall lose it. What shall it profit a man if he gain money, fame, reputation, yes the whole world, and lose his own soul." How shall you respond to this call and this challenge as you stand facing your vocation and facing a needy, sin-sick world, a world torn by hatred, strife, and selfishness?

GENERAL CONFERENCE Y. P. WORK

Intercessory Prayer Cards

Over 4000 "Mennonite Young People Prayer Intercessor" cards were distributed during the time we visited the churches in the Middle, Eastern, and Western District Conferences, in the interest of the Y. P. work. We are glad to report that many cards were sent out by mail as requested. These cards were not given to everyone present at any meeting, only to such who raised their hands and thus signified that they wanted them.

Item No. 3

This item calls for daily intercessory prayer, for our Home and Foreign Missionary work. Are you missionary committee leaders making use of this opportunity to impress this matter on your society members? Think of what could be accomplished with 4,000 young Mennonites praying for our missionaries and our work! "Jesus Christ, the same yesterday, and today, and forever." Heb. 13:8. He has heard and answered prayers in the past, and will do so today if we pray earnestly.

Have You Written To Your Missionary?

One of the "points" in the Y. P. program called for the forming of a closer connection between the local C. E. Society and some missionary by correspondence. The matter of assuming a "share" of the financial responsibility of this one missionary was also laid on your hearts. We suggested the name of a certain couple or single worker to each society as a goal where you could invest your interest with gift and prayer. We followed a system so that all our missionaries, home and foreign, would be covered. Have you written to your missionary?

It was not the intention that this missionary project should cover the sum total of the C. E. missionary effort. Rather it was hoped that this personal contact and the correspondence that would come from the missionary addressed, would serve as an inducement for greater interest in our whole missionary task.

The size or amount of the "share" is left with the local C. E. Society. Please send all "share amounts" to the mission treasurer where it belongs: Home Mission Project money goes to Rev. J. E. Amstutz, Trenton, Ohio, and Foreign Mission support is to be sent to Mr. J. E. Regier, Newton, Kansas.

Have you considered this matter in your C. E. Society? If not, why not? Perhaps you have forgotten the particular missionary assigned to you. If so, we will gladly help you. Write immediately. Power and blessings to all C. E. Societies.

Y. P. Secretary, Berne, Indiana.

GENERAL CONFERENCE Y. P. WORK

Getting New Subscribers for Our Church Papers

Every so often Mr. F. J. Wiens, Manager of The Mennonite Book Concern, calls us into the store to show us what our young people are doing. One day it was a letter from Pennsylvania which contained about 25 new subscribers and renewals. Another day it was a letter from a Kansas church which contained 20 new subscriptions. A few days later an Oklahoma church forwarded some 18 or 20 new subscriptions for The Mennonite and Christian Evangel.

The C. E. Society members of many churches have worked nobly in this matter. Others have made a fair beginning. Some — — we wonder what they have been doing. Perhaps they have decided to wait until the summer heat and work was past and will now start in the fall months. To such we wish abundant success.

Are You Reading Your Church Paper Faithfully?

A well-informed church membership works, prays, and gives intelligently and with interest for the cause of Christ. You C. E. workers are rendering a noteworthy service to yourselves, your church, the Cause of Christ, and also the Publication Board when you secure a large number of new subscriptions and renewals.

By the way, have you sent in a short article of what your society has done, is doing, or planning to do?

Do you remember the goal? At least 75 percent of all of our homes subscribing to our church papers.

Send renewals and subscriptions for "Der Bundesbote" to Rev. C. E. Krehbiel, Newton, Kansas. All subscriptions and renewals for "The Mennonite and Christian Evangel" are to be sent to The Mennonite Book Concern, Berne, Indiana.

Yours for well distributed and well read church papers,
A. J. Neuenschwander,
Y. P. Secretary, Berne, Indiana.

CORRESPONDENCE

Topeka Mennonite Church, Topeka, Indiana. Members of the church held a farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kempp and children, Betty and Billy, who have moved to Detroit, Michigan, at the church Friday evening, August 31st. A pot-luck supper was served and a social evening was enjoyed. They will be greatly missed in the church.

The Ladies Aid met Thursday, September 6, with Mrs. Melvin Steele. Quilting was done.

One of the older members, Samuel M. Lantz, passed away Monday, September 10, at the age of seventy years. Funeral services were held at the brick Maple Grove church, Wednesday afternoon, September 12th, conducted by Rev. Salzman. Our sympathy goes to the widow and children in their bereavement.

The ladies of the Good Fellowship class were guests of Mrs. Roy Hartzler, Friday afternoon, September 14th.

Clifford Lantz has enrolled as a student at Goshen College, Goshen, Indiana.

Misses Verda Plank and Sarah Bohn have left for Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio, where they are employed.

Alden Plank submitted to an operation for appendicitis at the Kerchavel Hospital at Wolcottville, Indiana. He is recovering nicely.

Mrs. Ira Hostetler is recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident, Sunday afternoon, September 16th.

A drama was given in a union meeting held at this church, Sunday evening, September 16, by local talent. The drama was given under the direction of Mr. L. E. York, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, who had the leading part. This was the last of the union meetings which have been held this summer.

Miss Clara Bohn who traveled through Europe this summer, told of her experiences at the service Sunday evening, September 23.

Alden Plank and Paul Kohl have left for Bluffton, Ohio, where they have enrolled as students of Bluffton College.

DR. AND MRS. H. R. BAUMAN intend to return to India, October 13, on the S. S. Rex, Italian Line. Before their departure Bro. Bauman is to be ordained as elder in his home church, Quakertown, Pa. May the Lord bless this mission festival to them and to all participants.

P. H. Richert, Secretary.

A NEW ARITHMETIC

"I am not much of a MATHEMATICIAN," said the Cigarette, "but I can add to a man's nervous trouble, I can subtract from his physical energy, I can multiply his aches ond pains, I can divide his mental powers, I can take interest from his work and discount his chances for success, I can keep any man from being 100 percent physically, morally, or mentally."
—Dr. F. M. Naysmith.

MY CREED

I hold that Christian grace abounds
  Where charity is seen; and when
We climb to heaven, 'tis on the rounds
  Of love to men.

I hold all else named piety
  A selfish scheme, a vain pretense;
Where center is not — can there be Circumference?

This I moreover hold and dare
  Affirm where'er my rhyme may go,
Whatever things be sweet and fair,
  Love makes them so.

—Alice Cary.

On May 10, 1934, the Christian Endeavor Society of the Emmaus Mennonite Church of Whitewater, Kansas, celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. Brief talks on "The Purpose of Founding This Christian Endeavor" and "The Place of the Christian Endeavor in the Church" were given by Rev. B. W. Harder and Rev. Henry Thiessen, pastors of the church, respectively. The main address of the evening was delivered by Rev. R. S. Nance, State C. E. Secretary, who spoke on the subject, "The Need of Christian Youth Today."

On May 6, 1934, our society presented a program at the Zion Mennonite Church of Elbing, Kansas. The subject was, "Understanding Ourselves."

On August 19, the C. E. Society of the Swiss Mennonite Church of Whitewater gave a program on "What Have I to Share"? On September 16, our society gave a return program on the subject, "Courage."

Instead of the regular topic for September 30, the program committee has assigned each phrase of the 23rd Psalm to some member for discussion. Edna Claassen, Corr. Sec.

On August 21, a meeting of the Young People's Committee of General Conference was held in Chicago. When the meeting was first suggested, it was felt that a meeting was desirable, but there were no funds to pay traveling expenses for those who would attend. After much deliberation it was decided to hold the meeting and each one who attended would pay his own way. The appointed day arrived and the attendance surpassed the expectations. There were eleven present. While it was not possible for all of the members of the committee to be present, we were glad to note that every district, except western Canada, was represented. The day spent in fellowship and deliberation meant much to those who were present.

A review of the work of the past year revealed that the Field Secretary, Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander, had visited practically all of the churches in the Eastern, Middle, and Western Districts with gratifying results. It was decided that if it were at all possible financially this work should be continued.

The treasurer reported having received $375.81 during the year. This came in small amounts from the churches which had been visited. We wish we could say that this amount was sufficient to cover all of our expenses for the year, but as it is, we owe our Field Secretary about $60.00. If the churches which have not yet contributed toward this work would find it possible to do so, we should soon make up this amount.

Encouraging reports were received from the committee members, particularly in regard to the Retreats. Attendance and interest were even greater than in former years. Plans were made for holding a General Conference Retreat in California next summer, either preceding or following the General Conference. The program for the Young People's Sessions of Conference was also discussed.

It is impossible in this report to convey the feeling of enthusiasm and earnestness which prevailed at the meeting. In spite of the expense involved we feel that it was worth while and the committee should be able to do more effective work in the future because we have become better acquainted with each other and have a clearer idea of the task of the committee. The prayers of all are requested as we enter the work of the coming year.

Mary B. Borneman, Secretary-Treasurer.

Miss Hilda Nassar,
German Prot. School,
Jerusalem, Palestine.

Dear Hilda:— Greetings from America! I have just returned from a wonderful Christian Endeavor gathering and I feel that I must tell you all about it.

Every year about this time the young people of our Eastern District Conference of Mennonites get together away off in a secluded spot in the country which is known as Green Lane. We come with receptive hearts, sincerely desiring to learn more about the Master in the great out-of-door world that He has given us.

This was our seventh Retreat. Imagine 120 eager, active young people, nearly all leaders in the churches they represent, gathered together with the determination to have a glorious weekend Retreat — then you have a picture of the group.

A "get-together" meeting on Friday evening, punctuated with many handshakes, got us all rather well acquainted. Games were played and an inspirational talk followed. Saturday morning small groups formed for a Quiet Hour. Classes followed this. The courses given were: "The History of the New Testament," "A Study of the Parables of Jesus," "Missions," and "The Christian Attitude Toward War and Peace."

The afternoon was spent in recreation. In the evening one of the church groups presented a drama, "Simon, the Leper." It was very well given and put us in the right attitude to partake of the Lord's Supper which followed. Sunday morning we had another quiet hour and Sunday School session. Many well known choruses and hymns were sung during the day and at mealtime.

Before we realized it, farewell messages were being given and it was time to leave. The time went so quickly, but we have many pleasant memories to remind us of our Retreat. We are already looking forward to next year's conference. Sincerely yours,

Marion Owens (First Ch., Philadelphia.)

THE CHRISTIAN'S ATTITUDE TOWARD WAR AND PEACE

Rev. A. J. Neuenschwander

About two thousand years ago Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace, taught by his words and life that the way of peace should be practiced instead of the way of war. He gave numerous references which showed Christ's attitude on forgiveness, non-resistance, and love.

For the next two centuries the early Christians took the teachings of Christ on war seriously and refused to fight under any circumstances. However, in the third century they already did not carry out His teachings as fully and in 300 A. D. Constantine made Christianity the state religion and for the next seven centuries the dripping sword and Christianity went hand in hand.

A few small groups kept the cause of peace alive from 1000 to 1500 A. D. In 1525 the Mennonites arose and endeavored to carry out the teachings of Christ on non-resistance. For three centuries they have remained true to the teachings of Christ on peace. Their experiences were related as to the price they paid in the wars of the past. In the World War the Mennonites faced their critical and crucial test.

The future is ahead of us. What will the Mennonite Youth do in the event of another war? We must make the decision now that we will be true to the teachings of Christ and to the attitude of the early Christians. Then, too, we must now decide that we will be true to our heritage as Mennonites and be willing to say that we will never fight because our Master taught us the way of love.

Economic Conditions: What Is Good and What Is Bad In Them?

Scripture Text: James 5:1-8

Some people have the idea that a Christian and what is more a Young People's Society has no business concerning themselves with the economic conditions in which we are living. It is true, they are of the worldly type, yet as long as we are in the world we dare not be too otherworldly; we find Jesus concerned Himself about the conditions of His day. We may not be able to bring about many changes, but we should keep ourselves informed of conditions, help in whatever way we can and above all try to discover what God is trying to do in our day and age, lest by our attitude of other-worldliness we be working against God.

Economics has to do with money and money values. Money and wealth of any kind, these are not evil in themselves, but are the roots of all kinds of evil. Consider how a man will yield to some base temptation for the gaining of a little bit of wealth, how a man will be honest and of great integrity until he has accumulated some wealth and then quite often his character crumbles to pieces, and consider how people, yes even Christians, will worry because financial conditions are not as they would like to have them, and also think of the numberless families whose love and friendship are broken up when the parental estate is settled, simply because they value money more than friends. With these things in mind, James has very little good to say for selfish men: "Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for last days."

This topic has been given for our consideration at this particular time because of the particular financial stress in which we are finding ourselves since the financial crash overtook us back in 1929. It may be well to have someone briefly review the development through these past five years, in order that we may see the folly of men trying to get much for nothing and placing such a high value on the mighty dollar. Consider that this has not been an ordinary panic, but it has been and still is a revolution (may it be a bloodless one).

Without entering into partisanship in politics, if your program committee sees fit, it might be well to have somebody discuss the benefits derived from the N. R. A. and also some of the places where it is bringing about real hardship and must be changed. One of the questions which you will discuss is as to the relative good and evil which results from a period of depression, does it turn more people toward true religion or does it turn more away? At first thought we think it brings people to think upon religion, but the situation at present seems to point the other way. Into the lives of many there has come a sense of recklessness, irresponsibility, and a lack of integrity which is disconcerting. When men become cynical, it turns them away from true Christianity ond the church. It is true that when Christian faith is of the experiential type, men will come closer to their Christ in all times of stress and difficulty.

What is the cause for all of our difficulties? Why do things not improve, why do banks still hold savings accounts honestly earned by the sweat of the brow for rainy days and old age? What is the reason for all of our strikes and all of this financial unrest? Why did the trouble actually begin back in 1929? Where are we to look for a solution for our many problems? Possibly not in any dictatorships, not in government control, nor in crop reduction, but by getting Jesus Christ enthroned in the human heart. Law is weak and of little value when men's hearts are evil, nothing but the heart won and dominated by Jesus Christ will satisfy.

Questions

1. What is money? What is its relation to the Christian life?
2. Trace the main developments bringing about our present economic conditions.
3. What are the Christian fundamentals underlying the N. R. A.?
4. Name and discuss some of the evils of our present N. R. A.
5. Do periods of stress draw men to Christ and the church, or do they tend to drive them away?
6. Whence cometh the solution for our economic problems: in reform, government control, or in Spirit-filled men?

How May We Help To Put The Spirit Of Christ Into Economic Life?

Scripture Text: Matt. 20:25-28

In our discussion of last week, the general conclusion was that only in Jesus Christ can we find the solution for a Christian economic order, so this week we will endeavor to find the way in which this can come about. Our Scripture portion points the way: "Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant: Even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and give his life a ransom for many." In the field of finance and economics men seem to know nothing about finding greatness through service. There all success seems to be assured to the one who gets first into the fray and is the best schemer.

Many will tell us that Christianity is perfectly in place as long as it does not interfere with business, they feel that the two should not mix, and that has been the greatest difficulty in the past. We Christians have kept our religion too much in water tight compartments. The Christian is to be a light, he is supposed to have the influence of salt, to sweeten and to regenerate the world.

In many quarters there is a feeling that the teachings of Jesus Christ, such like the Golden Rule, can remake society. This takes the form of social reform. Many of us on the other hand are convinced that good teachings alone are not sufficient. It is not that men are in need of information, they need that inner conviction and power which helps them to do as good as they know. So what men do need is the Spirit of Jesus Christ which comes only when men feel the presence and power of Him in their lives. When men's hearts are right with God they will be prompted to do right. When men will give full loyalty to Jesus Christ they will not find it so very difficult to count personalities of greater worth than riches, they will see the sin of trusting in riches and will seek to find true wealth in the Christian way of life and the spiritual peace which accompanies it.

Questions

1. What is meant by the Spirit of Christ?
2. Should business and Christianity mix?
3. What should we seek to do—reform or transform the world?
4. How may society Christianize economics? Will it be easy?
5. What can Christian youth do to bring about the Christian social order?
6. What can the Y. P. Society and church do to bring Christ into industry and economics?

"Spirituality is old-time religion filling the heart and mind so full of good things that a stream of loving service is constantly flowing from the life toward both God and man."

Finding New Words in a Strange Language

Miss Agnes Sprunger, Africa

There is a saying that when one is afraid of making mistakes one is not going to learn a new language readily. It is often the case that when one makes a mistake, the word in question rivets itself in one's mind never to be forgotten. Missionaries sometimes have amusing experiences in learning the language of the natives, but it is no doubt more amusing to the natives than to us.

In the Pende language we have two words for split or cut apart, one meaning lengthwise, "taula," and one meaning crosswise, "batula." We had a boy who helped us in the dining room and also helped us much with the language. He understood very well what we meant even when we made mistakes. But one time he was told to "batula" the fruit, when we really meant for him to "taula" it. So when he was asked why he cut it crosswise he said we told him to do so. He probably did it on purpose to teach us the difference between the two words, and it was a helpful lesson.

One evening two of us missionaries went to a native village. We did not know the language very well yet, but we tried to converse with the people and use words that we thought we knew. One of us said to the natives that she was "following" palm wine, but she thought she said that she was "smelling" it. When told what the word "hata" meant she explained why she thought it meant "smell." It was as follows: One day there was meat in our screened cupboard and there were flies on the outside hoping for a chance to get at it. Then one of the natives said, "I keku (flies) idi muhata (are following) saba (meat)," the flies follow the meat, but the way the word was used she thought it meant the flies smell the meat, and was confident that she had a good word for "smell."

A Story From India

Once there was a missionary whose name was Jacob Burkhard. He worked at a place in India called Dhamtari. The famine had been very bad in that place. Many children were left orphans, and for a while he and his wife had three hundred boys to care for in an orphanage.

At first the boys were so weak from their former hungry condition that they sat around and did not care to play. Slowly, as they were given good food to eat, they became stronger and full of life, and Burkhard got them to play by running races with them and playing with them. They went to school and many grew up to be good men. A few became ministers of the Gospel, some farmers, others school teachers, blacksmiths, or something else.

Burkhard tried hard to get these boys to make the Lord Jesus their own personal friend and Savior. He told them they could not always be doing wrong things and expect to grow up to be good men and Christians.

One evening after prayers, seventeen boys came to him to confess some sins they had committed.

One time a little boy came and said he would not pray any more. Every time he wanted to pray some wrong thing he had done came into his mind. Burkhard got him to tell him what he had done that was wrong, then they knelt to pray and he got the little boy to pray to be forgiven. The little boy felt very badly, but after prayer he felt better. A few evenings later Burkhard asked him how he felt now, and the little boy said, "That evening after you prayed with me I went to my room and before going to sleep I prayed to God, asking Him to make me feel sure my sins were forgiven. While I was praying, these words from the Bible came into my mind, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee, go and sin no more.' " And the little boy was so happy.

Topic—Bringing Christ To Our Neighbors Who Come From Other Lands

Mark 7:24-30

When on my way to conference about a month ago, a lady who was quite talkative sat next to me in the train a part of the way. She had been visiting in Chicago and was so surprised to see how folks of different races worked and traveled together. She had seen one of a race she despised sitting beside a white woman in a bus and she said, "Why, if one of them sat down beside me I'd get up. I would"! Do you think she was right? I don't, and I tried to make her see how wrong she was. Christ died for all, and He not only wants us to send missionaries to other countries, He wants us to be kind to those who came to this land, and to tell them of Him.

Plans for the Meeting

Perhaps you have among the members of your church one who came to this country from other lands. If so, ask one of them to speak to the Juniors. Even though they may have known Christ before they came, if they did not speak English they can tell much of lonely days when friends were needed. This should encourage Juniors to a sympathetic understanding of neighbors from other lands.

Questions

1. What is a neighbor?
2. Why should we tell our neighbors of Christ?
3. Why need we be especially concerned about those from other lands?
4. Tell of someone from another land who "made good" here.
5. Why do some people look down on folks from some lands?

Topic—Stories From Mission Fields

Acts 8:1-8

Instead of speaking of the topic here, we would ask you to read the stories in this section on "Finding New Words in a Strange Language" and "A Story From India." These were written especially for our topic today, just for you boys and girls.

Plans for the Meeting

The Juniors should be encouraged to read the stories mentioned above and to find others. Use a map of the world in the meeting and have the boys and girls tell stories from different mission fields, assigned in advance.

Questions

1. How many mission fields can you name?
2. Why do these lands need missionaries?
3. What are medical missionaries, and how do they help?
4. What is the greatest work of the missionary?
5. Quote a Bible verse telling of the need of mission work.

"Just where you stand in the conflict,
There is your place;
Just where you think you are useless,
Hide not your face;
God placed you there for a purpose
Whate'er it be,
Think He has chosen you for it
Work loyally.
Gird on your armor! Be faithful
At toil or rest.
Whiche'er it be, never doubting
God's way is best.
But in the field, or on picket,
Stand firm and true!
This is the work which the Master
Gives you to do."

The best answer any one can make when questioned for proof of the resurrection of the Lord is the humble, but irrefutable one: "Christ liveth in me."—J. S. H.

Fellowship With Christ

Lesson Text—John 15

Golden Text: "Abide in me and I in you, as the branch cannot bear fruit of itself except it abide in the vine; so neither can ye, except ye abide in me." John 15:4.

We have come to the last group of lessons for the year 1934. The first half of the year we studied the life of Jesus. Then we turned our attention for one quarter to the history of Israel and the message of the prophets. Now very fittingly after a study of the Old Testament and the life of Jesus we come to a consideration of the fruitage of such a study. For after all the primary purpose of the study of God's Word is that it might produce the abundant life.

Our lesson for the first Sunday is taken from Jesus' teachings to His disciples, just before He left them. He had met with them in the upper room where He broke bread and gave the cup as symbols of common union and fellowship. Then He took a towel and girded Himself and washed the disciples' feet. How impressive these symbols are when we know that the disciples on the way up to the upper room were contending as to who was the greatest. How human they were! Jesus by the above symbols taught them that position comes as a result of humble, unselfish service and is given to those who least seek it. Then as they left the upper room and were walking out towards the garden of Gethsemane He taught them the lesson of the vine and the branches. They were sorrowful because He was leaving and He was trying to have them see that His fellowship with them need never end.

This teaching of the vine and the branches is in keeping with God's eternal purpose for man. Have you ever asked yourself the question: Why did God create man? And then as you studied Genesis chapters one and two you discovered that God wanted man as a companion and a fellow-worker. God had life all about Him in the garden, even the animals, but they were no companions. God hungers for fellowship and companionship. So He created man that he might be a friend. He told man to keep the garden and dress it. All through the Old Testament we are aware of this fellowship and cooperation which God desires of man. Jesus came and said, "I and my Father are one." "I came to do the will of him that sent me." So when Jesus left this earth He emphasized fellowship as illustrated in the relation of the branches to the vine. A vine does not bear fruit but it furnishes the life and strength to the branches so they can be fruitful. So in life Jesus would carry out His program through His disciples as they live in fellowship with Him.

This is very essential in the life of the church. Many of the problems of the present-day church can be traced back to a lack of fellowship and unity. Fellowship with Christ always produces a life of love and good will.

The Christian and His Bible

Lesson Text—Acts 8:26-39

Golden Text: "Oh how I love thy law! It is my meditation all the day." Ps. 119:97.

The setting of this subject is found in the experience of Philip and the eunuch. Philip had been chosen as a helper of the apostles when the early church expanded very rapidly. He became an evangelist and preached in Samaria. Then he received a call to go south towards the Philistine territory. On his way he overtook a eunuch of Egypt who had been a Jewish proselyte and had been to Jerusalem to worship. He was reading the roll of Isaiah when Philip came upon him. Philip asked him whether he understood what he read. He said he needed a guide in his study of the Word. So Philip took occasion to preach Christ to him from the book of Isaiah as a basis.

This desire that someone guide the individual in his Bible study is a significant one in the church today. In spite of our Sunday Schools there is a great ignorance on the part of church people concerning the Word of God. It might be well for Sunday School teachers and officers to take time to discover why this is true.

The Bible is a revelation of the experiences of men and women who lived in the presence of God. The highest revelation is found in Jesus. We read the Bible that this experience might become ours. The result of our reading should be the abundant life. These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and believing ye might have life through his name." This is life eternal that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom Thou hast sent.

But the Bible must be studied before it can be of any value to life. Just to have it in the home and on the library table does not insure abundant living. The Bible is not an object of magic or a rabbit's foot of good luck because we have it in the home. Many people sing, "Blessed Bible, how we love it," yet never look inside. Unless READ, the Bible is of no more value to the individual than any other book. But if studied and believed, it becomes the guide of life.

DR. GRAY RESIGNS

James M. Gray, D. D., LL. D., has resigned as President of The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, in order to be relieved of the business cares of its administration, but has accepted the office and title of President-Emeritus and will continue in active relation with the work on the faculty, as editor of the Moody Monthly, and lecturer in the field.

Dr. Gray's connection with the Institute, officially and unofficially, covers a period of forty years, dating back to the time of its founder, D. L. Moody, with whom he was associated and whose successor in office he became. During his administration, the Institute has greatly expanded. From eight buildings it has increased to thirty-eight; from a staff of forty officials, teachers, and other employees, to one of more than 200, and a student roster of about 1,000 has increased to more than 17,000 in the combined Day, Evening, and Correspondence Schools. The assets of the Institute now exceed six million, and although the gross operating expense last year approximated one million, yet the budget was balanced within about $2,000. The depression and the immigration laws have somewhat reduced the student roster of the Day School during the past two or three years, but the opening of the present Fall Term shows a return toward the peak.

Dr. Gray has been a prolific author, nearly twenty volumes and a large number of pamphlets having come from his pen, with a distribution running into hundreds of thousands. He also is editor-in-chief of the Moody Monthly, which perhaps is quoted more frequently and has a larger circulation than any monthly periodical in its class.

As a preacher and Bible teacher, Dr. Gray made as many as nine visits to Great Britain and is well known to many evangelical leaders in that country. He commands large audiences wherever he is announced to speak and has been distinguished in all the years for his unswerving stand for the foundation truths of the Christian faith. But that for which he is best known and for which his name is almost a synonym, is the synthetic study of the Bible. Ministers and laymen the world over bear testimony to its supreme importance in the interpretation of the Scriptures.

Evangelical leaders in every part of the world including a large Alumni constituency, are glad to learn that his resignation as president of the Institue will not interfere with his work as editor or his teaching in the classroom and on the public platform.

Dear Loyal Temperance Legioners:

Have any of you boys and girls ever spent any money and then later felt that you did not spend wisely, but rather wasted your money? Well, if you have, I am sure that you felt badly about it, did you not? God at one time asked His people, why "they spend their money for that which is not bread and their labor for that which satisfieth not." They must have been spending their money for something that was not good for them. And now I am wondering what God must think of the more than 922 million dollars a year that is spent for cigarettes by the American people. Is that not worse than wasted? With it more than six trillion loaves of bread could be bought at 15 cents a loaf, or more than 184 million pairs of shoes at $5.00 a pair; 922,500 automobiles at $1000 each; 500 homes at $5000 each; or it would give 92,500 young people a $10,000 education. These staggering sums do not include tobacco in other forms. Let us think seriously, boys and girls. Is God well pleased? Not alone is the money wasted, but thousands of lives are wrecked by the habit. Tobacco contains no less than 16 poisons. I wonder how many missionaries could be supported on such a vast sum? The tobacco companies want 1200 boys and girls daily to begin the cigarette habit. Let us work hard to keep as many as possible from the awful habit.

Your L. T. L. friend, Mrs. Sommer.

JOTTINGS

The Mission Society of West Zion church, Moundridge, Kansas, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its existence with special exercises. Mrs. Otto Rupp had charge of the meeting. Talks were given by Rev. P. K. Regier, Mrs. J. M. Suderman, Rev. J. J. Plenert, and Miss Anna Fast, missionary from China. Rev. P. A. Penner and Dr. Caroline Theodore were represented by messages from them from India. An anniversary poem, written by Sister Hillegonda of Bethel Hospital, was an added feature to the program.

Prof. J. D. Unruh of Freeman College, Freeman, S. D., who has made an extensive study of pioneer life in his community, addressed the Old Settlers at a gathering held in Hurley, S. D.

Rev. Phil. Wedel of Moundridge, Kansas, recently returned to his home from a week's services he had conducted at Gotebo, Okla. He has conducted similar series of meetings in some of the churches of central Kansas.

An enthusiastic group of alumni and friends of Bluffton College held a reunion in Dalton last month. Prof. W. A. Howe addressed the gathering. In the group were a number of those who came from out of town.

A summer series of union meetings held in Moundridge, Kans. was designated as School Night. Dr. E. J. Kaufman, president of Bethel College, brought the message. The meeting had the active support of the pastors of the community.

Assurances were given at the World Conference of Baptists, recently held in Germany, that the free churches (those not a part of the state church) will not be hampered by government interference or regulation. Mennonites in America have been wondering in just how far the control of Mennonite churches would be affected under the Hitler government. The recent announcement by the Chancellor-President, that there is to be but one evangelical church in the Reich, still makes one feel that there is cause for anxiety concerning our German churches and their future. However, newspaper reports concerning things in Germany are not very reliable just now.

Pioneer life among the Russian Mennonite refugees living in Paraguay is taking shape of a well organized Christian community. Hard and difficult as must be the hewing out of a civilized community in the heart of a semi-tropical wilderness, our brethren are not unmindful of their spiritual needs. Churches are regularly attended. Special festivals are arranged, such as Harvest Thanksgivings, Mother's Day, etc. There are also spirited young people's meetings in progress in the several churches. At special meetings special collections are taken for benevolent purposes and receive a liberal response. The schools are not neglected and are under competent instructors. During one of the special services a long train of autos bearing sick and wounded victims of the war on their way to the army hospitals, passed. The colonists embraced the opportunity by supplying the patients with refreshments.

The treasurer of the Foreign Mission Board of the General Conference, J. E. Regier, reports the following: Balance in bank, August 1, $2,201.39. Gifts for General Fund, Orphans, for Ewert, Interest, and Rents, Gifts for Sundries, $4496.50. Paid on Orders $7,865.35. Remitted direct to India, $50.30. Balance in Bank, September 1, $132.54.

The officers elected at the meeting of the Middle District Conference to serve for the coming year, are: President, Rev. A. E. Krieder; vice president, Adolph Friesen; secretary, Dr. J. S. Schultz. New members elected to the standing committees were: Educational, Edison Sprunger; Home Missions, Rev. P. A. Kliewer; Program, Rev. J. E. Amstutz; Trustee, Eli Lugibill.

A missionary meeting, sponsored by the Ladies Aid Society of the East Swamp, Pa., church, was held on the evening of September 9. Doctor Ella Bauman gave the address and the ladies' quartet rendered several selections. Rev. W. S. Gottshall is pastor of the East Swamp church.

According to a report from Holland the company of refugees in Syria, numbering more than a hundred, being driven from pillar to post are not Mennonites as supposed, but members of a Russian sect. A representative of the Dutch government made the investigation and through him the Mennonites in Holland were able to identify the group. That they are in need there can be no doubt, and the Dutch brethren are hoping for a way of rendering them some assistance, but unfortunately the numerous severe claims of Mennonites in distress makes the prospect of providing much for them remote.

The coming General Conference to be held in Los Angeles, Calif., next summer, will mark the seventy-fifth year of its existence. No doubt it will bring to note some of the factors involved in calling it into existence. The first of these was a division in the Franconia Conference in Pennsylvania and the next in importance was a desire of some churches throughout the country for a closer relation with other Mennonite groups. Oberholtzer, a young preacher, had suggested to his Conference that it keep records of its actions. This gave offense. He also asked permission to have read at the Conference the proposed Constitution which he had printed. The printing of this pamphlet was resented by the conference as a piece of arrogance and Oberholtzer and his friends were denied the privilege of speaking in defense of the document which the Conference refused to have read. Being condemned without a hearing, Oberholtzer and seven other ministers with eight deacons retired from the conference meeting. The Conference then passed what was practically an excommunication and was so regarded by both sides. This was in 1847. In October of the same year the excommunicated group met in the Skippack Meeting House and organized the East Pennsylvania Conference. The paper, the "Botschafter," established by Oberholtzer and printed in a corner of his blacksmith shop, gained a circulation beyond the limits of the Conference and through it there developed an interest that resulted in the meeting in Iowa some years later, which was the beginning of the General Conference.

Landis.—On April 28, 1934, Daniel M. Landis, at the age of 77 years, 3 months, 10 days. Mr. Landis was a member of Flatland Mennonite Church for over 50 years, being long the deacon of this congregation. He was also for many years superintendent of the Sunday School. Being resident in Philadelphia in later years, he regularly attended the First Mennonite Church there and was long teacher of the Men's Bible Class. He was a member of the Home Mission Committee of the Eastern District at the time of his death, was one of the founders and a trustee of the Mennonite Home for the Aged. He became well known throughout the General Conference at the time of its session in Perkasie when he served as steward of the dining hall. Funeral services were conducted at his late home in Philadelphia on the 30th by Rev. Carl J. Landes and Purd E. Dietz; at Perkasie on May 1 by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger, assisted by Revs. A. M. Fretz and Howard Obold.

Juliana (nee) Ewert Franz, daughter of Julius and Juliana Ewert, was born June 30, 1879, near Salem, South Dakota. She was baptized upon her confession of faith in the Lord Jesus Christ by the Rev. Christian Kaufman, July 23, 1893, and united with the church. October 21, 1897, she was married to Leonard L. Franz. The Lord blessed this union with four sons and one daughter. The family came to Washington in 1902. She united with the church at Menno in 1903 and has been a faithful member ever since. She passed away in the hospital in Spokane, Monday night, August 13. Her age was 55 years, 1 month, and 13 days. She leaves to mourn her untimely departure, her bereaved husband, four sons, one daughter, two daughters-in-law, six grandchildren, five brothers, four sisters. Funeral services were conducted from the Menno Mennonite Church south of Odessa, August 16. Interment was made in the Mennonite cemetery near the church. Rev. M. J. Galle spoke words of comfort.

Beulah Beasley Zook, the daughter of Otis and Mary Smith Beasley, was born June 17, 1908, at Mackinaw, Illinois, and died at her home near Carlock, September 8, 1934, aged 26 years, 2 months, and 21 days. She received her school training at Mackinaw and later was telephone operator for five years. She was married to Delmar Zook of Danvers, September 30, 1928. Two children were born into this home, one son, Richard Dewayne, 21 months old, and a daughter, Rhea Jane, of a few days. She is survived by her husband, her father and mother, one sister, Mrs. Everett Maurer of Tremont, and one niece, Dona June Maurer.

Mrs. Zook accepted her Christ and became a member of the Christian church at Mackinaw. After her marriage she transferred her membership to the North Danvers Mennonite church. She was a devoted Christian wife and mother, who loved her home and also the church. She took an active part in the work of the Sunday School and the church. She will be sadly missed in the home, church, and community.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.

Gone! But she has left us only
For a better world above,
There to wait our coming over
Resting safely in God's love.

Funeral services were held at the North Danvers Mennonite church in charge of the pastor, Rev. Wm. B. Weaver. Burial was made in the North Danvers cemetery.

Samuel M. Lantz, son of David and Sarah Lantz, was born in St. Joe County, Michigan, May 22, 1864. He died at his home near Topeka, Indiana, September 10, 1934, at the age of 70 years, 3 months, and 19 days.

At the age of 17 years he moved with his parents to Johnston County, Mo. On June 14, 1891, he was united in marriage to Josie Ensworth. To this union were born 15 children, 4 infants preceding him in death. Those left to mourn his loss are his companion and the following children, Alpha, Nellie, and Grace of near Sidney, Ohio; Blanche, Lottie, and Omer of Rockford, Illinois; Paul, Roy, and Floyd of Leslie, Michigan; Lydia of Harrisonville, Missouri; and Ida, a missionary on the fields of South America. Besides the children he leaves 28 grandchildren, 1 brother, Levi, of Leesburg, Indiana; 2 sisters, Amanda of Springfield, Mo., and Melissa of National City, California.

Mr. and Mrs. Lantz lived together in their wedded life 43 years. Five years ago the daughter from South America was here on furlough and at that time the family held their only complete family reunion which they were ever privileged to enjoy.

When a young man, he accepted Christ and united with the church. Seven years ago when he moved to his home near Topeka, he transferred his membership to the Mennonite Church. He was faithful in his attendance at the services until his health began to fail several months ago.

> "O Light Divine, we need no fuller test
> That all is ordered well;
> We know enough to trust that all is best
> Where love and wisdom dwell."

Services were held at Old Maple Grove church, and burial was made at Maple Grove cemetery. The funeral was in charge of Rev. Earl Salzman.

Roth.—Catharine, nee George, widow of Henry G. Roth, on June 21, 1934, at the age of 88 years, 5 months, 26 days. She was one of the few surviving persons who attended West Swamp Sunday School upon its organization 77 years ago. A devoted member of West Swamp Church, services were conducted at that place on the 25th by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger.

Hood.—On June 10, 1934, Clara, nee Shelly, wife of Clinton M. Hood, at the age of 67 years, 1 month, 29 days. She was an active member of the West Swamp Church, at which place services were conducted by Rev. A. S. Rosenberger on the 14th.
